Next year the Irish Free State expects to welcome at least a million of her sons and daughters who have made their homes in other lands. Three important celebrations will call home the sea-divided Gaels: 1932 marks the fifteenth centenary of the coming of Saint Patrick to the Green Isle; the Eucharistic Congress will be held in June, which will attract members of the Catholic Church from all quarters of the globe; and after that will be held the 4-year-old festival of Aonach Tailteann (the Tailteann games), said to have been instituted as long ago as 632 B.C., in honor of Queen Tailte.

After a lapse of 700 years this festival of the games was revived in 1924, and received with unbounded enthusiasm. Athletes from all parts of the world pitted their skill against the cream of native talent, and it is expected that next year there will be present another and younger group of outside competitors. But the festival will not be altogether athletic in nature. Irish dancing, music, literature and art will be conspicuous on the program of events.

When it is understood that, no matter where they live, men and women whose grandparents on either side was Irish are eligible for these competitions, some idea may be formed of what the entry list will be like. The Irish race is prolific of men of brawn, and all of them are addicted to athletics, keen sportsmen who have excelled in many fields of manly competition. Her sons and daughters also are eminent in the world of art, more especially in literature and music. When the Tailteann games begin in Dublin next June, and end of June next the world will look on with interest to earn if exotic-tisted Irish men and women are able to come up against the best talent the homeland can produce.—Toronto Globe.

GYMNASTICS AND EDUCATION

A remarkable demonstration of gymnastics, folk dancing and folk singing, by a party of twenty-six Danish young men and women will be given in Toronto shortly under the direction of Hella Bukh, principal of the Gymnastic People's College at Ollerup, Denmark. They are now on their way home from Japan, whither they went to assist the Japanese Government to demonstrate their system to the Japanese public and especially to Japanese school teachers. The members of the team are amateurs, and they present a valuable feature of Danish high school education. Educationists on this continent, familiar with Danish methods in physical physical development, urged him to visit Canada and the United States in order to give their people and, especially, their educational institutions a chance, which will be opportunity to see the demonstrations by his team.

In Canada the trip is under the auspices of the National Council of Education. Following their exhibition n Winnipeg on November 4 the Winnipeg Tribune said: "The National Council of Education added definitely to its prestige when it took under its sponsorship the Hella Bukh group and the Danish amateur gymnastics and folk dancers. The demonstrations that their demonstrations "were a real contribution to the health and gymnastics of Winnipeg's boys and girls." It is especially for this reason that the visit of Bukh's party will be welcome. His system of training is adapted to the needs of young people in general. It is not required that the boys and girls are exceptionally gifted for gymnastic development. There is necessary other argument, but there must be something special about Bukh's to attract the attention of many organizations of foreign countries.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

TRUCKS AND BUSES

Premier Taschereau, of Quebec, has intimated that his Government intends to take a hand in the matter, at least partly, the railways from the competition of motors of various kinds used on the highways. During the debate on the address he point ed out that the railway transport companies reported deficits each month, and asked how long that could continue.

"True," he said, "revenues of the railways have fallen off because of the commercial depression, but that is not the whole story. It is this motor competition which threatens the present situation. Are we in this province where we have to help the railways 12 months a year, where we cannot count on motor cars, or buses or auto trucks during the severe winter months? Is it not only railways to go to the state where they will end in a wreck? No. In the course of this session we intend to invite the House to decide if the time has not come to put the transportation business, passenger and freight, on a basis where there will be competition against the railways will be restrained."—Mail and Empire.

Little Benny's Note Book

My cuzzin Artie stayed at my house all nite last nite, and we was laying in bed tawging and going to sleep and I said, Hay Artie do you wunt to buy my paper cov-er book entitled How to hipnotize people? It cost a dime and I'll sell it to you for 7 cents. I said. Like fun, He ony a lot of imitation bunk, there aint any such thing, Artie said, and I said, All rite, if you feal ill do, I give you the first lesson free, pervided you buy the book if the ferst lesson write. The ferst lesson is how to put people to sleep and make them answer questions but it dont show you how to make them believe their mumkies and things like that, I said.

All rite, go ahead and show me, Artie said, and I said, Well the ferst lesson is a cinch, all you half to do is open and shut your hand 2 times in front of somebodys face and say Bobby blabity sobo youre asleep, and then you can ask them whatever questions you wunt to and they half to answer the correct answ. Go ahead and try it, I said.

Wich he did, and I shut my eyes slow like I was asleep, but I wuz'nt, they was hipnotized, Artie saying to Mawd, Are you asleep? and me saying, Yes, and him saying, Then where are you but the rest of your body exactly while I was cleaning my teeth?

Me thinking, Heck, what did he half to go and ask that for? and Artie said, Are you going to answer or aint you hipnotized? and I said, im hipnotized but thats a no fair question and it won't work.

Aw go on youre a lot of beliovy Artie said, and I said, oh I am, am a lot more and you cant back it up or down.

THROUGH the STORM

by Louise Peple Armstrong

Enid shivered when the strap was fastened around her waist. She had a feeling that she was about to burst into tears. So appalling a thing to do, with Hastings standing there behind the pilot.

The pilot put his goggles and cap, asked gruffly how she did.

"Perfectly, thanks," she murmured uncertainly.

Out of the corner of her eye she could see Hastings coming forward now, sort of hovering. He would step up in a minute and kiss her goodbye. Somehow she hated to think of it.

"This is an idiotic thing to attempt," Hastings said nervously, "I shan't get a wink of sleep tonight."

"But I'll telegraph you the moment I reach 'Prince,'" Enid said almost apologetically, hoping to get rid of him soon. She could hear the pilot climbing into the driver's seat behind her.

They were off, with a roar of the motor and a rush of air. The little plane flew down the fairway, turned and left the earth. The lights at the edge of the field were winking on, for dusk had descended rapidly. Up, and up, and the city limits below were a confused blur.

Then wind took her breath, and the thrill of great heights filled her soul. Instantly, Enid almost forgot everything—Hastings's violent disapproval, the sad scene she had just had with him, Tommy lying in the "Prince hospital, broken and battered, maybe dying—how could she know? Her first air-ride, and to take in such a harrowed state of mind.

Her thoughts circled back to her problems soon enough, even while white stars simmered above and the blue-black clouds with fringes of light came nearer—she was flying to Tammy.

It grew colder, and she drew her coat about her gratefully. Once she glanced back at the pilot. He was crouching low over, his eyes fastened on the panel, intent on this business of flying. Well, it was nothing to him that she was flying on a desperate errand.

Suddenly the pilot flung up his head in an old gesture, like that of a spirited horse—like, yes, strangely like Jimmy Allen would fling up his head at a strange sound in the woods that time on the hunting party.

Why, it had been almost four years since she had heard of Jimmy Allen, with his nervous, switching hands, brown drawn together, the intent appeal of his eyes, something pathetic about his eyes.

It began to grow still colder, and Enid noticed that the sky had an odd degrity. They were flying higher—of course, the mountains. And now snow began to fall in thick, white flakes which covered the wings and stuck fast. They were in a world of smothering white hanging around like a curtain evenuting the winds.

It seemed hours that they flew thus through the snow storm. Then it stopped snowing and the winds whipped up. She bent low behind the windshield for they cut at her face savagely.

She must have dozed, and when she awoke it was with a sensation of falling. That was pure nonsense—but no, for she bent over the side of the plane she saw that they were falling. Through the black of the night she could discern the earth, blacker yet, coming up to meet them, the dense shadows of trees—they swept past the trees and crashed to the ground with a terrific jolt.

The pilot had to lift her almost godily from the machine, she was so numb with cold. He set her down hastily and said: I'll gather sticks and make a fire. Stay here, please."

"What's happened?" she asked tremulously.

"Engine trouble. Have to wait until it's light. Sorry."

Enid was appalled. Suddenly enraged at the stiff, quick sound of his voice. This delay would be awful.

"Couldn't you have kept on? It's imperative that I get to San Francisco as early as possible. My brother's had an accident."

The pilot took off his goggles, struck a match and lighted a cigarette almost casually.

"Jimmy Allen?" Enid screamed. "You I'd never have—

In the darkness Allen laughed. "Never have flown with me? Thanks Enid. But I must admit I didn't know until the last who my safe passenger would be. Still thinking me a coward?"

Her mind moved desperately. She must try and keep up his morale until—She stepped forward and laid a friendly hand on his arm. "I didn't mean that, Jimmy I'm just so anxious about Tom. I'd die if anything happened, and I wasn't there with him.

But Allen turned silently away, and began gathering sticks.

In a very few minutes he had, with the aid of an electric hand torch, collected enough for a fire, and it was blazing merrily. Enid could see now that they had landed in a clearing just passed the trees which had frightened her so in their descent.

She wondered uneasily if Jimmy Allen could take off again in the space, which was so much narrower than the fairway. She wondered if he had lost his nerve and would refuse to go on, just as he had that day in the woods when one of the hunting party had tripped over a snag and narrowly escaped tragedy when his gun exploded. The thought of Allen's white, tense face, the way he cringed and spoke incoherently. One of the boys called him "gun-shy". She had been so ashamed of him before them all—

Across the fire she bow felt Jimmy Allen's eyes on her. She looked up. "Must we wait 'till daylight? Can you go on?"

"There's a storm coming up, Enid. The barometer shows it. Even if I fixed the engine—it wouldn't be safe."

"Oh, safe! Haven't we been through enough since storm? You're just afraid!" She spat the words at his, too disgusted to longer hide her own opinion of him to get her out.

Allen nodded. "You're always though as a coward, since that time in the woods, Enid. For a time I imagined I was a coward, too. But it was only an aversion to take unnecessary risks."

"I'm not interested in your self-analysis. But why if you're brave to take chances, did you go in for aviation?" she sneered.

"That was one of many things I did to force myself to be brave. And in flying I got to understand myself—and you, too."

They were silent while the fire cracked, its red light reflected on the plane in the foregrowng waiting.

Presently Allen spoke again. "A girl named Enid Mason was left with a small brother to raise. The responsibility warped her sense of values. She began to be afraid. Afraid of losing her job—afraid she wouldn't get married, that is, wouldn't marry well. She fell in love, but she was afraid the man was not worthy of her. So she sent him away, rather ruthlessly, at a time when he needed most her love, and faith. She finally engaged herself to another. It was calculated to be a good match, because this girl, Enid, had come to be terribly afraid of poverty—"

She arose abruptly. "I never was in love with you—"

But Allen caught her wrist as she would have passed him. "I'm going to fly the machine but I can now. We'll go on, storm or no storm. Only don't lie, Enid—about our love. And don't call me a coward again."

"So you made the trip, by plane in spite of the weather? Just because you were so anxious about me?" Tommy's young arms were around her, her tears fell on his face. "The report you got must have sertully mixed. Gosh, I'm sorry, sis. All that mental anguish for nothing but a few broken ribs!"

"But the trip wasn't in vain, darling, "his sister said, standing behind the hospital cot, still clinging, to his hand.

"No! Well, I'll be up in time to see you and Hastings Grant march blissfully up the church aisle, and then—"

"I'm going to break my engagement to Hastings Tom."

Tommy Mason looked his astonishment.

"And you wouldn't be able to go to college after all, dear."

"You act as though that were the main idea!" the boy cried.

She put out a hand that shook. "Don't talk about it, Tommy. That was one of my ideas in marrying Hastings Grant. I've had time to do a bit of thinking—up there in the storm last night, knowing I was forcing the man I really love to risk death—"

The door opened silently, and a figure in flying togs stood there. Enid cried. "Oh, you—you heard me?"

The tall aviator strode quickly in, to her side, possessing himself of both her hands. "Yes, but I knew anyway, Enid, Tommy," he turned to her wide-eyed brother, "I'm the man your sister will accompany up the church aisle. I guess she and I are through with all foolish fears. We—we came through the storm together."

KNOW FATE ON FRIDAY

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 12.—(By the Canadian Press)—The eight former York township councillors, convicted of conspiracy two weeks ago, and who were to be sentenced this morning, will not know their fate until Friday next. Mr. Justice Kelly today sent word to the city hall that he would not interfere with the Communists' trial now going on, and postponed sentence until Friday.

ISSUE ULTIMATUM

PARIS, Nov. 12.—(AP)—If the League of Nations fails to settle the Manchurian dispute China will build up her national defenses to a point strong enough to withstand "external aggression," Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese member of the League of Nations Council told the league tonight.

Alleged Japanese Have Made Overture to White Russians

No Confirmation of Report of Negotiations With "Whites"

NO DECLARATION

Reply to "Aide Memoir" Has Been Dispatched to Washington

MOSCOW, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Tass News Agency today received a message from Khabarovsk, saying a Japanese newspaper editor attached to the Japanese military mission at Harbin, Manchoria, has made proposals to groups of "white" Russians to provoke a conflict with the Soviet government and draw Russia into the Manchurian conflict.

There was no confirmation of the report.

The Editor was said to have invited the "white" Russian General Kosmin, on behalf of the Japanese mission, to organize an attack against the Chinese eastern railway and to arrest several prominent Soviet officials on the road, including the Russian Consul and the Manager.

Tokyo, Nov. 10 (AP)—Japan's reply to the "aide memoir" of the United States Government on the Manchurian conflict, was dispatched to Washington today.

Official dispatches from Manchoria today denied that General Mah Chang Shan, commanding the Chinese troops near the Nonni River bridge, did issued a declaration of war against Japan. The dispatches also denied that the Chinese had bombarded the Japanese position near Tahsing, as reported yesterday.

On the contrary it was said the situation in Manchuria is quiet.

Withdrawal of the Japanese troops from the Nonni River vicinity, originally expected to take place November 12, the government said, might be delayed a few weeks because fighting delayed the repairing of the bridges.

While press reports appeared to indicate continued troop movements in the vicinity of Angangchi and Tsitsihar, the situation now seems calm, and the indication is that ample opportunity will be afforded for the engineers to finish the bridge repairs.

OUTLAWS OF EDEN

by Peter B. Kyne

"You're a rotten shot, at that," said Rube Tenney. You've got a .32 calibre bullet through his right biceps. However, it sufficed to spoil his pitch and stampede him, so he ran for those trees."

He helped himself to the canteen on Joseph's saddle and dashed some water over Pitt River Charley's dusky face. Then he emptied the fellow's pockets and found two hundred and fifty dollars in crisp new bills. Tichenor grinned at his servant. "Not counting the five hundred dollars dead to somebody, Joseph, I'm ahead to-day by half that sum and the remainder upon completion of the job and whenever hired fellow is a fool, because Pitt River Charley would have worked just as hard for me."

"Good God, sir," cried the horrified Joseph.

"Well, you haven't got a killing on your hands, British cool, Joseph, and I'm obliged to you for saving my life." Then the horribly embarrassed when Tichenor slapped his back several times and seized him by the back and a stout fellow and that he, Tichenor, crawled plunged on to the pinto, would thereafter pry Joseph loose from his service. "I'll quit now," he concluded, "while you take the canteen up to the Bronson Creek trail and without letting Miss Kershaw know anything about this affair. Find Rube Tenney, her superintendent, and tell him I'm sorry to see him in the mediately. He's to come back in the car with you and bring his rifle."

"Sorter like old days, eh, sir?" ain't it, son?" Mr. Tenney declared, as he gazed upon Tichenor, who now recovered consciousness and sitting with his back against the bole of a tree, his dark, evil face absolutely expressionless. He turned to the valet. "You drive down the road a bit, brother, and wait there fifteen minutes. Then come back with the car. Me an' Mr. Tichenor's gonta hold court here and—kin, to be a private session."

He removed the steel magazine from the butt of Joseph's little rifle, screwed it together and wrapped his bandanna handkerchief around one end, in order to get a good grip on it.

He grasped a handful of shirt in the middle of Pitt River Charley's back and with one savage jerk the man's torso was naked.

"Fine alcrd, Joseph," Tichenor ordered gently, "or you'll be sick to your stomach. I've stanched the bleeding Pitt River Charley and when the half-breed has refueled his gut and took refuge in aboriginal nonchalance, Rube Tenney used the tan cord, while his victim hung helpless from a limb, its feet just touching the earth. His judges knew his kind knew there was only quick work and dirty work would bring the information so vitally needed.

"Who hired you, Charley?" Tichenor kept repeating patiently, while Tenney's arm rose and fell, with a momentary pause to give the fellow time to answer.

"Babson — of the bank."

"And the price?"

"Five hundred —half down."

"You killed Jim Hensley 18 years ago, didn't you?"

Silence.

"Guilty as hell," Mr. Tenney murmured. "Court's adjourned. Slip the loop of the rawhide over his hands an' around his neck. I'll hist him with that here ponder."

"Not for a white man's sin, Rube. He's fined two hundred and fifty dollars." He turned to Pitt River Charley, "You will do the best way you know how down to Valley Centre and have Doc Donaldson fix you up. Tell him to send the bill to Babson. And when you are well, see that you never set foot out of this country, because if I ever catch you inside the limits of this county I'm going to pull and get busy on you without further warning. Understood?"

The killer nodded humbly, the cast him loose and, lacs his rifle, he shambled off down the trail.

"What's Babson got a-gin you, Mister Rube Tenney demanded.

"Nothing. He poor fool thinks he has."

"You'd better let me down an' tunnel him," the practical Tenney pleaded. "Ze law wants killin' an when they ask yer it' that-a-way, I'm in fine a-ve of accomodatin' 'em."

"Shut up, you loyal, lovable simpleton, and ride that horse of Joseph's back to the Circle K. He's cast a shoe. Tell it and send him back to Joseph in the morning. Here comes the car. Good-night Rube, and thanks for your assistance, and remember! This thing never happened."

"There's lots o' dumed fools an' tarnation cedjots, an' limbeciles," Mr. Tenney mused "but you're all four rolled into one."

INSTALMENT XI.

Hope was again advertising eternal in the Babson breast. He hoped, during the day, to receive good news from Eden Valley and for a Christian man he was faintly amazed at himself as he considered the fortitude with which he awaited the expected tidings.

His poise was considerably shattered therefore, when Nate Tichenor dismounted at the Circle K and greeted him cordially. "Nice growin' ing weather, Mr. Babson," he opined as he took the banker's chair beside the banker's desk.

"Nice weather nothing! If this cool well-bred worldling had escaped Pitt River Charley's clutches he had Pitt River Charley told! How much did this devil Nate Tichenor know?

"Pitt River Charley made you aunt a widow, and I've been trying to figure out why you sent him to make me also aunt by proxy," said Nate. "I think I know the reason. You're afraid of me. You think that with me out of the way you can get the Bonita Valley water without fuss and feathers."

"I—I don't know —what you're talking—about, Nate."

"Well, listen to me but the same. If you want a fight, you can have it, and I'll be pretty short of it, too. I'll not put Pitt River Charley on the witness chair. Word of honor, I'll not ;I'll fight you on the merits of the case and may the best man win. But don't send another killer after me. Do you know what I'm talking about now?"

"I think I do, Tichenor."

"After a while you'll be sure of it. Remember, whatever you do, short of murder, is O.K. with me. I'm more than nine years old and can take care of myself. Well, good-by. I'll see you at the mass meeting this afternoon."

By the time the bank closed at twelve o'clock, Babson had recovered his composure. Strange fellow, this Nate Tichenor. So he was going to fight the fight on his merits, eh? Well, if he'd stick to that resolve Babson knew he would defeat him this year without having to give it a complete and thorough cleansing.

"Leave it to me," Mr. Rookby assured Babson. "I own the skunk a pole myself. I know just what to do."

Shortly after luncheon at the Circle K ranch as Lorry Kershaw was about to enter her coupe and drive to Valley Centre Rube Tenney came off of the house with two six-shooters in shoulder holsters under his arms. Lorry met them as he struggled into his coat.

"Rube, why are you out to kill today, Rube?" she queried jocularly.

"Nobody, I hope, but sorfickody if I have to. You heeled, Miss Lorry?"

"Certainly not. Why should I be?"

"You're goin' down to that mass meetin' in Valley Centre, ain't you?"

"Yes."

"Then, Nate Tichenor, I listened to some talk while I was in town the other day an' it seems folks got an idea Nate's goin' to try to keep Bronson Forbes Valley the water they're goin' to grab out of Eden Valley Creek. Somebody's liable to get hurt, an' I feel kinda sa'fish Nate. I'm sorter cautious; I like to have a few capable friends in a crowd that ain't friendly to me."

Lorry got out of the car, entered the house, strapped a six-shooter, with a full belt of cartridges around her waist slipped on a light coat to conceal her armament and got behind the wheel again. Rube Tenney slipped in beside her, and they rolled away for Valley Centre.

A crowd of perhaps five hundred persons occupied the temporary board benches Babson had provided in the plaza and Babson was on a raised platform just opening the meeting when Rube and Lorry arrived.

He was a good speaker, clear and incisive, and had a trick of utilizing those catch phrases that aroused the unthinking. Babson proceeded to outline the method of organizing an irrigation district, reminded his listeners that there was but one source of supply, to wit the waters of Eden Valley Creek down which hundreds of thousands of acre-feet of water went to waste annually, as well they know. More applause. Babson next proceeded to dilate on his plan for tapping Eden Valley Creek in the Bandle, leading it to the main and reservoir he had discovered, Bonita Valley Forbes Valley. Adroitly he painted a picture of fine property, of bumper crops and increased land values, of happy homes and the silver laughter of children. And then suddenly clenching his fist, he yelled:

"But this silver cloud we see before us has a dark and dismal lining, my friends. We have in Eden Valley three riparian owners, Nate Tichenor, the Mountain Valley Power Company, of which this same gentleman is also sole owner, and Miss Lorraine Kershaw, sole heir to the Circle K ranch. They have conspired to deprive us of those whose waste waters for their own selfish ends. Nate Tichenor advises us that his company plans to erect a power station below his proposed dam and manufacture hydro electric power. I say, here and now, to Nate Tichenor, that I think he lies. He purposes erecting that dam for the purpose of impounding the flood waters and selling them to Forbes Valley at an exorbitant rate.

"I have here a petition to the county board of supervisors, requesting permission to organize the Forbes Valley Irrigation District. It is necessary that every farmer in the Valley whose lands are susceptible to inclusion within the district should sign the petition before this meeting adjourns. This way, my friends. Don't crowd."

Nate Tichenor walked quietly up on the platform, bowed to Babson and then to the crowd. "I say that Nate Tichenor of whom you have just heard," he began.

"Throw him out!" a voice cried harshly.

A dead cat sailed over the heads of the crowd and struck him in the face. Overripe tomatoes and cantaloupes followed in a veritable barrage and, as with one voice, crowd shouted: "Throw the outlaw out. "The dirty killer threw him out. He thinks we're crazy? Kill him, Grush him. Tar and feather him!"

"That's right," a voice cried shrilly. It was Henry Rookbye. "We haven't any tar handy, but up the street a block Hirp's re spreading crude oil to blind the top dressing of gravel on the highway. Give him a bath in that, spill a feather mattress over him and send him back to Eden Valley."

There was a rush of a dozen men toward Tichenor. They swarmed over him, kicking and striking him; presently, bloody and dishevelled, he was dragged quickly and they were running up Valley Centre Boulevard with him, with the crowd following. At the tail of the crowd, Henry Rookby flitter, cheering on the mob.

"Go you organized this, did you?" Lorry Kershaw's voice rang in his ear. "Did You're out!" And she brought the barrel of her pistol down on his head. He screamed and staggered and with the fury of a tiger she struck him again and felled him to the pavement. Then a huge form burst into the crowd.

"Gangway, animals," Rube Tenney was roaring, striking left and right with his guns and clearing a path for himself and Lorry. He whirled with drawn pistol, guarded her from assault, and as Henry Rookbye at her weapon and instantly she fired, the bullet taking effect in the man's leg.

At the sound of the shot the crowd scattered like quail. To left and right they fled, into shops and behind cars. Rube stood in the center of Valley Boulevard Rube Tenney and Lorry, with Tichenor's body stretched around him. Behind the right Henry Rookby and one other man were stretched.

Swiftly the girl reloaded her gun and came down the street, scathing in the crowd on each side for Silas Babson. "Where's that worm you were seeking, knew that the block of generations ago Bishop Kershaw flamed in her veins and that, if she found Babson would kill him?

From his office in the little town calaboose Bill Rooney saddled forth six-shooter in hand "Put up that gun, Miss Kershaw," he commanded. "You're under arrest".

"So you took pains to hide yourself while the outlaws was bein' consummated, didn't you, Rooney? I'll have you know I'm no outlaw. The whole thing was planned." She brought her gun up and fired. Her Rooney's high pinched hat flew off; his head and he scuttled back to the haven of his jail office, leaving Lorry Kershaw to parade down one side of Valley Boulevard and up the other, searching for Silas Babson.

INSTALMENT XXI

Very shortly after the inception of a riot a doctor and a newspaper man will be found at the firings of the disturbance, Dr. Donaldson, Valley Centre's surgeon, and pistol shots locked his office and familiar black bag in hand, descended hurriedly into Valley Boulevard. Joe Brainerd, swept along with the mob, finally broke through a flank, raced for his office and returned with his camera in time to see Lorry Kershaw shoot Bill Rooney's high crowned hat off his head. Not realizing that the girl was doing trick shooting, Brainerd and Donaldson ran after her—an action which, in all probability, saved Silas Babson's life for Lorry had located him in the plaza and was hurrying to get to closer ranges before opening fire on him. Joe Brainerd grasped her shooting arm and D. Donaldson grasped her waist.

"No, no," the little editor soothed. "Nothing like that, Miss Kershaw. It's too expensive—and, belie'f! keep."

The girl burst into tears of futile rage and struggled with the two men.

"They've killed Nate and Rube, and Babson created the killing." she wailed. "Let me go, let me go. There's nothing in life for me now except to kill that man. I'll avenge Nate! I'll avenge him, I tell you. Hear me! I'll even the score if I hang for it. Let me go! This isn't your party. The Kershaws pay their debts; Babson said Nate and I were outlaws, and I'll make good on that."

"All right,—but tomorrow, after you've thought it over and made certain Nate is dead," the editor objected. "Come now, don't be a little wildcat. You've killed enough men for today."

"I haven't killed anybody. I've just wing-lipped them," Lorry protested sobbingly. "I've run the Kershaw brand on them, so they can't get away and we'll catch them and hang them; but Babson dies today."

The doctor twisted the loaded pistol out of her hands. "Hell! keep. I tell you, Miss Kershaw," he roared, and shook her roughly. "Tichenor hasn't been killed, Babson belongs to him."

Her hurt passed as suddenly as it had mounted. "You're right, doctor, that scoundrel will keep. No send killing him unless the job's worth while. She looked up at him with brimming eyes. "But if his people have killed Nate Tichenor, they've killed my promised man and if they've Rube Tenney they've killed my hired man—and that's a killing matter with the Clan Kershaw. We don't forget, she panted. "We pay our debts. Oh—oh—oh. If Owen were only here—we'd—we'd—run this mob into —the hills—"

"There's no use to cry on girl," Joe Brainerd told her. "Doc on your way. Babson won't be done and yours is just commencing."

BROWN: "I must apologize for coming in ordinary dress."

HOSTESS: "Oh, please don't. We are all looking more informal than usual—and you are not."

THE RETURN OF TARZAN, No. 19. (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

As Tarzan struck the water, his first impulse was to swim clear of the propellers. Now he lay in the sea easily swimming, his chief emotion chagrin that his enemies had so easily overcome him. He watched the receding lights of the ship. Never in his life had he called for help, so that didn't occur to him.

There was, he thought, a possible chance he might be picked up. A slimmer one that the ship might have been close to land. So with long, easy strokes he made for the coast. As he swam, he rejoiced that the weight of his shoes, so he removed them, together with his trousers, coat and shirt. To his consternation, as he felt for his valuable papers, they were gone! Now he knew that not for revenge merely had he been pitched overboard. Rokoff was at the bottom of the mystery! He let his remaining garments sink into the Atlantic and, thus unencumbered, swam easily eastward. Toward dawn he saw a dim outline in his path.

It was a wave-washed derelict. A few strokes brought him to its side. The sea was quiet, so the wreck had only a gentle undulating motion, very soothing to the swimmer who had been twenty hours without rest. Tarzan curled up on the slimy timbers and was soon as fast asleep as when a baby in his jungle cradle.

NO NEED FOR BEGGING HERE

Transients May Get All Assistance Necessary at Police Station

"Is there any reason why men should 'hit up' pedestrians on the street or in stores for money to get something to eat?" A reporter today asked Chief Constable Ponton knowing that the police station was operating a free soup kitchen and was getting plenty of food from chain and individual stores.

"None whatever" replied the chief officer. "That is what I have been contending all along. We have plenty of soup and other food here. No one should go there and pay men money for there is no need for it. Should people who have transients call at their door for food have to give them lunches? was another question.

"No, there is no need for that here. We are getting plenty here for them." The speaker is the one in charge of the wanderers, or the homeless jobless."

Transient though they may seem to have few friends when they arrive in town quite an unexpected lot of friends, whom they will never know. They, have their friends 'as lodges, clubs, and individuals. For instance, Constable William Evans of the police force was more than surprised to have handed to him at the station for the benefit of the homeless men visits from Eureka Relief, the Sergeants' Mess meeting at the armouries, Gidleigh and T. Rowland. These 'eats' included sandwiches, meat, and other food, people are even offering potatoes, beans, and one transient said yesterday she would have sent down some nice rich gravy had she had any means of getting it to the station.

MOVIES DEPICT CITY'S INDUSTRY

Belleville with its hustle, bustle and metropolitan aspect will be the theme of a motion picture which will be produced by Associated Metropolitan Film Productions of Toronto under the auspices of the Belleville Kiwanis Club as a means to replenish their welfare fund.

The production will include a historical resume of the growth of the city the scenic background from photos of historical interest, streets, schools, their organizations public buildings and everything of an interesting color.

An industrial section of the film will depict the manufacture and merchandising of Belleville products.

A movie ball and beauty contest is a part of the program the details of which will be announced later and in which "Miss Belleville of the Movies" will be selected and given a chance to appear on the screen as special close-ups will be taken of her as well as being awarded a silver loving cup as a token of her achievement.

Location experts of the producers are in the city at the present time making the necessary preliminary arrangements and as soon as these are completed the actual work of photographing will commence.

The Kiwanis meeting Tuesday night was participated in by the chairman of the producers and will form an interesting section of the review.

Upon completion the production will be given a premier display locally and will be retained in the city and placed at the disposal of an yof the civic organizations who may care to make use of it for publicity purposes.

REMEMBRANCE DAY WITH SERGEANTS

"Lest We Forget!"

This memorable motto with a rustic setting formed the theme of R.I.P. occupied a prominent place in the sergeants' quarters on Wednesday evening when they were the gathering of the officers and sergeants of the battalion to commemorate Remembrance Day. This is the first time that officers and noncommissioned officers have been united for Remembrance Day and the fine spirit of fellowship and cooperation was evidenced.

Col. Keeler, D.S.O., commanding, officer of the regiment was chairman for the evening and after proceeding with Mr. C. E. Hanna, ex-M. P. standing for the Loyal Toast the first toast was that of "The King" with the company singing the National Anthem.

With a few remarks relative to his conection for some time with the regiment, Mr. Hanna proposed the toast to "The Regiment". He referred to the pleasant gathering and the spirit of cooperation which prevailed between the officers and the sergeants of the corp. In speaking of Remembrance Day, Mr. Hanna stated he would like to see this day and Thanksgiving combined as one holiday.

Col. Keeler Responds

Col. Keeler in responding spoke briefly but appropriately. He was pleased to see the spirit of cooperation that existed within the regiment and expressed the wish that this would not be last of these get together affairs. It was a pleasure for him to be in command of the regiment, which was composed of a fine body of men. There never was in the history of the regiment a finer body of men than those who at present composed it. He was indeed a treat to command such a body of men.

During the evening brief remarks were given by the officers and sergeants. Community singing was indulged in with Jimmie Clarke at the piano. He also gave some bagpipe selections which were much appreciated. A quartette composed of sergeants gave selections which were of a high order.

Two Minutes Silence

After the toast to the King the hall was darkened and two minutes of silence indulged in for fallen comrades. The last post was also sounded. This was the impressive part of the programme.

On the floor of the drill hall, a large "Flanders Poppy" was placed much merriment as did also a football game between officers and sergeants, all players being compelled to walk rather than run. This had the effect of demolishing many of the players as they ran.

The pleasant evening's programme was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.

Although the postage stamps of many nations are printed in two, three and even more colors, the United States is generally taxed to one-color stamps.

20 MEN LABOR ON WATERMAIN

Work Begins This After-noon on Coleman Street

A force of twenty men taken from the registration list at the City Hall were scheduled to commence operations on the evacuation trenches for the new water main to the Sliter, this morning. Rain however which commenced early today has resulted in postponement of operations until this afternoon or tomorrow by the department of public works under whose supervision the work of excavation will be conducted. This number of men is the maximum to be employed but it is expected that as long as there are surplus men on the register that the men will be subject to the three days change. When all men are finally signed up for the new projects under contemplated construction in the north, straight time will then be in force.

Operations will be commenced at the corner of Coleman and West Bridge Streets and from there will work will run south to Water St. and then west up west Dundas St. The trunk line will run along the south edge of the Trent highway to Water Works lane to the filtration plant. The only pavement required to be broken will be a small piece at the corner of West Dundas street and Richland avenue. The trunk line will be of cast iron, eighteen inches in diameter and will be laid under the supervision of the department of Water Works, and men who are at present in their employ.

PICTON MARKS REMEMBRANCE

Ceremonies at Picton in Memory of Dead of Great War

PICTON, Nov. 11 — (Special)—Remembrance Day was fittingly observed in Picton on Wednesday morning by a public memorial service at the War Memorial. Townspeople and rural residents turned out enmasse and it proved an inspirational service. There was a huge parade through the flag-decorated streets. At the head was the Prince Edward and Hastings Regimental Band playing stirring music. Then came a detachment of war veterans, followed by Warden Brown and members of the county council, Mayor George Welch and members of Picton town council, a large group of Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs, Girl Guides and Brownies; members of the Canadian Legion in civilian dress but many wearing service medals; several hundred school children and others.

At the monument, the program opened with the singing of "O God our Help in Ages Past," followed by prayer. Rev. L. M. Scott presided. Rev. J. R. McCormack read Psalm 90: 1-12 as a responsive lesson. Rev. Cecil Whiter led in prayer. Two minutes of silence was observed as the town clock struck the hour. The Last Post rang out and the reville was sounded. Then Rev. Mr. Scott gave a stirring talk, ending with lines were from "For the Fallen" by Laurence Binyon—

"They shall not grow old, as we that are left grow old;
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn
At the going down of the sun in morning
We will remember them."

Aidds with his stirring song and floral tributes deposited on the monument. One of these was from the Ontario Government and was presented by H. S. Colliver, M.P., who spoke briefly. Colin Hepburn, President Post 76 of the Canadian Legion also addressed the gathering.

Following the benediction, God Save the King was sung and the gathering dispersed. It was one of the largest events held in Picton for some years.

In the evening the veterans held a banquet at the Parish House with invited guests as guests, including Hon. Mr. Sutherland, Minister of National Defence, Ottawa, and Capt. Pearkes, V.C., of the R. M. C. at Kingston.

Stores Closed

All stores were closed on Remembrance Day and the town was very quiet. The street flags were out and a number of the store windows were decorated in an appropriate manner.

Weddings

STILES—BLEECKER

The parsonage of the Bayside United Church, Belleville presbytery, was the scene of a very pretty autumn wedding, when on Wednesday afternoon at 3.30 p.m. November 11th (Remembrance Day), Isabelle Dilber Bleecker, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bleecker, Bayside, Ontario, became the happy bride of James Ward Stiles, electrical engineer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stiles of Stirling and brother of Miss Mary Stiles, R.N.

The bride looked charming in a brown ensemble trimmed with fox fur with matching shoes, gloves and hat. The happy ceremony was witnessed by a number of relatives and friends, including Mr. Harry Bleecker, brother of the bride, Mrs. Edward Guilis, grandmother of the bride and Miss Mary Stiles, sister of the groom, also Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bush, of Sidney. Rev. J. R. Butler, a former pastor of the bride, performed the interesting ceremony. After congratulations, the young couple were showered with confetti and good wishes and left by motor for Belleville, where they entrained for a short wedding trip to Toronto and other points west. On their return they will reside in Campbellford.

Belleville, Nov. 11, 1931.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Did Belleville have any soldiers in the war of 1914-1918? I hardly did and a few of us remember them.

When I happened to be coming down from Toronto to Belleville and passing through Grafton, Ont., at the hour of eleven a.m., I saw a crowd of people standing about. I said to my companion: "There must be an accident." He said: "No, they are remembering their dead now," and sure enough when we came close there was a most beautiful cenotaph suitable for any city and especially for a place as large as Port Anne.

Has Belleville done enough? Thirteen years ago the war ended and today all the city has in the form of a memorial is two wooden crosses. People have more permanent memorials in their homes. The city has a block of cement down on Firemen's Park off the highway to the memory of some we never knew. Of course they are more to be remembered than our own brothers or fathers and uncles and cousins who died for you and for me.

Well, so much has been talked about the esplanade. How about a war memorial for beautifying the city? I know it will not give much employment, but surely we are not going to let fifteen years pass without building it.

Menace of Armaments Root of All War

OTTAWA, Nov. 12.—The menace of armaments is very root of war, and the war mentality has been martyred, said Sir Robert Borden, Canada's war-time prime minister, in a Remembrance Day message here last night. More than ever the menace of armaments oppresses the world today, he asserted.

"Can we estimate humanity's irreparable loss in the sacrifice of the men who went forth in conflict nearly two decades ago?" he questioned. "In the moral measure of present-day burdens, destitution and bolshevic plague, and distress due to the destruction and wastage of that conflict and of past wars?"

Presbyterian Progress Forecast, St. Andrews to Occupy Leading Place

Moderator, Right Rev. W. G. Brown, Stirs Congregation

PURPOSE OF BIBLE

Religion Not Science He Tells St. Andrew's Congregation

Inspiring, eloquent and encouraging was the message which was delivered to the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening by the Rt. Rev. W. G. Brown, M.A., Moderator, man of outstanding ability as a preacher and organizer; possessing natural qualities which create enthusiastic following of his leadership in the great work in which he is engaged as Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. This was the first visit of the Moderator to the city in the new's congregation and the welcomes given him was indeed most hearty and sincere.

That the Presbyterian Church in Canada, will attain, within the next fifteen years, the prominence and influential position that by it for so many years prior to the union of a part of that church with other religious bodies was forecast by the Moderator in no half hearted manner, but in words which manifested an undaunted faith and a hopeful faith in the future of the church.

To the congregation of St. Andrew's Church, a congregation of Presbyterians, which has, for over one hundred years, been loyal to the doctrines and customs of Presbyterianism in Belleville, always filling an important, and helpful place in the religious life of the community—this prophecy made by their Moderator was received with great interest and appreciation.

The meeting with the Moderator took the form of a congregational service and was conducted by the Rev. C. L. Nicoll of Trenton, Moderator of the Kingston Presbytery. The opening prayer was made by Rev. Dr. W. S. McTavish and the singing was led by a choir of men's voices, under the direction of Prof. Wheatley, the organist. In introducing the Moderator to the General Assembly, the Rev. Mr. Nicoll said: "The name of Rt. Rev. W. G. Brown is known to all Presbyterians from coast to coast and from north to south and in our hearts we pray that God will bless him in his great work. Last June he was made Moderator and since then he has been visiting the Presbyteries and individual congregations. Knowing the message he will bring in the spirit of inspiration he gives, it is a great pleasure to introduce and welcome him."

The Sermon

"I am not going about giving addresses," said the Moderator, "I am invited to meet congregations to meet with me for worship—for prayer and for proclamation of the Word. The doing of this is so important that I am willing to do my part from it. I want the people to come for worship."

The text upon which the preacher based his sermon were taken from the 20th verse of the Colossians—part of the first Epistle "Paul an apostle of Jesus Christ" and all of the eighteenth verse, "and he is the head of the body, the church, who is the beginning, the first born from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence."

"Paul an apostle of Jesus Christ." Here is given plainly Paul's authorship—his right to be called himself an apostle of Jesus Christ and that of which they received the credentials is the pre-eminence of Jesus Christ. Paul was a Roman citizen. There was no man living at that time equal to the apostle Paul—none so well versed in the law, so noted a student. He could read and expound the scriptures in the Hebrew and Greek tongues, he was a citizen of the greatest empire of the ancient world. He went every where and gave his whole heart to what ever he undertook, even to persecuting the early christians, but when he met Jesus Christ, he served him with greater ardor and interpretation of spirit, that in all things Jesus Christ might have preeminence. That was the chief purpose of his life. He knew what he believed and why he believed it, was son for his faith. All things were created for christ, that he might be the foundation for that declaration? Go out into the fields—why where they created for you? Any reason in that which grows out of the earth or flies in the air. You must go to the kingdom next above for the reason. If it is not found in the kingdoms of created things—that use is for the kingdom above it and with the kingdom of man—he rises above the animal kingdom and becomes not a son of man but a son of God. The highest good of life is fellowship with God and his son Jesus Christ. Creation is centred in christ and the christ christ should have pre-eminence because

TWO ARRESTED IN ROBBERY

Brothers of Arrested Man in Toronto Taken at Owen Sound

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP) With the arrest of two men in Owen Sound last night, charged with armed robbery, police believe they have cleaned up the robbery of the Bank of Montreal pay-roll here. The men are Oscar and Lloyd Campbell, brothers of Melville Campbell, who was arrested on a similar charge here Tuesday night.

Acting on instructions from Toronto, Owen Sound police arrested Oscar Campbell as he was sitting in a parked automobile on a main thoroughfare, and took his brother into custody at his parents' home.

Two police left here last night to bring the men back to Toronto.

AFRAID OF PRISON TERM

Remanded One Week For Uttering Forged Cheque

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 12. — James Anderson, 45, a former Belleville man who escaped from the prisoner's dock in the Middlesex county court house here last week after pleading guilty to uttering a forged check and escaping from custody when arraigned before Magistrate Evans-shaw today. He was remanded to jail for a week for sentence.

Anderson through his counsel, J.J. M. Donahue, said he ran away from the courtroom because he thought he was going to be sent to a penitentiary for 14 years for forgery. He tried to cash a $50 cheque at a bank in Mount Brydges. Police hunted for a week before they found him after he had escaped from the court.

War Tablet at Collegiate Decorated with Wreath

Remembrance Day at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School was observed Tuesday morning. At the assembly of the scholars in the auditorium, previous to classes, Principal McLaurin spoke of the former scholars of the school who had fought in the war and those who had sacrificed their lives in the stupendous vent, giving a brief outline of the cause of the war, and the armistice which terminated three hostilities and gave rise to Remembrance Day.

The 600 pupils in having the auditorium, marched in file past the memorial tablet on the ground floor of the building to pay honour to those ex-pupils who fought and still live, and pay tribute to the memory of them who fell, before dispersing to their various class rooms. A magnificent wreath had been placed on the tablet by the staff, and the whole ceremony betokened the spirit of Remembrance Day.

FORMER PADRE

Was Instrumental in Having Nov. 11th Called 'Remembrance Day'

Remembrance Day has passed into history for another year but the Kiwanis Club will always remember the inspiring address delivered by Rev. Major A. Beauchamp Payne, former Padre of the 11th overseas battalion, and now Padre of the Bonar Church in this city, to the Club on Tuesday last. The speaker was Veterans' day at the club and a number of the vets who had seen active service on the Western Fronts were present to join with the club in honoring those, who did not come back. President George Cole presided at the function and Jack Bankier highlighted with the "Veteran" Song as only he can sing it. The community singing was in keeping with the spirit of the day and the Veterans lustily sang the songs, that were familiar in the war days. Leo. B. Higgs made a very much polished accompanist on the piano. "Bouncer" Continued on Page Ten

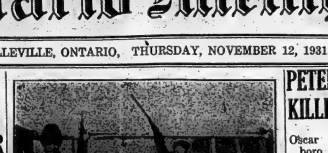
Punishment Proposed By Committee, Rivera's Son Faces Charge

MADRID, Nov. 12.—(UP)—Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, son of the late dictator of Spain, was arrested in Montreal this morning on complicity in a monarchist plot.



De Rivera, the Dictator's son, a priest, were held incommunicado, in custody of the Montreal police.

Marina was taken into custody yesterday after a group of uniformed monarchist propaganda. He is said to have implicated the former dictator's son in monarchist activities.

If imprisonment "instead of the death penalty for which his crimes call" is the decision of the jury, the commission which is invest'gating ex-King Alfonso's political career, will be allotted the time it will be ever enters Spain, it was reported here.

The report says that obviously it would be impossible to make any penalty effective if Alfonso remains absent.

Chinese Force Massing For a Counter Attack On Nonni River Lines

If it Materializes Japan Will Occupy Angan-chi and Tsitsihar

MORE TROOPS SENT

Emperor Orders Brigade and Warships to Scene of Hostilities

(Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press.)

Tokio, Nov. 12— (Thursday) — War office reports that General Mah Chan-Shan was preparing a counter attack against Japanese troops in the Nonni River zone in Manchuria brought an announcement today that if the attack materialized Japan would be compelled to occupy Angangchi and Tsitsihar.

General Mah had concentrated more than 20,000 Chinese troops in the Nonni sector, the war office said.

Japanese forces at Tsonan and in the Nonni zone numbered 1,700 but reinforcements may be sent from Changtun and Saopingkai.

"The news from Nonni is most disquieting," the foreign office spokesman said, "and the foreign office says that General Mah may attempt a counter attack momentarily.

Emperor Sends Troops

Tokio, Nov. 12 (AP)— Emperor Hirohito ordered a fresh brigade of mixed troops and four naval destroyers to Manchuria today after Tokio had received information of a battle between Japanese and Chinese troops on a new front.

The Emperor dispatched the troops at the request of General Jiro Minami, chief of the general staff, who communicated with him at Kumamoto, where he is attending army manoeuvres.

Admiral Baron Kiyoura, minister of marine, who was a member of the Emperor's party at the war games, returned to Tokio because of the increasing gravity of the conflict in Manchuria.

Dispatches received here told of an encounter between Japanese infantry and a party of wandering Chinese cavalry near Kuchengtsa yesterday in which 200 Chinese and three Japanese were killed. Nine Japanese were wounded.

This is a new sector, 400 miles distant from the Nonni battle front, head, hitherto the centre of pore-tions.

The War Office announced that these new casualties bring Japan's total dead to 129, with 302 wounded. The number of Chinese casualties is not known here but on the basis of newspaper dispatches from 800 to 1,000 have been killed.

Japan has 13,000 men in Manchuria against a Chinese force of about 250,000 according to war office figures but many of the Chinese are said to have deserted and formed gypsy bands.

Will Replace Korean Force

Officials announced that the fresh troops dispatched to Manchuria would replace a Korean brigade which has been on garrison duty there since Sept 18.

The four destroyers were sent from Kure to Japanese-owned Port Arthur, on the southern tip of Manchuria and scene of the great conflict of the Russo-Japanese war. In addition the naval cruiser Yakumo was ordered from Yokosuka to Sasebo, within striking distance of Manchuria, to await further instructions.

Stirling Presbyterian Church Observes 75th Anniversary

St. Andrews' Crowded with Worshippers For Services

MODERATOR SPEAKS

Splendid Music Contributed By Orchestra and Choir

STIRLING—An ideal day, sunny and balmy, greeted St. Andrew's congregation on Sunday, November 8, 1931, when their seventy-fifth anniversary was observed as the founding of their congregation, the services of which were published in Friday's issue of the Ontario Intelligencer.

Capacity congregations attended both services.

Worshippers from Toronto, Belleville, Foxboro, Trenton, Bayside, Campbellford and many other adjacent congregations were present.

The choir was tastefully adorned with flowers, prominent in the display being two baskets of magnificent yellow 'mums presented by Mrs. A. Hammond in memory of the pioneers of Presbyterianism in Stirling.

At a processional Miss Laurene Scott of Bethel at the piano and the organist, Mr. Charles Chalker, the organ rendered "Traumerie, Rom-ance," by Schumann-Clutsam.

After the invocation exercises conducted by the minister, Rev. A. N. Groh, the choir of forty-four voices augmented by Miss Betty Coney of St. Thomas Church sang an anthem entitled "Praise the Lord, Oh! Jerusalem" (standard) in which Measdames G. Donnan, Murdoff, R. Eggleton, R. Mekilphin, sang a quartette.

Dr. Groh chapter was read by the visiting minister, Rev. W. G. Brown, M.A., B.D., Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Miss Betty Coney sang "The Lord Is My Light", followed by prayer by Rev. Brown.

During the offertory Miss Scott and Mr. Allan played Gounod's "Ave Maria". Miss Scott accompanied Mr. Allan in the congregational hymns. Another anthem "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go" by the choir.

In introducing the visiting minister, Rev. A. N. Reid informed his congregation that almost exactly seventy years ago to the day he had been pleased at welcoming Rev. W. G. Brown, B.A., B.D., as the first pastor of the then General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada to his charge.

Rev. Brown took as his text 1 Tim. 3:15, "That thou may'st know how to the Living God," speaking of the Church as the pillar and ground of the truth. He said the foundations of Presbyterianism were established here from the General Assembly, said he was not going about giving addresses but was pleased to be here on Sunday and twice a day throughout the week if necessary. What is essential is the spirit of worship, holy men of old had special training and today personality is still much in need.

One of the two important truths stressed was that concerning God. We must have a conception of God. A Greek philosopher stated, "when we think of Gods and I will know the character of your men."

The second truth is concerning man. God made man in his own image, with the possibilities for truth, goodness and righteousness.

In conclusion the preacher asked what are the marks of the church of the living God?" He quoted the four characteristics outlined in the Apostles' doctrine and fellowship in breaking of bread and in prayers. The church must be Catholic that is universal, and must have spiritual freedom in worshipping God.

The synod of Presbyterian presents to be loyal to the work of Presbyterianism.

The recreational music played by Miss Scott and Mr. Allan was Handel's Largo.

Mr. Allan had a very fine organ recital in the evening ending with "Triumphal Larch" by Greig. This was followed by a duet, Gounod's "The Lost Chord" (Sullivan) rendered by Mr. Furnival; trumpet solo,

PETERBORO MAN KILLED IN TRUCK

Oscar Fountain, Peterboro, Crushed as Car Goes Into Ditch

PETERBORO, Nov. 12. — Oscar Fountain, 24, of Peterboro, was instantly killed late Wednesday afternoon when the truck in which he was riding turned over in a ditch, badly crushing his skull, according to word received here today.

The accident occurred about one mile west of Millbrook in the township of Cavan, Durham County.

The truck, which was being driven by George Gerrow, a Peterboro carter, ran into the ditch and when the two men were attempting to get it back on the road it turned over, pinning Fountain beneath.

Gerrow escaped with only a few minor injuries. Fountain leaves a wife and two small children.

DRAGGED TO CHAIR

Perhaps you didn't know ancient tradition provides that this dignified Speaker of the House of Commons in the Motherland has to be forcibly propelled to his official chair by the two members who nominated him for the honor. The custom is a survival of a time when the duties of Speaker were so arduous that a man had to be forcibly inducted into the position. Captain Edward Fitzroy (above) was re-elected as Speaker last week, and, as usual, he was dragged to his seat as one of the first steps in organizing the new House.

McDonald Summons Minorities Committee to Meeting, Friday

LONDON, Nov. 12.—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today issued a summons for the final round-table minorities committee, to meet at 10 a.m. Friday, in what may be a critical session to determine whether the conference will be continued or abandoned.

It was considered significant that the Mahatma Gandi has made no definite engagements in London for any occasion after next week.

In a statement to the press, Gandhi indicated his belief that the conference is on the verge of failure.

"Unless something startling or unforeseen happens," he said, "and I hope there is good in store, my life considers to bring about a satisfactory result. Then the conference is likely to fail. I'll distribute the blame equally between the Government and the delegates. I am convinced that if the Government really wills it, the conference will not fail.

"I would not even think about starting a new civil disobedience campaign," he continued, "as long as there is the slightest vestige of hope. I came here with the free and unconditional truth in the document that would be honorable to India and Great Britain. I shall stay as long as possible, to carry out my mission."

Streets Silent as Impressive Service at Armouries Begins

MUST NOT FORGET

Silently standing in the annual tribute by the citizens to the war dead in Canada, of the Empire and of the Allied nations of the world, Belleville on Wednesday observed Remembrance Day in the most complete manner for many years. Business had been completely suspended and hundreds upon hundreds of citizens with veterans of the fields of Europe and Asia, over which were fought the bitterest battles of the war which ended thirteen years before to a day and the Sea Cadets assembled on the lawn to pay the tribute which each and everyone felt was due those who made the so great sacrifices of the Great War.

No gathering in Belleville was ever so meditative. During the moments of silent prayer for the two minutes, only the breathing of those about could be heard, not a cough, not a word, not a sound broke that tense calmness which symbolized the silence of the grave to which so many citizen-warrior Canadians had gone bring the peace that Canada and the world are enjoying today and that, even greater peace, which they hoped will be permanent peace, for which they did complete the ideal of the men who went down. The citizens was that of a child playing at some distance form the armouries when the childish voice rings sharply over the quietness of those tuneful moments, culminating in its one way the freedom and liberty, won in the war at the point of death.

Silent City

Silence had been upon the city from early morning. Belleville had retired Tuesday night, not in anticipation of a holiday but in the thought that a day of tremendous brance was to be paid. When the hour of the service drew near, as the public gathered in the armouries square, the fountain head whence those contingents converged, as boys and men who had gone through the training camps on the New World has ever known—to best down militarism, and to usher in tremendous peace.

The Service

At ten o'clock the service opened as Rev. A. L. Geen, chaplain of the 49th Battalion ascended the platform by the side of the white cenotaph, which was erected as a symbol of the war's toll in human life and suffering. Then with the two municipal band paused as the veteran clergyman and patriot read the Scripture lesson, only few as the time was short and he announced the hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past," which led by the band he substituted same.

Rev. A. E. McCutcheon then on behalf of the Ministerial association offered prayer, referring to the unity of the human race in the sight of God, and the great part played by the ministry in the world's progress, and the sacrifice it has made to mankind. In profound and reverent feelings of heart and mind the women were gathered to thank God for the spirit of peace which prevailed in their hearts, regret at the toll of war which takes the best and noblest of the land, and to pray that the prayer was uttered that soon the nations would gather round the League of Nations and mutual goodwill among all peoples would make war impossible as a means of settlement of dispute. "Pouring out blessings upon the men and women who returned to lie on beds of pain, and bringing a spirit of patience of their sacrifice in loss of limb or sight or power of reason."

City's Wreath

His Worship the Mayor then placed on behalf of the citizens of Belleville a wreath at the foot of the cenotaph, and the veterans saluted.

Major the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, vicar of St. Thomas Church and a veteran, then delivered the address. Brevity of time limited his

BARRED ETCHINGS BECAUSE INDECENT

New York, Nov. 12—Sharp criticism characterized the reaction of artistic circles in Washington yesterday that the customs bureau had ordered the importation a group of etchings by James Abbott Whistler from Chicago back on the grounds they are indecent.

Later dispatches from Chicago said Anthony Czarnecki, collector of customs there refused to admit the etchings and turned them over to Washington officials for a final decision, and when he discovered they had been "doctored" for "suggestive" passages.

be is the crown of life—not only the crown of creation but the crown of revelation as well.

Bible's Purpose

The purpose of the Bible is to reveal the character of the—ing God through the agency of—ople. The greatest miracle—the coming of—ng or all time—the incarnation Jesus Christ—is that man and the has been tied. we must commend ped so much to God that—Christ, but the Christ likeness o. God. "I commend that Jesus Christ to you, I do."

Luke speaks with equal—knowledge of all people—people who [illegible] of life—Luke was content—ing in their schools of life, except that some time they must die.

Religion Is Not Science

Jesus Christ considered all things. We know what was ahead of him and at the proper time he chose his twelve apostles. How did he select them? Did he say—"Come here I want to question you and if you can answer my questions—then you may be my disciples"—that is what we do," said the Moderator, "if they can't answer our questions out they go. It is a great fallacy of modern times. Religion is not science at all—there is no kinship. Very many humble men and women have had faithful service to Jesus Christ, develop a spiritual life that they can—Christ as known nothing of. Religion is not of intellect but of personal experience."

Jesus Christ said: "Follow me" for three years and see what I do, then I am going to ask you what you think of me. When the time came he asked: Whom do men say I am? They answered; some say that you are John the Baptist. Then Jesus asked: But whom do you say I am and Peter answered: "Thou art the christ, the son of the living God". It was not intellectual genius that caused Peter to answer as he did.

John Knox did not found the church! the church is a divine institution with Jesus Christ as its head. The gates of hell have tried to prevail against it—but they never will be able to prevail—God is still on his throne. We are summoned to put our all into the advancement of the church. What are the marks of the church? Go back to the life of the apostles and read—they continued in the Apostles doctrine and in the prayer—in the fellowship and in the breaking of bread. The church of Jesus Christ must be a Catholic church Is the Presbyterian church a Catholic church? All who love the Lord Jesus Christ are the church—there is nothing more Catholic than that. "I've worshipped in all kinds of places—it is not the place, but the spirit that makes the church. "God is a spirit and those who worship him in spirit and in truth.". I invite all to the Lord's Supper—I have had six Roman Catholics at the service of the Lord's Supper. I did not say step out—you are not in, accord with us Presbyterians—I said, let us join together in commemorating the death of Jesus Christ. The Presbyterian church is not a first—it was not cut off anything—is a part of the Catholic communion. If it meets your needs all right—if some other church meets your needs better, all right. The Presbyterian church stands for Spiritual freedom.

Price of Freedom

"No church paid such a price for spiritual freedom—lives were given for its purchase and you and I are here enjoying this freedom and often forget the price paid for it. It was bought for us at the price blood. Don't disgrace ancient history—it gives appreciation of the present. Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. The last for power of all kinds is man's gre... fascination. We Presbyterians have had a great struggle. Was there one great principle at stake? There was just one great principle at stake and that was, spiritual freedom. What right has any group of men to go to Parliament and secure a law to force you and me take your name because you won't worship as they want. Is that spiritual freedom? The Presbyterian church has been true to its principal of religious freedom. What was done to the Presbyterian church can be done to any other. I would fight for the freedom of Roman catholics to worship as they think right. Some say thy majority must rule but are you going to reduce religion to level of political politicians. "In the matter of conscience, the majority has no power." That is the principal of religious liberty. Do things right—it is the only way and you can stand before God and man.

"The Presbyterian church is on its way to one of the great—st churches in Canada. This is based on fact. The Presbyterian church will be back before fifteen years to where it was before destruction. If this church will continue to preach and teach Jesus Christ, nothing can keep it back." There are now one hundred and eighty thousand persons in full communion with the Presbyterian church.

The Moderator closed his most interesting address by urging all members young and old to work for the advancement of the church not only in their own congregation but throughout the land. Nothing can be done without Christ, but all things can be done through him.

The benediction was pronounced by Rev. M. Cameron of Deseronto.

remarks. He pointed out that on that day throughout the world there was a continuous salutation of the memory of the dead from east to west. Already as Belleville citizens had gathered in the annual tribute there had gathered in London, England a large assemblage of the British people before the cenotaph, hours before where His Majesty the King stood with his people in silent tribute to the Empire's Dead.

"Let us try and observe this silence, remembering those days as we bow and salute the living dead", said the pastor.

Too deep an impression cannot be made upon the rising generation of the coats of War. There could not be the hope that out of the remembrance and the inspiration of the anniversary of the day when the war ended something of world value might come, to enshroud the dead in the people's hearts.

Sacrifices Belittled

"There seems a tendency to belittle the sacrifices, that were made", remarked Major the Rev. Payne. "I am pleased to see so many here this morning, but this square and this section should have been filled. In a moment or two we shall hear the call of silence from the Tower. The final stroke of the clock will mark the hour when the guns became silent and will symbolize the fact that those who died the sacrifice were called in their graves.

"This is our day of Remembrance May it be a day when we shall link the past and present and may we look out upon the future to see crystallizing into a deeper purpose the hopes and aims for peace throughout the world and may we soon reach the stage when war shall be no more."

The Silence

As the bugle sounded the first notes of "The Last Post," the clock struck the hour. Silently hundreds of heads bowed in the solemnity of the occasion and remained bowed until the bugle again took up the last ringing notes of the "Post" ite had been paid. The gathering quietly dispersed as citizens slowly moved off to make their way to their several homes.

In Woodstock this morning at eight o'clock in St. Thomas Church in connection with the observance of Remembrance Day, there was a celebration of the Holy Communion by the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne.

The day following a fitting ceremony was observed when the Oddfellows of the city marched from the I.O.O.F. Temple to the armouries and placed at the foot of the cross a floral tribute.

The following lines by Sir Thomas White from "The Witnesses—1914-1918" on the occasion of Remembrance Day fill sum up the spirit of the gatherings here and throughout the Dominion—

THE SURVIVOL

Of all their high, heroic worth—
The patriot soul that signed them forth,
Of all the suffering they endured.
To toil and pain and wounds inured,
Of all the grief that wrung their hearts,
From home and kin and friends apart,
Of all their battles grim they fought
Of all the deathless deeds they wrought,
Of all the blood atoning spilt
For man's folly, greed and guilt—
The valiant blood that paid the price
Of youth's immortal sacrifice.
Let Earth and Air and Sky and Sea,
The witnesses forever be!

Not Armistice Day

The speaker was introduced by "Davey" Davison and Kiwanian appreciation for the address was expressed by Rev. Earl McCutcheon and seconded by Rev. A. L. Geen, Chaplian of the Canadian Legion. Rev. Major Payne explained in his opening remarks how Armistice Day was changed to Remembrance Day "We are accustomed to associate November 11th with joy and thankfulness" said the speaker "and each year the day has been manifested with polity excepting for the two minutes of silence. This is not what should be characteristic on the minds of the growing generations. It is not a day of levity but a day upon which we let our memories drift back to the war days and remember those, who have gone on. I had the privilege of serving on a committee composed of Jan MacKenzie of British Columbia, Pather Lockrea of Quebec and myself to ask the government to make the day one of Remembrance and this has been brought about after years of decision by the recent act of Parliament making November 11th "a Remembrance Day."

"The day is a tribute to those, who have paid the supreme sacrifice" continued the speaker and on every hamlet, on every hillside, before every cenotaph on Wednesday, people will gather to pay silent tribute and time will not efface those spots. We can all remember the privilege of the home coming as friends and citizens gathered at the railway station to bid us welcome. Many things were much appreciated by the congregation.

Rev. C. K. Nicholl took as his text Jer. 8:20, "The harvest is past, the summer is ended and we are not yet safe." He sought to impress on his hearers the meaning of being saved and quoted several pointed illustrations such as drowning, burning, etc. Later, he sought to explain salvation in a spiritual sense, and said Philippian Jailer realized the necessity of personal salvation, when he cried "what must I do to be saved."

The closing anthem, "Holy Father Cheer Our Way" was followed by the Benediction and the postlude by the orchestra and organ. This brought to a close one of the most successful anniversaries ever had in St. Andrew's.

What Theatrical Managers Say of Coming Attractions

At The Belle

"GUILTY HANDS" STARTLES BELLE AUDIENCE

When a reviewer can't find any flaws to pick in a picture he either needs a vacation or the film is just about as perfect as possible.

"Guilty Hands" falls in that class. So swept away was this reviewer when the new feature was screened yesterday at the Belle Theatre that he left without drawing the faintest idea of noticing any weak spots, if any existed.

What with Bayard Veiller having written it, Lionel Barrymore acting it and W. S. Van Dyke as his director, this Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer mystery drama packs everything it needs—and then some. It is swift, thrilling and packed with dramatic incident that comes with the sudden jolt of a thunder clap. Weird effects abound, eerie scenes shoot, terrifying screams all have their place in the massive atmosphere in which Veiller's latest offering—his first original for the talkies—is placed.

Brilliant Acting

Barrymore theories the heights of his artistry as the veteran prosecutor and criminal authority, with the need of killing a man and making his crime appear a suicide. It is a pleasure to watch Barrymore's every gesture, listen to his every word. He ties the shadings of a difficult characterization in graduations and nuances seldom approached.

Van Dyke has directed this baffling film with a rare valuation of the dramatic construction written into the story by Veiller. His judicious use of unusual camera angles and sound effects is splendidly done. There is nothing lacking in his presentation of the piece and only praise can be said of his handling of the unravelthough plausible—climax.

Kay Francis and Madge Evans head the supporting cast, which includes William Bakewell, Aubrey Smith, Polly Moran and Alice Mowbray. All are capable in trying roles. Miss Francis is the feminine "heavy" and the romance is handled by Miss Evans and Bakewell. "Guilty Hands" will be repeated again tonight for the last time.

PENROD AND HIS GANG AT THE BELLE TOMORROW

A delightful program of stage entertainment has been arranged for presentation at the Belle, Friday evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening, when the Belle Rhodies Bathing Beauty parade will be presented on the stage, introducing Twelve Cute and Clever Belleville girls, none over six, in an original and entertaining offering, combined with this presentation, will be a program of delightful stage entertainment by Belleville's brightest child stars, the entire stage presentation being under the capable stage direction of Miss Esther Walls, popular conductor of Belleville's studio of the Dance.

The following well known Belleville firms are sponsoring a child entry in the Cute Tiny Tots Bathing Beauty Parade, Hibbard Brothers, Wotten's Limited, Angus McFee, Adams the Shoeman, Dolan the Druggist, National System of Baking, Moores Candies, Citizen's Dairy Dorothy Quick, Florist, J. B. Boyce, Model restaurant.

William Beaudine, First National director, can take more than the ordinary quota of credit for "Penrod and Sam" his new smash hit, which comes to the Belle tomorrow for two days. He is more than ordinarily responsible for the players in his cast of fifteen kids—to say nothing of the grownups—and the dog.

Both Helen Beaudine, his daughter and "Bumps" Beaudine, his son play important roles in the production—Helen as Margaret Schofield, Penrod's girl, and the latter as one of Penrod's gang.

Reading his daughter is making her return to the screen in "Penrod and Sam," Up to three years ago she had considerable experience in silent film productions, but this is her first time actually talking before a camera.

She plans to continue her career as an actress.

Leon Janey and Junior Coghlan are featured as Penrod and his friend. Waldemar Young wrote this new adaptation of Booth Tarkington's classic story. Among the grownups in the cast are Matt Moore, Dorothy Peterson, Johnny Arthur, Zasu Pitts, Charles Sellon and Wade Boteler.

A funny Charlie Chase comedy entitled, "What a Bozo", the popular Belle Sound News and Toy Town Tales, a clever and funny Talkartoon are announced for presentation on the same program.

DOUG FAIRBANKS JR. IN "I LIKE YOUR NERVE"

Silverware Gift Night Tonight

If you like your screen action fast and furious, your dialogue sparkling places enthusiastic, and your story a refreshing romance of youth, then the modern picture "I Like Your Nerve," which opens today at the Capitol Theatre, is highly recommended.

"I Like Your Nerve" is one of the most delightful light-comedy romances of the current film season, and a welcome relief from the sordid, sex-ridden, dramatic fare that has too often been offered in the past.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., who is starred with Loretta Young as the lead, has never appeared to better advantage. In type a story "I Like Your Nerve" most inevitably be compared by the older theatregoers with "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." "The American," and other pictures in which Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., won his greatest fame.

Briefly it is the brisk recital of the adventures that befell a wealthy young American who gets kicked out of one Central American country after another—due to his disregard for the laws that forbid fast motoring—and who finally becomes involved in a near-revolution, an ardent love affair, a kidnapping of the girl of his choice and finally a coup whereby he wins the girl, saves her father, and thwarts the villain of the piece.

Throughout the picture young

Doug carries on to the fullest limit of speed the traditional screen temp of the Fairbanks family. This pace never lags, one reason being perhaps that "I Like Your Nerve" was directed by William McGann, who for several years was chief cameraman for the elder Doug.

The story is an original for the screen written by Roland Pertwee, noted English short story writer-novelist and playwright, who is one of the newest additions to the Hollywood scribe colony. The screen play is the work of Houston Branch who has written several fine things for the films, among them a story for George Bancroft.

The supporting cast in "I Like Your Nerve" includes Claude Allister, Henry Kolker, Andre Cheron, Edmund Breon, Boris Karloff and others each of them more than able in his part.

"I Like Your Nerve" offers a rare event, for the entire family, will be supported by comedy and other attractions and also shown Friday.

Moderator Predicts That Church Will Be One of Greatest

PICTON, Nov. 12 — (Special) — The Rev. W. G. Brown, M.A., B. D., of Saskatoon, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, was the special speaker in St. Andrew's Church on Sunday evening. The church was filled to capacity to hear this outstanding speaker and his forceful discourse on the "Pre-eminence of Jesus Christ" was listened to with rapt attention. The Presbyterian Church bids fair to become one of the greatest churches, he remarked, in telling of the rapid growth of the church which has now a membership equal to that before the union.

The choir, under the leadership of Mr. Maurice V. Dow, gave splendid anthems. The communion table was decorated with lovely baskets of 'mums. One of these was in memory of the late George J. Russils, for many years a valued member of the church and choir, whose tragic death is deeply regretted.

Amusement Houses Feel Pinch of Snowden Budget

(By Thomas T. Champion C. P. Staff Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 12. — Canadian Press Cable)—Managers of London and other British theatres today felt the first pinch of new entertainment taxes promulgated in the budget of Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, retiring chancellor of the exchequer which became effective for today's performances.

Many west-end theatres, which have been finding business very good just now are shouldering the additional imposts themselves, while others are adding 12 cents to the prices of seats in the dress circle and stalls. In the higher priced motion picture houses, admission charges remained unaltered, but 2 cents have been added to those in which tickets are so'd for less than 25 cents. The entertainment tax last year raised the government almost $35,000,000,

What is to be Done With Gangland's Reported Offer

Queer Quirks in United States Law is Seen By Suggestion

GANG MEMBER

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 12. — What to do about gangland's reported offer to swap $500,000 worth of stolen furs which is the freedom of August "Gus" Winkler was the problem confronting county attorney Max Towle today.

The bonds were taken in the $2,500,000 robbery of the Lincoln National Bank and Trust Company, September 17, 1920. Winkler now is out on $100,000 bond pending trial in connection with the daylong daylight holdup.

Towle said the proposal was made to him in a conference at Chicago last month attended by a representative of the Attorney General of Illinois, the Nebraska Attorney General, a representative o Chicago's "secret six" crime investigating committe, Winkler and Winkler's Attorney.

Winkler's Attorney, Towle said, admitted Winkler was a member of the Al Capone organization, but denied that Winkler had anything to do with the robbery. Winkler, through his connections, Towle was told, could secure and return the negotiable securities.

"I've never signed a testimonial and I'm not going to start now. I just want to give you a little inside information and tell you what I think of men who aren't particular about shaving."

"I wonder if people realize the big part I play in helping callers to see their man. Frequently the decision is entirely up to me. Members of the organization ask my opinion of an unknown visitor before they decide whether to see him or not. When I say 'not so good', his chances of getting by are pretty poor. And if a man doesn't look nice and fresh, if he isn't clean shaven, 'not so good', is the word I pass along."

"You can take this for what it's worth. In my opinion every man, whether he's a salesman, a truck driver, a plumber or an office worker, should shave carefully and often."

We agree with you, young lady, a man looks anything but attractive with a growth of stubble on his face. Until recently shaving may have been an uncomfortable and sometimes painful chore. Now Gillette offers a new and far better razor blade that entirely changes the picture.

The new Gillette is a keener blade that glides through beard and shears every hair cleanly without smarting or irritating tender skin. ADMITS THEFT OF TEN CARS

Remanded For 8 Days To Enable Crown to Investigate

London, Ont., Nov. 12—James F. Hogarth, 20, former London township farm hand, who was arrested in a stolen automobile last night, has admitted stealing 10 cars in London since the 19th of last month, detectives announced today. Hogarth appeared in city police court during the morning and pleaded guilty to two charges, while a remand of eight days was allowed to enable the crown to prepare the remaining eight counts.

Committed for Trial on Liquor Charges

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 12—Angelo Bazzari, proprietor of the Barbecue Cafe was committed for trial in police court on charges of keeping in his possession a quantity of illegally manufactured liquor in possession of bottles bearing counterfeits of Dominion Excise Seals and Ontario Liquor Control Board seals, and being in possession of goods bearing forged trademarks.

Evidence was given by Excise Officers who raided the restaurant ten days ago to the effect that 700 bottles of illicit whiskey and 50 gallons of rectified spirits were found in the cellar. Frank De Loca of Welland who was charged with being in possession of the liquor, was acquitted through lack of evidence.

Local Youths Fined for Illegal Fishing

Two local youths, James Keegan and O. Burgoyne were charged with fishing other than angling without license at the local Police court Tuesday afternoon. Fish and Game Inspectors Milnore and Mordell gave their evidence after which the two young men pleaded guilty. As it was Burgoyne's first offence he was fined the minimum fine that could be imposed of $10. and costs, the charge was the same for Keegan and he paid $20.00 and costs.

Burgoyan was then charged with consuming liquor in a public place on November 4th. The accused pleaded guilty and the case was enlarged until November 16th.

A resident was charged with non-support by the Provincial Police and the case was layed over until November 16th, the accused to remain in custody or with option of bail until the above date.

Kiss A Stranger

by N. Florence Leech

"A-choo!" The sneeze caught Kay unaware, but she felt the second one coming, and ducked her head blindly. "A-choo!"

"Oh—ah, pardon me!"

Exactly what Kay had an impression of white teeth in a darkly sunburned face, of blue eyes which laughed at her awkwardness.

"Sneeze on Tuesday, kiss a stranger," the tall young man quoted lightly.

"A threat or a promise?" Kay asked, quickly.

"A warning," he answered. "Since we're met informally, may I introduce myself? I'm Tabb Snowden."

She smiled, still the dimples in her cheeks deepened with her merriment. "I'm Kay Lucas."

"Then, Miss Lucas, let's go swimming!" He waved an eager hand toward the blue ocean.

She sighed that he was so jolly looking, gay and comradely. But if Aunt Hulda could see her!

"I'm sorry, but my aunt is waiting for me on the porch. She's very particular." Her smile changed what might have been a stinging remark into a friendly joke.

"But—later—"

"I'll see if I can manage."

Kay hurried out to the row of rocking chairs, and Aunt Hulda beamed at her. "Kay, I want you to meet Mr. and Mrs. Reed, of Richmond, and Mr. Jasper Reed." We're going to play bridge."

Kay glanced from the stolid Reeds to slim, bespectacled Mr. Reed, and her heart sank. "How do you do?" she queried politely.

For the next two hours Kay played mechanically while the gay life of the seaside resort went on around her. She hated bridge, but there was no way to escape. Aunt Hulda had brought her as a companion and was paying her way; besides she had given her very definite instructions before they left home.

"All types of people gather at seaside resorts," the old lady had declared, and I expect you to associate only with the best. Who knows—you may meet a rich young man and fall in love with him!" She sighed sentimentally, but her eyes were calculating.

And already to Kay's annoyance she had afflicted herself to the Reeds, who Kay knew by reputation as a wealthy but dull family.

Twice Tabb Snowden wandered by, glancing wistfully in her direction, but she shook her head at him mournfully.

The sky gradually became overcast and by lunch time was raining. Jasper suggested going fishing in a motor launch but Aunt Hulda preferred to take a nap.

"I'm tired too," Kay declared, and yawned realistically.

But the girl had no intention of sleeping. Presently, fortified with raincoat and umbrella, she slipped out of the room and downstairs. Groups of card players were dotted about and she caught a glimpse of Jasper on the verandah, gazing disconsolately toward the gray, rain-pocked ocean, but there was no sign of Tabb. She hurried out a side entrance and started toward the casino.

It was fun walking down the deserted, rain-swept boardwalk, and soon she heard through the rhythmic pounding of the surf a strain of jazzy music. A merry-go-round, Kay thought delightedly.

"Hey! Wait a minute!" She looked around, and saw Tabb running toward her.

"Where's your particular aunt?" he asked, gasping for breath.

"Taking a nap," she answered succinctly. "So I'm making whoopee."

"Oh boy! Does she let you ride the merry-go-round?"

Kay dimpled. "What Auntie doesn't know," she stated, "doesn't hurt her. I played bridge all morning, and I must do something to counteract the effects of the strain".

And I circled the veranda countless times vainly hoping—ah, the music's stopping! Let's get aboard."

Time passed to jazzy, syncopation, while Kay and Tabb patronized all the amusements on the boardwalk. They rode the merry-go-round, had their pictures taken, fished for a set of beautiful Japanese dishes and had a lead pencil, and in between times they talked.

"I feel as though I had grown up with you," he declared. "We just—click, don't we?"

She nodded, flushing hotly. "Let's hurry back," she said, suddenly conscience-stricken. "Auntie will be worried to death."

"Consider me something first," he demanded, and held her arm.

"What?"

"That you'll dance at the casino tonight."

"I'll be there, Tab," she promised, "but so will Jasper and Auntie and the Reeds. I mean Auntie arranging the party."

A rainbow of bright-hued frocks, a bedlam of laughter and music, that was the casino that night. Kay wore the cool green chiffon frock given her by her aunt, and dutifully she danced with Jasper and polite, stupid Mr. Reed. But she was thinking longingly of the moonlit beach just outside, and wishing for Tabb.

And here he was—cutting in—bearing her away on the wings on jazz. They circled the room, and as the music stopped, Tabb dodged neatly out the entrance. In three minutes they were on the boardwalk, and the storm was hurling down on them.

"Do you believe in love at first sight?" he asked huskily.

"I didn't yesterday," she admitted.

He turned and kissed her, lingeringly, purposefully.

"You—mustn't," she gasped.

"I'm poor—a nobody—and Auntie wants me to marry a rich man." Her voice quivered.

"Whom do you want to marry?"

"You," she answered boldly, and there was another interlude.

Presently she took his arm. "Come on," she said, "I must introduce you to Auntie."

He followed her unwillingly back to the casino. Mrs. Reed was talking volubly as they approached, and from the stares of the others Kay knew she and Tabb were under discussion. She performed the introductions bravely, but with a sinking heart. There would be a terrible quarrel, later, she feared.

"I'm delighted to know you, Mr. Snowden," Aunt Hulda beamed.

"Percy Snowden's son, aren't you?" inquired Mr. Reed stiffly. "I knew he had a cottage down here."

Kay looked bewilderingly from silky Jasper to her delighted aunt. Then Tabb swung her unceremoniously away in a fox-trot.

"Say, you are not one of the motor Snowdens, are you?" she asked, after a little.

"Dad's the big motor man," he admitted. You know, Kay, I just happened to be in the hotel lobby this morning — must have known you'd come up—and since—"

He looked down at her and laughingly, then swung her toward the entrance, out where the moon was waiting.

Ontario is Financially Sound States Challies

Provincial Secretary is Speaker For Conservative Candidate

SMOKE SCREEN

OUELPH, Ont., Nov. 12.—(By the Canadian Press)—Ontario is in a sound financial position despite criticisms of the Opposition, Hon. G. H. Challies, provincial secretary, declared in an address in the provincial by-election campaign in South Wellington last night. The minister spoke at Elora on behalf of W. P. Gaudin, Conservative candidate.

Meanwhile D. Paul Manro, Liberal standard bearer, held a campaign meeting at Rockwood. Dr. G. A. McQuibban, M.L.A., for North East Wellington, also spoke at the latter meeting scoring what he termed the "the mismanagement of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission."

Mr. Challies quoted figures to show Ontario had a gross debt of $471,000,000 and assets amounting to more than $508,000,000, a balance in favor of some $36,000,000. "In all our time in office," he declared, speaking of the Conservative Administration, "not one cent has been misappropriated which cannot be accounted for—and there has been not a breath of scandal in connection with the administration. There is not one item on which the Liberal party could expose graft."

The provincial secretary criticized the attitude of Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal Leader, on Hydro matters. It was merely a smoke screen he said, "To cover the most unsavory chapter in Canadian political history."

In his address at the Liberal rally, Dr. McQuibban said the time had come for a judicial inquiry into expenditures by the Hydro Commission. He challenged Hydro officials to make known whether it was true the commission was paying the Gatineau Power Company of Quebec, in United States currency at the present exchange level at the rate of $30,000 monthly.

Mr. Munro in his address ridiculed the present system of highway taxation.

An organ which plays music in color as well as sound and an electric carillion, are two of the things produced by scientists in the laboratory.

NEW MODELS M'LAUGHLIN-BUICK COMING

"Wizard Control" is Big New Feature of 1932 McLaughlin-Buicks

New McLaughlin-Buick models for 1932, apparently fulfilling in every way their maker's famous pledge about better cars, will be presented to the public before the end of this week. The event is considered important not only because of the lead that is given to the automotive parade of 1932 and consequent industrial activity, but also because of the engineering advances scored by the popular McLaughlin-Buick valve - in - head Straight Eights. These new cars are declared to be sensational, both in a mechanical sense and in their adaptation of the modern trend in styling. They have every claim of living up to the slogan, "The Car with Everything."

In the 1932 McLaughlin-Buicks, the distinguishing name of "Wizard Control" has been given to the mechanical evolution achieved with an automatic clutch which operates in combined with improved free-wheeling and the already famous silent second synchro-mesh transmission. Wizard Control embodies principles never before employed in automotive engineering, and notwithstanding various interpretations of free-wheeling already familiar to the motoring public, virtually seems to bring new comfort and security to motoring. The McLaughlin-Buick automatic clutch gives all the advantages of free-wheeling, with the added security of instantaneous positive control.

A touch of the foot on a floor-button makes possible the shifting of gears without the use of the clutch pedal, and when you are "away," the release of the accelerator gives you free wheeling. But the moment the foot is removed from the button, or the accelerator depressed again, the clutch will engage smoothly, either operation making positive connection with the engine. Instantaneous, almost uncanny in its speed and precision, is the change from free-wheeling to conventional control or vice versa. The conventional clutch pedal is there, all the time, but it need not be used unless the driver desires. An advantage of "Wizard Control" is its remarkable simplicity of construction and operation.

Then, of course, on its general appearance McLaughlin-Buick has produced this year the handsomest cars in its history. From the radiator, finished by dual lamp-shaped horns, to the dual tail lamps every line is new. The sloping V-V windshield has a wide vision screening wind resistance, with the customary outside visor omitted in favor of an inside sun-shade for closed cars. The new radiator shell newly-designed on oval lines has chrome-beaded edges. Fenders are long and racy. For all the changes, the McLaughlin-Buick individuality still shines through.

Among the two score advancements in the new line are the McLaughlin-Buick is an efficient easily-operated "ride regulator." Shock absorbers are equipped with metering valves which may be adjusted by a steering column lever, permitting a driver, while his car is in motion, to vary the roads of any kind.

The McLaughlin-Buicks are again grouped in four Series—the "50", the "60", the "90" and the "Eight." There are thirty-four smart fresh-ly-styled models. Entirely new are a Touring, three special silver-tipe phaetons, 5-passenger coupes on all wheelbases, and new convertible coupes and special sedans on all wheelbases. The wheelbases, by the way, have been increased in the "50" and "60" to 121 and 125 inches respectively. Five wire wheels are on standard equipment and steel wheels on special models. Wheels have drop-centre rims.

And that is hardly half the story. One might mention the new instrument board and steering wheel, the improved carburetor embodying automatic and "vacuo" action, the improved oil temperature regulator, or even the handsome clock on the instrument panel of the special models. They are certainly sent to have set, as usual, a high standard.

"The queer thing about New York is that it goes on being new.—Gilbert K. Chesterton.

CONDITIONS IN CANADA TOLD BY MODERATOR

Rt. Rev. G. W. Brown Addresses Men's Club

LARGE ATTENDANCE

Stated He Found Canada Ready For the Heritage Promised

newly appointed head of Canmore British pictures in Canada, says "it is necessary for us to interest ourselves in theatres in order to get British pictures into Canada, then that is exactly what we will do."

Rt. Rev. W. G. Brown, M.A., B.D., Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada addressed the Mens Club of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening, when they held their regular monthly meeting. Mr. Cameron, the president of the club presided at the function, which was attended by the largest number since the club was organized. The Moderator, who is a well known figure in Western Canada Church circles, being originally raised to be a boy of Red Deer, spoke on the Natural Resources of Canada. The Moderator at the present time being on an official visit to every Presbytery in the Dominion. He was introduced to the gathering by Rev. Mr. Nickle of Trenton, Moderator of Kingston Presbytery and appreciation for the splendid address was voiced by Mayor George A. Reid of this city, K. C. Illerr conducted the community singing during the luncheon and also contributed a solo accompanied by Professor Wheatley.

Place in Church For Club

The Moderator in thanking the club for their splendid luncheon remarks stated there was a place in the life of the church for any organization such as was present. It was wonderful to see of his going and make life just a little more pleasant for the resident minister and also be of real service. The speaker complimented the city on its fine appearance and congratulated those responsible for the marking of streets so that visitors can feel their way around but kindly remarked, that the police should be better informed, where the various churches of the city are situated. Rev. Mr. Brown told of Canada stating, that one has to visit the country as he has done to know the bountifulness of the Dominion. "We have in this 20 million natural resources that are marvellous" said the speaker and he then recounted the various activities of different Provinces of the Dominion. In Prince Edward Island the speaker said "there are no stones and the soil and potatoes are prosperous. Sometimes others wonder why they are so prosperous on the Island but the answer is not hard to find, they work hard. The Church is by fine condition in that province and the Presbyterian Church is predominant. Some congregations insist on Gaelic ministers and the whole populace is wonderfully intelligent. "We sometimes think that the old traditional but can we laugh at them for it is from these that we get some of our intelligent men," said Rev. Mr. Brown. Nova Scotia was next described, the speaker stating that conditions were good but in New Brunswick it was not so good. The lumber industry has gone down and this was the main source of livelihood of the inhabitants. The Province of Quebec was fully described as the Moderator is a native of the French Province. "The farmers are not so progressive as in other parts of Canada" said the Moderator but the dairy industry is booming. The church in Quebec is strong with Montreal a power for Presbyterianism."

The Mindanao of Canada

The Moderator was a missionary in the Northern Districts Ramps of Ontario having an area of 100 miles by 80 miles to cover and it was necessary to travel to walk fifteen to thirty miles a day in his mission. He extolled the resources of the north Ontario and wondered why the government did not carry on a full scheme of reforestation in that district. Red pine was replanted in fifty years our children's children would have a fortune in lumber alone. Turning to Western Canada he told of the mineral wealth of this Province and the endless lakes teeming with fish. He spoke of the situation in southern Saskatchewan stating that in some places it was just like the Sahara dessert. Turning to Alberta he spoke of the coal mines and British Columbia's fish, fruit and ore.

Concluding his address, the Moderator stated that different parts of Canada should know each other better. He stated he was much interested in home missions not as a worker in the church, not as a minister of the gospel, but as a Canadian citizen. Natural Resources will never make a country great and the speaker "put it is the character of the people in that country. There is a real work to be done." The Moderator later in the evening addressed a congregational meeting in the auditorium of the church attended by a large number both from Belleville and the surrounding district.

MEMORIAL TO SIR ADAM BECK

Special Committee Will Meet to Decide On Plans

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 12. — A special committee of the Ontario cabinet, together with representatives of municipalities will be appointed to study the question of a provincial memorial on Baden Hill to Sir Adam Beck, Premier Henry stated to a large deputation from western Ontario that presented the question today.

Over thirty members of the Beck memorial committee convened by R. Thomas Orr, of Stratford, discussed the question with Premier Henry in which it was pointed out the proposed site on Baden Hills, Waterloo County, is near the birthplace of the Hydro founder. This hill rises 250 feet from the surrounding country and is 1450 feet above sea level. It was suggested the province purchase about a hundred acres and erect a stone tower topped by a beacon light which would be seen fifty miles. The site is also near the municipalities that were the original backers of hydro.

WARNED NOT TO COMMIT PERJURY

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 12.—(By the Canadian Press) — "Anybody that I find committing perjury will be committed for trial right on the spot," Judge Denton warned witnesses at the resumed trial of Abraham Heris, secretary of the Toronto Mutually Co-operative Credit Corporation, who was charged with theft of $18,000 belonging to the corporation, and forgery and uttering of cheques totalling $8,778. He is also charged with falsifying certain books of the corporation.

"Innocuous Document" Is Full of Nothing

LONDON, Nov. 12. — (AP)—Rt. Hon. George Lansbury, parliamentary opposition, shocked the House of Commons today by waving a copy of the King's speech opening parliament and describing it as "this innocuous document, full of nothing from beginning to end."

His gesture came in the midst of a scathing attack on the new government for what he called its agrar policies and upon the prime minister himself for the part he played in forming the national government.

Alex. Kasabaski Defeats Kogut After Champion-Injures Arm

BOUTS ENJOYED

Semi-Windup is a Real Joust Between Clever Grapplers

Jack Corcoran, promoter of the Quenabury Athletic Club in Toronto, said wrestling is the fans of Belleville and district on Tuesday evening, when three bouts were given in the Belleville Arena under the auspices of the Belleville Hockey Club. There was a good attendance, considering it was the first time that wrestling in any scale was given in this district and the boys showed from the Arena some pruning, some crabbing, but in the main they were fine and stating they would be back again, in the ring.

Wrestling has taken the country by storm, it knocking boxing off the high perch in Toronto. The wrestlers work every night of the week, have no managers to contend to get a cut of the dough and the exhibitions are many and Jack Corcoran states they are only exhibitions, is worth the price of admission. The grunt and groan artists certainly know how to lay on the dog but it is a good entertainment and they take plenty of punishment for the work they do. The game is new down this way but there are many in the city, that have seen the big shots perform and their opinion of the show was real good. The standhold, aeroplane spins, body slams and flying tackles were all exhibited and before the show was over there were many calling for the head of a combat, as the fans do at hose or fist his opponent. Wrestling has changed considerably from the old style. In previous years there was more mat work and little beating them in the nose but of late the style hat changed and seldom does one get two men pawling themselves about on the mat.

Kogut Injured

Mr. Corcoran is in the game in a big way and he brought to the city wrestlers who are working on the wrestling circuit every night. The big time nearly every night. The main bout was not as good as it might have been due to the injury received by Jack Kogut, the light heavyweight champion of Canada. His and Kasabaski were having a merry old tilt, when a flying tackle and slam sent him on his shoulder. His arm was nearly useless for the remainder of the bout, he gamely stuck to his guns and Kasabaski, knowing the arm was sore, kept continually for the vital spot. The best bout of the evening was semi-windup, which brought together Frankie Hart of Toronto and Bob Nelson also of Toronto. Hart, a bit on the somewhat of a showman on son at times like Stanley Ketchel and the type of the late Ketchel when he was quite disgusted when he was not given the decision. Hart was the more finished workman and his holds were punishing. He softened Nelson in the early part, but though he did lose the first fall. The prelim bout was a good one but neither of the boys were finished in their work. Labelle has had more experience and got in his deadly work in the early part. Jack Perkins referee for the Athletic Commission, had charge of the men in the ring and he was a good one. At the game, the contestants put but very little work in.

Larry LaBelle Wins

Trader Horn and Larry LaBelle met in a thirty minute limit match and the first hold went to the Trader. He clamped on a body hold and LaBelle working loose smashed his head on the canvas. With a terrific body slam. They wrestled in the centre, with the Trader on a perfect leg hold and Belle put on a perfect leg hold and Horn was in a bad arm lock and got out to put a spit on LaBelle, but it was not for long. LaBelle punched Horn with arm jabs and sib tickling punches and then working over to the centre his favorite hold a crotch and body hold and he carried him hard to the canvas for the winning fall. This took twenty minutes. The crowd was all the warming up and they were ready for the best bout of the night.

Frank Hart and Bob Nelson met in the semi windup for the two and a forty five minute limit was placed on the wrestlers but they were given two falls out of three instead of one as the bout was scheduled. 172 pounds a piece and were very fast. The crowd had trouble following the several holds until the punishing work started and Nelson clicking off the head Hart up for the killing. He tried a couple of arm breakers but and the third one worked in 19.00 minutes for the first fall. Strong and in son. Hart came back strong in the 22 minutes clamped a body hold verse arm hold and it was just too bad for Nelson. The time limit expired with both on the mat. The fall and Forbes awarded the match to Hart as his better wrestling. Nelson did not take the decision kindly and he received many boos for his actions from the crowd.

Matchmaker Corcoran sure said his wrestling game is for the sporting fans of this district Tuesday evening. Corcoran promised a real high class card to Belleville fans and he kept his word. The only thing to mar a perfect evening was the fact that Jack Kogut had an injured shoulder and could not do himself justice. Kogut implored Corcoran to rematch him with Kasabaski at a later date when he recovers from his present condition, right here in Belleville.

Kogut says that he can throw Alex Kasabaski most any time that he is right. Kasabaski on the other hand, stated that he was pleased to get the opportunity to give his rival a return bout as he claims that he can throw Kogut most any day. The fans would welcome these two best in Belleville most any time.

Matchmaker Corcoran stated after the evening's entertainment that he was pleased and agreeably surprised in the keen interest that Belleville people took in the "rassling" game. He also stated that he liked the sporting attitude of the local fans. "They give credit where credit is due," said Mr. Corcoran. He also stated that he would be pleased to stage another bout in Belleville whenever the fans wanted it.

Mr. Corcoran made a tenstrike when he brought Jackie Forbes, Toronto's popular referee, down for the bouts. Forbes had the situation well in hand all evening and the fans were right behind his street rulings. Bob Nelson was a little sore when Forbes gave Hart the winning nod, but the decision was very popular with the pad customers and that is a't that is necessary in any sporting event.

As for the actual bouts themselves the wrestlers gave the fans many a thrill and the way in that they used their feelings only went to show that the game is said to the fans of Belleville. The opening bout was a good exhibition but the second bout between Bob Nelson and Frankie Hart, was a knockout. Matchmaker Corcoran made a lot of friends, locally, when he changed this bout to the best two falls out of three instead of one straight fall. Hart deserved the win and Referee Forbes was quite justified in his ruling, although Nelson was accordingly peeved.

The main bout was won by Alex Kasabaski who, by the way, is a distant relative of Vinnie Richards, who twirled for Belleville baseball team some years ago. Jack Kogut, Kasabaski's rival, had a sore shoulder; it seems he hurt it in Owen Sound the other night, and being a game guy never whimpered until he found out that he could not stand the much punishment. It would be an excellent idea to rematch these two boys right back here in Belleville early next month. But what the local fans would like a little better is heavier wrestlers, we think.

Although Peterboro Collegiate football team put the Belleville "gridets" out of the running yesterday afternoon by winning the round by the score of 40 to 14, the locals had the honor of defeating the Peies in the game here, by the score of 5 to 2.

This is the first game that the Peies have lost this year and the locals are quite elated that they had the honor, of whatever it may be, of beating them.

Young Westbye gave the fans a real exhibition of kicking the "pigskin". The Belleville line of scrimmage gained more yards than did their opponents

OLYMPIC PROSPECT

Many brilliant runners have graduated from the Monarch Athletic Club of Toronto during the past decade. But non one of them can tell the story of hardship that is told of David Komonen, who recently won the Dominion marathon championship from at class a field of over 100 runners. David, it seems, has been out of sport for many months. Ordinarily this would discourage a person from any active training because of the expense. Green marathon running is an expensive pastime. But David was not to be daunted. Rather than give up his chances he took to making running shoes for his clubmates, and the public in general, and earned his living by the "sweat of his brow" as it were. It was mighty tough going, but David had the heart and courage to keep, going, and his efforts were rewarded in the winning of the national marathon. If David can hold out until the Olympic trials, he should certainly make good material for the long distance brigade.

a clinker excepting for the injury Kogut received early in the match. Kasabaski is regarded a fast battler and he lived up to advance notices. He did everything to the champ but kick him in the face and probably would have done that had it not been for the referee. Kogut was successful in wining the first fall with a crotch hold and body slam in 23 minutes and Kasabaski came back with a fall through a flying tackle and body slam in six minutes. Kogut was in fighting on his nerve and the third fall went by quickly, Kasabaski being the clared the winner when he sent home a flying tackle and clamping a reverse Nelson. The show was the first class and the wrestlers will be back. The next show will be more of a heavyweight affair and the boys will be given a chance to see the big fellows perform. The Hockey club is grateful for the patronage given them and Bill Rankin deserves a great deal of credit for introducing the game to this city on a big scale. The band is also to be complimented for turning out and helping the good cause along. Incidently Belleville will not be ashamed of her hockey teams this winter.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Knives

It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt's prescription of HEM-ROID—to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the affected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. J. S. McKeown's Drug Store says HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile misery or money back.

Jacob's Arrival Means Upturn

Schmeling Manager Can Have Plenty of Bouts For Champion

NEW YORK, Nov. 12—Joe Jacobs, manager of Max Schmeling, is expected to return here tomorrow from a visit to the heavyweight champion in Germany and hith his arrival the conversational ice of the boxing business is expected to boo magain.

No word of Max's plans can be had until Jacobs arrives and several promoters are ready for him. One Mickey Walker at Los Angeles and probably, can open up for a quick decision. But the California law limiting championship matches to ten rounds may make a serious draw back as Schmeling prefers the 15-round route.

Walker and Jack Sharkey both have withdrawn out of competition while waiting to hear of the champion's plans, but if they supposed that differences with him are they can be expected to get into action again. More pugs are on the fire for such a contingency, including a number of members of them and the winner of Friday night's battle at Madison Square Garden between Tommy Loughran and Paulino Uzcudun. This bout is proposed for the annual Christmas Fund Card, December 11.

Collegiate Griders Win Game but Lose Round to Peterboro

Score Was 5 to 3 For The Locals, But Lose on Round 40 to 16

TORE PETES' LINE

Belleville Had Best of Play, and Lost Many Chances

With their backs to the wall and everything to gain and nothing to lose, the Belleville Collegiate football team defeated the Peterboro "griders" by the score of 5 to 3, Wednesday afternoon. Although they lost the round and series to the Petes by the score of 40 to 16, the locals accomplished something when they administered a defeat to the Petes, at this was the first defeat that the Litt Lock City boys have had this season and the local kids were quite proud of the fact that they were the ones to break the Petes' string of victories.

When pushed the local fans mostly was how the Petes defeated the locals by such a big score on Peterboro ice, but it is safe to be that much better than the locals on Wednesday's play. Coach Shiels, although somewhat disappointed in losing the series, stated after the game that he and his players had no alibis to offer and wished the Petes all the success possible in their endeavours to win the provincial title.

Petes' Line Outplayed

The local line of scrimmages outplayed the visitors all afternoon and had it not been for the superior kicking of Westbye, the Petes' kicking halfback, the score would have no doubt been much larger. The locals line was far superior to that of the Petes and time and again, during the first and last games the Petes' defeat that the Litt Lock City boys halted through the visitors' line for no gains. Hammy Graves covered himself with glory as did Jimmie Fotwell, who was taken up from the junior ranks for that game. Ostrom, at quarter, played a real heady game and many a time the little mite carried the ball through the line for a gain of yards. Fumbles at the wrong time spelt the downfall of the local line and time again.

Westbye, for the Petes, gave the fans a real exhibition of how to boot the old "pigskin" and on each occasion of kicks he always outkicked his two rivals, Reynolds and Bartlett. Reynolds was kicked in the second period was about the finest piece of booting that has been seen in Belleville in this year. He booted the ball straight over the bar for the only points that the visitors got, topping. Young and Greene also turned in smart plays for the visitors, who were minus their fastest man in Vern. Armstrong. Greene especially carried the ball through the Belleville line and was assisted by Young on some smart extended runs.

Fotwell kicked off for the locals and Westbye returned the kick. Belleville literally backed their way the length of the field only to lose the ball on a fumble at the Petes' own 30 yard line. On the first play Westbye booted the ball 50 yards and it was Belleville's ball on their own 30 yard line. Ostrom took a nice forward pass and gained 20 yards for B.C.I. Fotwell kicked and on the next down the Petes were penalized ten yards for interference and on the next snap-out Westbye carried the ball and was downed for a safety touch scoring the only one for Belleville. On the first down Westbye booted the ball for 60 yards. The Belleville line now started a series of bucks and line plunges that were lost gains on the visitors. All the line men for Belleville were right on their toes and smashing the Petes' line at will. The result was telling on the Petes as they failed to make any attack in order to keep their lead of 24 points. Whenever the Petes had the ball Westbye was kicking and they kept the ball in the Petes' Peterboro territory as much as possible. The first quarter ended with the score Belleville 2, Peterboro 0.

Tore to Ribbons

The second quarter opened as Fotwell kicked and Bell fell on the ball that was fumbled by Greene. By a series of bucks the Belleville line carried the ball to the Petes' one yard line only to lose it on a fumble. At this stage of the game a fight started, on the Belleville bench between a local sub and a Peterboro fan. No real damage was reported. Westbye kicked for a gain and then he threw a forward pass to Kirkwood for another gain of about 20 yards. The Petes again started to boot the ball so as to keep it out of their end of the field. Weese and Rigby both made substantial gains for the locals when Fotwell kicked and the ball was run back by Wilson. Westbye called for a placement kicked and the ball sailed neatly over the goal post for three points. The Kicker was one of the features of the game and the boys received a nice hand for his efforts. Just as the half time whistle blew Dick Philp was on the receiving end of a nice forward pass that meant a gain of 30 yards for Belleville. At half time the score stood Belleville 5, Peterboro 3.

Westbye kicked off for the Petes and Hammy Graves ran him to the half back and was downed so hard that he was forced to stay down for a count. After a little rest Graves was ready to continue and received a nice hand on his entering. Weese, who was really too sick to be playing football went through the line. Weese, Rigby and Marsaksas now went to work on a series of line plunges and bucks. These boys worked like Trojans and their spirit was soon taken up by the rest of the players. But try as they might they just could not get to get by the Petes' goal line. Graves made a couple of nice end runs and Dick Philp came to life and on a forward pass he ran 30 yards. The locals now threw discretion to the air and were playing like a team possessed. Westbye kept dooding the "pigskin" every time that the Petes got possession of it. Just as the whistle blew Rigby made a nice gain through the middle of the line.

The last quarter was the most exciting for the local fans as the B.C.I. boys were now out to "at least" win the game as there was no doubt as to the issue of the round. By virtue of another series of line plunges the locals got within striking distance of the Petes' goal line when Fotwell kicked over the line and the ball carrier was downed by Marsakas for one point making the score 6 to 3 all. One minute later Fotwell again kicked over the goal line and Ostrom was on the ball for a touch-down but could return it and another point was scored for Belleville. Petes now started to try and keep from losing the game but they displayed some nice clever forward passes and end runs. The Belleville line held again and started one of their fierce drives through the enemy line and carried the ball up the field so that Fotwell was again placed in a position to kick over the Petes' goal line and Ostrom downed Westbye behind the line. This was the last of the scoring, making the final score 5 to 3 for Belleville. Just before the final whistle Greene made a nice 40-yard gain and the game ended.

The line-up:

Belleville—Ralston, flying wing; Graves, Reynolds and Philp, halves; Bell, snap; Weese and Rigby, middles; Fotwell and Marsaksas, outsides; Morgan and Rogers, insides; Ostrom, quarter; subs, White, Sergeant Andrews, Scopis, Scott, Hall, Angeli and Flagler.

Peterboro—Joplin flying wing; Young, Westbye and Greene, halves; Fraser, quarter; Marsh, snap; Wilson and Kirkwood, middles; Clayton and Waddell, insides; Gardner and Reynolds, outsides; subs, Wood, Clarke, Dinsmore and Parker, back.

Referee—Armstrong of Toronto; umpire, Brown of Queen's; headlinesman, Gilmour of Queen's, time-keepers, Weir and Legon.

In the Junior Ladies' Afternoon League game, the Athletics took all four points from Aunsos. High bowlers were Mrs Madden for Athletics 516; and Mrs. Houston for the Aunsos 515.

In the Travelers' League, Queen Victoria School took three points from Queen Alexandra's team. Miss Potter was high lady with 421 and Miss Cooper was high gentleman with 691.

In the "Industrial League, Ted Austin's City's took all four points from Ernie Baker's American Hardware team when they rolled 3697 with a four man team. Incidentally Ted himself had Percy Vetter's high single of 313 when he rolled 313. High bowlers were Austin for the City's with 706 and Blake for the American, Hardware 551.

The Bell Telephone Ladies' league got away to a good start Tuesday night. This league is composed of three teams, all playing at the same time under the double elimination system of scoring. Tuesday night they finished as follows: Miss Bells 5½; Busy Lines 4½ and Percy Vern's 3. The winning ladies were prize winners: Miss Bells, Miss Brookburst; Busy Lines, Miss Leach and Percy Vern's, Miss Vetter. Considering that these ladies are nearly all beginners they made some nice scores.

MAKE FIRST RUGBY WIN

Marmora High School Team Defeats Madoc 6 to 5

MARMORA—Friday evening, November 6th, Marmora High School made their first win of the schedule when they overcame a 5-3 tie with Madoc High School, to win by 6-5. During the game good work was done during the week, the Marmorans boys showed much better form than in the previous two games.

In the first quarter the Madoc crew secured a touchdown off a punt by Armstrong. In the last Marmora boys came back when McCrath succeeded in a line kick with about two yards to go. The final tally was secured off a punt by Callery in the closing seconds of the game. The game was handled by Rev. Fr. Keeley.

TWO GO OVER FALLS

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 12. —An eighteen-foot cabin cruiser with two aboard went over the Horseshoe Falls short-ly after 8 a.m. today. Two men who were accompanied of the craft are believed to have escaped by donning life preservers and swimming to the short when the boat was about a quarter of a mile above the brink of the cataract.

'Big Seven' Group Opens Tonight

Niagara Falls Moves Up to Swift Co.'With Smart Team

Toronto, Oct. Nov. 12 (CP)—The "Big Seven" Senior Ontario Hockey Association group, which, last season, was known as the "Big Six" produced Hamilton Tigers, runners-up for the Allan Cup, will open the 1931-32 Winter campaign tonight when Niagara Falls, the new entry, play Port Colborne Sailors in Port Colborne arena. The Falls team is in addition to the Falls and Sailors will consist of Hamilton Tigers, Hollinger Gold Miners, Varsity, Marlboros and Nationals, all of Toronto.

Following last year's impressive showing in the junior series when they captured the O.H.A. Junior title, the Niagara Falls club, practically intact, moved up to senior company, and with the addition of five first string forward line of last season's Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, C.A.L. champions, and Gordie Peterkin, former Ottawa Shamrock and Midget star, Coach Ernie Parr's aggregation are expected to make a favorable impression in the coming campaign.

The Ports, who last winter furnished Hamilton Tigers with their stiffest opposition until they were defeated for the Allan Cup final at Winnipeg, will have practically the same line up available for the opening fixture. Jerry Shannon Fan Herriner and Mountain are expected to start on the forward line for the Sailors, while Horne will likely line up as one of the defence men. One other senior game is carded for the week when the Nationals and Marlboros meet tomorrow night in Toronto.

Prince George on Last Voyage to the Ship Breakers

Old Faithful 32 Years in Boston-Yarmouth Service

CLEARS HARBOR

Taken to Junk Heap to Tune of Sailors' Lament

Halifax, N. S. — The steamer Prince George, which has plied between Boston, Mass., and Yarmouth, N.S., during most of the last thirty-two years, has towed out of Yarmouth Harbor recently by the tug Challenger P. Greenough, "Old Faithful" was on her last voyage, bound for Baltimore to be broken up for junk. In her wake she left memories dear to the hearts of many a Bluenose sailorman, and one of them wrote his lament in the Digby Courier.

"There she goes, mister. There goes the old prince, so low that a coal barge, with her paintwork dingy and streaked, and her funnel corroded green, just so much steel and iron for the breakers' yard, the way I remember her now is as one neatest little lady that tripped coastwise out of Boston. I see her now as I saw her then, sliding down through the harbor traffic, with her flags snapping to the breeze, her two funnels slanted back rakishly, looking fit out to the harbour mouth, to lift to the green Atlantic rollers that she tramped down a day after day year in and year out.

"It's funny about ships, mister. Work aboard one 20 awhile, and you'll get to know her, all her little ways and styles, her quirks and whimsies. Yes, sir, I've worked on plenty of them. Winter and summer they've carried me along to many a strange new port. Yet it's not the same to buy a ticket and bring your baggage below to a stateroom. You don't get to know the boats that way. You get to be a mere friendly way I mean.

"When you sign on a packet you belong to her. The passengers come aboard, and promenade up and down the deck, and you size up them kind of superior-like and smile to yourself, as if you knew just what it was that was making them excited, and couldn't tell them, not even if you wanted to. And you listen to them talking of the trips they've taken before; of this ship and that, and of the accommodations and which was a good sea boat and which wasn't. You listen to them, and smile to yourself some more, knowing that you know something they couldn't know.

"Yes, sir, I've known a lot of ships, but somehow the George was the darling of them all. Maybe it's because the George and I first met a lot in common one way and another. The George was the summer ship for a lot of us chaps. Most of us used to ship on coastwise boats in the winter. But summer would take us to the old Bay boats, with their white decks, with the water sliding past just below the open cargo port, and the wind talk about where we'd been last winter. Maybe one would run a mile racing up the Amazon to Manaos. And listening, the rest of us would feel the jungle about us, and smell the hot, steamy air and hear the rustle of foliage that grew like a wall along the river. Another one would be telling about Rio, or Buenos Aires, or about going ashore in Port Limon, or Sault Ste. Marie. And while we talked we'd all be glad to be back on the George again with the crew we knew.

"I remember once I was walking down the gangplank of a Red D liner, not thinking about anything in particular, with the noisome flood-ing down warm and pleasant the way it does along about midafternoon in a spring morning, with the smell of the sea drifting up, all mixed with a flavor of hot pitch-oozage, and the fruit from the dock sweet bait one, and hearing the screaming of the gulls in the harbor, and the slap, slap of water against the piles, when I heard something half sob.

"I looked down, and there on the dock I saw Jimmy Austin, leaning against a bollard, looking up at me with the sun on his face, making his eyes gleam under the shadow of his hat, and below the shadow of the smiling friendliness of his lips. The George is pulling out on the summer run next week,' he shouted. 'So long, and don't be kept his eyes on me as he smiled. And I knew that I'd made my last trip south for that year.

"That summer the World War broke out, and after the season was over Jimmy and I went into the Army. I remember one day a couple of years after, that Jimmy and I met in Southampton harbor, aboard a channel packet bound for France. It was a gray day, a dismal, lead-colored sort of day. It was raining out of a heavy sky into a sea of soapish, greenish gray. The ships in the harbor were painted war-time gray, and the buildings we could see were gray-brown and gray. It was cold, rain, beating against the rail, thinking about the line that we were going back on our thoughts took on a blue like the day, and the ships and the sky that Canada and the United States were always a sunlit-and faintly far as another planet.

"Suddenly Jimmy gripped my arm. 'Look at the George,' he said excitedly. 'Look at the dock across the way.' "I looked, and there was the George. She was painted gray for war work, for fooling it back and forth across the channel, but gray paint couldn't hide her from old friends like Jimmy and me. We didn't say a word, but just leaned on over the rail and looked. And as I gazed the George wasn't painted gray any more, but white, with her deck houses gleaming white, and the gay paint-work trim around her portholes. I could see the Custom House tower beyond, could hear the shouts of the excursionists on the Dorothy Bradford, and the screaming of the gulls in the sunshine.

"All I said was, 'The George over here.' Imagine that! It was like meeting an old friend. The rakish tilt of her funnels was like a saucy flirting of a skirt, cheering and heartening. After that the day wasn't gray any more, and the United States and Canada were just across the harbor.

"Yes, mister, it's funny about ships. You don't think of them as you do about places or buildings, but more as you would about people you've met, and there's all tied up in your thoughts with the things you've learned with them.

"There was one night on the George that I woke up to hear two men talking. They were deep in a learned argument about some work of art that had been mentioned in the newspaper that day. Listening, I couldn't understand why such men were there on the George. Next day Jimmy told me that one of the chaps was an Oxford graduate, the other an unfrocked clergyman. The Oxford man washed dishes for a living, the clergyman waited on table. Out along Philadelphia Avenue in those days stood a row of saloons, one on every block almost every door. Because the saloons were there the Oxford man washed dishes and the clergyman was a waiter.

"The scene has changed since then. The saloons are gone, and you'll find Oxford men washing dishes, or ex-clergymen waiting on table. Maybe that's why I don't feel so badly about the George's out there on the end of a row of piers, being put to some other place for the fine, new boat that tied up at the pier the George's belongs to the old days and the old ships, mister.

"So they are towing the Prince George to the breakers, mister. There's not a plate, not a bolt, not a work streaked and dingy, and the rust black on her sides. She'll break her up, but she'll sail on just the same like a ghost ship. Austin and myself will never see the best of her vanished. We'll ship out on the new boat, maybe, and smile when we hear the passengers talking about the George, and what a good sea boat she was, or how much faster and better this one is. And we'll smile, just the same, kind of superior-like, because we know what it is they fell about ship.

"But we couldn't tell them even if we wanted to. For there's the George is broken up. Jimmy Austin and I can build it again any time we want to.

—B.H.F."

FOWL SUPPER AT PLAINFIELD

Remembrance Day Function Held at United Church

With tables literally over-loaded with all good foods the Plainfield United Church held their annual chicken supper, or banquet, Wednesday evening. Long before the first tables were served ever increasing lines of cars could be seen coming that a bumper crowd was to be expected.

The ladies of the church prepared the usual food stuffs such as chicken, fixings, pies, cakes, pickles, relishes and everything palatable that goes to make such a function a success. About 200 sat down to the first table and the same number were served at the second sitting which was necessary to accommodate the hungry crowds.

Everyone present had more than enough to eat and were high in their praise of the great feast which the ladies of Plainfield United Church had provided and the word has gone around, as it does in regard to such banquets, that these ladies provide the best and table that one could wish to sit in front of. Thus their ambition was realized on Wednesday evening when the largest crowd that has ever gathered in the School rooms of the parish sat down to their annual supper.

It was a chicken supper too; fried chicken, stewed chicken, roast chicken, chicken to a king's taste and any other kind of preparation that the ladies offered for the many hungry customers, who came from miles around to partake in the feasting of the good ladies of Plainfield United Church.

After every last individual had been served they went up to the road to the Plainfield United Church where a programme was put on by the members of the church in order that everyone, both young and old, might have a perfect evening of entertainment. The Rev. R. W. Catley, pastor of Plainfield United Church, was the chairman of the evening and the opening number was a seasonal one being the singing of "Lord of the Lands" by the church choir in honor of Remembrance Day. This number was very well received by the audience, who by now had packed the church to the doors, and some were not even fortunate enough to get inside.

Rev. Mr. Catley then officially welcomed all to the annual supper and entertainment, wishing that all had been satisfied with the first course and assuring them that they would enjoy what was in store for them in the program to follow. He introduced Mrs. Hooton of Tyrone Ont., who spoke a few words in appreciation for the wonderful way that he had been received. Solos by Mrs. Low and Mrs. Arthur Hall, choir leader who was responsible for the programme, were roundly applauded on occasion. "In Flanders Fields." This reading was very impressively rendered at the close of the evening was Miss Smith who gave a number of readings and her ability as an elocutionist was roundly applauded by the audience and she was called back time and again for encores. Just previous to the closing exercises Mr. Harry Harrison rendered a solo entitled "Remembrance" which entertainment broke up at a rather late hour every person having spent a real enjoyable and profitable evening.

TWO CHILDREN BEATEN WITH CLUB, ONE DEAD

Hugh Greenshields, 42, Father, is Held by Police in Campbellford Tragedy

Reported Attempt at Suicide With Iodine Says Report

IS FOUND DAZED

Victim of Accident By Truck Six Weeks Ago

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 13.—(By the Canadian Press)—Carrying a piece of wood which he had whittled into a club, Hugh Greenshields, unemployed man, is alleged to have entered his home at Campbellford at 9 or 10 o'clock this morning in Campbellford, while the two children were yet asleep, and battered their head with crazed inhuman blows.

Billy Greenshields, aged five, was killed by the blows, his head being battered to pulp. Walter, his brother aged ten, also suffered grievous head wounds and lies in hospital not far his recovery.

The tragedy occurred about eight o'clock this morning in Greenshields Campbellford home. It was not known by anyone until nearly eleven o'clock, when the maid recovered, his senses having taken a dose of iodine following his fierce attack upon his the room.

McIber at Work

The maid several days ago had secured a position with the Weston Shoe Company, and was away at work when the father made his attack upon the boys.

After waking in the bed and Walter was on the point of death, when neighbors having heard screams of the father of when he had fled, burst into the room.

The father had taken a dose of iodine immediately following his Color in Your News and in Ads—Will it Come?

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 13— There seems to be some uncertainty among this country's newspaper publishers whether their readers prefer their news tinted with the same hues as the boustrous colors of the comics of the morning plunge a colorful splash.

Color printing has its advocates and opponents among members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in convention here but so far the question itself has not sat on the spectrum-like fence and wondered whether to be merely black and white account of world events wasn't quite sufficient.

Color advertising in the newspapers must come, W. E. MacFarlane of the Chicago Tribune declared, as a means of competing with magazines and other advertising channels. Dean Palmer of the St. Joseph Mo. Gazette termed the development inevitable.

J. R. Knowland, publisher of the Oakland, Calif. Tribune, precipitated the discussion. Without bias, Knowland presented a paper on color in newspapers, stating its future depended largely on improved mechanical processes.

He declined to say whether he favored color advertising was merely a fad, called that by some of his colleagues, or a substantial move to meet competition.

24 Hours is His Reward

Appealing in endless court, he was convicted of transporting a woman from Rochester to Buffalo for immoral purposes, but was allowed off. But the long memory of the law held him in its grasp.

Osborne was reminded he has been convicted of a similar offense one month a go and forced to pay a fine. He has been given time to pay, but his failure to do so led to arrest of the 24 hours in jail. "He will be free again today.

BANK ROBBED BY ARMED MEN

Take $2000 After Forcing Manager and Teller to Lie on Floor

KITCHENER, Ont., Nov. 13.—The Bank of Toronto branch at Kitchener, a village about eighteen miles east of this city, was held up this morning by two masked and armed bandits who, after forcing the manager and teller to lie on the floor, escaped with $2,000 in cash.

The manager, Fred Gerrard, and the teller, Miss Grey, were compelled to lie on the floor as the two men, one about five foot nine and the other about five inches shorter, entered with guns in their hands and with masks over their faces.

They relieved one of the bank's revolver and proceeded to rifle the cage. They escaped in a small closed motor car towards Guelph. Small sums under the bank are then escape but were unable to get the car license number since it was spattered with mud. Provincial police have thrown a dragnet over highways in this vicinity.

FIVE ROBBERS TAKE PAYROLL

$82,000 Haul From National Bank at Rahway, N.J.

Rahway, N.J., Nov. 13— Five robbers today escaped from the City National Bank here with $82,000 in payroll of Gibbs and Hill, Inc., after threatening a score employees and bank clerks.

The robbers all armed, disappeared in a black sedan a few moments after taking a registered mail pouch containing the money from J. H. Parrell, paymaster of the company.

The money represented the weekly payroll of employees of engineers of several hundred men, engaged in electrification work on the Pennsylvania railroad in this section.

PAIR OF YOUTHS TAKEN TO TORONTO

Cross and Knight, the two young men arrested by the Belleville police last night on a charge of theft, left on the afternoon train for Toronto this afternoon.

WAR IN EAST DISCUSSED BY SIR A. CURRIE

States Japan Has Broken Her Word in Manchuria

WAR WILL UNITE

Japan Rifled With Communism States War Leader

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 13.—Possibility of war in the East was discussed by Brigadier Arthur Currie, Commander in Chief of the Canadian army in the Great War and President of McGill University, Montreal, addressing war veterans at the military institute here last night.

Sir Arthur, who recently returned from a visit in the Orient, charged Japan had "broken her word" in Manchuria. She had installed a division to guard the Eastern Chinese Railway and had a second on the pretext of relieving the first, he declared.

"Japan" he said, "is rifled with Communism. She has 2,000,000 unemployed. If they go to war those 2,000,000 will be employed. And nothing will unite a people more than a war. It can appeal to their nationalistic instincts.

"Japan has got Manchuria only outlet on the Pacific. There is a purpose in that. Japan has got economic control of Manchuria and she is not going to give up until she has got political control." said Sir Arthur. He sarcasm the League of Nations of acting "in a spineless way" in connection with Japanese aggressions.

SHOULD NOT DEBATE LONG

Policy of New Party Should Be Put Into Effect

LONDON, Nov. 13.—(Can Press Cable)—Austen Chamberlain, who was Conservative first lord of the Admiralty in the emergency National Government, today stated in the House of Commons that the Government looks to party and civil servants is requested in a statement which will be submitted at the annual meeting of the Unionist Party in the city hall be held here commencing December 3.

A number of other questions of dominion and provincial interest will be considered.

FIRE BUG HAS STARTED AGAIN

Barn at Richmond Burned With Heavy Loss

Richmond, Ont., Nov. 13.—Fears that a fire bug is at large in this district were aroused yesterday when every outbuilding on the farm of A. Thompson at Prospect-ton miles from here, were destroyed by fire. Loss is placed at two of several thousands of dollars. No insurance is carried.

A suspicious looking character was reported to have been seen sitting on the side of the road near the scene of the blaze. He had his shoes off and was talking to himself and waving his hands wildly over his head.

Central in Berlin now takes messages for subscribers who get "no-answer" reply to calls.

3 Flogged by Vigilantes Suspected of Red Leaning

PONTIAC, Mich., Nov. 13.— At least three men were flogged by vigilants here last night because they were suspected of being Communist sympathizers.

One of them was quoted as saying he heard the screams of a woman who apparently was receiving the same treatment but no women was reported missing and the belief expressed today that one was present, she was a member of the Vigilante band.

Authorities who said the whippings probably were the aftermath of a recent unemployment demonstration in which several hundred of jobless sons were arrested after a brush with officers, were investigating to learn if others had been seized.

Waller Hardin, Clarence Sherman and Roger Fortin, pair of farmers in their homes early today bearing welts of beatings. It was Hardin who said he heard a woman scream during nearby his captors beat him with the butt of a pistol. He said he would recognize his assailants although they were hooded.

Blast Placed Under Rock Wounds Three Men Near Brockville, One May Die

Almost With Lighting of Fuse, Charge Explodes

3 FEET OF FUSE

Edgar Hough Receives Full Charge of Blast

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 13 — With his left eye completely destroyed, his right eye badly injured, his right hand blown off at the wrist, his right leg fractured above the knee and his face and body severely lacerated, Edgar Hough, aged 27 of Bidwell Hill, lies in a critical condition in the hospital as the result of a blasting accident which took place last evening.

Murdoch Fitzgerald, aged 30, of the same vicinity, is also a patient in the hospital with serious lacerations of the left arm, shock and light lacerations of the body, while Adam Murdoch, the third member of the party engaged in blasting rocks on the farm of Arthur Baker, is at his home with slight injuries and shock.

All three young men had been employed by a Toronto construction company on highway improvement in the neighborhood of Merrickville, but were now working for that concern at the time of the accident. Hough is an experienced blaster man and according to the story told by Fitzgerald a charge of dynamite was set by him under the rock with a fuse three feet long being attached to it.

Almost with the lighting of the fuse the charge exploded, the full effects of its being received by Hough, who was the nearest to the main force of the blast. It is thought unlikely that Hough will recover.

REDUCTION IN ALL SALARIES IS ASKED

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13.—(By the Canadian Press)—Reduction in salaries of the Governor-General, the Lieutenant-Governors of the Dominion, cabinet ministers, senators, members of parliament, judges and civil servants is requested in a resolution which will be submitted at the annual meeting of the Unionist Party in the city hall to be held here commencing December 3.

A number of other resolutions of dominion and provincial interest will be considered.

Bear Moves Into Rawdon

Residents of Rawdon township have been reading about bears being seen and shot in the northern part of Hastings County and evidently Bruin has decided to visit the southern part of the county. Mr. Lindsay Easaldy who resides in the Spry settlement, of Rawdon township discovered a bear in his orchard eating apples. The animal was shot, patched and tipped the scales at six hundred pounds.

EXPLOSION WRECKS HOME

Man, Wife and Daughter Cut By Flying Glass

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Nov. 13.—A man and his wife and a four year old daughter were severely burned and cut by flying glass today in an explosion which partially wrecked their home.

Catherine Doruly, 44, and the daughter, Mary, were in serious condition at Highland hospital. John, 45, the husband, was less seriously injured. Michael Mitchell, 25, and his wife, Mary, 24, boarders in the Doruly home, were shaken by the force of the blast.

A gas leak ignited by a flame under a still in the cellar was given as the cause of the explosion by Battalion Chief Culligan.

Both sides and the front of the house were blown out and a piano in the living room tossed in to neighbor's yard. Windows in nearly residences were broken.

ROBBED ON LAST NIGHT

Held Up and Whole Life's Savings Are Taken

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 13.—On the eve of his intended departure for Poland, Michael Popovitch, a native of that country, was held up at the point of a revolver by two men who entered his home here last night. The bandits secured a sum of $1,046 in United States money, Popovitch's whole life savings.

The money had been wrapped in a handkerchief and hidden in an attached shed. Popovitch secured it from a bank earlier in the day. Shortly after the three bandits pointed a revolver at the would-be traveller, a second time, bound his hands with a cord and the third smashed the lock of the satchel, securing its contents.

MANY WORKING UNDER RELIEF

140 Called to Make Up First Complement

At present there are four hundred and twenty-three men on the registration list in Mr. Chamberlain's office in the city hall. Of this number only seventy-six are single men and not subject to call. The rest are either married men, or being single and the support of widowed mothers or other dependents, enjoy the same preferential status of married men in the matter of being called for work.

In order to clear up some misunderstanding which now exists among the men in the matter of being called for work, the following statement has been issued from the office by Mr. Rayfield, the clerk in charge of registrations and appointments. The men whose turn comes next on the call list are sick and notify the office in that effect before their turn comes to go to work, then they will be taken care of and their names will be called on the next occasion when they are again able to be around again. Those who fail to notify the office will not be entitled to any consideration in this matter.

MAHATMA GANDHI TOO ISSUE WITH MACDONALD

London, Nov. 13—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi took issue with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald today at a committee meeting of the round table conference, and repudiated yesterday's communal settlement between Moslems and the smaller Indian minorities.

He expressed astonishment that Mr. MacDonald should have said he understood the Moslems claim to 46 per cent of India's population, asserting that the Nationalists represented 85 per cent as against 55 percent of all the people in India.

RAWDON BARN IS DESTROYED

Crop and Machinery Owned By H. Dandford, Are Lost

RAWDON, Nov. 13 (Special)—A fire which was fanned by a strong, westerly wind, destroyed the barn, the property being occupied by H. Dandford, took fire early Thursday evening and was destroyed. The Dandford family were in the house at the time when the blaze was first seen by the children, who immediately notified Mr. Dandford.

After considerable difficulty the men present succeeded in saving all of the cows and horses, which were in the barn. The barn itself was entirely destroyed, as well as nearly all the contents. Mr. Dandford's loss was the barn and contents were only partially covered with insurance. All other buildings on the property were saved from the spread of the flames but Mr. Dandford lost a new wagon and several chickens in the blaze.

How the fire originated is not known but it is thought that spontaneous combustion was the cause. The flames had completely enveloped the building when first seen.

"I was just lucky," he told his friends.

Saturday a bus'iar entered his home, found the $10,000 in an old trunk, took the money and walked away.

TRADITION OF SEA IS HELD

Owners of Schooner Go Down With Their Ship

BALBOA, C.Z., Nov. 13.—(AP)—A tale of traditions of the sea, of the owners of the ill-fated Costa Rican schooner Baden Baden who scorned lifeboats and rafts and went down with their ship was told by a then survivor, Sigurd Swan, the U. S. mine-sweeper Swan on the way back to the canal zone today.

The men were Hans J. Lee of Punta Costa Rica, and Adolph Schenck of Hamburg, Germany. When the vessel foundered Monday afternoon in heavy seas and the crew took to lifeboats and rafts the owners stayed aboard and sank with the schooner.

How three others aboard the schooner, two injured, was later revealed.

During a storm along the coast of Colombia, Monday the cargo shifted, the pumps were found to be out of order and the vessel sank in 20 minutes.

Without food and with only rain to provide drinking water, the crew drifted for three days until they were picked up by the Swan. They were sighted 30 minutes after the ship went down by an airplane which put to the Swan and then aboard because of the roughness of the sea.

When the Swan came alongside Captain Walter of the Baden Baden, who was injured, was taken aboard on a stretcher. The men refused to be taken aboard, insisted, in bathed and given soup, cigarets and blankets.

Captain Walter was injured when a timber fell on his back as he was abandoning the ship.

CAR IS TWICE RECOVERED

Sharp-Eyed Police of Belleville Nab Owner

Thursday night at eleven thirty o'clock while Constable Hazard of the city police, was patrolling Front St. his attention was attracted to a car bearing a certain number. The number he recognized at once as belonging to a car which had been reported as stolen from Montreal a few days ago. He waited until the driver of the car appeared from a restaurant and at the same time got regarding why the car was in his possession did not convince the constable, he took the man to the police station where he was detained all night. The car contained a quantity of clothing and a number of tools and looked as though it had been turned over in the ditch. This morning, however, the man, convinced the police authorities that he is the rightful owner of the car and he was allowed to proceed on his journey to his home in Oshawa.

It appears that he has been in Montreal for a few weeks in search of work. Last Friday his car was stolen and information of the theft was, in the regular routine, sent out by the Montreal police. On Tuesday the car was recovered by the Montreal police and the owner after having a few repairs made to it, left Montreal en route to Oshawa, and it was while he was having some refreshment at a restaurant here that his car was spotted by Constable Izzard. As the report advising the finding of the car had not been received by the Belleville police, the constable took the driver into custody. When the car was stolen the owner's driving card was taken and his inability to produce it was the cause of his being detained here, for investigation.

The police say, should have obtained clearance for the car from the Montreal police.

BOY EMPEROR ON HIS WAY TO MANCHURIA

Hustled Away From Tientsin, China, Under Japanese Guard

PLACED IN LAUNCH

Imperial Restoration at Mukden Planned By Japan

(By W. V. Pennell, A. P. Staff Correspondent)

(Copyright 1931 by the Associated Press)

Tientsin, China, Nov. 13 (AP) — China's beleaguered former boy-emperor, Henry Pu-yi, was believed today to be on his way to Manchuria after he was hustled away from here under a Japanese guard in the dead of last night.

The young ex-ruler, a modern, English speaking youth with a fondness for fast motor racetrack, has been a virtual prisoner in the Japanese concession here since 1924 when he escaped from the legation quarter of the "forbidden city" at Peking, China's ancient capital, to a third-class railway carriage.

Although Japanese authorities refused to discuss the reported flight last night there was no doubt about it here. According to the story being told, he and his party, including the former Empress, were driven in motor cars, escorted by gendarmes, through the Japanese concession to the water front and there put on a launch from Tangku.

In the launch they proceeded to Tangku where they were placed on a steamer bound for Dairen, Manchuria.

Recently the former Emperor was deprived of his Japanese escortment and was not even permitted his usual visits to the racetrack. The Japanese authorities told him it was not safe for him to venture out at all.

Would Insist on Plums

It was understood that plans for an Imperial restoration at Mukden where a puppet administration under Japanese auspices, was installed earlier this week, are far advanced. Repairs are being made to the palaces. It was learned here, under the direction of the wife of Manchu riders who went there recently.

When the matter was broached last month the former Emperor was reported to have said he had no desire to go to Mukden.

He was also said to be concerned over what he considered probable demands of other members of his family with whom he has little sympathy because of their failure to cast off the old way and accept modern life. He believed they would insist on "plums" from the new government if one were set up.

Tientsin, China, Nov. 13 (AP) — A report circulated in Russian circles today said a Communist brigade of Chinese, Koreans and Russians from Blagovaschensk, Siberia, surprised the Japanese troops at the Nonni River and threw them back sharply, taking several of their aeroplanes.

The Communist troops marching from the North swept into the highway near Tsitsihar, the report said and attacked with sweeping machine gun fire, demoralizing the Japanese forces in the Nonni region and forcing them to retreat several miles behind the bridge head.

Arranged With Soviet

The Daily News, a Japanese paper published at Dairen, Manchuria a few days ago said General Ma Chang-Shan visited Blagovechensk and arranged for help from Soviet government there, returning accompanied by Communist officers and a guard of Communist troops.

It followed this up by saying, in its next issue, that an entire eastern Communist brigade was established on the Nonni river and that the Chinese authorities had agreed to the establishment of a Soviet policy in the Japanese sphere in Eastern Railway.

The agreement, it was said, called for the deportation of "White" Russians and for recognition of Communists unions in Harbin.

Obituary

SAMUEL C. SILLS

Word was received in the city yesterday of the death of an aged and respected former citizen of Belleville district in the person of Samuel Sills. Mr. Sills who has resided for the past 10 years in Calgary, lived all of his life previous to moving west, on the old sills homestead at Avondale, two miles west of Belleville on the Provincial Highway.

Mr. Sills was the son of the last Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sills and was born in Sidney Township 84 years ago. Mr. Sills leaves only his widow, who now resides in Calgary. For a number of years Mr. Sills was a well known resident of this community and was very interested in church work. Previous to leaving here he was a very active member of the Tabernacle Church.

He was also a member of the I.O.O.F. and took a very active interest in the advancement of farming facilities. The body will be shipped to Belleville for interment.

HULDAH JANE ROSLIN HUBBS

After being ill for some months, Huldah Jane Roslin Sprung, beloved wife of Mr. Ira Hubbs, and dear daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Sprung, passed away at her home, North of Belleville, on Tuesday, Nov. 10th, in her 73rd year. Universally respected, she had a large number of friends who will regret her passing. The late Mrs. Hubbs was a member of the Trinity United Church. She leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband, three sons, Hubbs, Mrs. H. S. Tuck of Belleville, Mrs. Hattie Wood of Toronto and Mrs. Jackson Hall of Brighton, and one son, Carson E. Hubbs of Brighton, also one sister, Mrs. Harriet Ann Dennison of Belleville in her 96th year.

Her funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon, November 12th, from the home of her son, Carson, to Mount Carmel United Church for service and interment was made in the Mountain View Cemetery. Many friends and relatives were present who were obliged to stand on account of the large number present, and the many beautiful floral tributes bore witness to the love and esteem in which the deceased was held.

A mother and a wife has gone to Heavenly mansions fair.
And from this sinful world of woe, by the call to glory taken,
Her cares and sufferings too are o'er, she calmly sleeps unshaken.

In early life she sought the Lord and trusted in His Word,
So when the summons came to her she heard and heeded not.
'Tis hard to break the tender cord when love has bound the heart,
'Tis hard, so hard to speak the words "We must for ever part."

Until her last long illness, her prospects were so bright,
Then Angel Death came lingering near, though hidden from her sight.
But as we look upon her form as cold in death she lay,
In that high and heavenly Morn of Morns, we'll meet her some sweet day.

JOSEPH BYRNE

After an illness of quite some time, a former resident of this city passed away at his home in Niagara Falls, N.Y., today, in the person of Joseph Byrne.

Mr. Byrne lived in Belleville some years ago before removing to Niagara Falls and he was employed in the shoe business conducted by the late Mr. P. Byrne. He was a cousin of Miss Minnie Murphy, also of this city, who survives him and resides at Church Corners.

Mr. Byrne was in the boot and shoe business in Niagara Falls and carried on a very successful business and it was with regret this his many friends heard of his death today.

Mr. Byrne was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Byrne and was born in Belleville forty-eight years ago. He was a devout Roman Catholic and took keen interest in the work of the church. He was also a member of the Catholic Order of Foresters.

Besides his wife and eight children he leaves to mourn his loss three sisters, Mrs. E. Gibson, Misses Margaret and Mary all of Rochester, N.Y., three brothers, Lawrence of Rochester, N.Y., James of Watertown, N.Y. and Fred of this city.

The funeral will take place Monday in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

UNEMPLOYED UNDERTAKING DISTRIBUTION

Grocers' Bills Come Up in Discussion at Meeting

RELIEF PLANS

Threatening weather, uncertainty among the members as to whether or not the city hall had been secured for the purpose, and lack of advance notice all contributed to cut down greatly the attendance at the unemployed meeting in the city hall last night. However, some one hundred members were on hand and very many important matters which were held over for this meeting were thrashed out.

One major point was the statement from Mr. Pollwell that the city had been secured by himself and brother executives for the meeting last night and that all future meetings would be held by the association in the main committee room of that building. Then followed the succession the suggestion that meetings be held in the building of the unemployed be reduplicate of orders given by the General Relief Committee for needed supplies; the matter of assumption of poll tax for single men not work ing for the city; the enforcement of minimum wage laws; the matter of protection of existing current wages on contemplated construction of buildings at the O.S.D., and a resolution from Mr. Baldree that an invitation be extended to all ladies who were thinking of doing their share to aid in relief, to meet at the town office of the city hall and do some badly needed patching of clothing brought in. These were left to be taken up by the chairman, Mr. Chas. Hanna, who will lay the matter before the General Relief Committee which meets in the city hall tonight.

A written letter of resignation from Mr. Nemo, vice-president of the association, was read and accepted when it was explained that the meeting had to elect a special successor. Mr. Baldree declined, however, but he was chosen from several members of the association to be reconsidered and accepted.

Clothing, which the association now have stored, and which was donated by the city council for distribution at the meeting last night, but which owing to lack of other donations they have and which will be given them from time to time. This conclusion was reached when one of the members present at the meeting from methods of distribution, and claim that many people who knew were now getting quantities of clothing and selling them immediately afterward. When asked by the chairman if he could prove it, and wished to go on record as making that statement, he replied in the affirmative. The case and the one wherein a local contractor is alleged to have a man from Trenton, and his son, also from Trenton, working on a job at the south end of the city, are being looked into by the executive.

During the latter part of the meeting the subject of changing the relief plans from grocery bills which do not really need the money to cash relief was introduced and discussed and will be brought up by Chairman Hanna at tonight's meeting. The talk then veered around to new systems of ward organizations. Claiming that it was the only solution they had to the problem of caring for people who would not come directly to the committee and ask for necessities, several members voiced the resolution to the effect that one be appointed from each city ward. This was carried unanimously and will be adopted at their next meeting.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mr. Cornell asked what arrangements were being made for nominations to the coming elections from the association. The chairman's answer was brief and abrupt. "Just now," he said, "we are more concerned with relief."

WORK IS HARD

Majority Trying to Better Position in Life, Others For Recreation

When the new Belleville College-ate and Vocational School was ilt it was planned for the accom-odation of 1000 scholars. This ferred term there is an enrolment over 900—not all city pupils— ut of per cent of them coming om the surrounding rural sections of this part of the district and growing from year to year as the ecessity for the education of the ung people is realized.

In addition to the above num-ers these attending the night hool, during the fall and winter ason, should be borne in mind s a realization of the magnitude work carried on under Principal . MacLaurin's supervision. The ght classes meet twice a week, uesdays and Fridays, at 7.30 ock, the sessions lasting two urs. The night school is divided to two distinct divisions, the egiate with an enrollment of 40 and the technical with 275 on its rolls; a total of 325 in the two hools, day and night, are dispen-ng learning and instruction to m 1250.

Teachers Attend

The collegiate division has three achers, the work of which is con-ned to first year university train-g, that is upper school or matri-culation work, in algebra, geo-etry and trigonometry; English erature and English Composi-n; French Composition and ench Authors. The technical ision has six teachers of the day aff of the Collegiate, but mainly ble school teachers who are working to secure a diploma or certificate course which when at-ined entitles them to teach in ntinuation schools.

The technical school has a night-aff of 15 teachers and janitors. The subjects or work being ught in the various classes with ir enrolment as follows: Auth-atic 8; book-keeping 12; cookery ed hon; applied science 73; dressma-g and sewing (2 classes) 39; Eng-sh 8; draughting 22; machine op 15; motor mechanics 21 class-s; mathematics 18; typewriting 7; show card writing 11; welding and woodworking by the work of the school is under the inspector-ship of the Ontario Department of ducation, the same as the day lasses. No one under the age of ineteen, nor is any collegiate or school pupil, over this age permit-ed to attend these night classes. nerally all are gainfully employed during the day time.

Why the Attendance

Why are these two hundred and twenty-five people taking up these evening courses? Is it to change their present occupations or lines of endeavour? After a visit to the various classes, the general sizing up could be that three-quarters of those in attendance are working to advance themselves in the lines they are at present pursuing; the others are endeavouring to educate themselves that they may advance to a higher paid occupation than that in which they are now em-ployed.

In the English class there are foreigners who are daily employed but anxious to obtain a knowledge of our language, in the shops as well as that in arithmetic are those who had to leave school at an early age and are now striving to make up for deficiencies in these subjects. In the typewriting class are public school teachers, office girls and women and saleslades, who have found typing will be of advantage to them in advancing them in their work, and women em-ployed in household work who are studying to become stenographers and typists. In the shorthand room are business and office girls who are either learning shorthand or having studied it and not having us ed it of late, are brushing up on it; while others are there to advance pupils of the commercial courses. now living at home, who wish to keep up on this work while await-ing positions. Store owners them-selves, sons of merchants clerking in their father's stores, and store clerks make up almost entirely the show-card writing class, add their mite to those for taking up this quite obvious. In the cookery and household science class are those employed in house work, in shop and factory who find this evening work an advantageous way of acquiring knowledge in the culinary arts and home-making. The dressmaking and sewing classes are attended by many women, stenographers, sales-cashiers, saleslades and housekeep-ers, shop keepers and farmers' daughters, those ultimately to be-come dressmakers but in general those attending wish to acquire general knowledge of this personal and family benefit.

One Male Class

Now the strictly male class of the school. The draughting class made up of young men from the various shops and factories of the city, who have an inclination for engineering. In the classes for au-to mechanics and welding is found a diversified classification. In both are young men from all sects of working on farms near the city, including in the latter group are em-ployees, electrician's helpers, mechanic, shipping clerk, painter's helper, boys from the two lock fac-tories, from the cement works and quarries and an embalming to bet-ter their chances for permanent employment. The woodworking class is made up of attendees who just like to handle tools and have a love for working out their own things from or with wood and are receiving to learn how best to do it. Most chaps from the age of five years have this creative ambition, some outgrow it with youth, it vanishes out in others in manhood but with many it clings all their lives; in the woodworking class are found store clerks, C. N. R. em-ployees, a textile designer, a car-penter's helper and a youth who has chosen carpentry as his future trade, and an electrician, then as part only.

To many these night classes are a means of advantageous means of occupying two evenings a week and they faithfully and earnestly pursue their studies or work during the two hours' session. Principal MacLaurin takes a great deal of pride in his work and the pursuing re-sults of the night school and is appreciative of the interest shown by the citizens of Belleville in it.

8 COMMUNISTS FOUND GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Prosecution Moves For Deportation of Alien Members

OUT TWO HOURS

Crown Asks For Confiscation of Property in Canada

(By Jack Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 13— The final act of being and acting as members of an unlawful association, and with being parties to a sedi-tious conspiracy, are sentenced by Mr. Justice Wright in County of York Police Court. And after pass-ing sentencing, the Crown will ask for deportation for those who are not deported, and confiscation of all property of the Communist party of Canada.

Thus "finis" will be written to a tale of international intrigue, of plotting, of undercover work. Thus will the curtain be drawn in the case of a Royal Canadian Mounted Police, a chapter that reads stran-ger than fiction.

"The Communist party of Canada was formed in 1921 as the workers party. Two sections existed, a legal and illegal. They were known as the "A" and "2" parties respec-tively. For some years the party stumbled along as a propagandist organization. Then a change in policy widened its activities. And a change in management widened them still further. The last step took cognizance of these changes. Told In Act

Out in Regina, Sask., Sergeant Jones, detailed by the R.C.M.P., was told to collect evidence against this budding organization, quietly, as members of that famous force do things. Leopold went to work. He joined the Communist party. He became secretary of the Regina branch. Office was known as "Comrade E. W. Eselwain," a Russian Communist. For seven years he held that position "in the shadow." Then he was discovered and expelled. But in that seven years he had built up a mass of evidence, which led to the eventual conviction of the eight leaders, who face sentence today, ending the trial, he told all. He told of the inner councils, the legal and illegal phases of Communism, the object and aims of the organiza-tion.

Then he disappeared. The nativ dress of the R.C.M.P. was not noticed as the trial drew to its final stages this week. The eight men over, Sergeant Leopold will carry his story of today unmasked, without publicity or acclaim.

Innocuous Title

Meanwhile, his erstwhile com-rades in the party will hear Mr. Justice Wright announce the will of the people. The eight men are Tim Buck, Tom Ewen, John Boychuk, Amos T. Hill, Malcolm Bruce, Samuel Scarlett, Matthew Popovitch and Thomas Cacic. A ninth man was discharged Tuesday at the Crown's request, because it was felt the case was non sistent enough against him.

The trial which opened Nov. 2, and will conclude today was a tiresome one: an historical one. For the first time in the history of Ontario, the law has acted collecti-vely and individually against men charged with such offences against the criminal code. And Canada the only country in the world, with one exception, Russia, has definite-ly tried to rid itself of the Com-munist party.

It many other ways was the trial unprecedent. Shortly before the verdict was announced last night, a file of policemen entered the courtroom to prevent any disorder. Their services were not needed, but it was the first time police had ever occupied a similar position.

The charges themselves were unprecedented. The Crown alleged the Communist party had advocated force and violence in over throw ing the government of Canada and the existing local institutions. It further charged the men with having conspired to excite his Ma-jesty's subjects to attempt to pro-cure, by unlawful means, the al-teration of matters in the state, and with having conspired to "de-liberate, continuous, subtle plan or conspiracy, directed and controlled by Moscow, to overturn by force, by violence, by bloodshed all the existing institutions of church and state in Canada." Yesterday the jury was addressed by Hugh John MacDonald, defence counsel: Nor-man Somerville, K.C., prosecutor for the crown, and finally by Mr. Justice Wright.

Decided in Two Hours

One hour and 5 minutes after they had retired to consider the ver-dict, the "twelve good men and true" filed into the jury box and the court room. The proceedings were over quickly. The foreman was asked if the jury had reached its decision. He replied "guilty." He replied to the question on each count. The eight convicted men leaned forward tensely for a mom-ent and then rose. Mr. Justice Wright announced sentence would be imposed this morning, and Mr. Somerville gave notice of motion, that the crown would ask for con-fiscation of the property of the Communist party of Canada. He asked also for deportation of any of the men who can legally be de-ported. The small crowd filed out behind the jury.

WATER LOW LEVEL OSHAWA HARBOR

OSHAWA, Nov. 13—According to a statement made yesterday by B. J. McCormick, superintendent of dredging the water in the Oshawa Har-bor is at the lowest level in its his-tory. Today the depth of the water in the harbor is reported at 13 feet, about four feet below the normal depth. As a result large vessels are experiencing difficulty in entering the harbor. Coal freighters with a normal capacity of 7,000 tons must reduce their cargoes to 1,600 tons to gain entrance.

The gold stock of the United States has risen to 45 per cent of the world supply.

No Blame Attached When Coroner's Jury Gave Verdict

Death of Harry Littles Investigated By The Crown

LIQUOR ODOR

Officer Campbell States That Frets Was in Normal Condition

Death, due to an automobile ac-cident was the verdict of the cor-oner's jury, this sat on the in-quest to investigate the death of Harry Littles. Mr. Littles died Oc-tober 30th in the Belleville Gener-al Hospital from results of injuries received in a car accident on the King's Highway near the corner of Herchimer Ave. and the highway.

The first witness to be called by the coroner, Dr. Ross Ponton, was Mr. Gordon Campbell, O.P.P. The officer stated that he arrived at the scene of the accident about 6.15 p.m. on the evening of October 29 and found that the deceased had been taken to the Belleville Gener-al Hospital. A number of pho-tographs were produced by the Crown and the officer identified them as scenes of the accident. They were taken by Mr. R. Chard of this city.

The officer explained the directions to the Crown and to Harry. "The car was facing west and was on the right hand side of the road just what is known locally as Herchimer Ave. lane," said Offi-cer Campbell. He then pointed out the position of the other car, which was driven by Mr. Ross Frets of Napanee. The Frets' car was 54 feet west of the Littles' car and was driven by Harry Littles, and on an angle to the ditch. Constable Campbell also explained to the Crown and the jury the position of the cars as near as he could by the skid marks, on the road, dur-ing and after the accident. He had taken measurements and found that the Littles' car had travelled 60 feet after the cars collided and that the Frets' car had gone 124 feet.

Smell Liquor

Officer Campbell stated that when he arrived upon the scene of the accident Mr. Ross Frets, driver of the Marquette car, was still there and he had questioned him and found that he was in a normal con-dition although he did smell liquor on his breath. When asked by the crown what he thought it was he said he thought it was beer.

Clarence LaRue, who accompan-ied Littles on the last trip, stated that they, Littles and he, were pro-ceeding west on the highway just prior to the accident and as they approached the lane, he, LaRue, looked back and saw a car coming from behind but as it was over 100 yards away he thought that there was plenty of time to make the turn. He did not know whether or not Littles saw any sign that he was about to make a left-hand turn. He stated that Littles gave his lights turned on and was tra-velling at a slow rate of speed. When asked by the Crown whether there was a mirror in the car or not he could not say.

LaRue then showed the Crown and the jury how Littles made the turn and indicated on plan that they had slowed across the road instead of pulling over to the centre and then going to the intersection and making his left-hand turn. Be-fore identified the photographs that were shown and stated that he thought that the Frets' car was go-ing about 45 miles an hour. He judged this speed by the time it took for the car to cover the dis-tance that he last saw it to the time of the collision. He could give no more evidence as he was rendered unconscious when the two cars collided. Previous to the col-lision he stated that he had heard no horn or signal from the car in the rear.

Took Man to Hospital

Mabel McDonald was then called and she stated that she was driv-ing west on the highway and arri-ved at the scene of the accident just after it happened. Harry Lit-tles was lying on the road and some men placed him in her car, while she drove the young man to the Belleville General Hospital.

This was all the evidence that was heard and the coroner's jury adjourned for a few minutes and came in with the verdict:

"We, the jury, find that Harry Littles came to his death at the Belleville General Hospital on Fri-day evening, October 30th, as the result of injuries sustained in a car accident which occurred on High-way No. 2 in the township of Thur-low."

GOV'T TO PAY MORE ATTENTION TO PREVENTION

ORILLIA, Ont., Nov. 13—(By the Canadian Press)— Early treatment was necessary if the ravages of tuber-culosis are to be checked, said Hon. Dr. J. H. Robb, Ontario Minister of Health, at the opening yesterday of a new unit for boys and a new nurses' home at the On-tario Hospital here. During the past year the recently established mass-tuberculin clinics attached to Ontario Hospitals had dealt with 2,500 cases in various parts of the province, he said.

The people of Ontario spend a total of $13,000,000 yearly in the treatment of disease, but only about $3,000,000 in measures of preven-tion, he said. "The policy of the Ontario Government will be in fu-ture to devote every increasing at-tention to the prevention of disor-ders, both physical and mental."

MOTORCYCLE CLUB FORMED

Aims and Objects of Local Organization Are Drawn Up

A group of local motorcyclists met yesterday at a private resi-dence, and organized the Quinte Motor Cycle Club.

The following officers were cho-sen: President, G. J. Davies; 1st. Vice President, C. H. Chalmers; 2nd. Vice President, A. A. Doub-lett; Secretary Treasurer, R. R. Price. The following aims and objects were approved and passed.

1. To bind together, and foster a spirit of unity, comradeship, and good sportsmanship among its members.

2. To encourage the observance of law and order amongst the members, particularly in those sec-tions in the observance of which will assist in removing public preju-dice against motorcyclists.

3. To inculcate, and encourage the spirit of courtesy to all other road users.

4. To promote legitimate sport-ing events, such as club runs, reli-bility trials, hill climbs, scrambles and races, and to solicit the co-op-eration of the general public in said sports.

5. To assist members who may be met with accidents, or ex-perienced trouble with their mach-ines.

6. To operate entirely independ-ently of manufacturers, dealers, or others who might influence the operation of the club.

Membership is open to all active motor cyclists of good character and reputation, who agree with the principles of the club and wish to take part in the club's activities. Applications for mem-bership should be addressed to the Secretary, and vouched for by some member of the club.

The club will be run on lines similar to that of English lines and the public will be welcome at any of the club's events.

It is not planned, however, to stage any events this fall, as the members will devote their time to securing new members.

STIRLING MEN ORGANIZE CLUB

Nominating Committee Will Bring in Report

STIRLING, Nov. 13.—(Special)—A gathering of twenty-five men representing the men of Stirling met in St. Paul's church on Thursday evening, Nov. 12th 1931, for a sup-per for which St. Paul's W.M.S. catered.

Rev. E. W. Rowland presided and after the inner man was satis-fied he made a few preliminary re-marks, said the idea was to get a little bit nearer to the men of Stir-ling he called upon Mr. A. E. Dobbie, editor of the News Argus, who spoke briefly, said this was not a church organization but something in which the men of Stirling might get acquainted with one another. Mr. Charles Allan rendered a beau-tiful piano solo. Dr. Wait also spoke and stated the object was child wel-fare against malnutrition and Kennedy Stapley then favored the audience with a duet. Community singing fol-lowed led by Rev. E. W. Rowland. Mr. J. O. Herity of Belleville spoke on Friendship and was glad that a movement was afoot to form a Friendship Club. Then the clergy-men present spoke. Father Farrell, Reverend Byers and Jeblin, Mr. W. J. Anderson. Following this the fol-lowing nominating committee was appointed—R. W. Melkinthorp, con-vener; Messrs. O'Donnell, Murdoff W. J. Whitby, N. Heath, Dr. Wai-lace, H. Bell, A. B. Reinhart and the following program committee— Messrs. W. J. Whitby, W. J. An-derson, Dr. Wait, Jerry Craven, and Rev. E. W. Rowland. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Whitby and "God Save the King" brought the meeting to a close.

Evidence that man has reached a well developed stage of mining activity when mistakes tend the earth has been unearthed in South Africa.

TRANSLATING THE BIBLE

A new translation of the Bible modernizing the phraseology and correcting some places where modern scholarship has declared wrong interpretation in the King James version, has been published.

The scholars who are back of this version have had a difficult task to perform, how perfectly done is yet to be revealed. Time will tell the story how this new version wins or fails to win the public.

The supremacy of the King James version of the Bible is admitted and he is a bold man who will dare to intrude his modernisms upon the poetic beauty of the lines of the authors and churchmen of the day of King James. If ever a translation was inspired it is the King James version, for it contains the riches of all the ages in religious and social thought in a form fitted for the food of the souls of men. It has grasped the spirit of the original Hebrew and interpreted it in English rhythmical prose which has passed into the currency of the language. If there is one steadying force in English to keep the well of English undefiled, it is the Bible with its supreme command of good old Anglo-Saxon words.

The Bible is a marvel from the fact of so many translators working upon it and yet leaving an impression of unity throughout from the opening word of Genesis until the last word of Revelation. That is one of the marvels of the literature of the world.

To surpass the English Bible as it is known is undoubtedly impossible. Never again will a group of such great scholars meet in one common cause to render into the vernacular of English the words of Holy Writ. These men lived in the spacious days of Queen Elizabeth and King James when the finest flower of English was produced and written. (that was the age of Shakespeare and Milton, peaks of English expression). No one will contend that the Victorians or the present day Georgians know their English as perfectly as the men of the days about the opening of the seventeenth century.

Another great obstacle to new translators is the feeling that they must make changes. There is little need except in a few places. To translate even these into language common with that of the King James' version is impossible for these modernes would have to be moved backwards to do that, and no one to be fair to himself and his great task can be a mere imitator.

The people, though they may be charged with neglecting to read their Bibles, will not easily take even a new version. And this attitude towards the new is not because the ancient version is the only version used in the churches, because it is not, as some preachers do use other versions, but because the people realize the noble beauty of the expression of the old Bible, so peculiar that no book, even from the point of expression, can approach the Bible at all closely.

THOSE FLOWER STORIES

Flowers, fruits and plants, have been attracting unusual attention during the past two or three weeks. The strange thing is that those who attend the plays, the unaccustomed lateness of floral and plant growth do so with the thought in the rear of their minds that these may be a proof that the coming winter is to be a brief one of moderate temperature.

Man is ever looking forward—he has warm weather as the ideal. This ideal would eliminate a large share of the frigidity of winter, and lend a floridan aspect to the wind-blancmange.

Canadians know better than to expect some such thing—they know that when winter comes there will be snow and cold.

Still they have the safety valve of hope in their makeup—a warmer winter is an ideal to which they all look, or they take a long forward view over to springtime.

This hoping does not do any harm—it is a mental exercise, and it helps to bear the chills and the other ills of winter. It satisfies the longing of man for something different, which is never to be satisfied.

HARD ON THE FRAUD

Is the existence in the future of those who are minded to put something over on others to be made so dangerous that they will have no chance to deceive? It looks a little like that just now. It is stated that it will be possible to identify heirs by photographing the sinuses for a Washington surgeon states that these cavities in the bones of the face are so distinctively formed as to provide an excellent means of identification. No two sinuses are exactly alike, even in persons closely related. It may be used to supplement the finger-print system among police.

Insurance companies are looking into the discovery in the opportunities for making identification more easy.

SO MANY DOORS
By Aline Michaelis

So many doors before me wait
As in life's hall I stand,
Uncertain, yet importunate,
With eager, lifted hand.
Shut doors that lead to unknown rooms,
To chambers strange and new;
In some each day the sunlight blooms,
The winds of heaven sweep through.
And some are dark and dank and cold;
The bravest, entering there,
Would feel youth wither, growing old
And blighted by despair.

So many doors, how can I know
Which latch my hand must raise?
I watch the flying hours go,
I count the drifting days
Until at last understand
And make my choice aright;
Who lifts each latch with faith's firm hand
Will find all chambers bright.

For, lo! a miracle is wrought,
And only beauty flows
To greet him who, in trusting thought,
Past any threshold goes!

LET'S NOT FORGET that this beautiful fall weather, while retaining the spirit of summer, is not retarding the approach of winter in many ways. Let's get the Christmas spirit early, do our Christmas shopping early and arrange to take a full mead of blessing out of the promise: "Tis more blessed to give than receive."

WHAT A WONDERFUL THING the radio is. Wednesday we listened to a broadcast from Albert Hall, London, England, where the King and Queen and Prince of Wales attended an Armistice Day commemoration. The music of the Guards Band, fervent singing of "God Save the King," the community singing and the noise of the crowd, brought Albert Hall, London, very near to radio listeners in Belleville. Then in the evening there were speeches on disarmament by Sir Robert Borden, Sir Arthur Currie and Premier Bennet from Ottawa. As a friend of mine said if he had to choose between a motor car and a radio, he would cling to the radio which contains so much entertainment and education—how the world ever got along without it so long is a mystery to him.

THEATRE MANNERS in Toronto are no better, and perhaps worse, than in smaller places, including Belleville. Mail and Empire had an editorial recently about a dinner party which arrived late at the Royal Aleyandria theatre and were escorted to their seats while the play was in progress, making more noise than seemed necessary. In the first place it seems to us that management was negligent in permitting the late comers to take their seats while the curtain was up. Of course in Belleville have been separated from the legitimate theatre so long that we are only acquainted with movie manners, and how. The worst feature of the Belleville audience are the persons who persist in talking while the play is on. They are a pest. But the guy who blows his nose like a bugle is the most pathetic part of the piece takes the molasses mounted moustache cup for abysmal asininity.

MOST PRESSING PROBLEM

The most striking passages in Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's post-election utterances have to do with the international aspect of the situation in which all the great nations of the world are involved—the United States as well as suffering Europe. The British Premier warns the other nations that no time is to be lost. The maladministration of the world's supply and the international burden of war debts and preparations still oppress civilization. The Hoover moratorium will expire in a few months, and what is to happen thereafter? Confronted with its own inability to pay reparations, Germany is apparently on the verge of collapse. Can she and France get together and initiate some form of settlement? All this trouble would have been avoided had the United States in 1922 accepted Lord Balfour's offer of an all-round cancellation of war debts. Not even yet does the United States Government appear willing to accept any appreciable part of this proposal, though in doing so it would forgo only half the debts the United Kingdom would be cancelling. We believe that well-informed opinion in the American public is ready to go far in the desired direction. The trouble is that Congress and the politicians stand in the way. Rising pressure. This greatest of all world problems must be faced more forthwith and settled without delay. Only then will there be the sufficient incipient trade recovery would go forward with help and bounds. —Mail and Empire.

WEATHER GUESSERS

The cold winter, the medium winter and the mild winter prediction are with us again. They are still using the standard tricks of the trade. Bear signs, geese are going in for heavy coats, so you can depend on it, they say. Most is just around the corner is going to be a jimdandy. Those squirrels and chipmunks aren't storing away so many nuts this autumn, so you may not have your first heavy flannels after all. Everybody knows an amateur weather prognosticator who has a following of admirers by reason of his readiness of signs and portents as infallible. It is significant, then, that when there is a vacancy in the official meteorological department, it never is an amateur who fills the job. The almost-pure weather predictor will forecast for a season or a year. The expert who has grown gray in the intricacies of the department, who has at his hand the most sensitive instrument devised by man, hesitates to predict for more than a day or two ahead. Studies have been made in all parts of the world with the idea of learning how to forecast the next season's weather, but we have it on the word of Dr. W. J. Humphreys, of the United States meteorological department, that the results of these studies are not generally accepted because nearly all showed negative results. "We must be right three-fourths of the time in any long-range forecasting system that justifies itself and there isn't any such system," say the weather doctor. Meteorological experts take into consideration the amount of thickness f fur on animals, the abundance of fur on animals or the thick of honey the bees have stored. They point out that the quality of the fur depends on the animal's physical condition, that husks do not correspond to much in drought year and that bees sometimes get annoyed if you go poking around their hives to make an investigation of stored honey. The meteorological expert and the farmer are unanimous in declaring that the law of averages is the leading factor for weather prognosticators to lean upon.—Toronto Spectator.

"THE WAR IS OVER"

In inviting Germans and Austrian war veterans residing in Canada to come to a dinner on the eve of Armistice Day, Commander Ellis of James J. Barry Post of the American Legion has committed a ridiculous and stupid act. In the words of Sir Arthur Currie, other members of the Legion have undertaken to prove that "the war is over." Former enemies have frequently on many occasions at private and public functions, accepted the proposal for entertaining exsoldiers of the German Reserve at a Legion dinner is unique. It exts beyond public function, the establishment of a general custom which would contribute materially to the advancement of world friendship.—Philadelphia Ledger.

HORSEHEATH IN NOVEMBER

Under these gray skies who goes riding here?
Slowly the leaves drift down.
Him goes the castle's flame, breath ruddy brown:
So goes the glory of the dying year.

To earth again. The valley's furrowed high
A-new the plowshares rive.
Him goes the sigh the white soils a ghost team drive.
The dream that's stumbling the plowman guides.

Under these low grey skies who lingers here?
Man, his last wages taken,
Lies down in his dark house and will not waken,
And even the whispering is stark

LETTERS

It makes you feel more popular to get letters than what it does to write them. Even if you any get advertisements at least you have the satisfaction of seeing your name on the envelope and knowing somebody thinks of you even if they wasent thinking of you.

Some people are so proud they won't write to you unless you write to them first, being why their mail is mostly bills.

The smallest correspondents is when 2 people don't say nothing to each other at the same time.

The most exciting letter I've got is a telegram, especially if any of the naybors happen to be looking when the messenger boy hands it to you after you admit your name is on it.

The correct way to receive a telegram is with a unministered expression as if there wasent any hurry about opening it no matter how much of a hurry there might of been about sending it.

Its easier to reply to a letter than what it is to write one first, on account of most letters being full of questions and a postcript saying how dont forget to answer all my questions, thus giving you a good start, but if you write first you half to think of a lot of questions yourself to fill up the space. This is known as not knowing what to say.

A bad combination to get in a letter in such fearse handwriting you almost get a head ake finding out its not worth reeding.

The favorite postcard at brekfast is Any mail for me? The least favorite answer is No.

No matter how intristing of a letter you write, its wasted if you dont put a address on the envelope. This gives no matter how wonderful we are we cant get along very good without help.

Ontario Shore Gas Company Develops Distribution Plan

Record of Company in Whitby, Oshawa, Bowmanville

The following editorial from The Oshawa Daily Times of Thursday, October 29 is reported in view of the rects on gas franchise to be taken by Toronto on Monday, November 23rd, 1931.

Living up to Agreements

The statement made by Gordon D. Conant the other night regarding the amount of money which has been spent by Oshawa, Whitby and Bowmanville by the Ontario Shore Gas Company, shows that the company has more than justified the predictions of those who supported the bylaws to sell the Ontario gas system to its principals. In the agreement, it was laid down that the company must spend, within twelve months from the date of the completion of the deal, a sum of $100,000 in the improvement and extensions of the Oshawa gas system. How well it has lived up to this agreement is shown in Mr. Conant's statement.

"In less than six months from the date of completing the agreements the company has spent, on the Oshawa gas distribution system the tremendous item running east and west, and on the distribution system in Whitby and Bowmanville, a sum of $256,500. This includes the work done between September 20, 1931, and nearly $50,000 more has been done since then." Of that amount, over $85,000 have been expended in wages to labor. In addition to this, a further $19,000 have been expended for the maintenance and operation of the gas plant, $5,220 of this having gone into wages. In all, over 35 miles of gas mains and transmission lines have been laid and connected up with the Oshawa plant.

"This is a remarkable record. It shows the thorough manner in which this utility proposes to develop the territory in which it operates, and more than justifies all that was said regarding the bylaw campaign last March. No other private corporation or company in the city has given anything like the same number of employments to laboring men this summer as it has done, and this contribution to the welfare of the city and district ought to be appreciated.

"The electors of East Whitby, on Friday, are to vote on a bylaw granting a franchise in that township. There should be no doubt as the result. An organization of this kind is worth having linked up to any community, and if the electors of East Whitby are alive to their own interests, they will make no mistake in carrying the bylaw. So far, the Ontario Shore Gas Company has made an agreement it made with the city of Oshawa. If that coke plant would only come along soon, it would be the most popular realization in the city."

OUTLAWS OF EDEN

by Peter B. Kyne

In a minute Lorry pulled herself together. "Cry-baby! I hate cry-babies. Be grown up and rebel." Slowly. "Give me my gun, Mr. Brainerd"—to the doctor—and handed the weapon to the editor—then I'll promise you to kill anybody except in self-defense."

His reluctance to do the thing that started resolutely up the street. At the scene of the oil-and-feather parade, Dr. Donaldson, assisted by his lone colleague in Valley Centre and dragging Rube Tenney clear of the fallen; standing aside, swaying on his feet, naked to the waist, filthy with road oil, disheveled and bloody and swollen of face, Rube Tichenor stood looking on. Swiftly Lorry ran to him; dirty, oily, and sorry as he was, she took him in her arms and kissed him—and Joe Brainerd saw that she, assisted by other, bone as she asked:

"Are you badly hurt, darling?"

"I think I could do with a week in bed," he said, and laughed. She punched and kicked apart. Side bed back burned—broken ribs, I think." He fingered his nose. "Seems O.K. but the teeth in my left lower jaw feel loose. Who's did all the shooting?"

"Good shot, sweetheart." Who'd shoot for you if I wouldn't?"

"Lorry—darling," he murmured, "but too low. Did you get Rube Tichenor?"

"I tried and they wouldn't let me. But I smashed three bottles on his head, dearest. He organized the ruckus at Babson's bidding, but if he lives after the two rags I gave him with the barrel he'll think twice before laying another job.

Rube Tichenor smiled a terrible smile. "We backfired on the little fellow, didn't we Lorry?" He placed an oily finger on her adorable nose and pressed it gently upward. "You will do. You're a man's woman, going over to the curb now and all that. Doctor, I'll bet down to-day takes me from behind shoot him—and shoot high and for the middle this time. I'm all out of patience. Look after old Rube."

Rube needed looking after, indeed. His nose unceasing and a three-inch slit in the top of his ingenious head told the story. Also he had received his share of punches and kicks before Lorry Kershaw's bullets had stopped his assault on top of him. The two doctors carried him over to the little greasy strip that ran parallel with the side of the said big man thereon, then turned to look after Lorry's victims As they sat up, Joe Brainerd photographed them. When that was done he wrote the names of the fallen on a fragment of copy paper and, in his mind, began arranging the lead for this, his biggest news story.

"Get a truck out of that garage, Joe," Doc Donaldson ordered, "and we'll haul our trade over onto the grass under the shade trees in the Pima. I've used worse dressing-stations. Never mind about them just got it through the fingers and some of the said big men buried. I only wing-tipped them' says she as the little vixen."

"You've got to grant her the great gift of charity, Doc. And tremendous forbearance."

"Rats. She was saving them for the hangman. Well, her blind rage is beginning to take an interest in things."

Mr. Tenney's little round baleful eyes had indeed commenced to flicker. Lorry bent over him and raised his burly head to her shoulder. "How about you, old-timer?" she crooned.

"Shot all to pieces but no fatality," Mr. Tenney murmured slowly. "Where was you born, when the shootin' started? I figured you to guard my rear."

"I guarded it, never fear, Rube. I did all the shooting."

"I" Mr. Tenney murmured. "Sorry. Spoke out o' my turn, I reckon. I'll be up in a minute or two make a hand yet."

A small car came running down the boulevard as if pursued by a demon. "There's some fellers over to the office of the Register smashin' things up," he screeched.

Lorry dropped Rube Tenney as if his big body was scorching her and ran for the office of the Register a block away.

As she came panting to the front door she saw a dozen men inside with axes. They had smashed the editorial desk and the counter in the business office, and the type for the next issue of the Register. upset the floor and were smashing the linotype when the girl's voice reached them above the clang of axes on metal.

"Put 'em up!"

They whirled, facing her, and before the menace of her gun their hands went skyward. Thus she held them until Brainerd arrived with his camera.

"Step on Brother Brainerd," she commanded. "Steady boys. Not a move or anybody, I'll put a bullet through the hand of the man that spoils this picture. This is a time exposure, I believe, because the inside light isn't so good."

Joe Brainerd took three photographs of the vandals in his wrecked print shop and turned to the girl. "Where do we go from here? she demanded of Hannibal.

"To Bill Rooney's calaboose. At right, now, Lorry, one at a time, in single file and single way to the lockup."

They wended it. Bill Rooney was in his little jail office, thinking things over and gazing dolorously at a hole in a forty-dollar hat, when men began filing silently in on him. "What's this?" he exclaimed.

Lorry's gun muzzle rose from the doorway. "Take his gun, Mr. Brainerd. Take his keys too. No nonsense, Mr. Rooney, or you'll have to my music again."

Brainerd secured the deputy sheriff's gun and keys unlocked the two cells and closed them again on the wreckers of the Register filed disconsolately in. Then Lorry ordered Mr. Rooney to go home to his family, and Joe Brainerd locked the jail.

"The remainder of this party is yours, Mr. Brainerd," Lorry then announced. "You may boys to look after now."

"Thanks a lot, Miss Kershaw."

"Not at all. No trouble to shoot coots, she uttered merrily. "If I were you I'd see that old idiot, Anson Towle, and swear out warrants enough for these twelve lunatics to keep them in jail till Christmas. I'd scare Towle if I were you. Threaten him with a mysterious fate so he'll make their hail the limit."

"Babson will bail them out, of course."

"I suppose so, but he'll not like it. The action will tie him to his gang."

She left him and walked down to where her car was parked in front of Babson's bank. Darby had, in the interim, arrived on the scene of the riot with Tichenor's car, and when the latter had purchased a new shirt and a pair of overalls in a local store the entire Eden Valley contingent, leaving word for Dr. Donaldson to follow at his convenience, departed for home without the formality of making temporary repairs. Which was quite in accord with the traditions of bold, hard-riding, hard-shooting cowboys had always crawled home to their await death or the doctor, and in this circumstance was an inability of the species to its environment had been completed!

INSTALMENT XXII

The succeeding week Nate Tichenor spent in hospital at Gold Run, while Dr. Donaldson had ordered him for observation as to possible internal injuries. When at last Nate came to the Circle K ranch again Lorry saw that, outwardly at least, he appeared to be normal.

"Doc thought my backbone had been cramped out of alignment," he announced, as he kissed her, "but it's only a couple of ribs sprung loose from my spine. Doc warned me not to move around, but I could not stay away. Outlaw that I am I couldn't neglect you for another week.

"I wasn't reared to be a clinging vine; I'm accustomed to man's work, and if you're worth having, Mr. Tichenor, you're worth fighting for. I enjoyed it."

"I'm almost afraid to marry you now," he teased. "You'd be a tough wife to handle in a family row. Have you been arrested yet?"

"No dear. Joe Brainerd appears to have smoothed over the aftermath of that ruckus. He traded with Babson. Babson loaned him the new plant of the Foriorn Valley Citizen and then had a talk with the men we jailed. Babson proposed an assessment to pay for the damages to Brainerds plant, and Joe admitted himself at the preliminary hearing of the case. So Anson Towle waited five minutes for Joe and his counsel to appear and then turned the men loose for lack of evidence. The men I winged are all going to get well, although they'll all be on crutches for a month or two; I think I'm very glad to let the matter drop. We've all had enough undesirable advertising throughout the state."

"As for undesirable advertising, you and I haven't had any of it. We're heroes."

"Oh, do tell me, Nate. I've been afraid to read the papers."

"When a mob sacks a newspaper plant the entire fourth estate regards the act as a direct blow at the freedom of the press, and instantly the fight is no longer a private one. The Gold Run Nugget has burned Foriorn Valley to a crisp and so has all the other county newspapers. The Foriorn Valley Citizen have been called thugs, murderers, bad characters, rioters, bullies, and cowards. I am adversely criticized as a dangerous meaning citizen and a distinguished ex-soldier of whom the country is proud. I sought to do Foriorn Valley a signal service when you nobbled and brutally beaten and bruised in return. All of the papers have come out upon the senseless brutality of violating a girl. They have nobbled the man the sins of his forebears—as they have done as much for you. In fact they've made a martyr of you. You are commended for your great charity in 'extending' my assailants instead of killing them. You have a nickname. You're Wing-Tip Lorry Kershaw now."

"Your action in shooting Bill Rooney's high hat off and making him run for cover has the county in convulsions of mirth. The sheriff has dismissed Rooney as the Valley County Deputy, and the Gold Run Nugget has suggested you as his successor. I don't accept the appointment. Babson has been lambasted and humiliated and scolded as the real instigator of the disgrace and finished and has fallen completely in the public estimation. While Henry Dunsmuir is presently

FINANCIAL NEWS

FIRMER TONE AT MIDDAY

Sell Rails to Buy Copper is Action of Market

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 13.—The stock market showed unexpected firmness today between such divergent movements as selling of the rails and buying of the copper.

The market had an interway of distinct heaviness for a time during the morning, but developed a firmer tone after mid-day. Most of the so-called pivotal issues moved narrowly.

New York Central dropped more than two points to a new low before what appeared to be short covering gave it a moderate rebound. Santa Fe and New Haven lost about as much, and Union Pacific more than 4. In the coppers, such issues as Anaconda, Kennecott and Cerro De Pasco moved within a point or so. Alaska Juneau was again firm. Moderate gains were shown by U. S. Steel, American Telephone, and North American were recovered after mid-day. Trading was sluggish.

Selling of the rails apparently reflected waiting tenor of any general wage reduction in the near future. Although certain of the eastern executives met with brotherhood chiefs in a private session here today, it was apparently merely for an exchange of views.

Buying of the copper presumably reflected the decision of the representatives of the British Government to remain in New York in hope of reaching some form of production curtailment. It is now expected that they may stay over Tuesday, rather than tomorrow as they had planned. The fact that the Bureau of Mines statistics has failed to make public as yet the figures on production and stocks on hand for October is taken interpreted in some quarters as a further evidence of recent dissension in the industry.

The money market was easy, with bankers acceptance rates again shaded ¼ of one per cent. Commercial Paper was quoted 3¾ to 4 per cent., against 4 per cent. flat yesterday. Time loans were steady, together with a further decrease of $26,000,000 in currency in circulation, as shown in the weekly federal reserve statement, unveiled further evidence of the recent market strengthening of the general financial structure.

COMMUNISTS

in addition, all except Bruce will be recommended for deportation at the expiration of their imprisonment. And the crown will seize all property owned by the Communist party of Canada.

Turn Over Evidence

The Attorney General of Ontario will turn over to the Attorneys General of all other Canadian Provinces the evidence collected during ten years' investigation of the ramifications of the party for their use.

Before imposing sentence, Mr. Justice Wright addressed the prisoners. In stern tones he condemned their action in seeking the overthrow of the government and existing social systems by force and violence. Any offence against the State, he declared, was an exceedingly serious one. The crime of which these men had been convicted was one which struck at the very foundations of society in this country. Some of them, he said with sad heart in Canada only a few years and they were "trying to overthrow the institutions, the sacredness of any conscientious conviction they might have; they could not respect and violate." Any such offence must be severely punished and he imposed upon them with a view to its effect on others, he declared, the severest sentences.

Seize all Property

Hartley Dewart, Somerville, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, then moved for confiscation of the party's property and the court agreed. The party headquarters in Toronto and the Crown had already seized considerable documentary and other evidence for use in the trial, which concluded today. Mr. Somerville then rose and announced that material remaining at the headquarters, and which will now revert to the Crown.

Mr. Justice Lerdshy had declared the sentences would be given at 11 o'clock this morning. At that hour, however, all counsel was being occupied in another case and it was 12.20 p.m. before the prisoners took their place in the dock.

On behalf of the accused, Hugh John MacDonald, Toronto barrister, addressed His Lordship. The prisoners, he declared, were all conscientious working men, who had become involved in an offence the seriousness of which they did not realize. They had received a fair trial at the hands of the court, and he asked that the same consideration be given them.

Tim Buck was the only one of accused to speak. He declared his belief, that he personally had acted in the working class of the country, that he had worked for the party in the belief that he was the right party, and that he would take whatever sentence was imposed "in the same way as I have tried to do my work."

maniacal attack upon his children. Hours passed before he recovered his senses and then he found his five houses to tell them what he had done.

The mother collapsed when told of the tragedy.

Greenshields, it is said, was in a motor accident near Trenton last summer in which he received severe head injuries. For months he had been out of employment. He moved his family from Scotland two years ago, settling first in Trenton. Later he rented on a farm in Seymour Township. Three years ago the family moved to Campbellford.

Greenshields was arrested by police.

Late this afternoon it was not known whether the older boy would survive.

It is said that after taking the lodine, Greenshields went to the room and told his landlady, Mrs. Rutherford, where the family lived and what had happened. She investigated and at once got in touch with the police, gave the alarm and called Mrs. Greenshields, the mother of the children, who lived home. Mrs. Greenshields was working in the shoe factory at the time. The alarm was given to the local and provincial police.

Campbellford, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP).—Returning to her home at noon after working all night, Mrs. Hugh Greenshields of this town, found her 4-year-old son Billy, beaten to death and her eight year old boy Walter, with injuries which may be fatal. The club with which the children were attacked was found in the room.

Mrs. Greenshields found her husband Hugh, aged 42, in the kitchen in a dazed condition. He had attempted suicide by drinking iodine. She works at Greenshields was run over by a truck. He has been arrested by the police.

Provincial Constable McIlvein of Hastings, hurried to the scene, and Inspector Lousbend, District Headquarters left this afternoon to investigate the murder.

MANY WORKING

There are twenty-two men at work on the auxiliary water main excavation, thirty men on Johnston Street sewer, eleven men on the quarry, four men raking up leaves, and one street sweeper, a total of seventy-three, on relief operations. Frank street roadway operation is now a relief job but is city undertaking, although one hundred men including teamsters are on the city payroll.

Yesterday Mr. F. Rayfield to get the complement to go to work had to call 140 names. Unless men to be called qualify before calling that they are ill or unable to come, they are passed over when they do not appear on call and lose their standing until the quarry calls them back to their's again. A man if ill when called and if he fails previously to notify the office, is given another opportunity when the next roll is called.

On Monday morning thirty-five will register, the present twenty-two on the watermain.

METEOR SHOWER ON MONDAY NEXT

For the past one thousand years, on an average of three times each century, there has appeared some beautiful meteors have transformed the black of night into a fearsome and wonderful day in many countries all over the world. In 1902, in Russia, their visitation was looked upon as the end of the world, and in many countries inhabitants have slaughtered their stock, burned their homes and retired to the hills to pray.

Belleville citizens, however, have nothing to fear. Leonids, as they are scientifically called, are a harmless exhibition of one of Nature's wonders, which have been occurring since time immemorial, and will continue to do so until the end of time.

What their source is no one seems to know, but their time of appearance is generally forecast by eminent scientists, chief among them being Dr. Willard J. Fisher, who states that local residents may see them for some time after Monday, Nov. 16.

YOUNG PEOPLE BANQUETTED

Large Attendance at Cannifton Church Function

One of the most outstanding events in the activities of the Young Peoples' Society of the Cannifton United Church, was carried out in the form of a banquet, on Tuesday evening, Nov. 10th, held for the special purpose of promoting and intensifying a larger interest in the young peoples' work of the church. The response to that appeal was most gratifying, being demonstrated by the unusual interest taken and the splendid cooperation by all concerned.

At 7 p.m. the large gathering numbering about 300, was conducted to the Sunday School room, which was beautifully decorated throughout with the league colors of red and white. The six long tables were laden with delicious things to eat, and daintily decorated with sprays of red berries and evergreens. Red and white candles were lighted and placed on the mats of the Epworth League cross design. So large was the attendance that additional arrangements had to be made to accommodate those present. After a most sumptuous supper had been enjoyed, the pastor Rev. W. R. Derrick, in a few words of introduction explained the purpose of the banquet and welcomed the guest speaker, a former pastor, Rev. R. A. Kemp now of Haverlock. Mr. Don Williams of Cannifton led in the community singing in which bright and happy gospel songs were heartily sung by all. This was followed with prayer by the pastor. Mr. Chas. Mills, president of the Cannifton Young Peoples' Society then presented the programme which was duly responded—O Canada" was sung by the audience and the Union Jack and Ensign were reverently given and responded to by all present.

To The King, by the toastmaster Mr. Chas. Mills and responded to by all singing the National Anthem.

To the Church: Mr. Frank Wagner, Vice President of Bethany Y.P.S., response by Mr. Ed. Trevorton, Vice President of the Bethany Missionary Department.

To the Young People: Miss Lucille Jones of Carmel, Y.P.S., response by Miss Hazel Duncan, of Carmel Y.P.S.

The programme was then continued by members of the four Young Peoples' Societies represented as follows:

Reading: Mr. Miles Benedict, a Temperance reading.

Piano Duet: by Misses Mildred and Shirley Phillips of Bethany.

Solo: "The Holy City", by Mr. John McArdle of Carmel Y.P.S.

Reading: "Whose Afraid?" Miss Muriel Vermilyea of Stone church Y.P.S.

Encore number: "It takes a heap of living to make a home."

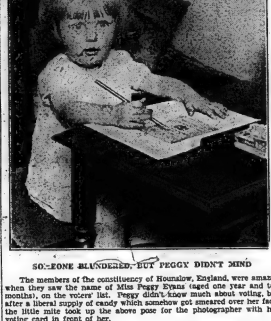
Instrumental by Mr. Ted Watts of Cannifton.

Duett: Mrs. Geo. Sills and Miss Helena Bradshaw of Bethany Y.P.S.

Solo: by Miss Madaleni Lloyd of Stone Church Y.P.S.

Instrumental Duett: by Miss Fern Patterson and Miss Iva Horton of Carmel Y.P.S.

Reading: by Miss Grace Mills.



All of the numbers were of the highest character and given most effectively forming a fitting combination for the occasion as spoken by the Rev. Mr. Kemp, who touched on a very practical way upon many vital factors related to the life, character and aspirations of our young people today. This memorable evening was brought to a close by tendering a hearty vote of thanks for their presence and contribution to the success of the banquet and concluded by singing the young people's song "The Song of Christians Young and Strong," and the benediction.

BENSON'S POMMANE WINS HANDICAP

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 13.—(AP)— Jockey Gordon Richards rode at seven to one, today won the Liverpool autumn cup handicap over a mile, two furlongs, and 170 yards by three quarters of a length from M. J. Whitcouk's hot bun. Sir Abe Bailey's Blindsarna was third three lengths back.

Pommane by Pommern from My Dome won approximately $6,500 by his victory.

SO—ONE BLUNDERED—BUT PEGGY DIDN'T MIND

The members of the constituency of Hounslow, England, were amazed when they saw the name of Miss Peggy Eyans (aged one year and ten months), on the voters' list. Peggy didn't mind—but the little mite took up the above pose for the photographer with her voting card in front of her.

W. C. T. U. ACTIVITIES

A parlor meeting of the Belleville Auxiliary of the W.C.T.U. under the direction of the group of Assistants—Emilie and Lent, was held at Mrs. Scantlebury's home and was well attended, notwithstanding the rain. Mrs. Denton presided and opened the service with the singing of two stirring hymns, "Rescue the Perishing" and "Onward, Christian Soldiers," followed by a Scripture lesson read by Mrs. Fisher and prayer by the president, Mrs. Farnsworth.

The guest speaker was Miss Duff, whom all were glad to welcome again. She told of the work in which she had been helping in Picton, Cherry Valley and Wellington. The Y's of Picton won the second prize in National Work for Girls. Miss Duff addressed three hundred students of the Picton Collegiate in the assembly hall and enlisted many to sign the Patriotic Rolls. She also met Pulber Carrigan, who cheerfully gave her access to the Separate School where she found sympathetic interest in the cause of temperance. She met the Band of Hope or Loyal Temperance Legion and showed them many temperance slides.

At Wellington she spoke in the Sunday school and met with Rev. H. Hillis, to Rose Hall, where she gave an address which resulted in new W.C.T.U. members.

The Y's had been reorganized in Belleville with Mrs. Elmer Dann as president, and feel assured they will do a valiant work for temperance.

Miss Duff told of visiting Miss Letitia Yeomans old home at Cherry Valley, and urged all to remember reverently Mrs. Yeomans as the founder of the W.C.T.U. in Canada as well as other pioneer workers and learn as could be learned of their lives and work. Mrs. Yeomans was greatly interested in children as the hope of the nation, and had a Band of Hope of two hundred meet regularly at her home. She also taught a Bible class of three hundred. She met Frances Willard were class friends and intimately associated in this work.

The three planks in the platform of Frances Willard from the beginning were Peace, Purity and Prohibition and for these three lines the W.C.T.U. has been the driving force behind all the social reforms of the present time. She urged the group never to forget that the union stands for total abstinence from the use of alcoholic liquors as a beverage and asked us all to repeat the pledge with her. She referred to some of the delegates at the World's W.C.T.U. from Japan, China, South Africa and India and spoke of what they are striving to do for social purity by working to wipe out commercialized prostitution. Much missionary temperance work is carried on by the World's W.C.T.U., and during 1930 was contributed last year.

She urged Canadian women to use the franchise as one thoughtfully and wisely their franchise. She mentioned the splendid work among the women of Quebec to gain the franchise for women.

Miss Duff recalled that one of the resolutions passed at the World's W.C.T.U. urged upon all women education for citizenship that they may initiate studies and support officers who will promote purity and children in the home and promote purity and peace. She also recalled to memory the attitude of the world's convention toward the wine traffic. The W. C.T.U. is opposed to any method of dealing with the liquor traffic which puts the government in the business of selling alcoholic liquors; opposed to any system that takes permits for the sale of liquor for beverage purposes. Here she reminded members that beer and wine permits are sold in Ontario for it and permits for spirituous liquor for $2. Ontario has, mostly in the liquors primitive fifty-nine wineries, and these have been permitted to fortify their wines, with most alcohol in order to compete with stronger California wines which are being imported. The W.C.T. U. favors prohibition of the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation and exportation of alcoholic liquors as a beverage. The support of these principles, the plans of work of the W.C.T.U. in fifty-six nations is to agitate, educate, organize and legislate that the homes of the world may be protected from the drink habit and the drink traffic. The position of the W.C.T.U. on the question of world peace and disarmament is "the establishment of units of national and international arbitration which shall banish war from the world."

Miss Duff is possessed of a pleasing presence, a clear and alert mind and an accurate knowledge of her subject.

Mrs. Adam sang an appropriate solo, "Beautiful Garden of Prayer." A hearty vote of appreciation was tendered Miss Duff and the meeting closed with the benediction. Refreshments were served by the assistants, Emilie and Lenten. Several new members were taken.

Prince Edward Branch Celebrates Armistice Day

PICTON, Nov. 13. — The annual dinner held by Prince Edward County Canadian Legion, B. E. R. L. Post 72, on the night of Remembrance Day, was very largely attended. On this occasion the Kiwanis Club met with the War Veterans so that the parish hall, where the event was held, was filled.

Supper was served by the ladies of St. Mary Magdalene Church and left nothing to be desired. All chief items on the menu were Prince Edward County products and proved that this is a garden county indeed.

Major Colin Hepburn, who is the president of Post 72, Canadian Legion acted as toastmaster and very ably welcomed the distinguished speakers, Dr. Herman, Kiwanians and others.

The toast to the King was responded to by singing the National Anthem.

Some of the old time war songs were sung, all joining in heartily. Mr. J. Bankier of Belleville delighted the crowd with some fine vocal solos.

In a very appropriate manner, his words conveying a depth of feeling, Rev. Beauchamp Payne of Belleville, proposed the toast to "Departed Comrades". The response was two minutes of silence in which all stood with bowed heads. "Their name liveth forevermore."

A. D. Thompson, M. P., of Wellington, who is president of Post No. 160, then proposed the toast to the "British Empire" with a stirring response by Captain Nils Homer Jodry E. H. McLean, honorary president of Post No. 72. Judge McLean mentioned the recent sudden and sad death of George Hamblin, a past president of Post 72. He was a valued worker and his death is deeply regretted by all comrades.

Brig.-Gen. B. R. Hepburn, C. M. G., honorary president of Post No. 72, proposed the toast to "H. M. Supporting Forces." To this, Lt.-Col. G. R. Peacker, V.C., D.S.O., M.C. of the Royal Military College at Kingston gave a wonderful address. Great pleasure was expressed by the other speakers at the fine and distinguished soldier present.

"The Department of National Defence" was proposed by Mr. John A. Bowell, M. P., for Prince Edward-Lennox with a splendid response by Lieut.-Col. the Hon. D. M. Sutherland, M.P., V.D., M.B., M.P., Minister of National Defence, Ottawa.

The addresses were of an unusual

Penetang Hospital Blaze Brings Plea at Inquest for Fireproof Buildings

No Blame Attached in Fire Which Cost Nine Lives

OLD BUILDINGS

Jury Was Not Long in Reaching a Conclusion

Penetang, Ont., Nov. 12—No blame was attached to hospital authorities by the coroner's jury which yesterday investigated the death of William Clifton Simmons, of Brebridge, Ont., one of the victims of a fire which swept one of the Ontario Hospital buildings here on November 2nd. The jury under Dr. B. A. Blackwell, found Simmons met his death by suffocation and flames as a result of a fire of unknown origin in Cottage "B" of the institution.

Recommendation that in future only buildings of fireproof construction be used to house patients was contained in the verdict. The jury deliberated only thirteen minutes.

Nine patients were killed as a result of the fire. Seven died the same day and two succumbed to burns a few days later.

Female patients were hampered by Recreation Hall, of whom struggled with hospital attendants and refused to leave the building. A number of other patients on the upper floor were brought to safety.

Nine patients were kept on the ground floor and thirty-three on the upper. The lower floor was used as an infirmary for old men and helpless patients, Dr. George Kidd, superintendent of the hospital said, some being mentally and physically infirm. Patients under him were of a different type, most of them being able to look around themselves.

Practically All Feeble

Asked by Crown Attorney Evans if any of the men on the lower floor could get up the superintendent testified one man, John Cox, injured a leg, but that was the habit of getting up about five o'clock. Dr. Kidd said the fire started and was the only man saved, although he was considerably burned on face and chest. He would have been unable to give the alarm, Dr. Kidd said, because he was able to walk.

Dr. Kidd was asked down and set the fire," suggested the Crown Attorney.

"The patients are not allowed to have matches," replied the doctor, "but some of them may have one anyway."

"Did any of the patients return during the fire?"

Dr. Kidd replied that one boy from the upper storey had to be taken out of the burning fire. Suffering from pneumonia, resisted so strongly that it required three men to carry him out.

"Where there any combustible materials in the basement?"

"The store room was used as a basement and there was a stove there. I found a bottle of rubbing alcohol only blackened on the outside. The stove pipes were removed from the building the previous day."

Dr. Kidd said a report of any system of fire drill was observed at the hospital. The superintendent replied there were fire bells and th usual fire regulations.

Evidence started in Crafton.

F. O. Evans, addressing the jury, pointed out that the fire could not have started from spontaneous combustion, but "someone has started in the ceiling and the only way it could have caught would be from defective wiring or the light," he said. "If the fire ignited the varnish on the ceiling it would have caused it other than the electric light."

Just before the jurors retired, the foreman, H. A. Osborne asked if any law covered the construction of such buildings, and if the wood covering should be replaced only by something else.

W. W. Hamilton of the Provincial Department of Health, pointed out that the fireproof building was one of the oldest used by the department, and for some time plans had been in preparation for remodelling it. "For some time back the wiring has been enclosed in a metal conduit, and I can't see how the fire could have started there," he stated.

Ten fifteen minutes after they had left the little court room in the town hall, the jury returned the verdict.

MAN OF "BONES" FAME IN JAIL

COBOURG, Ont., Nov. 13—Guilty on a charge of chicken theft, Gordon Lonsberry was sentenced by the County Judge to six months in jail. Lonsberry disappeared some months ago, when word got out on bail, leaving a note stating that his bones would be found in a quarry. Police put little faith in the note and eventually arrested Lonsberry.

Public Notice

NOTICE is hereby given that the following is a true copy of a proposed by-law of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow which will be submitted to a vote of the Municipal Electors of the Township of Thurlow at the times and places and with the deputy returning officers and poll clerks hereinafter set forth.

THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW

A by-law to authorize the granting of a franchise for the supply of gas in the Township of Thurlow.

WHEREAS Eugene C. Lang has represented to the Council of the Corporation of the Township of Thurlow that he has purchased from the City of Belleville its gas distribution utility and has procured from the said city a franchise to operate the same;

AND WHEREAS a portion of the said distribution system extends along certain highways in the Township of Thurlow;

AND WHEREAS the said Eugene C. Lang is desirous of obtaining from the Township a franchise to supply gas to the inhabitants of the Township of Thurlow and a license to lay gas mains, pipes or other apparatus in the highways and bridges in said Township and has agreed with the Council of the Township to the terms of an agreement hereinafter referred to which shall be executed by said Eugene C. Lang to Ontario Shore Gas Company, Limited, if and when the said Company shall have obtained power by way of supplementary letters patent enabling it so to do;

AND WHEREAS it is desirable that said franchise be granted to the said Eugene C. Lang and that he and his assigns be authorized to erect the said agreement and to affix the corporate seal of the Corporation thereto.

SCHEDULE "A"

This is the agreement referred to in the by-law of the Township of Thurlow to authorize the granting of a franchise for the supply of gas in the Township of Thurlow.

AN AGREEMENT made this ..... day of ..... A.D. 1931.

BETWEEN:

THE CORPORATION OF THE TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW, hereinafter called the Township, of the FIRST PART

and

EUGENE C. LANG, of the City of Chatham, United States, Gentleman, hereinafter called the Grantee, of the SECOND PART

WHEREAS the Grantee has represented to the Council of the Township that Ontario Shore Gas Company, Limited, has purchased from the City of Belleville its gas distribution utility and has procured from said city a franchise to operate the same;

AND WHEREAS a portion of the said gas distribution system extends along and over certain highways in the Township of Thurlow;

AND WHEREAS the Grantee is desirous of obtaining from the Township of Thurlow a franchise to supply gas to the inhabitants in the Township of Thurlow and a license to lay its mains, gas distribution pipes and other apparatus under and upon the highways in the said Township, which said franchise and license it is intended to be assigned by the Grantee to Ontario Shore Gas Company, Limited, if and when the said Company shall have obtained power by way of supplementary Letters Patent enabling it to operate a gas utility in the Township of Thurlow;

AND WHEREAS it is desirable that the rights, powers and privileges to be granted to the Grantee to operate the gas mains and gas distribution system in the Township be embodied in and throughout the Township of Thurlow, subject as hereinafter provided;

AND WHEREAS the Township Council has been petitioned that the said franchise and privilege will be for the benefit of the inhabitants of the Township, have determined to grant such franchise and license as is hereinafter contained upon the terms hereinafter subject to the conditions hereinafter contained.

NOW IT IS HEREBY AGREED between the parties hereto as follows:

(1) The Township, so far as it lawfully can, hereby grants unto and to the Grantee the right, permission, privilege and franchise for a period of twenty-five years from and after the 1st day of November, 1931, subject to the laws of the Province of Ontario for the time being and of the Dominion of Canada now or hereafter in force, and to the provisions hereinafter contained, to supply and sell gas and/or any article or article gas to the inhabitants of the Township of Thurlow and to the Corporation and inhabitants of the Township of Thurlow, subject as hereinafter provided.

AND WHEREAS the Township Council has been petitioned that the said franchise and privilege will be for the benefit of the inhabitants of the Township, have determined to grant such franchise and license as is hereinafter contained upon the terms hereinafter subject to the conditions hereinafter contained.

NOW IT IS HEREBY AGREED between the parties hereto as follows:

(1) The Township, so far as it lawfully can, hereby grants unto and to the Grantee the right, permission, privilege and franchise for a period of twenty-five years from and after the 1st day of November, 1931, subject to the laws of the Province of Ontario for the time being and of the Dominion of Canada now or hereafter in force, and to the provisions hereinafter contained, to supply and sell gas and/or any article or artificial gas to the inhabitants of the said Township of Thurlow and to the Corporation and inhabitants of the Township of Thurlow, subject as hereinafter provided.

(2) The Township shall have the right to designate the location of the said gas mains, pipes or other apparatus to be laid under the highways in the said Township and the said Grantee shall have the right to enter upon the highways in the said Township vested in the Township as the Township may designate, and the approval of the said Township of the location of the said gas mains and gas distribution system in the highways or crossings or rights of way shall be given.

(4) The Grantee will at the Grantee's own expense and to the satisfaction of the Township Engineer with due regard for speed and to the satisfaction of the Township Engineer with due regard for the convenience of any branch or other occupant of the said highway, lay down the said mains in any part of the said highways in the said Township of Thurlow and will use in the laying down of the trench material of the same description as that existing in the highways and used for the maintenance of the road at the point where the trench is made, and no other or other material which shall have been deposited on the said highways in the course of the works of the Grantee and will thoroughly remake, restore and make good any part thereof which shall have been disturbed by the Grantee in the manner referred to in the next preceding clause and will at the like instance and to the like satisfaction keep such part in thorough repair for a period of twelve (12) months after the same shall have been so reinstated and made good as aforesaid, and if necessary so to do shall forthwith take up any construction thereby created, and such alternate route or routes shall be constructed and maintained by the Grantee during the progress of the said work as the Township Engineer require, and will at the Grantee's own expense at all times while any part of the said highways shall be so opened or broken up, cause the same to be fenced and guarded and cause sufficient lights for warning persons of the presence of the said works to be set up and kept there against from sunset to sunrise every night during which the same shall continue to be opened or broken up, and will employ such other means as may be reasonably necessary to keep the said lights lighted and the said fences in place, and the Grantee may be assisted by the presence of the Township Engineer.

(6) If the Grantee shall use any of the bridges in the said Township now or hereafter constructed in the Township of Thurlow for the purpose of carrying the Grantee's gas mains, pipes or other apparatus, and the weight upon the said bridges or bridges, said gas mains, pipes or other apparatus shall not be laid in such manner as may be determined by the Township Engineer, the expense of the same and strengthening the Grantee shall compensate the Township for the cost involved in the carrying of any such gas mains, pipes or other apparatus on, over, across or under any such bridge in the manner and to the extent that the cost of any such bridge exceeds the limits of liabilities as to such cost, the same shall be referred to and determined by the Judge of the County Court of the County of Hastings as sole arbitrator under the Arbitration Act then in force in the Province of Ontario and in the event of such reference to arbitration the parties will each name a person as a competent engineer of the arbitrators and the stenographer's fees and the fees of any experts, such experts fees not to exceed $150.00 in all, that the Township may appoint in the said arbitration proceedings, but otherwise each party shall pay their own costs of the same.

(7) If at any time it shall be reasonably necessary to change the location of any of the gas mains, pipes or other apparatus of the Grantee in order to avoid interference or probable interference with the works of the Township or with any sewer or sewers, drain or conduit belonging to the Township, the Township Engineer may, if he does not grant the right to construct any works in or on the said highways, streets, alleys, bridges or public grounds of the Township except upon the line of the Grantee's own expense after the location of the same shall have been approved by the Township Engineer, and in case of such interference is likely interference. PROVIDED HOWEVER that the Grantee shall only be obliged to change the location of its mains, pipes or other apparatus or distribution system if such interference is likely interference, and in the event of any dispute as to whether such interference is likely interference or not is reasonably likely to happen, the matter shall be referred to and determined by the Judge of the County Court of the County of Hastings as sole arbitrator under the Arbitration Act then in force in the Province of Ontario, and in the event of such reference to arbitration the parties will each name a person as a competent engineer of the arbitrators and the stenographer's fees and the fees of any experts, such experts fees not to exceed $150.00 in all, that may be employed by the Township therein, but otherwise each party shall pay their own costs of the same.

(8) Save as hereinafter provided, and subject to the date of the laying down of mains and via major, if after sixty (60) days' notice in writing shall have been given by the Township to the Grantee shall fail to perform any obligation or do any act by this agreement required to be performed or done by the Grantee, the Township may perform such obligation or do such act and the Township as estimated damages the sum of $50.00, for every and each and every day during which such default shall continue, but not exceeding a total of sixty days, and further, after the expiration of the said sixty days, the said period for the Grantee to make good the default in such case at the expense of the Grantee in the manner aforesaid or any part of the gas mains, pipes or other apparatus of the Grantee may be removed or destroyed by the Township without any compensation therefor to the Grantee and the Township shall not be responsible for any damage caused thereby.

(9) In the event of the Grantee failing to repair and or restore any highway, highway bridge or bridges as herein mentioned which or any of which the Township may undertake to repair, and or do any work in connection therewith required to be done by the Grantee's acts, for seven days after notice in writing shall have been given by the Grantee by the Township, the Township may, in addition to any other remedies secured by this agreement or otherwise, enter into this agreement or the Township Engineer may enter into and repair and restore such highways, highway bridge or bridges to the satisfaction of the Township Engineer and the cost thereof as certified by the Township to the Township on demand.

(10) The Grantee shall at all times keep the Township effectually indemnified against all claims, demands, damages, charges, claims, costs, damages, charges, claims, costs, damages, charges, claims, costs, of, or by reason, or on account of anything done or omitted to be done by the Grantee in the exercise of the rights secured or commenced by the Grantee in or upon the said highways and/or highway bridges or any part thereof or in connection with the said gas mains, pipes or other apparatus and the Grantee shall enter into this agreement or the Township Engineer may enter into and approved or assented to any works done under this agreement, and for all loss, damages, charges, claims, costs, damages, charges, claims, costs, damages, charges, claims, costs, of, or by reason, or on account of the operations of the Grantee in the Township of Thurlow or in any other matter or thing howsoever attributable to the Grantee, his servants, agents or workmen.

(11) Nothing in this agreement shall be contained or implied to prevent the Township or any of the said approved works and/or highways to the Grantee, his servants, agents or workmen.

(12) Nothing in this agreement shall be contained or implied to prevent the Township from entering into any agreement or agreements with any person or persons for limiting the powers of the Township as to the location of the said highways and Township bridges or any of them, or from granting to any person or persons any rights not inconsistent from altering the level of the said highways and Township bridges or any of them, or from constructing or rebuilding or altering any bridge or culvert thereon which case the Grantee shall at the Grantee's own expense and to the satisfaction of the Township Engineer alter the said gas mains, pipes and other apparatus in the said highways and Township bridges in accordance with the provisions and conditions contained with respect to the said gas mains, pipes and other apparatus of the Grantee as the Township Engineer shall require, and the Grantee shall fail to do so within the time limited by notice in writing to that effect, then the said shall sign at the Township Engineer may do such work and pay for any damage which may be done to any of the gas mains, pipes or other apparatus of the Grantee by the use upon the said highways or bridges or any steam rollers, trucks, threshing machines, traction engines or other apparatus of whatever weight.

(13) The Grantee further covenants and agrees with the Township that the Grantee will, at all times and from time to time hereafter during the said period of thirty-five years, supply to the Township and its inhabitants, as and when demanded and subject to the provisions hereof and within and without its said municipal limits, such gas as may constitute the Township from time to time, the necessary requirements of the Township and inhabitants for municipal, commercial, industrial and all other purposes, in such volume or quantity as may be required by the Township and its inhabitants provided, however that the Grantee shall not be required to extend said gas distribution system further than one hundred feet from any point on the present distribution system shall enter into a written contract with the Grantee for the supply of gas for a period of not less than one year, and provided further

World Champions Forced to Bow to New York Rangers

TORONTO, Onl., Nov. 13 (CP)—Canada's oldest professional hockey loop—the National Hockey League—opened the 1931-32 winter campaign in Toronto, Montreal and Detroit last night. In each instance, however, the opening was marked by home supporters, when the visiting teams captured the decisions.

Record Crowd Present.

The largest crowd ever to witness an indoor sport in Toronto watched the new Chicago Black Hawks take the measure of the Toronto Maple Leafs. The brilliant performance of Tommy Cook with the Hawks' cage was the outstanding feature of play, however what proved to be the winning tally, two minutes after the final period commenced.

World Champions Lose.

Les Canadiens of Montreal, world hockey champions, took it on the nose" in their own stronghold when the Rangers of New York, skated to 1. Speedy attacks by Keeling, Bill Cook and Dillon in the second period gave the New Yorks a three goal lead to which they added the final counter, when Somers passed to Dillon who made no mistake in beating Benoit. The Canadiens' lone counter came shortly after the start of the third period, when Gagnon and Joliat ended a brilliant combination play by flipping the rubber past Roach in the Rangers' cage. Joliat was given credit for the goal while an assist went to Morenz. Referee-in-chief Cooper dismissed his penalties, one being handed out a near record total of 33 penalties during the three periods of play, however, came from infractions of the new rules.

Falcons Lose At Home.

New York Americans got off to a flying start when they stepped into Detroit and handed the Falcons a 6 to 2 reverse. The squads battled throughout the first two periods to a 2-all tie, a strong last period rally by the Amerks added them an additional three counters. The game for the most part was ragged, with play resolving into a slam. In the second frame Herbie Lewis, Falcon forward, and Watterson, American wingman, drew five minutes major penalties for fighting. Normie Himes, speedy centre, was the high point scorer for the Americans, netting one goal and assisting in two others, while Billy Burch was next with a goal and an assist.

Montreal Maroons and Boston Bruins the two clubs who were idle last night will hook up in Montreal Saturday night and the game is certain to draw a packed house. Canadiens and Maple Leafs are scheduled to meet in Toronto Saturday, while the other four teams in the circuit will not see action until Sunday evening.

Ports Win from Falls in Opener

Defeat Gene Fraser's Colts in Good Early Season Game 2-1

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP)—In a speedy display of hockey which opened the senior O.H.A. season here last night, Port Colborne Athletics defeated Niagara Falls Cataracts, last year's junior team, 2 to 1. Experience told the locals told in the long run, although Gene Fraser's Cataracts played a clever game and kept the Ports on the jump.

Cataracts went on the offensive from the start and Kaminsky sailed through the Ports to open the scoring. The locals rallied in the second period and held the upper hand. Morrill tied the count on a pass from Nixon after eighteen minutes of play. A three-man combination in the last frame put Port Colborne ahead. It was a Culbert to Shannon to Hezmer play.

Maki, Lannon and Hunter, three former Sault Ste. Marie juniors, are now play with the Falls as well as Max Kaminsky, former Falls junior, all gave creditable performances while Shannon and Hezmer looked the best for the winners.

The greater the difficulty the more glory in surmounting it. Skilful pilots gain their reputation from storms and tempests.—Epicurus.

Manager Ed. Gartley, of the Belleville Arenas, left Bellehas had at it yesterday. The ice plant was turned on yesterday afternoon for the purpose of testing the pipe lines. After it was found that the pipes were O.K. the first spray of the season was thrown on the floor of the rink. It is estimated that it will take three or four days in order to have the ice surface ready for skating. Which explains one of the fact that Queen's have signified their intention of not having played a accollegiate hockey in preference to Club competition.

X—X—X

The burning question now arises: Can Belleville's fistic going to get a substantial grouping in the coming season?

X—X—X

Bill Rankin of the B.A.A.A. is trying to group the locals with Oshawa, Bowmanville, Port Colbourg and Trenton. This would make a fine seven-league group and there would be keen competition, as each team would have enough home games to make it interesting to the home-town fans.

X—X—X

It is expected that the Belleville jungle will again be grouped with tournaments of a couple of junior teams out of Kingston

X—X—X

Coach Les Shiels assured us that the Belleville Intermediates would have as good a hockey team as they did last year if this is so the hockey fans of Belleville will have many a rare treat this coming season as the collegiate kids play as smart a game of hockey as do the O.H. A. teams.

X—X—X

Next Thursday evening there is to be a shadow boxing bout in the rifle range at the Armouries. The officers were challenged to a boxing exhibition match by the sergeants at the meeting held at the armouries on Wednesday evening. Of course the officers accepted the challenge, but it is on good advice that we remind you that the shoot will be held next Thursday evening and it might be a good idea if we stayed a few hours away from the Armouries. The losing team has to pay for the banquet that will follow.

X—X—X

Harry Robinson received word yesterday that he was to bring both Farry and Lang to Toronto for Matchmaker Brown's next all Ontario boxing card. Although Lang did lose to the Danish boy, Hansen, Brown thinks that Lang get a little careless and is giving him another chance. Farry on the other hand, won his bout and will have to meet one of last week's winners in the go.

X—X—X

Judging by the way all the kids are staging wrestling bouts on the corner lots, there is no question as to the fact, that Matchmaker Corcoran sold his "rassling" game to the younger generation of this district. It has been suggested that perhaps the next card could be of a mixed nature. By that we mean a couple of boxing bouts and a couple of wrestling bouts on the same card.

X—X—X

Whether the fans would like the idea or not is a question, but we, personally, asked Mr. Corcoran if he would stage a mixed bout in Belleville and he said that if the public wanted it he would be glad to stage a mixed bout here.

X—X—X

Just when the next wrestling bout will be staged is not known, as yet. The chances are that the B.A.A.A. will get their house key players out to practice before they stage the next "grapling" affair.

X—X—X

The sportsmen of Belleville who attended the opening of the Maple Leaf Gardens arena in Toronto last night, came home with all kinds of praise for the new arena. The only thing that marred a perfect opening of the new building was the fact that the Chicago Black Hawks stole all the glory by winning the first game of the season from the Maple Leafs.

Try as they might the Maple Leafs could not beat Chuck Gardner, the Chicago goalie, when goals were at a premium. Gardner was just too good for the home town boys.

X—X—X

Toronto Maple Leafs entertains the Montreal Canadiens Saturday evening at the new Arena Gardens and it is hoped that they do not make it two loses in a row for the Leafs.

Pittsburgh Came From Behind in 3rd Period to Tie

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP)—International League Hockey made its 1931-32 season's appearance in the United States last night when Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets and Syracuse Stars battled seventy minutes to a 2-all draw in the smoky city.

Outclassed in the first two periods, the Jackets made a strong last period rally which netted them two goals, the final counter coming with less than a minute to play. Pete Backaga and Graham Teasdale accounted for the Stars' rallies on individual rushes, while both Jackets' scores came on combination efforts. Ingram notching the first on a pass from Rodden, while Fraser scored the tieing goal with the help of Ingram.

By virtue of their victory in the opening games Wednesday, Cleveland Indians and Buffalo, equally or enjoy first place each with a record of Syracuse and Pittsburgh. Detroit and London, who also played their games occupy the cellar, while the other entries, Windsor, have not yet played a game, their first being scheduled for Sunday in Detroit.

CLAY PRODUCTS PLANTS WORK

Anticipate Several Manufacturers Will Settle in Canada

Ottawa, Nov. 13. — Anticipating the establishment of United States manufacturers of a number of branch factories in Canada and in view of the growing importance in the building trade, several of the largest manufacturers of clay products in Southern Ontario look for the coming year as one in which their plants will be operated to greatly increased production, according to Howell's Prechette, chief of the ceramics division, Department of mines.

Mr. Prechette recently returned from a visit to the plants in Southern Ontario. In some cases extensive alterations have been undertaken to increase efficiency of production and to provide for extending the lines of ware produced.

Seventy direct and indirect taxes are now imposed in France, including those on cigarettes, racking, rail and taxi, fares, windows and balconies.

SEEN ON THE MAT

Through the bluish haze which hung in the air in the Arena, Belleville men and some ladies, saw the first wrestling match ever officially held in this city last Tuesday evening.

They saw nearly three hours of grim pulling, face slapping, head twisting, hair and ear pulling, grunts, groans, hockey, rassling, burlesque and acrobatics no veteran clown after years of practice could ever accomplish—or try to for he was in his right senses. They saw funny faces and funny style wrestling, boxing and a little of the French savate thrown in, which is, if you don't know your French, a form of street and room fighting in which feet encased in hob-nailed boots, are freely used over any or all parts of your opponent's body.

And they learned at last the answer to the question of why they enclose a place where two men are only supposed to wrestle, with ropes. It is customary to enclose a boxing ring with ropes—they have that—but why a wrestling ring? Well they learned Tuesday night that the ropes were there for the various "actors" to use when, to hang on, to play tricks with, to climb up on and fall down upon in the face and on the head—to help lessen the shock when various flying tackles bounced them from them out of the ring altogether, and, oh least important of all, to hide behind for a while so the other fellow can get a handful of you while he's mad.

They saw semi-circled into shapes that they never never seen before. They saw assault and battery, attempted murder, Hon mayhem; and the nicest high diving act since Helen Meaney won the championship for plain and fancy diving.

However, some hundreds and hundreds of fans seemed to enjoy it, if the noise they made rooting for their favorites is any criterion, from the number present and opinions is that they got their money's worth.

There was the usual crowd present one will find at any boxing match. They were out for a Roman holiday. They wanted action, and blood in great gobs and quantities. They wanted to see murder done, somebody killed—and were disappointed when there wasn't. And was the case all over the Arena floor. The same kind of and the Romans used to fill the arena with blood, and there was the same yelling, bawling, shrieking crowd with their thumbs pointed down.

The boys did put on a good exhibition though outside of a lot of too evident clowning and burlesque. It was well carried off. Barring the first waltzing match between Trader Horn and Lo Sallo, the rest were very good. Ilut who ever found this fellow Horn made a bad guess when he staked him to the ham and—My personal feeling is that Horn should be deported back to Africa.

The next two, Nelson and Hart, were better, but I still think the referee was the best in that particular performance. He threw Hart for a ten-yard loss several times. There was a lot of dirty work pulled off here under cover, and she didn't have to have's pair of glasses to see it. Nelson, however, that's what the paying public wanted to see and the boys entered into the spirit of the eat pulling, eye gouging, rabbit punching and elbow fouling in dead earnest.

The Kogut-Kasaboski go was better, but there was more blood, apparently, between these two and it was displayed throughout the tussle, Kasaboski was the aggressor and carried the fight, although he was booed heartily by the crowd for his shady tactics. Kogui had the fying tackle down to perfection and floored the Pole several times. Kasaboski on one of his rare tackles made a flying run at one particular time, but as the good men make mistakes now and then, he seemed to pick this certain time to run into a tackle, and went flying off through the ropes and landed with a thud right in the sand in a sitting-up attitude. This seemed to make him more hostile than ever and from then on he carried the fight and was declared winner on two falls out of three. All the boys, however, seemed to enjoy themselves and the crowd seemed satisfied—and what more could anyone ask?

Want Only Two Men for Schmeling

Paulino Uzcudun Will Be Opponent in Bout Tonight

NEW YORK, Nov. 12. — Max Schmeling, soon to arrive here from Germany, apparently is ready to defend his heavyweight championship against only two men—Mickey Walker or Jack Dempsey.

This is the only assumption connected in the brain of Joe Jacobs, the Teuton's manager, who has fulfilled, Schmeling may fight both Walker and Dempsey before the end of 1932.

Jacobs, hurrying here after a visit of several months in Germany declares he had received a cable from Dempsey, while in Berlin, saying the former champion would be ready to fight again in June, against Schmeling and Schmeling says he would accept a "gate" of $2,000,000 if this match goes through.

While he is waiting to hear definitely from Dempsey again, Jacobs is turning over in his mind an offer of $200,000 for a match between Schmeling and Walker in Los Angeles February 22. The terms appear agreeable to Jacobs but Schmeling objects to defending his title at the 10 rounds distance now considered the limit for championship affairs in California. Twelve-round no decision bouts are permitted there but Schmeling and Jacobs agree a bout of twelve rounds would not interest them in the least if worth while.

TORONTO CAR?

Thursday night the Belleville police arrested and placed in custody two young men who are wanted by the Ontario Provincial Police on the charge of having broken open a gasoline pump at Brighton early Thursday morning and who are also wanted by the Toronto police on the charge of having stolen a car. The men are Wilfred Knight and Egbert Thomas Cross, of Toronto, both of whom give their ages as twenty years.

About three-thirty Thursday morning the Belleville police were advised by telephone that a gasoline pump had been broken open in Brighton by persons driving a car bearing license M-3622. The police immediately began a search for the wanted car did not appear. On the theory that they would choose acting upon information the police had been able to obtain, Constables Evans and Constable Taylor went in the police car to Brighton and there they found the wanted car. The approach of the constables in the car was well planned, the men wanted were taken completely by surprise, but put up a fight for their liberty. When the car was finally opened by the police officer, Cross, the driver, made a jump to get into the car but Constable Evans was there to receive him and forced him back into the car. The men were overcome, handcuffed and brought to the police station.

When the car was searched a set of markers bearing the numbers on 4739 were found hidden in the back seat. The police recognized at once that the number was that belonging to a car the theft of which they had been advised of by the Toronto police. The markers in use on the car, the police admit, were no doubt taken from some car to use in place of the correct number of the stolen car.

In the car was also found a full box of canned goods, which, it is believed, was possibly taken from some truck on the highway.

A piece of hose, four feet in length was discovered in the car which would be of service in syphoning gasoline from gas tanks of cars.

The Toronto police were advised of the capture of the stolen car, also of the arrest of Cross and Knight. Finger print evidence has been received in reply stating that they hold warrants for the arrest of these men and that an officer would leave Toronto at once to take them in charge.

District Inspector Lougheed of the Ontario Provincial Police, Belleville, says that it may be necessary to turn these men over to the Toronto police before his office can deal with them, in which event they will later be given in charge to the Provincial Police and the Peterboro City Police. Cross is wanted on the charges of breaking into and theft from Kemph's Shoe Store at Norwood, between late last Saturday night and early Sunday morning.

The arrest of Cross in this connection was reported to the District Office of the Provincial Police here Thursday from Toronto, but this proved to be incorrect as the man arrested here last night by the Belleville city police is Cross. The Provincial Police say that Cross has given them a statement to the effect that he is involved in the Norwood burglary and has also given information concerning the whereabouts of the stolen goods may be found. Detective Sergeant Lougheed and Inspector Campbell on Friday morning found five pairs of the stolen shoes in Belleville. They were three pairs of skating boots with skates attached, one pair of women's shoes and one pair of men's. These shoes were found in a second hand store and a private house.

There are three separate charges of the theft of cars preferred against Cross. Two in Peterboro and one in Toronto. The two cars taken at Peterboro are thought to have been used in the theft of the Norwood robbery. A change of cars being made after the visit to Norwood.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE HOLDS CONVENTION

Says Women's Institute is School for Grownups

Ontario Began Idea That Spread Throughout World.

SPOTTY'S ADDRESS

Institute Members Ready to Aid Relief Problem

Records of a year in the busy life of the Women's Institute for their convention area were presented at the meeting yesterday afternoon in the Parish Hall of St. Thomas Church where the annual convention of this organization is being held this week. Mrs. W.R. Munro, Deseronto, convention chairman, presided for this session which was featured by a most instructive address by Mrs. Spotswood Spotty, Women's Institutes for Ontario, Mr. George Putnam of Toronto, is the mayor of the city.

The meeting was opened by an address of welcome delivered by the mayor of the city, Mr. George A. Reid, who extended cordial greetings on behalf of the citizens to the delegates present. In a charming manner, Mrs. J. Shaw, district area member of the Board of Directors of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario, responded.

The report of the proceedings of the convention area was presented by Mrs. M. B. Wrese, of Redneersville, and was followed by a report on health by Miss Beatrice Jones of Belleville.

Report on Agriculture

This history of institutes has been the history of development of agriculture, said Mrs. Spotswood Vernonville, in giving Women's Institute report on Agriculture. The first two years they have only to learn land laws. In her report, Mrs. Spotty told of the beginning of the various branches along agricultural lines such as poultry, particularly garden exchanges of plant slips or bulbs distributed by each member. Mrs. Devitney suggested, too, that rather than give additional prizes to the fall fairs, these branches donate prizes to those who failed, to put other classes, such as eight six entries had been made. The women encourage them to make otherwise never - compete.

Education

Mrs. T. L. Nickle, Madoc, reporting on education, explained that since everything about an Institute programme was educational, it would be difficult to dwell on anything but the high lights of educational work done by the branches. An important development from Institute meetings was the increased ability of its members to take part in discussions and to be able to engage in public speaking with ease. During the past year members of the first days of Institute life, she organized, was proposed regularly.

Recalling a talk he had given, recently on radio Mr. Spotty related said that there were in Ontario 1200 groups known as Women's Institutes. The movement had been started in Stoney Creek thirty-five years ago and since then the principles had spread until twenty-eight countries have women's rural organizations patterned on Institute lines.

Women's Institute might be compared to a course for grownups where adults acquired breadth of vision and resourcefulness. Thrift, economy and industry in the home and community are encouraged by Women's Institute ideals. Relief is always given for such year 4:100 rural women are making surveys in their communities and then give out assistance where it is needed. These women are being taught through short courses how to take important matter of food values and how to prepare some long putting away nutritious fruits and vegetables for winter home and vegetables.

The rural women are patriotic, they learned from their industries. They have been studying Canadian made textiles. They have been finding them superior in finish and wearing qualities. It is to be hoped that this study of Canadian-made fabrics may be duplicated by their city sisters.

The Women's Institute is doing a great work in teaching girls members, in its wholesome influence on the social life of the community, in its operation as an effective social organization, and is spreading by personal contact. The afternoon's meeting closed with a discussion at which Miss M. J. Guest presided.

SIX AIDS AT MEALTIME

Mrs. W. R. Munro Gives Paper on Home-making

Six simple principles in the art of mealtime niceties were advanced by Mrs. W. R. Munro, Deseronto, in her paper read this morning when she presided at the opening session of the Women's Institute convention being held this week in St. Thomas Parish Hall.

"What we fail to remember is this," said Mrs. Munro, "that the principles of table setting and efficient table serving remain the same whether for a colleger or palace and thorough understanding of these principles and the application of them to our own purpose will enable us to automatically attain a satisfactory result. Whether the table be polished walnut or scrubbed deal it must be clean, whether its covering be damask or oilcloth it must be immaculate.

"Shining table service, bright silverware, well-cooked food and plenty of it, varied as your purse affords with green vegetables and raw fruits, lots of eggs and milk and pleasant talk will make of any meal a banquet fit for a king or queen.

"My six general rules might be re-said but they can't be a trace before most; sunlight and a "thank you" as you begin your meal; correct table manners, using your good china and silverware instead of saving them for company use only, and throwing away the cracked dishes and dirty fall spoons every day and break others; serve at the left side, which is common sense and remove everything from the right; fill cups and water glasses two-thirds full. If some children do not like the milk try giving them a small gay jug and glass to serve themselves and let them alone, they will take to it for it's nature's drink and finally well-cooked vegetables and fruits are the needs of your family starts the day right."

In conclusion Mrs. Munro quoted the words of Mrs. M. E. Low one of the Women's Institute demonstrators, who said in the 1929 O. E. Exhibition, "It's the little things that count, the little refinements scarcely noticed at the time that make the child into a well-bred man or woman. The nice table napkin, and not eating in the kitchen, the change of dress even if it is little more than a fresh apron, never coming to breakfast without face and hands (at least) washed and hair neatly combed, the firm arms on the table; the knives and forks dividing; the way that the butter knife must be used to take off the butter in the insistence on having special spoons and forks to help all food, no matter how cheap the material of which they are made. Oh, the little things are important and very important."

Day of Remembrance is Observed by Madoc Residents

Veterans and Daughters of Empire Hold Services

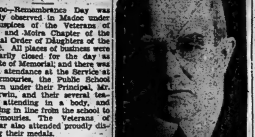
Madoc—Remembrance Day was fittingly observed in Madoc under the auspices of the Veterans of Madoc and Moira Chapter of the Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire. All places of business were voluntarily closed for the day as a tribute of Memorial and there was a good attendance at the Service at the Armouries, the Public School children under their Principal, Mr. Jas. Irwin, and their several teachers, attending in a body, and marching in line from the school to the armouries. The Veterans of the War also attended proudly displaying their medals.

The Chair was taken by the Regent, Mr. Walter Whytock, and after prayer by the I.O.D.E. in concert, and the Lord's Prayer in unison, and the singing of "O God our help in ages past," Rev. P. Oatley Reynolds gave a brief prayer to the children on "Remembrance" urging them to ever remember that those in whose memory we are gathered gave up all that man holds dear, willingly, in defense of right. He also called on them to remember as they grow up, to determine to uphold the cause of right. They fought, not for the love of fighting, but to defend the right.

"O Canada," was sung, and Rev. T. G. Marshall spoke of Remembrance Day as an anniversary of the close of the Great War, and as a day of Remembrance, not only of those who fought and died for our lives, but also of the men who suffered and lived after their return. After coming home, and those who are still suffering the love of fighting, but to defend the right.

"O Canada," was again sung, and Rev. T. G. Marshall spoke of Remembrance Day as an anniversary of the close of the Great War, and as a day of Remembrance, not only of those who fought and died for our lives, but also of the men who suffered and lived after their return. After coming home, and those who are still suffering from shell shock. Many were gassed and are still suffering. Many lived away for the suffering, for peace, but not defend the cause of the war.

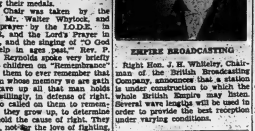
The tolling of the bell called all to the "two minutes" silence which was observed all standing with bowed heads, and prayer followed by Rev. G. W. Rivers. Collection was taken for Soldiers' Relief, and Prayer and benediction by Rev. Mr. Bennett, closed this service.



Those bearing wreaths formed for bowed by veterans and escorted by Girls and I.O.D.E. and Boys of march taken to the Cenotaph in the Thomas Memorial Park, where the wreaths were laid at the Cenotaph, for the Town by Mr. Walter Whytock, Reeve; for the Veterans by Lieutenant E. T. Nayler; for the I.O.D.E. by Miss Nancy Holland; for the Public Institutes by Mrs. T. L. Nickle; for the Church of England by Kwart Reynolds; for the Presbyterian Church by Tommy Hawthorne, for the United Church by Reuben Lowry; and for the Roman Catholic Church by Donald Fennell.

The Prayer at the Cenotaph was offered by Rev. P. Oatley Reynolds, and the Last Post and Reveille were played by Mr. Jas. Aylesworth, followed by the raising of the Flag which had remained at half-mast.

The Missionary Department of the Young People's Society of Trinity United Church held a very pretty and enjoyable afternoon tea on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 10th, at the home of Mrs. G. C. Mooo, with the leaders of the department assisting. The rooms were beautifully and scarlet poppies, and the tea tables were decorated with poppies and candles.



With an attendance of over forty, the receipts were very satisfactory and a welcome addition to the Missionary funds of the department.

During the afternoon, a varied programme was rendered. Miss Dorothy Fox gave a pleasing piano solo, and piano duets were given by Mrs. L. Ashley and Mrs. J. W. Smith. A piano duet was also cleverly rendered by Misses Claire Dafoe and Thornton Love. Little Miss Helen Wellman gave a vocal solo, decorated with immense "mums", "Little Ships" and readings were given by Mrs. Lowry and Mrs. Bigelow, who gave "In Flanders Fields."

EMPIRE BROADCASTING

Assisting at the tables were Misdames Ashley, Hulin, Henderson, and Rivers. Members of the Y. P. S. were also in attendance and they were greatly pleased at the success of the afternoon.

Trinity United Church W.M.S. met on Thursday, Nov. 5th, at the Parsonage with an attendance of twenty-six members and visitors. The President, Mrs. S. S. Ashley, was in charge of the meeting. The hymn, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," was sung, the Watchword and Lord's prayer repeated in unison. The Scripture lesson from Matthew 5, Rev. 22-3, was read by Mrs. Wood, and short prayers were offered by several members. The subject for study, "The Great Light", chapter II of "Korea, land of dawn," was given by Mesdames Lowry, Irwin, Bristol, Thompson and Rutherford. A most suitable Hymn, The Light of the World is Jesus" was sung, after which short papers on "Is Peace our Task?" were given by Mesdames Rivers, Bailey and L. Ashley. Mrs. Hulburd read the devotional topic on "John,—the man of temper." The study period was closed with singing, "Oh love that will not let me go."

The minutes of last meeting were read, and Roll Call was responded to by Scripture passages on "Economy." Reports of departments showed an active interest being taken in the work. The Autumn Thankoffering was received, following which the election of officers for ident then thanked the members for their cooperation during her two years of office, and bespoke for her successor the same hearty support, and called on the Pastor, Rev. G. W. Rivers, to conduct the election of officers for 1932. Very few changes were made in the personnel of the executive, the duties of the members being that those in office continue another year. The Officers elected are:—President—Mrs. S. S. Ashley; 1st Vice-President—Mrs. R. McMechan; 2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Huffman; Recording Secretary—Mrs. F. Dafoe; Corresponding and Supply Secretary—Mrs. L. Rutherford; Treasurer—Mrs. D. Moorcroft; Convenor of Finance Secretary—Mrs. Jas. Irwin; Strangers' Secretary—Mrs. R. Wellman; Associate Helpers' Secretary—Mrs. Lowry; Mite, Monthly Secretary—Mrs. Huffman; Temperance Secretary—Mrs. M. Bristol; Secretary of Christian Stewardship—Mrs. M. Mayhew; Press Secretary—Mrs. Rivers; Supt. of Mission Bands—Mrs. H. Bailey and Mrs. Rutherford, assisted by Mrs. Lowry and Misses Carmen Fair, Phillips; Mrs. L. Ashley; Assistant—Miss A. Wood.

Following the business a social half-hour was enjoyed, Mrs. E. M. Tumelty and Mrs. F. J. Bullis being assistant hostesses. The meeting was closed with prayer by the Pastor.

Military Display Given Before Viceroyalty

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP)—A former war Padre, Sir G. Stanley Russell declared last night that military pageantry was a means of commemorating the Armistice was "a more mask covering the hideous face of war."

Addressing an Armistice service in Deer Park United Church, Sir Russell held that those who had been at the war "are not anxious to see any day than on any other to recollect any phase of war."

TWO MEN MISSING

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Nov. 13—Two men, Fred Hanson and one LeBlanc, have been missing since Saturday at Pointe Au Baril and is feared they may have been drowned. Their upturned canoe was found floating on the water.

PAY HONOR TO GRAND MASTER

Foxboro Royal Black Knights Hold Banquet

In honor of their Grand Master of Eastern Ontario, Mr. Jas. Moore of Enganville, Ont., the R. B. P. No. 303 of Foxboro held their annual banquet and entertainment on Wednesday evening.

Degree work was exemplified in the lodge room by the Foxboro degree team and they were complimented on their proficiency by the Grand Master. The lodge room was filled to capacity by brothers from all parts of Eastern Ontario, there being 17 different R.B.P. lodges represented at the gathering.

After the work had been completed on the floor of the lodge the lodge members adjourned to the Sunday School parlors of the Foxboro United Church where the good ladies of the church had prepared a special dinner for the members and their friends. The tables were tastefully decorated for the occasion and the room was filled beyond capacity.

After the supper Mayor Geo. A. Reid of Belleville acted as chairman of the evening and first called for the toast to the King. The toast to Canada and the Empire was very ably proposed by Mr. H. B. Petterly of the Ontario School for the Deaf. Mr. W. E. Thompson, M.P. responded to this toast in his usual capable manner. A duet by Mrs. J. Goswell and Mrs. E. Ellis followed and was roundly applauded by the audience.

The toast to the Grand Lodge of Eastern Ontario was proposed by Mr. H. C. Shipman of Otawa, Deputy G. M. of the Orange Lodge. Mr. James Moore the Grand Master for Eastern Ontario responded to this toast and explained to the members present that it was indeed a pleasure to be with them on this auspicious occasion. Mr. T. K. Allen, P.G.M. from Kemptville also spoke a few words. This speaking was followed by a solo by Mr. Palmer.

The toast to the ladies and those who assisted in making the evening such a wonderful success was proposed by Rev. A. L. Geen and Mrs. J. Daniels responded for the ladies in a manner that was exceedingly gratifying to all. Mrs. Paterson and Mrs. Mullin then favoured the meeting with a duet that was enjoyed by all.

The next toast was one that will long be remembered being of the visitors. Mr. James Hill, M.P.P. proposed the toast and Mr. Lotus Reid of Toronto, Grand Secretary of the British Council in America, responded in a manner that left a feeling of friendship and brotherly love in the hearts of all who had the privileges of hearing his inspiring address. Mr. Clay and Mr. Harry Dafoe then entertained the audience with a beautiful duet.

The toast to the church was proposed by Revve Robt. Mitchell and responded to by Rev. Paterson and Rev. Mutton. Both ministers spoke eloquently of the great work that the Preceptory was endeavouring to carry out and wished them God's speed in their work. The final number on the programme was a number by the sisters quartette the members being Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Mutton, Mr. S. Clay, Mr. H. Dafoe.

Chairman Reid brought the entertainment to a close by asking all to stand and sing the National Anthem.

Trenton

Mr. Aubrey Crosby formerly of Trenton, now residing in Toronto, is in town renewing old acquaintances.

Miss Eileen McAuley visited the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. McAuley of Trenton. She had with her Mr. and Mrs. J. Larkin, both of Toronto, where Miss McAuley is nursing.

Mr. Robert W. Weller, former owner of the Capitol Theatre, Belleville, recently left to spend the winter in Hollywood, Cal. Mr. Weller was accompanied by his wife and family.

Mr. W. DeMille's car was destroyed by fire, last evening while Mr. DeMille was visiting his brother, Mr. E. DeMille, who lives in near Frankford. The car was partially covered by insurance.

Rev. Mr. Jones of King St. Methodist Church gave an interesting lecture on his trip through the Maritime Provinces covering 3,803 miles.

The trip lasting about a month. Mr. Jones has 140 colored slides with which he illustrates his lecture, the high points of his trip seem to be the land of Evangeline immortalized by Longfellow. The home of Graham Bell who settled in Bedick, N.S., and Annapolis Royal, which boasts the oldest building on the North American continent built by Europeans. An old powder magazine built by the French evidently to store powder in their war against The Indian.

The Rev. Jones will visit the city of Belleville on Friday, Nov. 13th at Holloway St. Church, where he will deliver his lecture to the Young Men's Club.

Although navigation closes on Nov. 1st Trenton was visited by a large coal barge this week. It is seldom this town has the opportunity to see these boats now. In fact a few years ago it was the usual way in which to bring in coal, the capacity of this barge is nearly 700 tons. The barge was towed from Oswego by the "Salvage Prince", Captain Pike commanding.

The Venerable A. L. Fleming, Archdeacon of the Arctic, spoke here Monday night at the Rotary supper and later at the Canterbury Hall. Mr. Fleming's lecture on the North was very interesting as as much as it effects all of us. The great natural resources soon to be thrown open to Ontario. Also the fact whether we know it or not, that we have a seaport within our boundaries at Moose Harbor, James Bay. In a few weeks the railroad will be complete, and then Moose Harbor will be little more than a day's journey from Toronto.

Mr. Fleming sketches his trip to Moose Harbor while he was on his way to visit the Missions at the mouth of the Albemarle River, which he had to cancel on account of work in James Bay district.

Leaving Cochrane he ordered "the Polar Bear (train) called that because it goes the furthest north. It is really a freight train with two passenger coaches attached. During the journey he met three undergraduates of the U. of T. who were going North as members of a prospecting party. We reached Coral Rapids at 5.30 p.m. having travelled a little over a hundred miles in 10 hours. Not knowing the conditions he had not provided himself with any food for the journey, so was glad, to have something to eat at Coral Rapids. This is the end of the T. and N. O. railroad at present, as the line north of Coral Rapids is still in the hands of the contractors the MacLean Construction Co.

That evening a motor truck arranged with wheels suitable for running on rails came in from Moose River Bridge, headed with supplies for the construction camp at Moose River Bridge; twelve of us boarded it perching wherever possible on the freight and baggage. It was a beautiful night after the intense heat of the day we all enjoyed the ride. The distance is about 45 miles running through the bush over the muskegs and across numerous small rivers. It is also one of the straightest railroads the Architecson said he ever travelled on. Making about 35 per hour, we soon arrived at the Construction Camp, where he was invited to occupy a cot in the tent I R.C.A.P. Flight Commanders Emery and Wynd. Next morning they started on the river in an 18 foot canoe furnished by Mr. Spoule Supt. of MacLean Construction Company loading the canoe. The trip down the Moose was a very pleasant journey. The water was re peated as falling in the river four inches a day but there was still sufficient to enable them to navigate the seven rapids safely. They arrived at the mouth of the river that evening.

Mr. Fleming also speaks very warmly of the Eskimos, finding them ready and willing to learn the white man's way.

GREENSHIELDS IS ARRAIGNED AT COBOURG

Landlady Turns for Solace to Bible After Discovery of Murder

Hugh Greenshields Today Arraigned at Cobourg on Murder Charge

IS REMANDED

Scene Which Met Eyes of Police is Startling

When Ontario Provincial Police officers entered the home of Mrs. George Rutherford in Campbellford, early Friday afternoon, to investigate the killing of one child and the injuring of another child, early Friday morning, they were greeted with a pathetic sight. The Greenshields occupied a living room downstairs and two rooms upstairs in Mrs. Rutherford's house and the shock received by this fine old lady when requested by Greenshields to call the police when he told her, it is alleged, that he had killed his two little sons, was terrible. Greatly troubled, the old lady had turned for solace to the Bible, which had been her comfort for years and the officers found her with the large Bible spread open before her, reading.

Police at Scene

District Inspector Lougheed of Belleville headquarters met Provincial Constables Hall of Cobourg and McBrien of Brighton, in Campbellford, to investigate the tragedy. They found that the body of the five-year-old son, William, had been carried by Walter, the eight-year-old boy, who was lingering between life and death, was still in the bedroom. Later the two little bodies were placed side by side in the municipal ambulance to the hospital at Peterboro, where every effort will be made to save his life. Mrs. Greenshields was not seen by police officers, but she is completely prostrated with grief and is being attended by kindness

SORE THROAT PROVES FATAL

Two More Children Die in St. Thomas of Septic Malady

St. Thomas, Ont., Nov. 14—Two more deaths of children following an outbreak of septic sore throat in Wellington Street public school, were reported today. Margaret Thorp, aged 7, died last night, and Patsy Cuccaro, aged 5, died this morning. The Carter girl's brother died on Tuesday while a third child in the family is said to be recovering from the disease. The board of health is doing everything possible to check the spread of the disease but it has not been deemed necessary to close the school.

SURGERY USED TO SAVE CHILD

Child Born 15 Minutes After Death of Mother

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—A girl was born alive fifteen minutes after the mother died of injuries received in an automobile accident here last night.

Struck by an automobile while crossing the street, the mother, Anna Mae Lemaster, was taken to a hospital, victim of a fractured skull. Recognizing the emergency, physicians performed a cesarian operation which required only thirty seconds. The baby weighed 7½ pounds.

Dr. Joseph Price, superintendent of Mercy Hospital, said that while such operations have been made after the death of the mother from other disease, he had no knowledge of one performed successfully after death from injuries. He said the baby would have been born within a week had the mother lived.

JAPANESE WILL DEFEND BRIDGE

Washington, D.C. Nov. 14—Ambassador Debuchi of Japan, informed the state department today that Japanese troops at the Nonni bridge line in Manchuria would take every measure to repulse Chinese troops if they are attacked.

Radium in Food Prolongs Life

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 14 (CP)—That small quantities of radium introduced into food and drank may greatly prolong human life is the opinion of Dr. Lauther S. H. Gable, head of the Department of Radium at Detroit Institute of Technology. A radium "highball", consisting of fruit juice, through which a small quantity of radon gas, an emanation of radium, has been forced by compressed air is used regularly by Dr. Gable, who says it keeps him in splendid physical condition.

WILL OBSERVE CONDITION IN MANCHURIA

Military Representatives Will Visit Country in Person

SETTLEMENT NEAR

Slight Clashes Occurring Between Chinese and Japanese Troops

TOKYO, Nov. 14—(AP)—Military representatives of Great Britain, France, Russia and United States will leave here Nov. 19 to observe conditions in Manchuria, it was learned today.

The attaches have been invited by the Tokyo Government to stay in Manchuria as long as they think necessary. It is authoritatively said that their journey has no connection with reports, that the League of Nations was pondering a plan to settle the Manchurian controversy through a committee of observers.

PEIPING, Nov. 14.—(AP)—General Tsai Chang Shih, commander of the Chinese forces in the Nonni River area has received a note from General Honjo, Japanese Commander-in-chief, stating the Japanese be permitted to occupy Tsitsihar, re telegraphed today to Manchurian headquarters here.

In his reply General Mah told the Japanese there is no need for "some further mistake" because Tsitsihar is the terminus of the Tsitsihar-Koshan Railway, a purely Chinese line, and has no connection with the Taonan-Angangchi line which the Japanese stated they wished to protect.

HARBIN, Manchuria, Nov. 14.—(AP)—Forty Chinese were killed in a battle in the vicinity of Kaiyuan and two Japanese in a subsequent clash in the Nonni River area, the Japanese headquarters announced today.

SOVIET DENIAL OF WHEAT DECLINE

(By the Canadian Press)—The Amtorg Trading Corporation, official buying organization for the Soviet country for the Soviet Government, in a statement issued on occasion to meet rumors that Russian credits would be checked cautiously, because of an impending crisis, by citing its record of payments in this country, and its purchases in other markets.

The report of a decline in Soviet wheat exports is also denied in the official statement, and it is declared that the Soviets expect to both raise as much wheat as in 1930 and to export the same volume as originally planned.

Artist Can Now Paint Women, Fussy Dress Gone

New York, N.Y., Nov. 14.—Until, several years ago Bernard Boutet de Monvel, one of the day's leading portrait painters, swore he could not put women on canvas, today he devoted most of his talent to feminine portraiture. It's because the women have done away with fussiness in their dress.

"I only liked to paint men," he said today, "because they were strong and simply dressed. Women were too much lace and frills. I couldn't paint them. Lace bothered me."

Several years ago when Mr. Boutet de Monvel first came to this country he brought with his exhibition the painting of his wife. The first portrait of a woman he ever had done.

"They had begun to dress simply and they didn't do their hair so intricately. I found them delightful to paint. Now I do almost nothing else," he said.

This season's fashion trends he said, delight him, he is said to be painting women now, though he said he still can't paint lace.

DR. POTTS, OF STIRLING, DIES AGED 63 YEARS

48 MILLIONS FOR RELIEF

What Municipalities in This Section Will Undertake

OTTAWA, Nov. 14. — The grand total of cost of municipal, provincial and federal works for unemployment relief approved up to yesterday by the sub-committee of Cabinet which passes on this work is $48,-376,051. Of this total amount, the Dominion's proportion is $23,597,694.

Announcement of the amount approved to date was made this evening by Hon. C. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor. The minister gave out a statement which showed that Ontario unemployment projects have been approved to the extent of $20,-178,218, of which the Dominion's share is $6,581,946. Ontario is the largest beneficiary of federal al-

HUNTER KILLED IN BEDROOM

Lindsay Man Gives Self To Police, Charge Not Divulged

Lindsay, Ont., Nov. 14 (CP)—Albert Crimmons, of Lindsay, today surrendered to the police and will appear in police court this afternoon in connection with the shooting early this morning of William Timmins, of Windsor, at Long Beach, duck hunting resort eight miles from here.

Thornton was instantly killed when shot in the chest with a 12 gauge shotgun in a bedroom of the Long Beach dance pavilion. Crimmons, accompanied by his lawyer, H. J. Moore, appeared at police headquarters early this afternoon and, pending his appearance in police court, the nature of the charge against him was not announced.

$1,000 Cash Already Paid Relief Fund Pledges Come in

Objective of Ten Thousand Dollars for Unemployment Relief Fund Will Be Easily Reached According to Present Indications — Group Pledges Coming in Very Satisfactory — Many Citizens Subscribe Small Sums Weekly or Monthly—Enthusiastic Meeting of Civic Committees Plan for Speedy Drive to Wind Up Campaign—Centralized Relief Work Going Smoothly.

A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Civic Unemployment Relief Committee and sub-committees was held in the City Hall Friday evening. Reports from every department of the work were most encouraging. G. A. C. Weir, chairman of the Finance Committee, occupied the chair, and Mayor Reid answered a number of questions asked in regard to the need for the fund, manner of disposition, etc., which may be summed up as follows:

The two governments, provincial and federal, will pay one dollar each, two dollars in all, for every dollar expended by Belleville in direct relief. This does not mean that if a fund of ten thousand dollars is RAISED that twenty thousand dollars will be immediately forthcoming from the two governments. Government payments will be made only on money EXPENDED and properly certified by the city treasurer, who makes report to the governments every month the money expended on DIRECT RELIEF the month previous. This money must be spent on DIRECT RELIEF, not on public works of any kind, provision for which is made separately

OAK IN HONOR OF PIONEER

HALIFAX, N.S., Nov. 14.— In the beautiful Halifax public garden, an English oak tree was planted yesterday in honor the memory of William Murray, who landed in Halifax 100 years ago and became one of the pioneer temperance workers in the province. The Memorial Service which was attended by Lieut. Governor George E. Ritchie, brought to a close the 84th annual convention of the Sons of Temperance of Nova Scotia. Rev. John H. Prestone of Halifax, Grand Patriarch, presided.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

August Schonocki Charged With Theft of $,1000

PEMBROKE, Ont., Nov. 14.—(By the Canadian Press)—Charged with the theft of $1,000 in cash from the home of Thomas Coulas, August Schonocki, of Haggerty Township, was committed for trial yesterday by Magistrate R. T. Chown. Coulas and his wife testified they had left their home for only a short time and found on their return the money, which they kept in a trunk, had been stolen.

Two local merchants testified they had given Mrs. Coulas in bills of the same denomination and bank as those stolen.

DEMOCRAT IS STRUCK AND HORSE KILLED

Murney Scott, in Charge of Democrat, Thrown and Badly Bruised

COULD NOT SEE

Driver of Car Blinded by Lights of Car Following Democrat

RAWDON, Nov. 14.—(Special)— Murney Scott, 8th concession of Rawdon, was badly bruised and is suffering from shock, one of the horses, which he was driving was instantly killed and the other badly cut, when the democrat, which he was in charge of was struck by a car near the 8th line two miles north of Stirling, Friday evening. The democrat was demolished in the crash. Mr. Scott was plowing on a rented farm on the 4th concession of Rawdon and was returning to his home on the 8th concession, when the accident happened. Mr. Scott was meeting a car and there was a car following him at the time. The driver of the car meeting the democrat is alleged to have given the lights of the car following the democrat was unable to avoid the collision. Scott was thrown clear of the wreckage and his injuries are not serious. The one horse had his legs broken and sustained internal injuries and died instantly, while the other horse had its leg cut. The driver of the car, known, whether Mr. Scott was carrying lights on his democrat at the time of the accident. Traffic Officer W. V. Pitak went to the scene today to investigate and obtain if possible the name of the driver of the car, which struck the democrat.

ST. ANDREW'S ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Dr. Barclay, of Hamilton, Will Be Preacher

Rev. Dr. Wm. Barclay, Minister of Central Presbyterian Church, Hamilton, will be the special preacher at the anniversary services which are to be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday. Dr. Barclay, who is a preacher of great ability, came to Canada about five years ago from Scotland, where he held an important position in the church. During the war he served as chaplain of the forces in Palestine with Allenby. Dr. Barclay is much interested in educational matters. Recently he was appointed Chaplain of the Canadian Regiment in Hamilton. While in Belleville Dr. Barclay will be the guest of Rev. and Mrs. E. V. Hiley, Bridge Street East.

$1,800,000,000 Blast to Dynamite Frozen Credit Jam in Belleville

String of Federal Banks To Be Created in States

HOOVER'S HOPE

Believes Agency Will Make Impossible Future Slumps

WASHINGTON, D.C. Nov. 14.—(AP)—A $1,800,000,000 blast beneath the frozen home building investment jam is planned by President Hoover through the creation of a string of New Federal Banks.

The President announced late yesterday he would request Congress to set up a dozen home loan discount banks capitalized at around $150,000,000 but capable of advancing 12 times that amount to institutions dealing in small mortgage loans. He expects the results to spread farwise, among those hopes for he listed:

A revival of home building and a resultant increase in employment.

An emergency easing of financial strain upon sound banks and loan associations dealing in home building securities.

A safe-guarding against future buildings slumps.

A long-time promotion of home ownership through the financial strengthening of thrift institutions.

Mr. Hoover's disclosure of his $500,000,000 National Credit Corporation plan of seven weeks ago contained no forecast of the present discount banks proposal. The proposed institution, he said, will not displace the present, but is designed to "occupy an entirely different field of service."

The credit corporation was formed to rediscount gilt-edged paper held by banks but not eligible for rediscount by the Federal Reserve System.

There is no element of inflation in the plan, he asserted, "not simply a better organization of credit for these (home building) purposes."

GRANTS INJUNCTION AGAINST OWNER

Judge Lavell of Kingston granted an injunction and awarded damages for defamation against Mary E. Blakely of Trenton and I. Pierce, farmer of Ameliasburg. The judgment finds that at the time of the action Mrs. Blakely was married. Mrs. Blakely, Charles A. Payne, K. C., appeared for Crook and H. J. Trenton, acted for Mrs. Blakely and F. J. Pierge.

DISCHARGED AFTER 3 TRIALS

Brothers Ordered Released by Attorney-Gen. Hon. W. H. Price.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 14.—(CP)— Oliver and Harvey McNeil who faced trial at Goderich three times on a charge of robbing the Bank of Nova Scotia at Brussels, Ont., of $5,000 on March 4, 1930, were ordered released today by the Attorney General, Hon. W. H. Price. Each time the jury has disagreed.

Commenting on the case today Mr. Price said: "I feel the jury has done its duty in bringing the McNeil brothers three times before a jury the case has resolved itself into one of a question of identity in the second trial the majority of the jurors favored conviction but the last the proportion of the jury favoring conviction was less."

NEW OFFICE FOR GUELPH

Tenders for the work will be called for immediately and it is anticipated that the operations will be under way within a month.

Signora Donna Grandi will Talk to Children in Italy

(By John Evans.)

Copyright 1931, by the Associated Press.

S. S. Conte Grande, Nov. 14 (At Sea, Via Marconi)—The first thing Signora Donna Antonietta Grandi intends to do when she and Foreign Minister Dino Grandi waken in Washington on Tuesday morning is reach for a telephone.

In her richly Latin-accented English she will ask operator:

"Please connect me with Italy". Then she will say:

And within a few moments the two happiest children in Italy will be Francco Grandi, 6, and his little sister, Simonetta, 4. Their mother promised to call them right after reaching her destination and they will be waiting for their governess to tell them her voice is on the other end of the wire.

They are eagerly looking forward to the call, but not more than Signora Grandi herself, who has been exchanging radiograms with them daily.

Hundreds Die Over Pig Theft

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 14 — (AP)—The theft of a pig started a violent conflict between two tribes at Bissa, Portuguese Guinea, in which hundreds of natives have been killed, news dispatches here today said.

Bodies of the victims were found in the jungle under burned native huts. The government formed members of the Macamba tribe be isolated on the Island of Rei.

HOME AND SCHOOL CLUB MEETING

The Home and School Club of King George School held a successful meeting on Friday evening. Mrs. Sandy Graham presided. The chair and two addresses were delivered by Rev. T. S. MacTavish on "Hannah More" and by Miss White of the County Public Library staff: Miss White devoted her attention to the study of children's books and offered suggestions of books as Christmas gifts. Mr. MacTavish in his address pointed out the work of Hannah More, pioneer in the cause of higher education for women. He referred to her life as a woman of society, a literary woman and a worker in the cause of women's education.

OFFICIAL VISIT TO TWEED LODGE

Accompanied by a number of local Masonic brethren, Most Wor. Bro. John Maldens D.D.O.M. of the Prince Edward District made his official visit to the Tweed lodge No. 238 last evening.

After the usual degree work on the floor of the lodge a banquet was tendered the visiting brethren. The local members of the fraternity returned to the city early this morning with nothing but high praises for their southern brethren and their hospitality.

$42.75 IS TURNED OVER TO FUND

Mr. R. H. Ketcheson, secretary of the Belleville Conservative Association handed over to the treasurer of the civic relief committee, the proceeds of the smoker and euchre held in the club rooms last month; this amounting to $42.75. In advertising this gathering the association stated that the proceeds would go toward unemployment relief, and as a meeting of the executive last night it was deemed advisable to turn this money over to the civic committee that it might be augmented by like sums from the Ontario and Dominion governments. The association have planned to hold like social gatherings throughout the winter, and had one in view the latter part of this month. However as the Conservative Women's Club are holding a euchre party at that time, the win be held the first week in December and resultant proceeds again devoted to the cause of relief as heretofore.

MUSKRATS BUILD THEIR HOUSES LOW

Still more signs of a mild and open winter. A resident of the front of Thurlow reports that the muskrats are building their houses low this fall. He states, that invariably, if these residence of the marshes construct their winter abode high above water level, a hard winter sets in early, and continues late. Put this amongst your weather prophecies for reference, and check April next.

CARS AT UPPER BRIDGE IN MISHAP

A slight collision occurred on Friday night between cars owned by G. O. Shantz, Bloomfield, and Thomas Guthrie, of North Front Street, Belleville. Mr. Shantz was driving north over the upper bridge and Mr. Guthrie was coming south over the bridge. In some way the Shantz car is said to have struck the rear side of the Guthrie car. The matter of damages was settled between the parties. Constable Evans investigated the accident.

HERRING RUN STARTS IN BAY

Herring have started running in the bay, the first real haul was made Friday, and some 300 pounds were handled at the fish wharves on Dundas street. Fishermen are looking forward, in the fall months, for their annual run of herring, smelts, and to sail away a pail or keg of them for the winter months.

H. B. STEVENS, OF TRENTON, HONORED

H. B. Stevens, chief despatcher of the Trenton division of the Canadian Pacific Railway, yesterday received a handsome grandfather's clock on his retirement from the company after thirty-three years of service. The presentation was made by Norman McMillan, superintendent of the Trenton division on behalf of the agents, operators and fellow-employes with whom Mr. Stevens was associated.

NO DEPRESSION SIGNS AT DANCE

Old Man Depression was hogtied and placed in a corner by the merry throng of over one hundred and fifty people who danced and enjoyed themselves in another of the weekly dances held by the Ladies' Auxiliary to G.W.V.A. hall last night. Thirty tables were engaged in the earlier part of the evening and by the card players, the winners being as follows: Ladies, Mrs. Corry and Mrs. Whelan and Mrs. Sarnell; Gentlemen, Mr. Savage, Mr. Riggs and Mr. Hadfield. Mrs. Keegan won the special lucky prize. The excellent playing of Miss Darrah, at the piano, will at the next and all succeeding dances, be augmented by a regular orchestra and at no increase of price.

SILENT POLICEMAN IS HIT SPRAWLING

Belleville's guardian of the traffic law which, has stood for a number of years at the corner of Bridge and Front Streets, received a severe jolt when it was knocked hors-de-combat last evening. It is the dummy policeman which so silently directed Belleville's traffic at the above-named corner, and in striking a motorist, who was in some-what of a hurry, the latter quickly knocked it sprawling into the gutter over near the Bridge Street Bank curb where it still lies. Who the culprit was the police department were unable to ascertain, and they are still in search.

These "men" are placed at intersections for the protection of motorists and it is their duty to see that the particular laws are enforced as the "men" have been instructed and will prevent many an accident.

ACTIVE DESPITE HIS 89 YEARS

Nearing the ninety year mark, Mr. C. Grass of this city, is still as spry as many men years younger than himself. Today is his 89th birthday, and today as usual finds him engaged in the pursuits of life which has always been his custom and which even old Father Age fails to slow up. This year he has planted his own garden, cultivated the weeds and garnered the crops and there is not many of the residents of that district near Charles street, have seen him working away as all seasons.

Born in Sidney on the fifth concession he has been a prominent farmer on his own holdings near the Point Anne lane. Fifty years ago he retired to come to live in this city, and since then he has been making his home with Mrs. J. L. Pickell, 161 Charles street. At his late age he still walks almost the old customary cane. Also he particularly enjoys occasional visits by family car. Almost since the first issue of the old "Intelligencer" was printed he has been a steady reader of that paper, a practice he says he still keeps up and will continue to do so as long as he may.

20 CALLS DAILY FOR ODD JOBS

On an average between sixteen and twenty calls a day are being received at the Ontario Government Employment Bureau, Campbell street, from citizens for men to do odd jobs. The opportunity to make a little money is very thankfully received by the men who are urgently in need of it. They are willing to take care of many more jobs than have been coming in and citizens who will not miss the reasonable cost, are urged not to do the work themselves, but to give the jobs to those who are out of employment.

INDIA MUST HAVE REQUEST

Mahatma Gandhi May Be Won Over at Conference

LONDON, Nov. 14 (AP)— Lord Irwin, Viceroy of India, today made a final effort to win over Mahatma Gandhi to a more conciliatory attitude before the end of the Indian Round Table Conference which will come next week.

If Gandhi said he had no hope that the conference would grant any of the Indian Nationalist demand, and that if he goes home empty-handed the civil disobedience campaign will be resumed.

If Great Britain does not grant complete self-government, India will be "plunged into turmoil and suffering" again, Gandhi said.

THREE-IN-ONE ROLE IS TEST

Alice Brady Needs Quick Study in O'Neill Play

New York, N. Y.—Alice Brady is what the stage calls a "quick study." She needs to be, for her leading role in Eugene O'Neill's "Mourning Becomes Electra"—a three-in-one play that has set Broadway's critical heads nodding approval.

For it took a retentive memory to learn her role in the three parts of a trilogy opening before dinner and ending with midnight not to come. As the only leading character that goes through the three plays dealing with New England life.

And with three times the usual lines to speak, Miss Brady gives not only a performance which won critics' praise, But also an example to women forgetful of shopping lists items and to men who can't remember phone numbers

"Mourning Becomes Electra" has 14 acts in all, with an intermission after each. Quick study—or not, Miss Brady says it wasn't up to memorization for a long role.

"I cannot remember anything I do not understand. This is true particularly of the personality of the character I am to play. And so this means reading through the entire script three or four times. There are plays in which one may improvise occasionally—but not in this," she explains. "So much of Mr. O'Neill's meaning may depend upon one little article or conjunction. Take, as an instance, the last play. 'Mourning Becomes Electra.' Its highly emotional and tremendous conclusive phrases all having the same meaning but differently worded. It keeps you on your toes to say these sentences, word for word and at the same time carry the emotion to the necessary heights."

Elizabeth, the personal maid who has served Miss Brady for many years, has her own ideas of the actress' technique in memorizing. "She says de same words ovah and ovah again—when I'se putting on her shoes or doin' mos' anything 'tall. Sometimes I see Miss Brady walking on de terrace with de trees kinda at her heels, and she's still sayin' de same words, ovah and ovah."

"But she knows dem words jus' puffect when she gets on de stage," concluded Elizabeth.

MERCURY DROPS NEARLY 10 POINTS

There has been quite a difference in the temperature between Friday and Saturday. On Friday the mercury dropped to 39 while early Saturday morning it dropped first to point lower to register 34. On Friday the mercury rose to 57 while it only went up as far as 47 on Saturday afternoon. This is a falling off of 10 points in a matter of 24 hours.

POLICE COURT

Four cases were heard Saturday morning in the local police court held before Magistrate Mikel.

The first case of James Watson charged with unlawfully having liquor in a place other than his residence was discharged as the Crown offered no evidence.

Arthur Hall, this city, was charged with assault. The case was laid over until Monday morning at 9 a.m.

The Provincial Police laid a charge of manslaughter against Ross Pretts arising out of a fatal accident on the highway and the Crown asked that the case be enlarged until November 19th which was granted by the Magistrate.

A resident of Thurlow was charged with non-support and failure to provide necessaries of life for his wife. Upon pleading guilty and his attorney assuring the court that the said man would procure a job and sign over his pay to his wife, he was allowed to go upon bail for a bond of $100. If at any time during the next year the accused fails to provide for his wife as he is apprehended intoxicated he will be called upon to forfeit the bond and also serve the maximum sentence which the court may impose, the court said.

There are 432 men on the unemployed register at the City Hall, and work is being given these men three days at a time, which at the present time averages about a day a week. One hundred men are put to work for three days, and then laid off and another hundred taken on for three days, and so on, so that all may have some work.

The three-a-day-a-job campaign has stirred up quite a lot of extra work about homes and business places and Chairman Ponton, of the Employment Committee, stated in answer to a question, that there had been a brisk demand for men and women, to do odd jobs, and still is.

Ten thousand dollars had been made the objective after close investigation of the probable needs and consultation with those closely in touch with welfare work in the city. It was felt that a community chest of this amount would provide for all contingencies, and permit all citizens to take part in this very worthy movement, instead of paying for direct relief out of the taxes as in past years, when only the rich would have an opportunity of contributing.

Over ten thousand dollars was spent out of taxes last year by the city on relief.

It has been suggested that any citizen wishing information on the work of the relief committee and the need for funds, food, clothes, fuel and employment, go to the relief office in City Hall where they can obtain the required information.

Briefly, the registration list of 432 unemployed tells its own story. A number of others are working part time, a number of young men are out of work, women need work, and the committee feels that it must be prepared to care for two hundred or more families this winter.

Reports presented showed direct cash contributions thus far of $81.34, which included $100 from the Holy Name Society of St. Michael's Church. This money is accompanied by a detailed list of receipts and expenditures as required in accordance with the resolution of the City Council that no entertainments be permitted in aid of the unemployment fund without application and permit from the Mayor.

The amount mentioned also includes $250 from the Belleville Fire Department, presented to the annual assembly.

Four hundred cards have been sent out asking subscriptions from individuals of a day's pay a month, or less. Other groups returns have already been made by the students of the Collegiate Institute, banks, government, Bridge store, Bay Hall employees, Post Office employees, Burrows Insurance Office, and Ontario Intelligencer, the employees of all these organizations pledging stated amounts each month to the fund.

The Retail Merchants' Association will take action next week, this large and important group being in charge of the president of the association, Charles Hanna, assisted by H. E. Fairfield, Arthur Wallbridge, and selected teams who will make a concerted drive next week.

The Manufacturers' Association are expected to complete arrangements next week for the contributions of the various industrial plants, and it is hoped that all groups will be heard from before the campaign ends.

From the plans of the committee every citizen of Belleville will have an opportunity to contribute to this Community Chest movement to the end that no child, or woman or man, be permitted to suffer cold or hunger this winter in the prosperous city of Belleville.

Subscription lists have been opened at the banks for those who desire to make their contributions there.

The list of direct cash subscriptions is printed in another column and each day's direct cash subscriptions will be acknowledged in this paper, together with the totals of previous amounts received.

Miss Lynch, Secretary of the Women's Christian Association, has had charge of the relief work before relief work in Belleville for many years, was present and gave valuable assistance in regard to present and past relief work and the needs of the day. Miss Lynch will spend considerable time each day at relief headquarters City Hall where she will be glad to give information to any citizen in regard to relief work.

The groups who will take corporate action in pledging monthly contributions to the fund for three months or six may be deemed necessary, are as follows:

Government Offices.
Ontario School for the Deaf.
Manufacturers.
Canadian Stations, Oil Co's. and Garages.
Retail Merchants.
Collegiate Institute.
Public Schools.
Medical Association.
Hotels, City Police.
Insurance Brokers.

DINO GRANDI TO MEET WITH PRES. HOOVER

Will Discuss Matters Bearing on Economics of World

FULL POWER

Police Will Guard Italian While a Guest of United States

Washington, D.C., Nov. 14 (By Ken Clarke, Canadian Press Staff writer)—Signor Dino Grandi, Italian minister for Foreign Affairs, will confer here Monday to discuss with President Hoover matters bearing on the economic and order of the world.

Officials do not anticipate definite agreements will be made although Signor Grandi as the representative of Premier Mussolini will complete or present the Italian state. In this respect he is obviously a more emancipated conversationalist than Premier Laval, who at the White House had to keep in mind the opposition parties in France.

The secret service and the police at Washington and New York as well as those who keep tab on radical Italian elements in other cities, have been on the qui vive for days, following up the activities of known opponents of the Fascisti regime. Authorities here are anxious as to the personal safety of Signor Grandi, and their anxiety has not been lessened by the bombing of the home of the Italian vice-consul at Scranton, Pennsylvania.

Signor Grandi is not to Mussolini the outstanding Fascist of his country. In his twenties he was chief of staff of the famous march of the blackshirts on Rome. At Sarebruck, now in Saar, he was most trusted lieutenant, and it would not be surprising if he should some day succeed the Italian dictator.

The immaculate, black-bearded Italian statesman came to Washington as the guest of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson with whom he had become acquainted at the London Disarmament Conference. At this conference there was a dispute between France and Italy as to the rights of Italy to build to the same naval strength as France.

With the disarmament conference achieved in the offing, and France insisting on security, the visit of Grandi following immediately upon that of Laval, gives rise to much speculation concerning conversations on arms.

CONSOLIDATION COMES NEARER

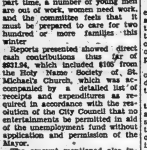
International Paper, Consolidated Paper, and Abitibi, Affected

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 14.—(By Canadian Press)—Leading newsprint executives of the Dominion are engaged here in an attempt to weld together the most important mills in the Dominion into a Consolidation plan, it is learned. For three days the leaders of the industry have been in conference continuing efforts which in the past have failed many times. It is understood, however, that hope is held out that the present efforts will be successful, particularly as there is being furnished by the banking interests associated with the industry.

Canadian International Paper; Abitibi Power and Paper Company, Consolidated Paper Corporation, St. Lawrence Paper Corporation, Price Brothers and Company Limited, and Ontario Paper Company have representatives at the discussions which are taking place in Montreal.

The successful creation of Consolidated Paper Corporation as a result of the re-organization of the Canada Power and Paper Corporation of the Canada Power and Paper Corporation has apparently resulted in the establishment of a new basis upon which negotiations can be conducted.

It is understood the price of newsprint is now a factor in the current negotiations. The opinion appears general that current prices will be maintained but in such a merger as there is being attempted important benefits could result through operating economies and savings on freight.



Should the consolidation of the above noted companies be effected the newly created organization would have an annual capacity of approximately 2,000,000 tons, or about half of the annual consumption of the American continent.

Under the chairmanship of a leading figure in the economic life of the Dominion, the meetings here are being attended by Alexander Smith, president of Abitibi, A. R. Graustein, president of the Canada International Paper; Ernest Rossiter, President of St. Lawrence Corporation and Col. J. H. Price President of Price Brothers, among others.

HER PERFECT MAN DEFINED

"The Perfect Man" Must Clearly Understand World "NO"

Berkeley, Cal., Nov. 14 — Apropos of the agitation on various university campuses in favor of splitting the cost of a "date" between the man and the girl, a group of University of California coeds today announced they would be willing to pay all the expenses of such if providing the men come up to their specifications of the perfect male.

The girls say the perfect man should be, tall, and broad-shouldered; must dance well and drink well, if at all; talk well, think well, provide well and enjoy the monotones, caps, spats and cigarette holders. Most essential they agreed, he must have a "clear understanding of the word 'no'."

The importance of his qualities are ranked as follows:

Intelligence, 20 per cent; cultural and social background, 15 per cent; personality appearance, 15 per cent; personality, 20 per cent; courtesy, 10 per cent; physical fitness, 5 per cent; social poise, 5 per cent; and dancing ability 10 per cent.

"But if he has all the qualities which make up a perfect man," they concluded "he wouldn't allow a girl to pay his way."

Gardenia perfume is having a run right now. It is delicate and stable and will cause the passerby to take a long breath as he toddles on. Many popular scents are boo queta or blends. That's why they have such taking names that look intriguing on the label.

and consideration by neighbors and other sympathizing women in the town. The home where the Greenshields live is very clean and comfortable.

Talks Freely

Greenshields talked freely and frankly with the police officers. At times he would break down and sob terribly. He told the officers that he has no idea what he attacked his little sons, who were very dear to him. Something, he said, came over him and between life time he got up in the morning and the time when he discovered what he had done and asked Mrs. Rutherford to inform the town police, he had no recollection what-ever. His head, he said, felt as though it were filled with a cloud. He could not tell when he took the lodine, before or after the Greenshields said that they were not destitute. He and the children looked well nourished.

Mother Worked

Mrs. Greenshields records obtained from a local shoe factory and he earned a little money doing odd jobs. He is thirty-seven years old and his wife is thirty-five years old. They have been married close to twelve years. They both came from the south of Scotland and knew each other as children. Just what part of southern Scotland the man and Mrs. Greenshields did not specify. Greenshields came to Canada twenty-four years ago. In 1915 he enlisted in the 59th Winnipeg Rifles and went overseas with that regiment in 1916. He served in France and received a shrapnel wound in one leg. Only recently he was pensioned by the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

Coboconk, Ont., Nov. 14—Hugh Greenshields, considered veteran, charged with murder of his 4-year-old son, Billy, appeared before Magistrate W. H. Brady this morning on a charge of murder. He was remanded for eight days. Greenshields was brought here from Campbellcroft last night by Provincial Constables W. Carey and Hall.

Peterboro, Ont., Nov. 14 (CP)—Hugh Greenshields, 37, who cut his throat with a razor blade, Friday morning in the Ontario Hospital with a serious fracture of the skull, was reported unchanged this morning by hospital authorities.

The boy was injured yesterday when his father, Hugh Greenshields of Campbellcroft, entered the bedroom where Walter and his younger brother were sleeping and it is charged, killed Billy, aged five, with a knife. The father then attempted suicide by drinking lodine but recovered later and told neighbors what he had done.

Greenshields is now under arrest in Cobourg.

Picton—Streets, sidewalks, waterworks, $10,000, $2,500.

Trenton — Sewers, waterworks, street grading, $50,000, $7,500.

Colborne—Water and sewer extensions, $3,000, $1,250.

Bellevile—Retaining wall, improving river front, $70,000, $17,500.

The work at Belleville has been changed in the duplicate water main The latter work has been passed by the relief authorities.

When manicuring the finger nails the file filing first before the hands are plunged into the soapy bath. Moist nail eaves fold back under the file, make filing difficult. Place the instrument well under the side of the nail, work toward the centre. Cleanse with the orange wood stick which will bring up a heavy under-skin that the metal does not remove. Whip it off with a bevelling file of sand paper. When nails are thickened, plunge the finger tips into a cut lemon.

IMAGINATION HONORED

Marie Dressler's victory in the talkie contest must be a severe blow for the sweet-faces of Hollywood who, though fine-looking have not one part of the brilliant mental and histrionic equipment of this veteran artist of stage and film. Marie Dressler is a comedian of remarkable gifts, she is better looking than her film views give her out to be but she doubtless has never claimed to excel the Venus of Milo as some of the younger ladies of filmland evidently believe they do. Nor is she young like newcomers to the screen whose youth might be expected to bear them the palm if anything would.

The theatre-going public have risen about the externals to praise the mental equipment of this "life" on the stage, the one and only Marie Dressler. Like people in real life Marie charms one and all, forgetful whether she is twenty or older and whether she is Venuslike in her looks, rather more common. The movie audience has been held up to ridicule for lavishing praise upon mere amateurs in art, but heroes they have largely redeemed themselves, if the charge is true.

It is Marie Dressler who is the queen of the ladies of the screen, not the young pretty faces who merely form a pleasant background.

Back of it all is this—the movie-loving world has come into—greater knowledge of art through the talking picture and the brain is being recognized as the chief requisite of success on the screen. The old rule which gave a pretty face and a shapely form the chief prize may rule for a time yet, but slowly and surely that indefinable thing, genius or brain and imagination, will be acclaimed as the desideratum in art.

COMMUNIST TRIAL

The Communist trial has come to an end and seven of the men found guilty of membership in an unlawful association, of acting as members of such a society and of entering into seditious conspiracy have been sentenced upon conviction to a term of five years in the penitentiary and to deportation at the expiry of their terms, and one has been sent to a term of two years.

The Communism, which is now proven to have taken a hand in trying to change conditions in this country, has had a fair trial and the moderation of the authorities and the courtesy of the officers of the law in the prosecution is what Canadians would expect in the courts of the land and is what Communists themselves would be the first to demand.

The trial has opened the eyes of the people to the dangers which the most settled order of society may have to face from plotting by foreign powers. The priceless boon of order and protection which everyone, even a Communist, enjoys in Canada, will now be cherished more and more. There is no doubt the trial will prove useful to many more Canadians will feel that every liberty they have must be defended at all costs, that there can be no bartering with principles which seek to overthrow.

They will appreciate what the officers of the law have done to assemble the evidence which was submitted to the court in bringing to law and justice those who are now found guilty of having entered into a seditious conspiracy.

SELF-SACRIFICING

Dr. Mowbray's death at the conclusion of an operation which he had finished by beating off the attack of heart trouble which he felt coming on, is one of the most touching events on record. His sacrifice of himself when retirement from the operating room would have caused his life to be spared was, however, what was to be expected of a great-hearted citizen, whose calling was surgery. His work was relief of the suffering and if that made the supreme call upon him it made no difference in his mind.

In other spheres of medicine, in research work, or in science, men give themselves wholeheartedly to investigation and discovery regardless of their own convenience or health.

MUST NOT FORGET

Armistice Day speeches and programs serve to keep alive the thoughts aroused when a clear view was had of the results of the world war. It cannot be allowed to fade into oblivion for with the passage of time the wounds are healing and a new spirit is growing up. Therein lies the danger for a generation may arise which knowing nothing of war's experiences may not fear to rush in.

There must never be a forgetting of the havoc of this one war, which, if not remembered, will but pale into almost insignificance beside the next war of destruction and horror of a hundredfold.

THERE IS A GIFT

BY Aline Michaelis

There is a gift
That comforts me,
However fierce
Life's winds may be;
Though I must go
Through bitter gales
I have a gift
That never fails.

It is a cloak
To wrap about
My form against
The winds of doubt:
A talisman
It is, I wear
Against regret,
Against despair.

This love of all
Earth's loveliness
Closely against My heart I press;
I have no dread,
I feel no fear
While beauty's ranks
Are crowding near.

WHEN ONE MAN can contribute one million dollars to the Detroit fund for the relief of the unemployed, there can no longer be any excuse for the bogy of hard times. The only trouble is that wealth is congested and not put to work properly, a condition which will be righted in time when the problem of production and overproduction and all the minor ailments of our present system of commerce have disappeared in a more modern and more efficient system.

LEST WE FORGET—only one motor car stopped for the two minute silence at the corner of Bridge and Front streets at eleven o'clock Remembrance Day morning, and that car bore U. S. A. license plate. In front of the armouries a traffic policeman stopped the traffic for the two minutes. In Toronto a remembrance service in progress in a church yard was disturbed by the noise of motor cars and trucks going by and the two minute silence was a bedlam of unnecessary noise. Lest we Forget? Cannot we remember the great cataclysm and the deadly fear of a few years ago when a war crazed monarch made an insane bid for domination of the world. Surely we can spare two minutes from our hectic, hasty lives once each year for remembrance rake.

A NEW FEATURE this year in the Remembrance Day parade centred in the Sea Cadets who turned out one hundred per cent. strong under Commander (Alderman) George Griffin. The lads sure did make a smart appearance and fully justified the time and thought put into the movement by those who desire to perpetuate pride of the British Navy and its many years of honorable history in the youth of the land, besides inculcating the benefits of naval training in the development of courage, obedience to discipline, physical strength and mental alertness. Next to attract was the Belleville Band with Reg. Hinchey, bandmaster, proudly leading and with several of the uniforms of war days in the 21st Battalion Band, following. Then the veterans who had passed through that awful baptism of fire and blood in Flanders that the menace of mad militarism might not pass, doing honour to the comrades for whom those crosses row on row mark the place where they make their last earthly bivouac, while the poppies wave and the larks go wheeling by. Remembrance Day, may it over be a holiday, and more than a holiday, a holy day, kept for itself alone and not mixed up with any other holiday.

"IT WAS NOT MY TURN TO EAT TODAY," said a little schgol girl to her teacher recently in one of those United States when asked why she was not playing. She answer that she did not feel like playing, as it was not her turn to eat today. There not being enough food in the house for daily meals the children had to take turns. Just think that over when figuring up just how much you can contribute to the civic relief fund. We must not let the children suffer.

DOUBLE SHIFTS IN SCHOOLS

With the approval of the Minister of Education, Hon. George S. Henry, the London Board of Education has adopted what is known as London's Extended Time Plan, or Staggered Classes. The scheme, which is designed to avoid needless expenditures, will become effective in the fifteen collegiate institutes of the city, and also in the technical school. This will, it is claimed, increase the capacity of the institutions 50 per cent., and by this means defer a building programme by at least five years. There will, of course, be additional expense through the necessity of engaging extra teachers and assistant secretaries and librarians.

The plan was suggested in Edmonton some time ago but was not received with any degree of enthusiasm. London will be the first city to operate its schools longer hours. It is proposed to open the secondary and technical schools at eight o'clock in the morning, and close them at five o'clock in the afternoon, instead of operating from nine o'clock to four o'clock as at present. The regular luncheon hour will, of course be provided for. The London Board of Education in this way meets a situation due to overcrowded schools, which must also be met in Toronto and other cities. The experiment, which will begin in September, 1932, will undoubtedly be watched with considerable interest.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

SALINESS AND BIRTHDAYS

It must be admitted that the University of Illinois is abreast of the times; and that is an achievement in these days of odd methods for the dissemination of knowledge. A clinic has been established there for the bald. Reports say that there has been a rush of men, women, and even children, who do not seem to enjoy this handy addition. A researching doctor on the staff there has been discovered to extract that will restore what the race seems to regard as the crown of glory. But surely this doctor is aware that every barber has for many yes a known a sure and secure cure. In fact, customers need not make inquiries; the indication will come voluntarily after a few confidential remarks have disaffect that "it is getting a bit thin on top."

But why the objection to baldness? There may be a between-ages period, when man is fighting off all evidences of the encroachment of time, during which there is apprehension over falling and greying locks, but that passes when it is realized that the bald spot is determined to take with it some weight and the need for a longer belt.—Toronto Globe.

Back in 1886 the official view of Washington was that the world was already over-capitalized and overmachined, and that to open up large profits is probably past." Subsequent events in the following day or large profits had only begun; and so it will be in the future As we emerge from the present depression the whole world will march forward to lighter hours, increased production and consumption. Undeveloped lands in Asia and Africa will be exploited. Rising standards of living for the masses will produce larger markets even in the Americas and Europe. There is every reason, therefore, to believe that Canada, with its immense resources, will not only recover but emerge from the depression, as it is even now emerging from the slaughtering of 1,500 head this fall, in order that the Government herds of Wainwright parks, Alberta which is the greatest national park for animals, may not be overstaged. It was in 1907 that the Dominion government purchased the pure bred herd of 716 buffalo from Michael Pablo, for which price it is stated that, under the favorable conditions in which they were placed and the protection given them, the members have increased over thirty-fold, in the fall of 1930 it was found necessary to slaughter 2,000 of the animals and since then nearly 4,000 have been disposed of. In the meantime about 7,000 have been transported north to Wood Buffalo park, near Fort Smith, N.W.T. The buffalo are reported to be in excellent condition, the commercial value of the hides being great, for the government is careful to slaughter only animals in the late fall, when the hair is longer and coarse and fine robe is at its best, having attained dark color. The flesh also is in demand, being regarded by many as superior to the best beef.—Hamilton Spectator.

BON VOYAGE

Jack Canuck—"If ever man earned a holiday, it's you B. B."

Heard On The Street

Observed on Pinnacle Street the other evening. A monstrous grease spattered and asphalt streaked dump truck came thundering along just as a tiny kitten engrossed in the pursuit of a small wind blown piece of paper jumped out in front of it. The driver slapped on his brakes, came to a dead stop, disentangled from his cab and rescued the kitten, unharmed, which he gently placed on the sidewalk. Then with his hunter, blood red boy.

And further up the street a rather elderly man and a dishevelled lady were engaged in a row down the sidewalk. When they finally disappeared between two houses the man had gained considerably. What things people see some times.

New fad in Christmas cards. Now you can send them a photograph of your pet cat or dog, and those people, who do things like that make a fair point sticking of them on fancifully decorated cards and send them back to you as a present, of course. And speaking of pets, poor kitty is dead. Nine lives shuffled off—has like that. And the poor body lies in repose up on Alexander street. And has been for over a week. That great big potato the paper wrote about wasn't hollow, or didn't have a cavity in it like the boys said it did. So all bets are off.

"Three more local men will be out of their soft jobs before next week, or next. One's very prominent locally. And that doesn't mean any bank or loan company either. Unfortunates for years now. Not that he has any more than the law allows him either. Yet he does it out of goodness of heart. But does he blow about it? Not his name is a "V.S." at the rag of it. What a simple, kind and generous disposition and argument the boys had in the barber shop the other night. All over whether a gold fish slurps its food with water or not. And the money that was once stuffed under sash others now. Well, now that the bet is settled the boys are going to find out—i.e. some one is going to put up liquid and watch one? Ducks have all gone. Nell is not to be seen at May Bay. So they tell me, and a few days ago there were hundreds of them down there have gone South for the Winter, too. And the seven point plight of the Belleville Rebels. Brier Rabbit. They also tell us a few more about the doings of the 21st battalion who returned from Kingston Wednesday. The boom boom man on the drum couldn't quit it long enough to let the rest hear. Then they al get out of step and some very saucy young children were there, the rear, said they. Some of the smaller sisters weren't to be found until after the war was around the town seemed to be more quiet than usual that day. Wonder who that lady dressed in black and with the black veil, is the paper wrote about. Another prominent man is due for a transfer to Toronto soon. And it is said that a new amalgamation effecting a very large concern is due to take place at any time. How that man standing on the sidewalk did cuss the other day, when he came out of the store and found his car fender all scratched up. Brand new car and shiny fenders all streaked and gouged by some body, who evidently did not like him. Not blaming him. And the lad with the pack on his back who goes around selling needles. And positively gets insulting when none are wanted. But he says to the wrong house the other night and was chased half a block down the street by one husky householder, who took offence at his insinuating remarks and householder didn't have the quarter to buy a packet. Then said he hadn't seen a quarter for a year or maybe it was less. Anyhow it was war as one friend transient thought it best to remove as quickly as he could. Also we know several other purveyors of knick-nacks who sometimes make life a burden. No, they are those fellows who put their foot between the door and the jamb just positively refuse to take the hint. And all the while the baby is crying, or the cake is burning, or maybe it is just the afternoon nap. Anyhow a hard card experiment for the disposal of these insect pests should include a short life. Then used at the discretion and humor of the harried householder. Another man came in from Bancroft with a deer much larger than the one mentioned in the paper the other day. His was quite a bit over two hundred. So the honors and the sterilized moustache cup goes to him.

Little Benny's Note Book

His was reading the sporting page on account of having read everything else in the paper, saysays he to pop. What is cricket, Willyum, cid you ever play it?

Why yes, I played it a few times in my mad youth, pop said. The English boys bring their game here just as often as they were playing baseball, and perhaps they are. As Shakespere said, Nor'westhings what you think it is, so give it a month and then id half to begin all over again.

Why would you? Are you thinkthe English boys have become obscure forin language? she said, with a sniff of pop. No, they have how limited your noliege of sport is to the dum dum game? Why no kind, in fact I know already that cricket is a game played with bats, said, and pop said, Yes gods how can it be when there are only 2 bats used in the whole game?

I mean in a general way, just as baseball is a game played all ball in a general way, ma said, and pop said, O, I see your point, you mean cricket is like tennis in a general way, and golf is more like a cigar box in a general way.

Now Willyum you canjt be that stupid, pop said, you must be put aboard, ma said. If you think you nearly intelligent is on such a higher plain than mine, just explain to me how it is cricket in a general way and youll soon see if I follow them, pop said with scorn.

Well, in a general way the rules of cricket are similar to the rules of ping pong but as an electric fire bulb is similar to a fancy vest in a general way, pop said.

You may think youre screening a funny but I assure you youre the only one thats laffing, ma said. Its much meant, Benjamin Junior, too, and ma dident stop being mad till pop had changed his slippers back to his shoes and took her to the movies against his will.

32 MEN ARE DISCHARGED

Let Go When Complained About Quality of Soup

NORTH BAY, Ont., Nov. 13. — Thirty-two men employed on the construction of the trans-Canada highway at Sucker were discharged today for, they claim, making a complaint to the superintendent with reference to the quality of a certain stew that was served for supper last night. According to the men a complaint was registered to the superintendent. The latter investigated and passed the stew as quite good. Later the two men who made the complaint, along with 30 others, were given their time. They reported to the district office of the Northern development at North Bay at 1 p.m. No report has been recently from the camp superintendent up to 1.30, but this is expected this afternoon. The men discharged are from St. Catherines.

BY-ELECTION WARMING UP

Charges and Counter Charges Made As Battle Wages

GUELPH, Ont., Nov. 12. — The Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway is in debt to the extent of $500,000 this year declared Mitchell F. Hepburn, Liberal leader in Ontario, addressing a meeting in Pickering Township last night in the interests of D. Pahl Munro, Liberal candidate in the South Wellington election. The publicly owned railway made a payment to the government this year of $650,000 but this did not cover half the interest charges on the thirty millions advanced from the public treasury. The annual interest due to the province is $1,300,000.

The financial record of the Ontario government, said Mr. Hepburn, has been one of extravagance and negligence. Taxes were mounting, the debt was increasing and those least able to bare the burden were being taxed the heaviest.

Noting that Hon. J. M. Robb, Minister of Health, had challenged him to point to one instance where provincial expenditures were exorbitant, Mr. Hepburn said Dr. Robb himself last year increased from $6,000 to $10,000 the yearly salary of one doctor in his department.

Ontario Well Governed

Ontario has the most efficient and business-like administration in its history, Hon. W. G. Martin, Minister of Public Welfare, told an audience in Fergus last night. After eight years of office "no single person can point to one lot or trifle of mal-administration or corruption." He was supporting W. G. Gamble, Conservative candidate in South Wellington by-election. Hon. G. H. Challies, Provincial Secretary spoke at Rockwood.

Challenging Mitchell F. Hepburn, Liberal leader, to contest a provincial seat, Mr. Martin questioned if it were not the "fear of the ballot box" that led to his decision to wait until the general election to become a candidate.

ASKS POWER TO STOP DUMPING

British Gov't Expected to Ask Preliminary to a Tariff

CONFERENCE DATE

Now Subject of Correspondence Between Governments

LONDON, Nov. 13—(AP)—It was confidently asserted last night by observers of all political leanings that the Government is to move immediately to assume drastic powers against dumping of goods in Great Britain in anticipation of a tariff.

Cheers greeted Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's statement in the House of Commons that he would have a statement on the subject of dumping before the end of the debate on the Speech from the Throne. The statement is expected Monday. It is expected that the Government will introduce a bill giving it emergency power to act by "orders-in-Council", thus eliminating the delay which would be caused by the passage of legislation through the House.

Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, was greeted with prolonged cheers from the Conservative benches when he told the House the Government welcomed Canada's invitation to hold an Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa.

The question of the date on which the conference would be held was now the subject of correspondence between the governments concerned, he said, adding that altered conditions rendered it especially necessary that the date should not be hastened before July. The Government did not contemplate the risk of failure, and all necessary preparations to hammer out the details to ensure success was its first consideration, he declared.

Sir Henry Page Croft, Conservative member for Bournemouth, and a chairman of the Empire Industries Association, urged any changes in policy meanwhile should be based on preference towards the Dominions. Mr. Thomas replied, he thought it unlikely there would be any change which would prejudice Empire interests.

Farmer Has Pocket Book Containing $125.00, Probably Pay

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 13.—Although more than two dozen of his chickens failed to come home to roost there's a gleeful farmer in the Parish of Charlesbourg, near here. Thieves made a raid on the farmer's hen coop and made off with over twenty four fowl, but in the scuffle to capture the elusive chicks, one of the robbers dropped a pocketbook containing $125.00 and this now is in possession of the farmer. The latter has expressed himself as being well satisfied with his involuntary sale.

SGT. LEOPOLD ONCE ACCUSED

Sustained By Comrades When Accused of Being Police Officer

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP) — An interesting sidelight on the work of Sergeant John Leopold of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in collecting evidence against the Communist party of Canada was disclosed by Norman Somerville, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, to the Canadian Press today. Leopold as "Comrade E. W. Eastgain," acted as secretary of the Regina branch of the Communist party for seven years.

At a convention in 1927, Mr. Somerville said, Matthew Popovitch, one of the convicted men, charged Leopold with being a member of the police.

From his seat, Leopold rose, he addressed the gathering. For years he said, he had worked and fought for the Communist party. Was it logical to conclude then, that he was a member of the police?

Popular with the rank and file of the party the mounted policeman's arguments prevailed. The convention voted five to one in his support.

ARMED ROBBERY CHARGE IS LAID

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP)—Oscar Campbell, who was brought back last night from Owen Sound where he had been arrested in connection with the armed hold-up of Stanley Jones, cashier of the Bread Bread Co., in Toronto, appeared before Magistrate Robert Brown in police court today, charged with robbery while armed and with vagrancy, and was remanded until November 19, on the latter charge, the former one being withdrawn.

Melvinle Campbell, a brother, is held here in custody charged with the robbery. Lloyd Campbell, another brother, also of Owen Sound, was held for a time but was allowed to go after being questioned by the police.

This is a RED LETTER DAY IN GASOLINE HISTORY

McCOLL-FRONTENAC makes TWO announcements of unparalleled interest to the motoring public!

THE TWO GREATEST NAMES IN GASOLINE UNITE TO GIVE CANADIANS THE WORLD'S FINEST MOTOR FUEL

CYCLO-ETHYL

To the supreme quality of Cyclo Motor Fuel there has now been added Ethyl, the celebrated "no-knock" fluid.

Ethyl Fluid is not a gasoline—it is a scientifically developed ingredient, which, added to gasoline, takes out the knock that develops under high compression. Cyclo gasoline is the world's finest motor fuel, and developed by an exclusive process. Its superiority has long been acknowledged. Can you wonder, then, that the addition of Ethyl fluid to Cyclo gasoline has resulted in a motor fuel—CYCLO-ETHYL—that we confidently believe will open a new era of engine performance.

On sale now at all Red Indian stations and dealers. If you want a new sensation, fill up your tank with CYCLO-ETHYL.

THE NEW WINTER GRADE MARATHON "BLUE" GASOLINE

From now on you will find at all Red Indian Stations and dealers a newly developed Winter Grade of MARATHON "BLUE." The use of MARATHON "BLUE" this winter will make for quick starting and a shorter warming-up period.

This winter grade MARATHON "BLUE" is extra in everything but price.

Extra starting power—extra anti-knock quality—extra fast pick-up—extra miles per gallon, and all at the price of ordinary gasoline.

OUTLAWS OF EDEN

by Peter B. Kyne

"Have it your own way," he agreed. He was disappointed.

"Jealous hasn't quit," she reminded him. "We have one more fight on our hands. He'll wait until the local excitement is over and then pass around his petition for permission to organize the Irrigation district."

"Well, we'll not hinder him, Lorry. I want him to put his plan through, and after he has it completed we'll bust him and his deluded followers wide open."

Vengeance was ever sweet to a Kershaw. "We'll make them pay for it through the nose then," she warned him. "For every broke they inflicted on you, Nate, dear, the price of that water must go up not less than twenty-five cents per acre foot."

"Well you're unnecessarily vindictive," he compromised. "Don't worry about my getting soft. When I get through with Forlorn Valley they'll be a classic ruin and after I've turned my attention upon Silas Bash son it will require a good man to lead that sorry wretch to his meals —if any."

"This ring will do nicely," said Lorry dreamily. "It's gorgeous, darling."

"And we'll spend our summers in Eden Valley and our winters outside," he suggested.

She leaned against him a little wearily and held him tight but did not answer.

INSTALMENT XXIII

Somebody once remarked that nothing could be more surpassing interest for a period greater than nine days. The forty-eight hours following the unexpectedly painful and highly dramatic denouement of his plan to sway public opinion against Nate Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw Silas Babson suffered acutely, not because he was sorry for what he had done but because the effect had been so wholly unexpected and progenant of disaster to him. After having arranged to prevent the expose of the whole affair in court with probable penitentiary sentences for a couple of hitherto respectable but mercurial citizens, he began to view life with a less jaundiced eye; and when, at the expiration of the prearranged period he felt morally certain that "that Eden Valley gang," as he now referred to Nate, Lorry and Nube Tarney, was going to cling to its ancient tradition and have nothing whatsoever to do with legal reprisals, all of his old gaminesse and optimism returned.

When he visited the victims of the fray and discovered that none of them would lose a leg he felt permanently crippled. He scolded them severely; reminded them that they had been wild and lawless, that they had exceeded the speed limit, as it were; that by their actions they had seriously prejudiced the best interests of the community that they had brought opprobrium and unenviable publicity upon a respectable community, which would be long recovering from the shock of their disgraceful actions. Of course he added) he had no sympathy for that Eden Valley gang and would have been glad to see Nate Tichenor silenced, cried down, and booted back to Eden Valley, but he drew the line at beating a man half to death—a dozen against one—oiling and feathering him. That sort of thing belonged in the Dark Ages; and since, apparently, Lorry Kershaw and Nate Tichenor appeared to be thicker than thieves and would undoubtedly marry, it was but natural for the girl, being a Kershaw, to fight like a wild cat for her man.

Babson pointed out to his depressed listeners that the Kershaw-Tichenor clique got at eye for an eye, tooth for a tooth; so much was only too well known to everybody in the community, but merely because Lorry Kershaw was the last of the Kershaws and a woman was no reason why she should be suspected of not being a Kershaw and leaving her architect's home. Right was right, and Hensley or one Kershaw had already automatically become a member of both clans to rally to their banners at the least call. Wild and lawless as they were, they had the decency to stick to each other where their kinsmen were involved.

"You fellows dassen't prosecute Nate Tichenor for murder," he enlightened auditors, "Strictly speaking it wasn't murder. He was shot at and hacked her, and she couldn't plead self-defense under the law, but the fact that she shot at all—you boys will remember—gives the people of Eden Valley Creek, to wit, Estate of Hamilton Kershaw, deceased, Estate of Lland and Cattle Company, and the Bonanza Valley Power Company, the last two companies, as it generally known, being controlled in their entirety by Mr. Nathan Tichenor. On behalf of my clients I desire formally to protest to the honorable board against the formation of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation District and will state my reasons briefly."

Gagan immediately proceeded to explain that the petition was illegal, chiefly the picture that Nate Tichenor had painted to him, Challenged Mr. Morton to produce that illegal statement. Gagan spoke simply, earnestly, arraying his facts in logical sequence.

When he had finished his address Gagan bowed to the board and started to leave the chamber. There was silence until he was halfway down the aisle, then a storm of hisses and boos broke around him. Gagan looked back as she reached the door and saw that Silas Babson was on his feet, his hand raised for silence.

"So you're going to refute my statements, eh?" Gagan called back. "Well before I depart I'll give you and your deluded followers some very good advice, free. The man who acts as his own attorney has a fool for a client."

He sauntered back to his hotel and sent the following telegram to Nate Tichenor in New York:

"I played them fair and shoved their faces in nothing but the sleeves Stop Nevertheless as you foretold I failed to convince them Stop Human beings have a curious habit of believing only what they wish to believe so since we have shoved them in their yide their new hobby-horse to ruin.

INSTALMENT XXIV

The board of supervisors granted the petition unanimously and amidst cheers and rejoicings. Babson's speech, in rebuttal to Gagan's proved to be the masterpiece of his career. He read to the meeting the law under which the district proposed to operate—read it right out of the Code of Civil Procedure, too —and pooh-hooed the idea of the slick metropolitan lawyer trying to frighten honest and intelligent men with crazy bugaboos of unconstitutional law that was and for many years had been embodied in the ganization of the district now proceeded in orderly and legal progression. On the day the board of supervisors held an open meeting for consideration of the project Lon Morton, the local attorney for the Land and Valley Centre arguments and was overruled. Nothing daunted, Babson's engineer was present with blue-print maps and discussed the areas of the proposed district and the method and feasibility of leading water to the district. When he had finished there were half-dozen dwellers in the proposed district who had, evidently been investigating the local project diligently and were not at all convinced of its feasibility because of possible successful fight in opposition by Nate Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw, entered a formal protest.

Babson was prepared for these objections, however, and so the intelligent farmer with a flair for figures proceeded to enlighten the audience to rebut their protests. This individual pointed out to the board that the protestants had holdings on the fringe of the district and that when and if the district should be organized and operating, pumping from the well in the district would cease; that thereupon the subterranean water levels would automatically rise, with the result that there would again be ample water, on a shallow lift, in the wells of these protestants who already indicated to remain out of the district in order to take advantage of this advantageous situation. In the case of Joe Brainerd he then proceeded to "play" the protestant for anti-social business and a lack of civic pride and community helpfulness, to which charge the protestants could only offer and indignant sceptical denial which failed to convince the board.

The chairman of the board rapped with his gavel. "The pros appear to have had their innings," he announced smilingly. "Are there any cons to be heard from?"

A man rose in the rear of the hall, walked up to the railing in front of the dais upon which the board sat, handed a paper to the board and then to the audience. Mr. Superintendent Kershaw, the name is John W. Gagan, a member of the San Francisco law firm of Sproul, Brock & Sproul, and as you'll appear as the legal representative of the Land and Cattle Company, Eden Valley Creek, to wit, Estate of Hamilton Kershaw, deceased, Estate of Land and Cattle Company, and the Bonanza Valley Power Company, the last two companies, as is generally known, being controlled in their entirety by Mr. Nathan Tichenor. On behalf of my clients I desire formally to protest to the honorable board against the formation of the Forlorn Valley Irrigation District and will state my reasons briefly."

WHAT WE NEED IS MORE PANTS BUTTONS

Fellow Citizens:

I see that women are taking up sewing again. Men have never quit wild oats, I mean. But women are taking to sewing with an eye. You know yourselves I have been getting along with hardly a stitch. I mean tailoring, of course. They have bought ready-made about everything they wore. That wasn't much. It was different when I was young, and it's a good thing it is. In those days women made about everything they wore, and they were everything but naked days. In those days a woman had a pair of trunks full of skirts. How about all she has is a pair of trunks, and one skirt. Clothes are a good old custom, and I am glad to see them coming back.

My mother made about everything she wore and made over about everything I wore. She could take an old suit of my father's, and by putting the front of them where the seat of the pants used to be, she could fix it over so you would hardly know, except for the soup stains. Mother died ten years among the brethren. Ma did the same with Pa's pants.

So women have gone back to sewing. I am glad to hear it, or will be when I am one hear. What I want to know is whether it is fashion or button. Buttons are out but buttons are a necessity. Dollies are all right but you can't get along without buttons. Although, at that some of us have had to.

So, if women take up sewing, I hope they will take up sewing pants buttons first. Sewing, if you might call an essential industry, I can't think of anything essentialer. This country will never make much progress if a man has to go around with his pants all the while to hold up his pants all the while. And some men have had to do that, so I have heard.

Yes, sir, buttons are just as much standard equipment, per a pair of pants as a good furnace is to the home during the winter months.

We handle oil furnaces as well as hot air heating systems so guard against winter by having us install one in your home immediately. Ask about our easy payment plan.

PAIN like INDIGESTION

WHAT many call indigestion is very often nothing but excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. You feel distress word of mouth. Then after a few hours later there is often acute pain. But you need not suffer when you know what to do.

The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. The best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless, alkali will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear as if by magic. The stomach is soothed. All the distress vanishes. Nothing could be more delightful than to feel sourness and gas is dispelled. The entire digestive tract is sweetened by magnesia in this form. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is magnesia in perfect suspension. It's the scientific way to obtain the quick relief of acidity. You have the word of highest medical authority for this.

Be careful to ask for Phillips' Milk of Magnesia; the preparation of magnesia prescribed and used by physicians for the correction of excess acids.

Every mother should know certain uses of this preparation. For herself, and for her children—babies too. Complete directions in each package, 50c bottles at drug stores everywhere in the dominion. The ideal dentifrice for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia. A superior toothpaste. (Made in Canada).

Embarrassing Moments

LIBRARY CORNER

Nip was a funny little pot-bellied boy whose occupation was thinking up and doing as much mischief as he could. He stole sugar from the pantry of little birds and threw barrs at the furred animals because he enjoyed seeing them untangle themselves. When the fairy folk asked him how he could have the heart to do these things, he answered "that's just it—I haven't one and I don't want one—what should I do with a heart?" So not at all sure that I've a place for one," But the Queen of the Fairies, who couldn't bear to see ing him in spite of his badness, said "Nip, I'll put a mind in you" he felt asleep and dreamed that he had given up his life of mischief and was surprising all his friends. Straight away he decided to go out and buy a heart for himself. But this quest proved fruitless as he found out that hearts could not be bought. However, the Old Oak Tree told him that everyone has their code. "If this law was unconstitutional," he yelled, "it's unconstitutionality would have been discovered before the bill was even submitted to the legislature" and if it has not been discovered then the legislature, a majority of whom are practicing attorney's, would have discovered it; and even if the legislature had, unbelievably, failed to discover it, the supreme court whose duty it is to pass upon the constitutionality of our state laws would long since have discovered it. Pooh-pooh and a couple of what-nots for the mighty Mr. Gagan! We are not to be frightened by men of straw."

One of the further protestants, thereupon arose and assured Mr. Babson that he, Babson, was a consummate jackass and suggested that Babson oblige Forlorn Valley by leaving out into the lavatory and cutting his throat. A free-for-all fight instantly developed, and when the sheriff and some volunteer assistants had succeeded in restoring the order, the board, wishful of reviving the spirit of amity and harmony and atmosphere, they promptly adjourned. Thereupon all of the proponents, including Mr. Babson, adjourned also—to a local speakeasy the beginning of a heart and that was like to do it so make it grow a little bigger each day. He was told that doing things to help made it grow, and doing things to hurt withered it.

Now Nip grew his heart and finally became known as "Tiny Tuck the Fairy Duff in a delightful story "Nip and Tuck." It is one of the thirty stories which make up the revised and enlarged edition of "A cargo of stories for children." Miss Duff, who is director of Kindergarten in Queen Victoria School, Toronto, has become famous for her children's stories and in this volume has selected her most successful ones, the majority of which are original. As an aid to story tellers she has included a very useful chapter on the telling of the stories. This is a book which pa rents, teachers and children will en joy.

Many other charming volumes will be on display next week which is Children's Book Week in the Boys' and Girls' Room at the Corby Public Library. Parents and all those interested in children's literature are invited to look over the display and get suggestions for their Christmas lists.

Waterways Project is Premature Says Member

QUEBEC, Nov. 14.—Quebec Province does not believe that the United States Government will immediately use its money to develop natural resources which are now only Canadian-American projects, Hon. Athanase Arthur Belanger, K.C., Minister of Marine, declared in the House yesterday. The Minister was commenting on the verdict returned Wednesday by a coroner's jury investigating the Ste. Anne de Beaupre rail fire at Penetang, which urged fire proof construction in provincial buildings. The new hospital buildings opened Thursday in Montreal were fire proof, said the Minister.

Dr. Monteith was commenting on the verdict returned Wednesday by a coroner's jury investigating the Ste. Anne de Beaupre rail fire at Penetang, which urged fire proof construction in provincial buildings. The new hospital buildings opened Thursday in Montreal were fire proof, said the Minister.

ACTIVE SEASON AT QUEBEC PORT

QUEBEC, Que., Nov. 13. — The season of navigation just about to close has been the most active experienced in the Port of Quebec, during the past five years. The total shipments of live cattle, according to figures given out by Steamship companies yesterday, for horses and of live cattle loaded at this port during the season totalled exactly 4,237 heard, the last consignment leaving here this morning. The lifting of the embargo which had been placed on the Canadian cattle entering the British Isles, was stated to be responsible for the increased exports from this port.

In addition to the cattle shipments, considerable numbers of horses and a shipment of mules were loaded at this port for overseas.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN, No 21. (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan, saved from the sea, heard the call of triumph die through the dense jungle. For a moment silence reigned. Then, low and weird, came an answering challenge. It was the deep roar of Numa, the lion. And from a great distance, faintly, the fearsome bellow of a bull ape.

Quenching his thirst at the brook, he approached the cabin, raised the lock and entered. Nothing had been disturbed since he left it nearly two years before. One of his grass ropes hung on the wall. Slinging it over his shoulder, Tarzan went out. Once more a savage beast hunting its food.

Soon he took to the giant trees. With the first dizzy swing aloft, all the joy of living swept over him. Above a pool he snared a wild boar, gorging himself on the uncooked meat. Now he went in search of different quarry. He wanted weapons. Four days he journeyed, watching for—MAN.

Nights he slept wedged into the crotch of some tree. Eating the flesh of Bara, the wild deer, his nostrils caught the scent of some human a long way off. The apemen thrilled with pleasure. Swiftly he moved through the trees, up wind, and came upon a lone warrior treading softly through the jungle beneath.

FINANCIAL NEWS

OUTLOOK FOR BUSINESS IS BRIGHTER

Market and Trade Both Show Signs of Revival

(Weekly Canadian Financial Review written for the Canadian Press by Thomas C. Thompson)

TORONTO, Cot., Nov. 14.—Despite corrective reactions in Canadian share prices an wheat, the financial situation in Canadian share prices and wheat, the financial situation in the Dominion this week reflected more than its own business outlook.

Massey Harris and Cockshutt Plow declined to 4¼ on Friday on the Toronto Stock Exchange compared with 5¼ at the close of last week. Walkuit Mills declined from 7 to 6½ Hayes Steel Harris but it too lost ground with 61 shows a net decline of 1½ points for the week.

Nickel lacked aggressive demand and at 31¼ will point lower at this week's price. Brazilian Traction dropped from 13 to 12¾.

Business outlook last week, showed resistance to the tabloid selling on the ground as a whole receded from recent peak levels. Evidence of Canada combined with the most aggressive showing with an advance to 39¾ against 38¼ last week, while closing sales on Friday took place at 39 also still reflected some continued buying.

Food issues, including Dominion Stores, Loblaw "A" and "B", Bakeries Compandes "A" and "B" and other similar stocks also sold at higher prices but there became a slightly reactionary tone to the grain markets turned downward.

CHEESE BOARD

At the weekly session of the Belleville Cheese Board on Saturday evening coloured cheese was offered for sale but there was some weakness. It was placed on the board by the Acme factory which sold for the same five boxes which sold for the same price as the remainder at 16 cents. At last week's offerings amounted to 1266, the price at that time being 16 1-4. Today's board of 165 cheese has boarded and sold, the price of 16 being the only factor that were represented:

CHICKENS OFF IN QUOTATION

Saturday Market is Very Largely Attended

Presenting a picture that only a November market can the Belleville market was largely attended on Saturday. All seasonable farm products were offered in evidence and the low prices that prevailed assured the citizens of plenty of food. One of the features of the inside market was the decline in price of chickens, fine large poultry being offered for as low as $1.00 a pair while some larger birds sold for 75 cents each. A few ducks were also sold for 75 cents. Eggs brought 43 to 45 cents a dozen while butter was 25 cents per pound.

At the outside market the feature was apples. All kinds of apples were seen and their market was only added to the beauty of the market. Macintosh Reds sold at $1.50, Talliman Sweets $1.25, and Spies for $1.25 a bushel. Potatoes, in the sample brought 30 cents a peck while turnips celery sold for 5 cents a bunch. Squash brought the usual price of 5 cents a peck. There was seen for the first time this year sauerkraut on the market at 10 cents per quart and sweet cider at 25c a gallon.

The young porker pigs were sold from $5.00 a pair up, according to the weight.

The fresh bloom of youth is what every woman is after. That often that ere shadows must be used with caution, and that the lip sticking process has become a work of art. TRADE WHEELS MOVE UPWARD

British Situation Very Optimistic, Says Review

(COPYRIGHT 1931 BY THE CANADIAN PRESS)

City George Hamblston, Canadian Press Staff Writer, who continues a series of weekly short reviews of the European economic situation.)

London, Nov. 14— The Empire marketing board—Financed by public funds—Will launch on Monday the largest scale trade campaign ever organized in Great Britain. Its message, "Buy British"—first at home, then from the Empire Overseas—will be carried to the farthest corners of these islands. The Prince of Wales will open the campaign by radio. Four million posters already have been distributed over shop window panes. Two thousand associations, large and small, are giving their assistance. The federation of British industries has issued 12 million "buy British" labels. The British Broadcasting will exhibit two-minute skits from the screen, carrying the trade message.

And each day brings further evidence that the wheels of trade move forward. The Board of Trade returns for October show the increased values both for imports and exports, are largely nominal although they are considerably below those of a year ago.

And in the halls of the mother of parliaments there is more perceptibly urge that with the abandonment of the import duties, trade may be made to turn still further. They claim that the overwhelming majority the people are for the Conservative party in the election was a collective vote for higher tariffs.

Nor do high tariff countries on the European continent give any indication of lowering their rates. France, which recently increased heavily its tariff against foreign fish, has added a fish quota which strikes the export trade of Scandinavia, Iceland, etc. At the same time the British North Sea Fishermen are petitioning the National Government for protection, either by way of tariffs or the prohibition of fish imports from France, Denmark, Holland, Belgium and Spain. The Fascist government of Italy long ago sought to stimulate the home production of wheat by a poster campaign. One poster shows a golden grain on the walls of Italian post offices, depicts a golden harvest of Italian grain. It bears as a slogan the Biblical text, "give us this day our daily bread." Yet the Italian corporation of agriculture is urging the government to prepare tariffs sufficiently defensive that they might be used in response in negotiating fresh treaties.

WALL STREET TURNS SOFTER

Late Trading, However, Brings Recovery in Wheat Market

New York, N.Y., Nov. 14— The stock market received another setback today, but managed to recover a little in the late trading, as better support appeared in the wheat market.

Rails again dragged the list down, and Radio and Radio Keith broke about a point to new lows, reflecting indications of share holders' controversy over the proposed reorganization of radio.

Trading was on a broad scale from coast to four points in many issues at the finish. But final prices were generally from fractions to a point above the lowest of the morning. The closing tone was heavy. The turnover for the short session was around a million shares.

Selling of the rails apparently reflected further discussion of the prospect of dividend reductions. And fears that relief from the proposed rate increases and wage reductions would be long deferred.

Stocks closing about two to five points lower included New York Central, Steel, which penetrated new low ground, New Haven, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Norfolk and Western American Telephone, and Coca Cola, U. E. Steel lost a point. The coppers were again at lastated firm sport. Anaconda, Kennecott and Cerro de Pasco gained a point or so. The trade is now hopeful for an early international agreement on production.

The bond market was irregular but the Japanese issues were again firm.

In commodities bar silver was about steady, but cotton turned a little heavy losing 40 to 50 cents a bale.

SIR ARTHUR'S VIEW ON PENSION BOARD

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 14—General Sir Arthur Currie, Commander of the Canadian Corps in the Great War, last night critized the working of the Board of Pensions Commissioners of Canada, telling members of the Toronto Branch of the Canadian Legion he thought changes should be made in the structure of the Board.

Sir Arthur said he saw a major defect in the "entire lack of coordination of thought and effort between the Pensions Board and the Pensions appeal court" which had been created by the legislature.

Perspiring hands indicate an unstable nervous system. The jumpy kind needs plenty of fresh air, plenty of sleep and a good working philosophy, one that will kind of the jumpy bugs out of her nerves. Rubbing the palms of the hands with alcohol will help dry up the moisture. Talcum powder should be powdered into gloves before and after they are worn.

Letters to the Editor

WAR MONUMENT

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Belleville, Ont., Nov. 13, 1931.

Dear Sir:

With reference to the Memorial Service recently held, it seems to us is the time to definitely discuss the situation concerning a Memorial Monument, which is to be contracted for to be erected next spring in connection with the park which the foundation has been completed. It requires the names of all those who were killed Overseas during the late war and will appreciate having relatives and friends supply this information to one at the earliest opportunity. The city are putting the names on the monument in 350 per letter. I have to have these names put on the monument before it is erected. Hence the necessity for prompt action.

There will be a meeting in my office on Tuesday next at 2 p.m. with reference to this matter. Anyone wishing to assist in any way we would welcome to attend this meeting. Also the Press which is interested financially. I will be pleased to receive subscriptions through the local newspaper. No canvass will be made but voluntary subscriptions will be appreciated. The balance of the cost will be paid by myself.

Yours truly,
(Signed) H. J. Graham.

Registration — Mrs. Merginson and Mrs. Simmons.

Resolutions — Mrs. Fred K. Denyes, Brighton.

Federated Director of Belleville area—Mrs. A. Shaw, Stirling.

Resolutions

The following resolutions were adopted at yesterday's meeting:

That votes of thanks be extended to all those assisting on the programme with music and addresses; to the Department for all assistance and to the Women's Association of St. John's Church for the splendid service in music and other kindnesses; to the Mayor and City of Belleville for the welcome and hospitality received in homes; to the Canadian Department Store and Mr. Clivia, florist, for loan of ferns and to all those who loaned plants, etc.; to Miss Beatrice Jones for donating place cards for our supper, and she furnishing cut flowers for tables and platform; to the press of the Ontario Intelligencer for splendid reports.

That secretary's letters be sent to Mrs. Bleecker, Mrs. Garbutt, Mrs. Graes, Mrs. Isaac, chairman of standing committees, assuring them that they have been missed at our convention; that a letter of sympathy be sent to two of our standing members, Mrs. Geo. Nicholson of West Hastings and Mrs. W. Farley of East Hastings, Hoberland who would be with us in convention but for illness."

The Home

"Civilization and the Home" was the topic on a pattern of address given at the Women's Institute yesterday by Mrs. Charles Macoun, Campbellford. Mrs. W. R. Munro was chairman for the session which brought to a close the annual convention of Belleville area.

The morning was devoted to the presentation of reports. Miss Hazel Beamish by Mrs. J. R. Brown of Bonarlaw; Immigration, by Mrs. C. Sully, Cobourg; Home Economics by Mrs. J. R. Maitland, Brighton. Mrs. Maitland's report spoke of Home Economics being the cornerstone of all other institutional structure, the contributing force of all other activities. The feeding, clothing and housing of families are of first importance. Information on these questions is always at hand, through all journals and though the Department of Agriculture.

"Thread of Thrift"

A thread of thrift has been running through the pattern of all reports and in the depression women have been measuring up. Reports told of Home Economics being studied by large demonstrations, exhibits, contests and roll calls. Mrs. Maitland urged the co-operation of all women during this Winter for relief purposes.

"There has been a great deal of criticism," said she, "of women's organizations spending too much time in convention looking back, but if by looking back we get a vision of higher things and the inspiration to go home and put them into practise our backward glances have not been in vain."

Girls' Work

Miss Eadie, of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, was chairman of the girls' session.

Webb reported on girls' work done by the branches.

been Gill and Winnifred Fox gave a demonstration of arranging flow-

Advantages of the three months' course were explained by Miss Mae Weese while Miss Fred Smith, of Cherry Valley, spoke of what a woman can do in a small town. In her address, Miss Eadie urged girls to keep at school as long as possible, and to remember that through steadfastness of purpose almost anything is attained.

At the afternoon's session at which Mrs. Macoun presided, reports were given on Legislation, Area Institutes by Mrs. B. Pinkle, Halloway, and Community Activities by Mrs. A. Garbutt, Belleville.

Mrs. Macoun, speaking on "Civilization and the Home," said she was always glad to come to Belleville because she felt this area was making advances not only in developing home life, but community life and so was making history.

The history of civilization and development is well written in the home. From aboriginal hut came the grand residences of the present day. Democracy has been of great benefit to the British Empire and the various acts giving rights to all show the gradual development of democracy through the power of motherhood. This same social order is to be attained it must be through the moulding of public opinion.

"We in rural Ontario," Mrs. Macoun continued, "have a great part in furthering the cause of a better order of things. We study the laws at our meetings, we see that they are changed, now, as I see it the next step towards attaining the Christian order, mentioned by Miss Guest, is to so mould public opinion so that these things will be the logical outcome and I am very proud to see the Women's Institute ready to co-operate."

Throughout the convention, a musical programme of a high order was presented each day, the various districts in session being responsible for several numbers.

Miss Alice Potter, nurse-in-training at St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, is spending a few days at her home Charles street.

Miss N. Hamilton, 39 Yeoman St. returned home after spending a week or more visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Hicks.

Miss Harriett Hudson, formerly of Belleville and now resident of Toronto, is leaping next week for Florida to spend the Winter months.

Miss Mabel Charlton Parin street, was hostess at a party last evening in honor of the established members of the staff of the Mead-Johnstone Company. About twenty-five were present and an interesting evening was enjoyed in music and dancing. Lunch was served before the guests left for home.

Employees of the Canadian Department store and their friends gathered at the home of Manager Roy J. McMillan, 238 Bridge street, last evening, to bid a regretful adieu to Mr. Buchanan who is leaving the employ of that store. Some fifty persons were present, and after presentation of a beautiful fully upholstered chair had been made Mr. Buchanan, cards and dancing were indulged until a late hour.

Mrs. Albert Branscombe and Miss Lorna Ridley were hostesses at a delightful miscellaneous shower arranged at the latter's home, Ann St., last evening in honor of Mrs. Horton Hammecker, (nee Grace Jackson) of New York City. The bride was the recipient of many lovely gifts which were presented to her in a gaily decorated basket drawn in by little Betsy Ridley. An Armenid Thomson, whose group arranged the charming affair. Mums and yellow candles gave the tea table a gay appearance, Mrs. H. J. Bigham presided at the tea table and members of the group served.

There seemed to be nothing unlucky about Friday, the thirteenth, for at a party at the home of Mrs. Shine and sheer pervaded everything when members of Christ Church Girls' Branch of the Women's Auxiliary gave a tea to raise funds to help clothe a little Indian boy. Miss Vera Johnston admitted the guests who were received by Mrs. Ketcheson assisted by Mrs. E. Hickey. The rooms were prettily kept Mrs. Lennox and Mrs. Scott busy dispensing such things as "your mother used to make" while jolly refreshments. The table with its cloth of Irish lace had as a centre piece a large red Winchester cross while the candles matched carrying out the colors of the diocese of Ontario. Mrs. Coulter presided at the tea urn and those who assisted were Mrs. Mills, Miss H. Ketcheson, Mrs. Martin, the serving being a satisfying and generous one. An interesting feature was the reading of a group of gems by Mrs. Jessie Priest B.A. of some her latest poems. Mrs. Singer sang most charmingly one of Nevins songs. Mrs. Tom takes in by Mrs. Bowyer, who substituted treasurer, amply met the needs.

Weddings

MALLORY—KETCHESON

Grace Church Parsonage, Trenton, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Thursday afternoon, November 12th, when Rev. C. B. Sissons united in marriage, Annie Mabel Ketcheson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Ketcheson of Trenton to Maurice Frederick Mallory, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Mallory of Frankford. The bride was attired in brown georgette with accessories to match. She wore the gift of a groom a crystal necklace and also a corsage bouquet of roses. Miss Dora Ketcheson, sister of the bride acted as bridesmaid, wearing a dark green frock and carrying a bouquet of chrysanthemums. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Roy Mallory. Following the reception at the bride's home, the happy couple left for Niagara Falls and points west. On their return, they will reside in Sidney.

SANDFORD—BERTRAM

A quiet but very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. Ernest Bertram November 11, at nine o'clock, when their A. B. Ketcheson united in marriage Elsie Dorothy youngest daughter of Mr. Ernest Bertram by Mr. Moore Sandford, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sandford, Eldorado. The bride, who entered the living room to the strains of the wedding march played by her aunt, Miss Gertrude Bertram was given in marriage by her father, Ernest Bertram.

She was gowned in a blue dress of georgette and silk lace with black and grey shoes and grey stockings. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, fern and tulle.

After the ceremony a dainty lunch con was served. Later Mr. and Mrs. Sandford left by motor, under showers of confetti for Belleville, Whitby, Toronto, Niagara Falls and points west the bride travelling in a frock of black chiffon velvet and rose crepe, black coat trimmed with silver fox, with gloves, hat, shoes, stockings and purse to match.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful string of pearls.

Mrs. Sandford was all present for the wedding also Mr. Macoun (grandfather), two aunts, Mrs. M. Barr, Mrs. A. C. Wagar, Mr. S. Miles, Belleville, Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Kryes.

Upon leaving the bride and groom took with them the best wishes of a large circle of relatives and friends. On their return they will reside in Parham.

Denmark will aid its farmers.

YOU!

What are you doing to help your less fortunate neighbor?

You are warm and comfortable, well clothed and fed, and money in pocket, a job, or a competence—thank God for that, and acknowledge His goodness in a tangible way by helping others.

Love thy neighbor as thyself, that does not mean ignoring him, it means helping him.

There is at present much unemployment and prospect of suffering if the fortunate do not help the unfortunate.

What are you doing to help?

Arguing whether the objective is too large or too small, or whether someone will get relief who is not entitled to it?

Get busy in a big way. Put your money to work, and volunteer for relief duty to the Civic Unemployment Relief Committee.

Arguments and excuses will not fill the Community Chest.

Get busy, Get acquainted. Call at Relief Headquarters, City Hall, Meet the Workers and find out all about it. You'll want to sit right down and write a check for every cent you can afford.

Remember, it is not what the other fellow is doing, it's

YOU!

The Beauty Box

By Helen Follett

Men as a rule have good complexions. One reason is that they use plenty of soap, shaving off the dirt along with their beards. No doubt there is of the beneficial effects of soap upon the skin, unless the epidermis is finicky, throws a brain storm when suds is put on, but that condition is to be put in by means of manipulations. While there is an inclination toward a natural wave, an iron would use various means of cleaning that removes the natural oils as well as soaps. It is necessary to remove thoroughly. It does no harm, if the facial area goes to bed well scrubbed and creamed.

Marcelling properly accomplished will—not injure the hair. The skilled operator does not require a sizzling hot iron; the undulation has been found in Asia.

HAPPENINGS IN ADJACENT COMMUNITIES

Stirling

St. Andrew's Tea Meeting

St. Andrew's congregation held a very successful tea meeting on Monday, November 9th. A bountiful supper was served from 6 to 8 p.m., consisting of roast pork, beef and salad, jellies, pickles, pie and coffee. No less than three sittings were required at the tables.

The program was of a high order and was as follows:— Anthem "Praise the Lord, Oh Jerusalem". Chairman's address, Rev. A. J. Reid M.A. He gave a short summary of the history of St. Andrew's congregation in the years of its existence and read letters of greetings from the former ministers, Rev. R. S. Burns, P. A. Richardson, J. A. Ritz and R. Johnson, also greetings from Dames Parker of Toronto, a former R. S. pupil, and Mr. T. Ward's class. Rev. Mr. Rowland and Byers sent greetings from their churches and regretted being unable to be present. Miss Cosby, one of the church members also sent greetings. Although unable through infirmity of years to be present.

Mr. Purnival rendered a fine solo in the irrestistible humorous style of Mr. C. Allan on the piano. Rev. D. A. McKenzie of Burnbrae then made a few remarks and brought greetings from St. Andrew's Presbyterian congregation. Mr. Ritz paid a tribute to the News Argus, especially to the editor, Mr. Bleecker, the changes in Stirling since Mr. Dobbie left the town and his work and spoke on the transient and permanent. In the latter point he stated there was very little relegated to mains; and the Church remains. The Providence of God in the moral intellectual, economical, and spiritual strength of the past was a piano and organ duet, "Poet and Peasant" rendered by Miss Scott and Mr. C. Allan, an interesting reading by Mrs. Lillie of "Mary Numbers Johnson" then Rev. F. J. Hobbin gave a talk of a rather humorous nature concerning some of Alex's exemplain in Toronto where the the president of the Y.M.C.A. spoke to home and put all thoughts of depression out of their minds. He hopeful, he cheerful, "The man everywhere who has a smile for every one he meets is the man worth while." Mr. Arthur Duncan then "Give me a man who can sing" in fine style. Rev. C. E. Nichol of Trenton Moderator of Kingston Presbytery brought greetings from the Presbytery and spoke of some interesting incidents.

The choir sang "Holy Father, we thank Thee" and "God Save the King" concluded the program. Mr. W. A. Thompson in all those who had in any way contributed to the success of the Anniversary Supper.

Mr. Jos Wilson kindly showed lantern views while the supper was getting on. Appreciation of his kindness was realized on the occasion.

Miss Lucy Williams has resumed her work in the Educational Dept. in Toronto.

Rev. A. N. Reid attended a banquet in St. Andrew's Church, Belleville on Tuesday night, Nov. 10th, held in honor of the Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

St. Paul's W.M.S.

The regular meeting of St. Paul's W.M.S. was held on Tuesday, Nov. 10th, 2.30 pm. The president Mrs. Lansing in the chair There was a splendid attendance. The program was in charge of Mrs. Wm Donnan.

After the opening hymn, prayer was offered by Mrs. Geo. Richards, Mrs. G. W. Jones read the scripture lesson found in 1 Kings 17 chapter and president leading in prayer. Mrs. Donan gave a paper on the life of Missionary particularly in Japan from the educational standpoint and stated women are becoming recognized as a factor in the community and churches, one woman as a church treasurer, and "women sing and sing and sing". Mrs. Richardson gave an illuminating reading entitled "The woman who gave herself."

The nominating committee was appointed consisting of the following persons: Mrs. Donnan, Convener, Mrs. N. L. Fox, Mrs. G. F. Linn, Mrs. Duffin and Miss Hume.

The several sections gave their report and in the Temperance report, the secretary Miss Hume said it had been suggested to her by one of the W.M.S. members that steps be taken to send a memorial to Belleville Presbyterial asking for some form of a Temperance measure which would bring about a better form of Temperance than that of today, and a committee was appointed to draft the memorial.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

St. Paul's League

St. Paul's League met on Tuesday evening with approximately 135 present.

President Hulin presided over the meeting which took the form of an oratorical contest, in which there were seven contestants which were decided upon by the members of the Public School and those of High School students. The judges were Principal Bowden of the Public School staff, Mr. Down and Mrs. Cassidy.

President Hulin and the audience read responsively the 1st Psalm and Rev. Rowland led in prayer, after which the first contestant, Pearl Stapley spoke on "The industrial possibilities of northern Ontario" the great clay belt where in grew red, white and jack pine, spruce etc. the pioneers of the living etc., and said for twenty years her friend had been westward, but now it seemed to be going in a northern direction.

Jean Mounce, the second speaker took as her subject "The Saguenay and the Lake Saint John" saying the scenery was very beautiful and settled at what is now Port Vernilion by the Jesuit Fathers in the early days, no less than Kagawa, the United States Ambassador to Japan and she handle the subject in a very concise form. Kagawa was born into the high Japanese aristocratic class but was well educated. On graduating from college he married a crisis it his life and later he lived in the slums where he led him to turn his attention to the saving of souls.

A pleasing Pian Duet was played by Misses Grace Pitman and Bessie Hulin.

The first of the High School contestants was Ruth McAvoy speaking on the life of Timothy Easton, the founder of Christianity. Christ died when he were a lad and his mother was left a widow. Later he decided to intrigate to Canada and got into a store in St. Marys but he was not content with so much liquor being sold and vowed that he should be ever had a share of his own that liquor would never be sold in it. Later he went into business with his brother James, and later moved to Toronto and set up for himself on the corner of King and Yonge Sts. He died in 1907 with 1400 stores running his less.

The next speaker was Pearl Lang sing her subject "Friendship" to possess it is the highest asset in the world, many with friends but few keep them, to have a friend must be friendly, one must practice the Golden Rule.

Fred Joblin spoke on the "Man of Galilee. The Man of Galilee looked upon every dead as necessary. He was born in Bethlehem to be sung in every land even though one could not in a single hour all that is recorded in the New Testament about Jesus. Said we should go to Christ in this time of depression. Christ is the cure for corvetousness, war pure and Holy.

Ruby Stapley spoke on the Panama Canal; in ten years the work was completed, by it from Atlantic to Pacific the route was thus shortened 8,000 miles, and saved 100 million dollars.

While the judging was being done, Rev. Rowland led in Community singing.

The result of contest was as follows.

Public School contestants—1st.—Jean Monroe, 2nd—Pearl Stapley, 3rd—Fred Joblin.

High School students 1st:— Pansy Hulin, 2nd—Ruth McAvoy, 3rd—Fred Joblin.

Mr. W. H. Martin has for years awarded $50.00 toward this oratorical contest in prizes to be credited to the contestants, but in lieu of the Fund of the United Church and the League is very grateful to Mr. Martin.

Remembrance Day

A Remembrance Day service was held in the Memorial Park on Nov. 11th at 10.30 a.m. The Veterans in civilian clothes, the High School and Public School, the Girl Guides, the Boy Scouts and the Cadets assembled on the public school ground and marched down to the park where seated around the Cenotaph were the following who lost near relatives in the Great War, Mrs. Wm. Donnan, Mrs. Blasdell, Mrs. Hunter, Misses Mary and Lou Judd, Mr. Jas. Robert Rodgers and Mrs. Arthur Rosebush. The resident clergy, Rev. Mr. Judd, Revds. Byers, Reid and Rowland and Reeve Montgomery took charge of the program. One verse of Oh,rard Christian Soldiers was sung led by Rev. F. W. Rowland, assisted by members of various choirs, this was followed by an address given by Rev. Byers; Father Parrell gave a very excellent address saying what does Remembrance Day mean to us? It means that our dear fallen heroes, yes, those who came back and succumbed for life, suffered for us? are we sure that another war is not imminent? unfortunately with the nations that they we love and trust in God be supported in our hearts and lives, the conditions in the East are becoming more serious and everything should be done to avert another war. Rev. Rowland prayer to God to "Thee" was sung, then Lieut. Col Alger and Lieut. Col. D. Green each placed a wreath one from the Dominion Gov't. and the other from the Provincial Gov't. in memory of the fallen heroes whose names were as follows:

Pte. Anderson, Roy Bean, Roy Blesonetts, Norman Payne, Arnold Rutherford, Arthur Cassidy, George Conley, Vincent Whitby, Alexander Conley, Ernest Gould, Fred Daley, Master George Wood of the Boy Scouts, Trenton sounded the Last Post and also the Reveille. Officers present were Major Walk, Lieut. Col. Alger, Lieut. Col. D. Green, Lieut. J. Sulter and Mrs. Spinks an officers in the artillery.

It was a little disappointing that there was not a larger crowd but doubtless a large number of citizens took the opportunity of spending the holiday elsewhere.

Mrs. A. Shaw, President of the local W.I. Mrs. Mary Vanderwort and Miss Gene Spry are attending the W.I. Convention in Belleville today.

Miss Hume is attending a Belleville Presbyterial meeting in Belleville.

Two Rugby Titles Decided Today

Queens Still Have Chance to Be Intercollegiate Champions

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14 (CP)—By tonight two more Eastern Canadian football titles will be decided. The winners of the Intercollegiate series is expected to be determined when Western University travels to Montreal to tackle McGill while the O. R. F. U. Provincial is at stake in Sarnia when Sarnia Imperials meet Beaches. Three other senior grid teams are listed on the intermediary program but it is hardly likely any of these will have any effect on the group leaderships.

Enjoying a one point lead over their nearest rivals, Queen's, the Western Ontario Mustangs must land the Maroons a setback to make certain of the title. Should Western lose and Queen's emerge victorious over Toronto Varsity, who have yet to win a league game this season, then the college championship will remain somewhere in Kingston. A tie for the Mustangs or Queen's victory will necessitate a play-off for the group championship.

Balmy Beach left Toronto last night highly confident that they will come home with the O. R. F. U. provincial title. However, to win the championship they must first defeat the Imperials who have only lost one game since the season opened six weeks ago. Both teams will be at full strength for the contest.

Two games which will have no bearing on the title race will be held by Montreal Winged Wheelers, are scheduled for this afternoon at the Hamilton Tigers, meet Argos and Ottawa where the Rough Riders tackle the champions.

"Y" Alleys

In the Ladies' Afternoon game Kiwanis Queens took three points and the decision over Kiwanis Belles were Miss Holway for Kiwanis and Mrs. Morgan for Belles.

In the Teachers' League, King George took three points and Albert "B" one in a very even contest. Miss Cook was high lady with 383 and Miss Smith high gentleman with 511.

There's no stopping that wild newspaper gang in the Industrial League. Last night they took all four points from Walker Hardware, who rolled a game which deserved a better fate than that. High bowlers were Phil Harrison for the Ontario Outfit with 540 and Holloway for Walkers with 540.

The Moose bowling team, in the Major Bowling League are at the Recreation Alleys, knockout Manager Les Barrett's old record all each—cyed the eight—eight. The Moose team of five players turned in a score of 3718 in a three game, thus establishing the alley record.

X—X—X

The players and their three-string scores were: Pal Draman 651; Cy Young 728; Art Whalen 769; Dinny Doran 756 and Les Shiels 814, the team with an 808. That is a pretty fair record for any team to shoot at for the rest of the season.

X—X—X

Jack Yeo with a 275 score holds the Recreation Alley record for this year's season, but Dave Tobe is proud possessor of both single and three-string scores for all time. Davie's score was 414 single and 996 for a three string. Myrtle Holway bowled 389 the other night but it was a little short of Hilda Bland's alley record for ladies of 391.

X—X—X

There have been quite a few bowlers count well over the 300 mark so far this season and Manager Barrett thinks that this Major Bowling League does not have to take a back seat from any league in the city when the season is over. It is expected that inter-city games will be played with other cities in Ontario and Canada during the coming winter.

X—X—X

The Belleville and District Basket Ball League will install the Y's Men's "knot-hole gang" up to their first game of the season, Collegiate field this afternoon. The members of the committee in charge of the affair have over 400 signed up now and would like to make arrangements for the kids to see the hockey matches this winter. The Y's Men will no doubt wait upon the B.A.A.A. on the subject in the near future.

X—X—X

Queen's, Varsity and McGill will again revive the old Intercollegiate hockey group this winter. No word has been mentioned as to the possibility of Western, of Leiceden, coming in to the league. After the wonderful showing of Western in the football series it would be no surprise if they entered a team in the reorganized loop. Ice is fast appearing on the

X—X—X

Belleville Arenas and it is expected that the hockey teams will be out to practise on Monday evening. Pablo skating will start the following night or so.

X—X—X

Of course Manager Ed. Carter will have to paint the ice surface white before there is any hockey played; as the sand bottom is a poor background for a puck. The ice plant is working night and day in order that the hockey teams will be afforded as much practise as possible before the season opens.

X—X—X

For the information of the local sportsmen we would like to know: "When Chicago Black Hawks meet the Toronto Maple Leafs on Thursday evening, it was their first victory on Toronto ice since their entry into the N.H.L." Well, better late than never.

X—X—X

Word has been received in Toronto that Earl Cook of the Toronto St. Pats, formerly of Oshawa, the Toronto Maple Leafs have had hanging eyes upon for some time, will be seen in the Baltimore Orioles uniform next season. Cook's former teammates the success that befell Vince Barton of Toronto, after he played two seasons with the Maryland Club. Barton is now a regular with the Chicago Cubs.

X—X—X

And to think that Cook would have come to Belleville for a song previous to his going to Toronto. He learned his pitching in Stouffville.

X—X—X

In order that they may keep in good condition, Coach Leg Shiels took his B.C.I. junior football team to Tweed today. The junior grid battle the senators of the Northern town and, as actual play is barred, that scrimmage practise, Coach Shiels made arrangements for the game last night. All the regular players will be on hand and it is expected that the juniors will continue on in the provincial title race.

X—X—X

The only junior teams in the race at present are in Toronto, west of Toronto and north of there to that they are, in-reality, junior champions in Eastern Ontario, in their respective class—that being junior interscholastic.

Heavy Schedule Over Weekend

Toronto Has Standout Feature, Les Canadiens Being Attraction

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14. (CP)—A heavy week-end schedule faces National Hockey League clubs today and tomorrow when the eight teams of the circuit swing into action, two of them for the first time this year in Montreal, Toronto, New York and Detroit.

Toronto looks to have the standout feature tonight when Les Canadiens of the Montreal hockey champions of the world, invade the Queen City to battle the Leafs. Both clubs bet their opening games to New York Rangers and Chicago Black Hawks, respectively, and each are hoping for a victory in tonight's fixture.

The other Saturday night contest sees Montreal Maroons open their 1931-32 season against Boston Bruins in the Boston metropolis. Last night the Maroon management announced that Dan Gerard, regular net guardian of the Montreal club, would be in Winnipeg in exchange for Smith, the Bulldog goalie. No reason for the trade was made.

The New York professional hockey season will begin its debut tomorrow evening when the Americans play host to Chicago. As both clubs have their opening contests against Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Falcons respectively, fans this week will be battling to keep their season's tickets unblemished.

New York Rangers invade Detroit in Sunday's fixture anxious to meet the greatly strengthened Falcons.

Loughran Wins from Uzcudun

Gave Basque of Spain a Boxing Lesson in Ten Rounds

NEW YORK, Nov. 14. — Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia's contender for the heavyweight title, has extended his winning streak to twelve in a row at the expense of a rival he never has met before, Paulino Uzcudun of Spain.

Despite the handicap of a slightly sprained ankle over the last five rounds, Loughran outpointed Paulino Basque from Spain before a crowd of 10,000 in Madison Square Garden last night.

It was a masterly exhibition of boxing skill and Loughran received a tremendous ovation as he left the ring. Loughran weighed 185 and Paulino 200.

TURNOUT BY THE ARGYLLS

First March of Fall Season Held Friday Evening

The Argyll Light Infantry answered the call to drill last night at the armouries with their first turn-out so far this training season. Between 60 and 70 strong, not with 10 additional recruits during the evening. It is many years since attendance at drill has been so consistently turned—out so well, as they have this fall. If in number there is strength, numbers already joined instilled the spirit for officers and N.C.O.'s and lend to the easier adaptability of the various formations and movements.

Services of Sergeant Webster and Pocock of the R.C.R., attached to headquarters instructional staff of the M. D. No. 3, have been assigned to the battalion for three weeks, during the evenings of which beyond fighting and physical training and marches, they will receive instruction in Lewis gun work. Alternating companies are working at these drills two nights a week, and all ranks of the battalion are pleased with these changes from the usual routine training of constant drill. The two new officers have aided ing the collegiate and public school cadets in their physical training.

The Quartermaster and those in his stores have been especially busy in fitting out the men this Fall, and their keenness and readiness is the cause of many favorable comments by onlookers and former officers of the unit, who drop in at the Armouries to note the progress of the battalion's training.

HOCKEY LOSES A STAR AND WRESTLING GAINS ONE

Well, Lionel Conacher, "The Big Train", has been and gone and done it. He's quit professional hockey. After years of stardom during which he rose to the heights and descended to the lowest depths, Lionel has decided that his hockey days are over. He has gone into wrestling, and the other day signed a three year contract with a Toronto promoter which bends him from playing any other pro game except box lacrosse, and that only by special permission. Wrestling is about the only major sport that Conacher at some time or other hasn't made a public appearance. That should go double for wrestling. Hockey loses by the change, but the re-vamped wrestling game makes a big gain. There are few more popular athletes in Canada today.

BELLEVILLE GIRLS VICTORS

Trenton, Nov. 14 (Special) — Belleville girls' basketball teams trounced Trenton in an exciting game last evening. The Belleville senior team outplayed the Trenton girls at every period of the game. The B. C. I. girls take their basketball seriously, playing fast and furious at all times. They seem to be slated to go far if they continue as they did last night. The final score was 40 to 11.

The junior game was much the better, the Trenton girls putting up a good battle all through the game. Belleville won out by a score of 20 to 16. The lineups were as follows:

Seniors—Belleville—Marjorie Patterson, Esther Moncrief, R.G.; L. Stafford, L.F.; Mary Hutson and Jean MacLaurin, centre; Sally Sullman and Eva Blake, R.G.; Jewel Macklin and Anna Gardley, L. G.

Trenton—Lorna Bellyou, R.F.; Freida Waldron, Beatrice Bonter, L.F.; Pat Heywood, Marion Smith, centre; Pat Lockhart and Ruth Mc-St. Croix, Verna Bassett, L.G.

Dacombe before the game proved an added attraction.

"My occupation as a radio specialist requires deep concentration. Naturally I get much consolation from my pipe. Unfortunately I have a very sensitive taste—my tongue burns easily and my throat is sore readily.

About a month ago I tried Turret pipe tobacco. I then and there decided that it was the tobacco I was looking for—a fragrant, cool smoke that did not burn my throat or tongue. Now that I have found a tobacco that I can smoke day in and day out without bad effects, I find it more economical to purchase the half pound tins. I would advise any person who wants REAL PIPE SATISFACTION to try Turret pipe tobacco".

What Theatrical Managers Say of Coming Attractions

At The Belle

TENDER ROMANCE IS THEME OF DEVOTION

Rose Quartz Dressersware Monday

Each lady attending the Belle Monday evening will be presented with a beautiful piece of Rose Quartz Dressersware, with the compliments of the Belle Management.

Lawrence Gerald Devlin, the well known photoplay critic speaks in the following glowing terms of "Devotion". Anne Harding's first screen vehicle since "Enat Lynne", which commences at the Belle Monday.

As tastes differ, some people may find other places upon which to pin their superlatives, but as far as we are concerned, we know of nothing that suits us better than to watch and to be captivated by Miss Harding. And in her latest she is at her best.

A new, embellishing a light romance with a beauty and charm which is far too rare upon the screen, brightening it with an impish, mischievous humor and enriching it with the modulations of a voice that repairs one for all the noises the talkies went through.

The story is one of modest proportions, but it is framed in the correct setting with meticulous care and peopled with a cast that would do credit to any production. Taken from Pamela Wynne's novel, "A Flat in the Temple", it reproduces with considerable skill Conner of London. The Temple, where its residents are all connected in a static, literary and professional notables" against this perfectly detailed background is told the story of a youngest daughter who quickly becomes self-sufficient but who revolts and sets off on an adventure in life which she pene trates with touches of delightful humor. The direction by Robert Milton is a bit old-fashioned in manner and lacks modern camera technique, but it conveys the proper mood and pace for the dramatic affair and the photography always brings out its fullest beauty.

Playing opposite Ann Harding, Leslie Howard has a role which gives him the fullest opportunities to date and he brings out the qualities which make him such an asset to the screen. Robert Williams, who first came to the films in "Holiday", has another role which he enacts with his quiet humor and with a one of the sparkling points in the film. Others who add noteworthy performances are C. P. Heggie, Didley Diggs and Alison Skipworth. Without making any pretension to the smartness of "Holiday" or to the dramatic qualities of "East Lynn," this newest photoplay is thoroughly pleasing in its simplicity and charm.

At The Capitol

POPULAR WEEK-END PROGRAM AT THE CAPITOL THEATRE

Once aboard the lugger and the girl is mine! That is all right in song, but a girl aboard a boat, and especially of the lugger type, where the crew do not wear white collars, is a horse of another color.

In "Sea Devils", the nautical drama at the Capitol today and Monday, the girl is the cause of a whole heap of trouble, ending in mutiny and tragedy.

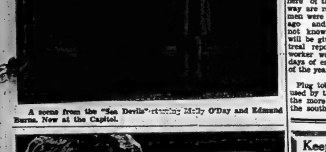
"Sea Devils" is the type of story which is spelt by disclosure, but imagination can have full play when we are told that it concerns a good girl and a bad girl, a good girl and a motley crew, all on the high seas.

Molly O'Day is the girl, Edmund Burns the good man, and Walter Long the villain.

In addition to "Sea Devils", there will be another episode of the famous Adventures in Africa series entitled, "Manacled". It is replete with interest, instructive and absorbingly interesting entertainment, and it is said that there is not one mole episode after "Manacled".

"The Guilty Ruby" is the comedy creation, and with the Pathe Sound News, a delightful program comes to an end.

Big Ellis at the Capitol



The manager of the bookings due at the Capitol during November are wanted and will prove exceptionally attractive. "Arizona", an adaptation of the famous play by Augustus Thomas, and starring Laura La Plante and Myron Selznick for two days, followed by Elissa Landi and Victor McLaglen in "Wicked".

Edmund Lowe in "The Spider", one of the season's outstanding mystery dramas, will draw big crowds, and Buster Keaton in "Sidewalks of New York" will be an effective tonic for the blues.

Thanksgiving Week with Laura La Plante and Edward Everett Horton has been much talked of, and special picture of Clarence Gift Thursday. This comedy-drama will be entertained by both ages.

Last, but by no means least, comes a picture which every shaven to capacity throughout the country. The Spirit of Notre Dame", starring Jack Ayres of "All Quiet" fame.

Pictorially, Belleville is cared for far better than cities of three times here size, and in this, is extremely fortunate.

A scene from the "Sea Devils" starring Molly O'Day and Edmund Burns. Now at the Capitol.

Leslie Howard and Ann Harding in a scene from the romantic and appealing woman drama, "Devotion," commencing at the Belle Monday.

ON JOB TUES. IS THE ORDER TO C.P.R. MEN

West Toronto, North Bay and Carleton Place Are Affected

30 DAYS' WORK

C. P. R. Announce Work Schedule Till End of Year

MONTREAL, Nov. 14. — (CP)— Eight thousand workmen in six provinces Will return to work on Tuesday, Nov. 17, when the Canadian Pacific Railway will re-open its main shops, which were closed in September as a measure of economy. The decision to the railway to re-open its main shops was announced here by Grant Hall, vice-president, in a statement which read as follows: "The main shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company which were closed in September, will be re-opened on Tuesday Nov. 17.

From Frank McKenna, chairman of the federal trades committee of Canadian Pacific Railway, came the announcement that the men affected 8,000 workers in the Dominion, the number working on the 4,500 will return to work, while the remaining 3,500 will be given part time, and the following shops: McAdam Junction, N.B.; Carleton Place, West Toronto and North Bay, Ont; Weston Shops, Winnipeg Transcona Shops and Fort William coaver shops.

Statements by the company and the trades committee did not state whether or not the shops would remain open permanently. In this city the move was being generally regarded as tentative.

There was a consultation. The hood was lifted. The spark plugs were cleaned and set. The motor was over—even the gas tank was again investigated. Out of the night came of sputtering and wavering matches which were waved to and fro over the filling hole. Then the hood was replaced and again the crank was turned—and again the motor's sounds grew in tempo. There were cries of "Let her go!" and there was a dash—and there was deep, savage and malicious curses and shouts of consolations, of destruction and demolishment and of the ultimate fate and fate of their attention and wrath.

The cries grew fiercer, and rent the still night air such as it has not been rent on that particular street since automobiles were begun—but now always collected. Still however the car stood. There was, as they, with one accord, with shouts and curses, with fists and with a Dirtsell—fix ock in their eyes, approached the car with outstretched hands, talon like, and bodies crouched over in savage supplicatude, that the youngest and consequently the one who was supposed to know the least of the three, had an idea. He whispered. Everyone stopped. Everyone listened; actually smiled. And waited.

Another car approached and threw of the hill. Signals were given, and with a mighty heave-ho! the car was set behind engaged the rear end of the silently suffering Ford, again in hilarity rose low shook the light car to its foundations—or rather its axles—and slowly but perceptibly it moved —moved and then gained momentum—and away it went with sputtering stream of fire in its rear and dive down the hill, with three men hanging desperately to its sides and tops aboard. The speed increased. The wind made its passage known. Men on the sides top and made fl flap like the sails on a boat out of control—the men's hair and coat tails stood straight back with the wind—and they tried in vain to open the door, to climb in, or climb over the side of the vehicle. Faster and faster it went, gathering speed and shaky passage, and the car like some unleashed demon took its revenge as in unholy delight it left the others behind and reared down the steep hill.

Simple Report Told But What a Tale

There were sounds as of men panting heavily, as if exerting them selves. The hour was 3 a.m. and no one was out it happened on the hill near St. Michael's church. The reporter investigated—as usual.

There were men. Three men to be exact. And the object of their attentions was the customary light car. A few words—and the cause of conflict were in the air. Sounds that would be associated with pilfering heavy scrap iron, moving heavy machinery, lifting heavy weights—but starting a motor car—somewhat, shall, cranky old Ford car. There were muttered curses—muttered curses—a mumblings and the mumblings grew to inarticulate snarls and sounds as of pleading, of cajoling—of threatening, and then the sounds like the familiar clank-clang clang you have often heard as you lay in bed late at night while some nighthawk cranked up his runabout. But there was no sputter—no sputter of exploding cylinders or the noise and smoke of escaping gas in this instance. There was silence

Silence punctuated only by the groans and curses of perspiring men.

BLOWS KILL CHILD, INJURE THE BROTHER

Campbellford Father Arrested After Tragedy in Home

MOTHER DISCOVERS

Comes Home From Work to be Faced With Tragedy

Peterboro, Nov. 14.—Sleeping in their bed at their home in Campbellford Friday morning, Billy Greenshields, 5 years old, was killed and his 10-year-old brother, Hugh, seriously injured from which he was not expected to recover, when, it is alleged, their father, Hugh Greenshields, aged about 43 years, battered their heads with a hand-made club.

The first intimation of the tragedy came to the mother, who is employed at a shoe factory, when, just before noon, neighbors came to the Greenshields home to investigate the bedroom, a terrible scene of death confronted her. Another shock awaited her, as she found her husband on the back porch, the police say, just recovering from the effects of a dose of iodine he had taken after the attack.

The family had been residents of Campbellford only a few months. Mrs. Greenshields obtained work in the shoe factory, and Hugh was assistant in the upkeep of the family. Her husband, an invalid, who has been unable to obtain employment, suffered a severe blow early this summer when he was struck down by a motor car. It is believed he has not fully recovered.

Chief Chub Whittlesey, who was called to the scene, was accompanied by a few neighbors after the erection of a memorial which he visited as an early explorer, who discovered the falls in 1855.

A touching feature of the tragedy was the meeting of husband and wife in the hospital. It is stated, although laboring under deep emotion and almost unbearable grief, displayed great sympathy with her husband. Mrs. Greenshields, Miss Hel. Greenshields was a devoted father and husband, and showed great affection towards his two children, and while employed on the farm in Seymour Township, it was his custom to take his boys to church every Sunday.

COMMUNISTS WILL APPEAL

Announcement Made By Hugh John MacDonald, Their Counsel

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 14— Hugh John MacDonald, counsel for the eight convicted Communists sentenced here yesterday, said there would be an appeal. He outlined the grounds on which the appeal would be based until the notice is filed. Following the notice of appeal, he intimated, application will be made for renewal of bail. In the meantime the accused are in the following cells here: Tim Buck, John Boychuk, Tom Ewen, Matthew Popovich, Amos Hill, Malcolm Bruce, Samuel Ocheron or Carr, and Thomas Cacic. The eight were convicted on charges of being and acting as members of an unlawful association, they being t on seditious conspiracy.

Cargo of Flour Sold to England by Phone

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 14.—(By the Canadian Press)—A cargo of flour is of no interest to Glasgow today, sold in a trans-Atlantic telephone conversation. The sale was effected by a local milling company and the prospective buyer was in the Scottish City.

He needed the flour and needed it quickly. So the Toronto steamer "Anna" passed the Welland Canal yesterday from the mills of the company at Port Colborne, bound for Glasgow with a cargo of flour.

When You CAN'T QUIT

Fatigue is the signal to rest. Obey it if you can. When you can't, drink cool and carry-on in comfort.

Aspirin was meant for just such times, for it assures comfort. Freedom from those pains that nag at nerves and wear you down. One tablet will block that threatening headache while it's still just a threat. Take two or three tablets when you've caught a cold, and that's usually the end of it.

Carry Aspirin tablets when you travel. Have some at home and keep some at the office. Like an efficient secretary, they will often "save the day" and spare you many uncomfortable, unproductive hours. Aspirin is harmless, so keep it handy, keep it in mind, and use it. No man of affairs can afford to ignore the scores and more of uses explained in the proven directions. From a grumbling tooth to those theoretical pains which seem inclined to bend the bones, Aspirin tablets are ready with their relief—and always work. Neuralgia. Neuritis. Any nagging, needless pain.

Tablets Aspirin Trade Mark Registered Genuine

Get the genuine tablets, stamped with that name. They are of perfect purity, absolute uniformity, and have the same strength everywhere. Why experiment with imitations costing a few cents less? The saving is too little, for you risk much at stake. But there is economy in the purchase of genuine Aspirin tablets in the large bottles.

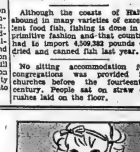
BOYCOTT WAR ON IN N. YORK

Chinatown Has Declared An Undying Boycott Against Japanese



NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Chinatown declarid "war" yesterday on New York's Japanese with an undying boycott as its weapon. The Chinese Patriotic Association and the Chinese Merchants' Association joined hands in launching the campaign. A proclamation was issued. It appeared on a ten-foot billboard beside the Japan "war indicator." Every Chinese must swear never to buy or sell "anything Japanese". The pledge must be kept for life, and passed on to the next generation, so the boycott will continue forever. Those who break their promise will be blacklisted—and in Chinatown that is penalty enough.

66 P.C. of Funded Debt is Payable in Canada

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 14.—Seventy-six per cent of the funded debt of the Dominion of Canada is payable in Canada; 11 per cent. in New York and 13 per cent. in London. With Great Britain off the gold basis, the Dominion's interest payments are lighter than they were, depending on the New York transactions. This information was contained in a statement issued last night by the Finance Department in connection with the forthcoming Dominion Domestic loan.

Although the coasts of Haiti abound in many varieties of excellent food fish, fishing is done in a primitive fashion—and that country had to import 4,509,382 pounds of dried and canned fish last year.

CHILD need REGULATING?

CASTORIA WILL STRAIGHTEN HER OUT

Of course you are particular about the medicines you give your child. You want no harmful drugs, no narcotics in a child's medicine.

When your child needs regulating, remember that the organs of babies and children are delicate. Laxatives should be gently regular —never forced.

That's why Castoria is used by so many doctors and mothers. It is specially made for children's alimentary tract. It contains nothing that can harm a child's tender organs.

(MADE IN CANADA) Chas. H. Fletcher.

CASTORIA

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT

Castoria is so mild you can safely give it to a young infant to ease colic pains. Yet, gentle as it is, it is unfailingly effective. Larger doses keep older children well regulated, and when your children are ailing in its taste—never object to taking Castoria!

The next time your child has a little cold or fever, or a digestive upset, give him the help of Castoria, the children's remedy. The genuine Castoria has the name Chas. H. Fletcher, on the package.

INDIAN TEAM WINS TROPHY

W. A. Fraser, M.P., Presents Award at Warkworth

Trenton—W. A. Fraser, M.P., presented the Fraser Trophy to baseball champions at Warkworth on Thursday evening to the Alderville team from the Indian Reservation of Almuh near Roseneath. The Alderville team won the West Northumberland championship playing off and winning from Warkworth who were winners of East North-umberland, Hastings, Warkworth, Brighton and Colborne winners played off with winners of West Northumberland, which was Alderville. Alderville has won the cup three years in succession, so keep the big cup also small individual cups for the players. Mr. Robert Dawson donated a cup for the Northumberland league as the "Dawson Trophy" which was won by Warkworth.

A dance followed the addresses by W. A. Fraser and Mr. Dawson. Both the dance and the addresses were enjoyed very much.

Old soldiers never die, they only fade away. One wonders if many that the first soldiers around here were fading away, by the way they went at that supper Thursday night at the Gilbert House. If they last another 13 years as well as they have the past 13 years they will be along time fading away. About 105 attended the delicious supper put up by the Gilbert House which was very nicely decorated with the flag of our country.

The guest of honour was Capt. Wilfred Heightington, M.P.P., of Trenton. Major Rogers was chairman.

W. H. Ireland, toast to the Legion, Responded, Capt. Rev. Nichol, M.M. Col Bryce, toast to His M. Forces. Responded by Capt. Wilfred Heightington. Toast to the town by comrade R. C. Graham. Responded by Major Chet. Lott.

Capt. Heightington spoke on the work of the Legion throughout the Province.

Mr. Jack Henderson suffered a head injury by falling from a pile of tics at the Canada Creosote Co. at Trenton, Thursday. Dr. Johnston attended putting three stitches to close the wound. Mr. Henderson will be off work a few days.

MAKES MONEY NOW WILL PAY

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 14.—(By the Canadian Press)—Jack Paquette 24, pleaded guilty on a charge of counterfeiting and was remanded a week for sentence. He appeared in East Windsor Police Court before Magistrate W. A. Smith.

Police chief Macdiville presented a record obtained from the Department of Justice at Washington, which showed that Paquette had served several terms in Kentucky prisons since 1930.

Paquette told the court he tried to earn an honest living but was unable to do so because of his age. He also said he had applied for an old age pension but was refused because he had spent so many years in United States. He claims to be a native of Anderson Township, Essex County.

Sportsman Is Recovering

Philip had a pleasant life at college, playing football and rowing and the like, but he was proudly glad that his father died — and Philip said so, in so many words. His father had confessed there was little left for Philip to inherit, and a time for Philip to go and find a job, and help support the family. Philip, small of stature, kindly and wise, left the house, and went into the University of Consumptives.

It had been a painful journey, but the sportsman, social storyteller, the sometime beau, vast and good food are rewarding this young Canadian into a sturdy self-supporting man of 25 pounds. "Philip is getting well," they say about right again. I will be glad to get back to work and help mother and the kids at home." There is no thought in his mind that will be wasted.

Such splendid work money is worth every penny of it. Will you not like to make a gift? Mr. A. P. Ames, 223 College St., Toronto, will gladly receive it.

Japanese Report That Position is Menaced

Chinese Cavalry Has Enveloped Right Wing of Japan Army

NOT RE-INFORCED

(Copyright, 1931 by the Associated Press)

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 13 (AP) —The Japanese military intelligence bureau reported today that a large force of Chinese cavalry has practically enveloped the Japanese right wing in a battle at the Nonni River and that the Japanese position and communications are seriously endangered.

Japanese headquarters said that their detachment had not yet been reinforced, however, although four infantry companies are held in reserve at Changchiatun.

Meanwhile additional Chinese troops have been arrived in the Tsitsihar region and the Japanese claim to have intercepted reports from General Mah instructing one of his cavalry commanders to attack at Taonan in an attempt to cut off the railway and prevent further shipments reaching the Japanese.

The Japanese also say they have definite information that Chang Hsueh-liang telegraphed General Mah from Peiping congratulating him on the bravery of his troops and also on the number of Japanese who were killed in last week's battles.

They also said they have a report that bandits are harrying the countryside and inhabitants causing 20,000 refugees from the surrounding territory to seek safety within the city and that there large bandit gangs, some carrying banners proclaiming themselves as volunteer defenders of the Northeastern frontier" have been reported around Kaiyuan, Changchun and Hirin and along the Mukdenlung railway.

Harbin, Manchuria, Nov. 13 (AP) —Advancing under cover of artillery fire, Japanese cavalry launched a series of attacks on Chinese forces in the Tsitsihar area, General Mah Chao-Shan reported today.

The infantry did not come into action but the fighting continued from yesterday afternoon until nightfall with casualties on both sides.

General Mah said the attack came before the expiration of the Japanese commander's demand that Tsitsihar be evacuated by midnight yesterday.

Mother of Five Looks for Early Release

When one is only 31 the strain of raising children on limited financial resources is a burden which is not easily borne. Such is the case of Mrs. N. Hone, in the case of which Mrs. N. Hone too strong from early years. Left a factory girl at 14 she nursed, pressed her lover and lower to the altar at 17 to be enriched with a family all too soon.

Fortunately, however, she was sent to the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives, where the experienced staff soon had her on the road to health with study cure. Since then, like a rain-freshened flower, Mrs. N. has responded to the careful dieting and treatment and has made splendid progress. Her husband is also ill and is now working forward to the time when she may return to her family.

There are many such cases, but Mrs. N. Hone's is typical of the work the Muskoka Hospital cannot side down. A gift from you will be gratefully received by Mr. A. E. Ames, 223 College St., Toronto.

RIGA IS RENO OF EUROPE

Knot Can Be Dissolved For Small Sum of $1.50

RIGA, Nov. 13.—(By Mail AP)—Riga is fast becoming the Reno of Europe.

Women who feel their style is cramped, and restless husbands are flocking here from all over the continent to get the knot slipper for about $1.50 which is the court charges.

The Latvian Law presumed that there is no need any desire for a continuance of married life on the part of a couple who have lived apart for a period of three years or more.

In such circumstances either party is permitted to claim a divorce without the other party's consent.

Ignorance by one party or the whereabouts of the other party in the matrimonial enterprise is sufficient grounds for divorce.

And the law of Latvia also grants divorce by mutual consent—with a somewhat wistful proviso that the couple shall live a period of two months, appear in person before the president of the court. The president then makes an earnest appeal that they should make up. All if they don't they are then free to go and pronounced them divorced.

MAY DISPERSE FAMOUS HERD

Wild White Cattle Comes of Wild Ox Strain

LONDON—Whether present financial conditions will cause the dispersal of the famous Northumberland wild white cattle herd, the only pure descendants of the original British wild ox, is discussed by the Earl of Tankerville, the herd's owner, in the current issue of "The Field".

"The wild cattle, now about forty-four in number, have been at Chillingham Park for some 700 years," the Earl writes. "They have been left entirely to themselves, beyond being given certain hay in wet winter, and no extraneous blood has ever been introduced.

"Now a crisis is looming up, for although the herd is maintained by me at a cost of about £1 or 2 pounds sterling per head annually entirely for the sake of individual and collective interest, it is regarded by the inland revenue authorities as a personal luxury, and no deduction of taxation whatever is allowed in respect of its upkeep.

He expresses the hope that some organization will volunteer to assume maintenance of the herd and states his willingness in turn it over to the nation.

WHEAT BROKE ON EXCHANGE

Market Began to Bend Early Under Strain of Selling Orders

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 13 —(By the Canadian Press) — Values collapsed when buying support was withdrawn on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and the close showed declines in all futures of from 1 to 2 5-8 with buyers speearing entirely indifferent the market began to bend early in the day under a strain of continuous selling and later carved in as liquidation began to flow more freely in the closing hour.

November broke a further 2 5-8 cts to 43; December 2 1-2 to 2 3-4 at 43 to 43 1-8; May 2 1-4 to 2 1-8 at 44 1-4 to 47 3-8; July 2 1-4 to 2 3-8 at 38.

CHATTERTON W. I.

The November meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute was held on the home of Mrs. Jas. Hamilton. The meeting opened by singing the opening ode after which the Lord's prayer was repeated in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

The roll call was answered by each bringing an antique, among them were a pair of candle sticks 100 years old, a spoon holder 150 years, Bible purchased in Rochester in 1825 spread four generations back, egg stirrer, a wooden trunk covered with cowhide, hair and brass mountain. This trunk was taken to Rochester and back on a one horse wagon.

Mrs. G. Guffin gave a paper on "The history of Sidney Baptist Church."

A reading by Mrs. B. Finkle on "Historical Research."

Collection was taken and after repeating the misprah the choates served lunch.

DRUNKEN DRIVING DOUBLES IN 4 YEARS

NEW YORK—The number of intoxicated drivers has been increasing from year to year, the total of licensed automobiles and revolutions for this cause in New York State having increased from 2,433 in 1926 to 5,667 last year, J. R. Crossley, vice-president of the New York Automobile Club, has just revealed. He declared that the drunken driver had contributed "in no small measure" to the total of 3,000 motor fatalities in the state during 1930, of which 1,163 occurred in this city.

In the same year, Mr. Crossley said, 21,519 driving licenses were suspended, of which 2,433 were operators had been charged with, or convicted of, driving a car while intoxicated.

Excluding accidents in mines, quarries, building and other construction work, and railways, about 1,000 persons are killed and 150,000 injured by accidents in the factories and workshops of England each year.

Bert's Desire

From a window in a little back street in an Ontario town, a small boy stood longingly looking at a toy engine in the window. A little sister was watching with him resting on a chair or in his cot, unable to walk or play.

The toy engine was rolled at glance told him the story, and it was his desire that Christmas Day burned off to the Queen Mary Hospital for Crippled Children, Toronto, where the little sufferers, it seems likely to be granted. Sent to the hospital for treatment, and the nurse says hopefully that in a few months time he will be able to walk. Surely a gift that will help and send what greater happiness could be found than to help a child like this?

Gifts saved many such as Bert from a life of misery, this great work must go on, helped by subscriptions upon which the hospital so largely depends. A gift from you will be gratefully appreciated. Send it to Mr. A. E. Ames, 223 College St., Toronto.

SNOWDEN ELEVATED TO PEERAGE AS VISCOUNT

Forty Five Years in Public Life Rewarded with Seat Among Peers

Snowden Has Always Supported Labor Party

SEAT AT BLACKBURN

Entered Civil Service in 1886, Served in Journalism

London, Nov. 16 (AP) — Official announcement was made today that Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer in the prime minister Ramsay MacDonald's Labor cabinet, has been created a Viscount.

He was one of the strongest figures in the Labor government, and by his services earned the appellation 'iron chancellor'. His magic with figures achieved a balance in the British budget and his were the recommendations which imposed the stringent economies upon the people and the government, boosting taxes and cutting down. Of recent months he has been seriously ill and for a long time he has used two canes to assist him in getting about.

Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, whose appointment to the Cabinet post of Lord Privy Seal was after he had retired from his seat in the House of Commons made it essential he should be given a peerage, was a member of the House for Colne Valley, Yorkshire, from 1922 until the last election.

In 1924 he was appointed Chancellor of Exchequer in the Labor government. During the economics crisis in Great Britain this year he was largely due to him that the country was able to ask for an international loan with a balanced budget, which, it was felt, would be one of the conditions demanded by international banking houses.

Mr. Snowden entered the British civil service in 1886, but retired in 1903 when he gave himself to journalism and lecturing. Subsequently he contested the seats of Blackburn and Colne, later, and Wakefield in 1902 as a Labor candidate. It was not until 1906, however, that he was finally elected as a member of the House of Commons for Blackburn. He sat in the house for his constituency until 1918.

He was always a keen supporter of the Labor government and was the author of numerous publications on labor questions and on the socialist movement in Great Britain.

DEFICIT OF ONE MILLION

This Will Be Province's Deficit Last Year, Says Hon. Dunlop

Morriston, Ont., Nov. 14—(CP)—A provincial deficit in the neighborhood of one million dollars under provision for Hydro debt retirement, but not provided for debt retirement, was predicted by Hon. E. A. Dunlop, Provincial Treasurer, here last night. This would be the "wild and inaccurate" statements Mr. Dunlop made this year would experience a deficit of five to seven millions.

"The amount will probably be rather less than greater than the one million dollar figure," he added.

Mr. Dunlop was addressing a campaign meeting on behalf of W. F. Gaskin, Conservative candidate in the South Wellington Provincial by election.

HOUSE GUEST IS MISSING

Rosemary Palmer Gildin, of England, Leaves home

WELLESEY, Mass. Nov. 16.—Rosemary Palmer Gildin, 17-year-old daughter of Herbert Gildin, Logden Eng., banker, has disappeared from the home of Professor Hamilton C. MacDougall, where she has been a house guest.

The Colonial Exerter proceeded into port early this week with a load of sugar and will return to Montreal with a load of canned goods from this district.

JOBLESS LADS ARE NOT AT ALL SAD

Out of work—waiting for their turn to get an odd job if any calls came in—a number of young men gave evidence of not being downhearted by singing happily to the accompaniment of a mouth organ in front of the Government Employment Bureau on Campbell Street, Monday morning. The chap with the harmonica played it splendidly well and the voices of the boys were of good quality, and no "sour notes" were struck by the singers. Some of the popular songs the boys sang were: "Peggy O'Neil," "Bring Back My Bonnie to Me" and "A Roamin' in the Gloamin'." Citizens going by were pleased at hearing singing of the boys and their own spirits were brightened by hearing them on a dull, damp and foggy morning.

MISS SANDERSON IS TRANSFERRED

Miss A. E. Sanderson, who has been an operator with the Canadian National Telegraphs office here for two years, has been transferred to the Parkdale branch of the company in Toronto and left on Sunday to assume her new post. Miss Sanderson has many friends in the city who regret to learn she will be greatly missed. No successor has as yet, been appointed to Miss Sanderson. Mr. C. D. Nash, of Toronto, at one time an operator in the office of Mrs. J. Schuyler, Tivray, Belleville, is for the present filling the position.

PURSE DISAPPEARS SO DOES YOUNG MAN

During the absence from the city hall of Mrs. Fred Short, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A., Mrs. Short gave employment to a young transient, in cleaning up the yard and work of odd jobs about their home. At noon time she prepared a lunch for the young chap, calling him to the kitchen for it. Mrs. Shortt was called to another part of the house and in her absence her pocket book, containing a purse, disappeared. The young transient has not been seen since. This may be taken as a warning to householders to use additional care at this time, in allowing tramps to enter their homes. The kitchen at the police station is available to honest, worthy folk (effort of them worthy chaps) who are temporarily out of work in this place.

Many houses in the city are providing lunches for them, but house holders should use discretion where and how they give them and to whom they provide employment.

HAIL STONES TRIED DRIVERS' PATIENCE

Unsettled weather was quite in evidence over the week-end. Considerable rain fell and the official records stated that .32 inches of rain fell on Sunday. There was but one point difference in the temperatures of Sunday and Monday. On Sunday the mercury registered 43 high and 38 low while Monday the registered temperatures were 44 high and 37 low. According to reports severe hail storms were experienced in Eastern Ontario late Sunday evening and it was with difficulty that motorists could travel in safety.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH MARKS ANNIVERSARY

Foxboro Congregation Told of Greater Things to Be

SPIRIT VALUE

Rev. Mr. Scott, of Picton, Refers to War's Sacrifices

In spite of the inclement weather on Sunday, the Jubilee Jamboree of the Foxboro Presbyterian Church was filled at both services. Rev. Mr. Scott of Picton was the minister on the occasion. At the morning service he brought as his text Isaiah 54-2, 3, "Remember ye not the former things, neither consider the things of old, for behold I will do a new thing."

He urged the large congregation not to look back on the past years, but to look for better times, as was the way of human nature, but to go steadily onward, for there are greater things for them to do. In looking back they might have been encouraged or vain in their own glory, but keep looking onward for none knew the great things God had for them to do tomorrow. The congregation had accomplished much in the community but on this their anniversary they should look afresh for God had greater achievements for them.

In the evening his message was from Zechariah, 4-6, "Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts." He urged that the strength thereof and the length thereof. And the spirit of God that talked with me went forth, and another angel went out to meet him. And said unto him, Run, speak to this young man, saying, Jerusalem shall be inhabited as towns without walls for the multitude of men and cattle therein. For I, saith the Lord, will be unto her a wall of fire round about, and will be glory in the midst of her.

The temple was always the centre of religion, pure and undefiled but out of which should come a Saviour. The temple was built, then the city began to grow. The temple is the established church and these things fall into place, because the people have the grace of God. The young man was going to measure Jerusalem, the city of the living God. The building of it had so much so, the glorious description, songs of praise, cries of breaking hearts, joys, voices of the prophets against the sins of the people, calling them to repentence. The worship and influence of it all the world over where she went surged around this City of Zion. It was no wonder another angel said it would never be measured. God was in the midst of it. There are some things that can never be measured as the fragrance and the beauty of a flower. Value not the space, but the spirit. During the past week the memory of the heroes of the Great War had been commemorated. Those deeds of valour could never be measured not only on the battle field, but in the hospital, office and field. The things of God can never be measured with the yard stick tells us often useless. Jerusalem was to be a city without walls. Walls defend a city but Jerusalem needed no walls for God was in the midst of her. So the congregation can not be measured by membership or financial reports but by its value to the community, moulding of character, expressions of gladness, comfort, cheer, encouragement and love.

The choir rendered special music at both services. Solos were given by Mr. Williams and Mrs. Paterson and a duet by the Misses Elliot.

place, after gaining entrance through an outer door by swift strategy, a squad of provincial police, acting directly under the orders of General V. A. S. Williams, their commissioner, made an impressive entry.

Headed by District Inspector A. R. Elliott, who, with a search warrant in his hand, took his personal charge of the raiding squad, the constables proceeded to search the place as though with a fine-tooth comb.

Under a linoleum floor-cover on the second floor the officers discovered a trapdoor. Opening the trap they found a large quantity of gambling and smaller canvas bags, described as similar to the kind used by banks. The bags contained chips, playing-cards, dice and a large quantity of bills, some new and others crumpled as though they had been in bags in haste. Approximately $4,000 was seized. No gambling was in progress.

In other parts of the premises police found a 25 sawed-off shotgun and a rifle, the revolver and felt covers of the type said to be used on automobiles upon which the shotguns are thought by police to have been carried. The latter are used for protection of the users of the money bags in case bags in haste. Approximately $4,000 was seized. No gambling was in progress.

Among the 23 present when police arrived, all of whom were released on bail, were proprietor and addresses to the officers, were Albert Gilbert Bongard, Jr., and William Grout whom police described as "well-known" and held to be lessee of the place.

The charges, it was said, but the Attorney-General stated last night that his deputies and Crown-Attorney Armour had the whole matter under advisement and that charges would be laid today.

RELIEF AND WELFARE

Four hundred and twenty-three names on the unemployment registration lists at the City Hall. One hundred were put to work Friday on civic undertakings.

There will be citizens who will need help to tide them over this winter who never were in this position before. The committee desires to help all needy cases but will treat all information as confidential, and there will be no publication of names or circumstances of those helped. Any citizen temporarily in need is entitled to civic assistance.

XXX

Cash contributions are coming in steadily for the relief fund and reports from group subscriptions are very encouraging. The drive is really just starting, and already a very gratifying total is in sight.

XXX

The Belleville Unemployment Relief Committee is functioning and a number of cases where relief is needed have been investigated. One family deprived of a home upon being dispossessed for non-payment of rent were found a house and are now comfortably installed with a month's rent paid up in advance, while the husband and father has part-time work.

Clothing and food can be used to advantage all the time. Warm underclothing for men, boys' coats, ing and shoes (aged 9 to 14) are urgently needed.

XXX

Miss Lynch, who for years has been in direct charge of relief operations for the Women's Christian Association, is at relief headquarters, City Hall, part of each day, and her intimate knowledge of people and requirements is of great assistance to the committee.

XXX

Charlie Hanna and his team are getting to work this week with the relief machine and Charlie suspects this group will rank high among the most generous of contributors.

POLICE COURT

Four cases were heard before Magistrate Millar Monday in police court.

Two cases of intoxication were heard and both defendants pleaded guilty. The usual fine of $15.00 with costs was imposed and paid in each case. One of the cases was of a young man who was after a severe reprimand the Magistrate warned him not to appear before the court again, otherwise he would get a jail sentence.

About 11 p.m. Saturday evening the police were called to the home of Mrs. Jack Bedore, 264½ Pryce street, where a complaint was lodged against Marshall Peck of Marysburg. Mrs. Bedore stated that Peck had tried to force his way into her apartment and had used insulting language. Constables Evans and Ansell later found Peck on the street and arrested him. He was charged in police court with using insulting language and pleaded guilty. A fine of $5.00 and costs was imposed and was paid.

An alleged case of unlawful and indecent assault was the charge against Arthur Meeks. Meeks elected to be tried before Magistrate Millar but wanted to hear the evidence of the plaintiff and raised considerable discussion in the police court as that the court enlarged the case until Saturday, November 21st. In the meantime Meeks will be lodged in the county gaol.

VETERAN SKIPPER DEAD AT OAKVILLE

Oakville, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP) — Veteran skipper of windjammer days on the Great Lakes, Captain Alexander Fitzgerald, last of the Oakville lake captains, is dead here. He was 86 years of age.

Captain Fitzgerald retired when steam-driven ships and black funnels supplanted white sails. He died early yesterday.

CAR NUMBER IS OBTAINED

Car Owned By Miss Youker is Slightly Damaged

Miss Clara Youker, of Foxboro, has reported to the police that Saturday night about ten-twenty-five o'clock, when driving south on to Front Street from Victoria Ave., her car was struck by a car going west on Front Street buckling the left rear fender and breaking the left bumperette on her car. The driver of the car which struck her, it is said, lost control of his car and drove upon the east sidewalk of Front Street and gained control and hastened away without stopping to enquire if any damage had been done. The number of the car was obtained and the police are taking action in the matter.

PROV. POLICE ASKED TO FIND DOMESTIC

Edith May Fisher, a seventeen-year-old domestic, has been missing from the home of her sister, Mrs. Rose, Prospect St., near St. Peter's, Ont., since November 3rd, and the district office of the Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville has been requested by the Niagara Falls, Ont., district office to be on the lookout for her.

The girl is five feet six inches in height, weighs about one hundred and eighteen pounds, slim figure, dark complexion, brown hair, green eyes, long nose, mole on left cheek and left forehead. She was wearing a dark, close fitting hat trimmed with red, dark blue coat and strap slippers.

$8,000 LOSS IN FIRE

EXPECT RESULTS FROM CONFERENCE

London, Eng., Nov. 16—Hon. C. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, Saturday night told the London Dietries Institute of Journalists that the Dominions and the Colonies were anticipating some direct results from the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference. Great Britain, he said, had put its own house in order at the general election and now there must be opportunities made for new relationships between the Dominion and the colonies.

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

The November meeting of the Tabernacle W.M.S. was held as an open meeting in the Sunday School rooms on Thursday evening November 12th. The president, Mrs. Horton, was in the chair and opened the meeting with prayer. "The Whole World was Lost in the Darkness of Sin."

Mrs. Laughlin Sr., offered prayer. Mrs. Gordon read the Third Chapter of Malachi as the Scripture lesson, after while bible autumn thankoffering was taken. The W.M.S. Mission Band presented a Thanksgiving exercise and placed a Thankoffering on a gratitude tree...

The main feature of the evening was an address by Mrs. Joy, president of the Belleville Presbyterial which was enjoyed by all. The Misses Jessie Smith, Dorothea Newson, after which the chairman thanked Horton at the piano sang "O, Lord that will not let us go". Hymn "The morning light is breaking" was sung and Mrs. Joy J. McKeown closed the meeting with prayer. Light refreshments were served and the Mission Band sold home-made candy. The proceeds of offering and candy, for the Band, amounted to six dollars which was very gratifying.

Elections Held in State of Hesse, Gives Hitler 27 Seats

Darmstadt, Hesse, Germany, Nov. 16 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's National Socialists had scored another provincial victory over the moderate supporters of the government of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening today as result of elections for the state of Hesse yesterday gave them control of the Diet. They secured 27 seats where they formerly had none.

18TH FIRE IN TWO MONTHS

Barn Burned, Also Two Silos, 30 Head of Cattle, Two Horses

Tillsonburg, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP) —Fire which broke out yesterday destroyed the barn on the farm of Charles Winegarden, and with it, the two silos, 30 head of cattle and four horses. Farmers of the district label fear that arson may have caused the blaze. The loss is estimated at $8,000 which is partly covered by insurance.

Hamilton, Ont. Nov. 16 (CP) — Breaking out in a small shed at the rear of the house, fire late Saturday destroyed the home of Mr. Arthur Whitehead, Wentworth county farmer. The building was completely burned but neighbors managed to help the Whiteheads in saving some furniture. The blaze marked the eighteenth mysterious farm fire within two months in Wentworth county.

POLLING DAY IS NEARING

Interest in South Wellington By-Election is Growing

Guelph, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP) — With polling only two days away, interest in the South Wellington Provincial by-election is growing and both Conservatives and Liberals have arranged a busy schedule of meetings for today and tomorrow.

W. F. Gamble, retired Guelph business man, is the Conservative standard-bearer while D. Paul Munro, local barrister, is contesting the seat for the Liberals. The by-election was necessitated by the death of Hon. Lincoln Goldie, former Provincial Secretary in the Ontario Conservative government.

The Conservatives are holding a rally here tonight at which Hon. Charles McCrea and Hon. William Finlayson, Provincial Ministers of Mines and of Lands and Forests, respectively, will speak. Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader will wind up the campaign on behalf of Mr. Munro with a meeting here tomorrow.

Speaking here Saturday, Mr. Hepburn claimed the gross debt of the province was increasing rapidly. He expressed the opinion that the estimate of the Provincial Treasurer, Hon E. A. Dunlop, that the government deficit would be about $1,800,000 this year was a cheap bauble brought about by charging ordinary expenditures to capital account, instead of current expenses.

The meeting was marked by the appearance of Harry C Nixon, Ontario Progressive leader, on behalf of Mr. Munro. The Progressive leader urged the electors to "send another opposition man to the legislature, so as to allow for cross-examining the government policy."

Dr. George A. McQuibban, M.L.A., for Wellington North-east, and the Liberals proposed "tracing that $50,000 payment to Aird if it takes years and years." He was referring to the payment by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission to John Aird, Jr., of Toronto, for advice in connection with the purchase of power site.

AGE AND YOUTH FACE PROBLEM

Rev. W. L. Wright, of Tweed, Discusses Subject

Mutual understanding of youth and age was claimed as the chief essential in a proper attitude towards the problems of today by the Rev. W. L. Wright of Tweed preaching at Christ Church on Sunday evening. "We look with the eyes of the critic instead of adoration," he said in regard to a large number of people viewing the issues facing youth.

"The older people must keep alert and in touch with the problems to be of aid to youth in their solution, St. Paul said that 'We must keep the mind young. The older have a great deal to learn from the young and the young from the old."

Youth has its hopes and ambitions and age often looks back wistfully upon the past. But what does not the world owe to youth? Jesus Christ was impetuous of keeping young.

"Wholesale criticism by the old of the young today is not justified The windows of the eyes of many are not opened and they do not understand the problems of the young. The older are responsible for the fall of the old temple but young and bold must combine to raise a new temple on past shortcomings.

Rev. Mr. Wright asked youth to be true to its principles and face the issues as they see them. The older must be tolerant otherwise they will lag behind.

HEPBURN ASKS FOR A PROBE

States People of Canada Are Being Exploited By Gas Prices

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 16.—Probe of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and investigation of gasoline prices in Canada was demanded by Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader and M.P. for Elgin West, addressing Ward Eight Liberal Association at their annual meeting Saturday night.

"Exploitation of the people", he charged was being allowed through "crude being brought into Canada free of tariff," he said. "But a tariff wall is erected against the finished products to protect Canadian refiners. Behind this tariff wall there is every indication that the people are being exploited. There is every indication that the people are being exploited. There is far too great a difference in prices to be accounted for by higher cost of production in Canada. Let the Government investigate this and appoint a commission to probe hydro. Then the people will be satisfied with the result."

PAPER CARTEL FOR JAPANESE

Mills Placed on Strict Curtailment Basis

TOKYO, Japan Nov 16.—By the Canadian Press) — Introduction of the Government card in the chemical textile and paper industries of Japan has met with considerable success and it is likely that the system will be continued indefinitely—at any rate, until the present trade depression is over. Operation of the cartel programme has brought about a form of compulsory co-operation among industrial corporations which hitherto has been impossible of attainment. For instance in the paper industry the mills have been placed in a strict curtailment basis so that the mills produce at the rate of only 65 per cent capacity. This has been in effect since the first of the year.

The surplus production has been locked up and the companies are forbidden to add to this surplus under threat of penalty. To guard against possible infractions of the cartel regulations paper machines not required have been actually sealed and inspectors make periodical calls to see that the mills abide by the compact.

One factor favoring the Japanese industrialists, is that they can call their workers together at short notice. It is a Japanese custom that unemployed are cared for by their families, with the result that when a man is laid off by his employer he does not seek other work but merely boards with other members of his household at their expense until such time as he is able to go back to his job again. This prevents dislocation of industry due to labor disturbances. There is plenty of unemployment in Japan, but no soup kitchens or doles.

PALE, WHITE LIPS AND UNDERWEIGHT

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic) proved to be just what Mrs. Misselbrook needed.

"My aunt told me about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills three years ago," writes Mrs. Alvin Misselbrook, R.R. No. 3, Watford P.O., Ontario. "I was always troubled with weakness. I was very pale with no color in my lips and I was underweight.

Gained 67 pounds.

"After taking the first box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was encouraged to go further. When I had taken them steadily for a month, I had gained my color back. I am well now and have gained in weight from 105 to 172. I frequently recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to my friends, as I have received so much benefit from them."

The scientific explanation of the astonishing results brought about by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic) is somewhat complex. The iron and other elements in the pills increase the amount of haemoglobin or oxygen-carrying agent in the blood. Supplied with more oxygen through the blood, the tissues of the body become revitalized. The result to you is health—a feeling of well-being.

If you are weak and run-down, or if you suffer from rheumatism, sciatica, nervousness or any ailment caused by poor blood, go to a druggist today and get a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. 50 cents a package. Be sure to say "Dr. Williams'" so that the druggist will know exactly what you want. 23

Bisons, Indians Tied for Lead

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)—International Hockey League had its go over the week-end at Syracuse, Detroit and Cleveland, where three league contests produced only six goals, four of which came in the Windsor Bulldog-Detroit Olympic tangle at Detroit. Of the three games, all of which went ten minutes overtime, two resulted in draws and the other in an Olympic win from their cross-the-river rivals. As a result of Buffalo's scoreless draw with the Syracuse Stars and Cleveland's tie with the Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets the Bisons and Indians are now tied for the league leadership, followed by Detroit, Pittsburgh and Syracuse, the latter two, who have tied both their games to date.

Before 13,000 cheering Windsor and Detroit fans, Frankie Steele, Olympic wing-man, weaved around the Bulldog defence and shoved the puck behind Kerr in the Windsor cage, to score the winning overtime goal for the club last night. After battling scoreless for two periods the deadlock was broken midway through the final period when Hinspringer netted for Windsor. George Hay, playing manager of the Olympics passed to Goldsworthy, who soon equalized matters and Steele's goal in overtime decided the issue. However, to make certain of victory, Goldsworthy netted another counter with only a minute of play.

Syracuse fans had their first glimpse of their 1931-32 club in action Saturday night when the Stars battled Buffalo Bisons through 70 minutes of scoreless hockey, for their second draw verdict in as many games. Both teams missed many each scoring chances in the wide open contest.

The sensational goal-tending of Abbie Cox in the Yellow Jackets' net was partly responsible for Pittsburgh's one-all draw with Cleveland Indians Saturday, altho' Pittsburgh netted the first counter when Frankie Ingram beat Woods in the Indians' cage, Cleveland soon equalled the count but supposing your family did need food!

Then what? Would you talk about "this terrible depression" and let it go at that? Would you say, "All these hungry reports are just a lot of exaggerated propaganda. People don't really starve in this day and age"? Would you think that "it serves them right for not saving up for a rainy day"? Would you claim that "anybody who isn't lazy can get a job"?

No! Indeed not! We'd all sing a different tune if our families had to miss a few meals. Then and then only would we truly understand the present economic situation, with its suffering, and its demand for immediate relief.

Words can't tell what is going on in some of your neighborhoods. And words won't alter matters. What is needed is money, YOUR cash contribution to the Civic Relief Fund. Ask yourself in the other fellow's place. Be thankful that you were not put there by Fate. Then GIVE 15 the utmost. YOUR share to wipe out the suffering in YOUR community.

A committee of citizens, representing every branch of community life, have investigated the need — saved YOU the trouble of personally investigating. Will you take their word, or do you prefer to remain a "Doubting Thomas?"

Every dollar you give to this central fund represents three dollars in effective relief.

He gives twice who gives early, get busy and put Belleville over the top once more, 100 per cent neighborly.

Fill out the card sent you, leave your contribution at your bank, or join your group, but don't miss taking part in this great opportunity of showing the real Christian spirit — and very little is asked of you in proportion to your means — if all do their share the Community Fund will soon be filled and overflowing.

All contributions must come to the City Treasurer and all disbursements must be passed by him, as required by the Federal and Provincial Governments who pay dollar for dollar on civic relief expenditures properly certified to by civic officials.

NEW HOSPITAL TYPE

There has been in operation for a year and more a hospital in Boston to serve people of moderate means at a rate they could afford to pay, says the New York Times. There is no endowment though the building was given, and the Rosenwald fund will pay half of any year's deficit for the first three years. The hospital has been given a good start, and, though it has not yet been filled to capacity, the deficit to be made up by the fund is nearly fifty thousand less than the maximum agreed upon. The directors expect the plan to work out successfully and claim that their most drastic deviation from the usual plan for hospitalization is the moderate fee. That has succeeded. Most hospitals which are run at moderate means leave out of consideration the question of surgeon's fees; rates for rooms and board and nurses may be reduced, but the doctor's bill is a matter for his own conscience. Often it is more than half of the patient's total outlay for illness or operation. In this hospital the patient pays one bill—to the hospital and the hospital pays the doctors who have agreed upon rates for all kinds of services. No matter how many operations have to be performed the patient never has to pay over one hundred and fifty dollars—for diagnosis, treatments, and consultations. All other charges are fixed with a maximum to prevent a big separate bill for X-rays, anaesthetics or other special services.

Officers decide who are persons of moderate means. During the first year 2476 patients were admitted and the family income of more than half of them was between one thousand and three thousand dollars.

THE SEASON AND ROADS

Motorists have come to the stage of the year when they must exercise more caution than in the summer time. Due to the slackening up of the volume of traffic, the speed has gone up and this is hazardous at this time of the year. Conditions which reduce the amount of traffic untoward conditions for travel. Moist and damp roads are a fertile cause of accident as anyone who has attempted to apply brakes on a wet pavement realizes from his own experience.

Motorists will be wise to take the traffic cops' advice to be more careful now than ever.

THIS IS THE TEST

A testing time is before many people —the result of which will be their duty to the cause of relief to enable many people to pass over a very undesirable turn in their fortunes during the passing of this year. These people who are requiring relief will be people who in a short time with revival of trade and the return of better optimism in outlook will be again taking care of themselves and producing for themselves for others and will be again given the opportunity of going to work.

There is but one answer to the question. All in their brother's keep. No sophistry, no blinding of the eyes to the facts can exonerate anyone from the plain duty that lies before him. That thought should go the golden rule—"Do unto others as you would them"—they do unto you." If we can only realize that we are known to have other views can harmonize them with the straight command of the religion they profess is more than wit or philosophy can find out.

Many who are supporting the local relief plans are taking their part throughout their sense of brotherly love which means a personal financial loss and the yielding up of comforts, but this losing done in the cause of others brings its own great reward.

EXIT A MUCH-USED WORD

As a man thinks and speaks, so largely his mind is. This is never more clear than in the use of catch-words which have an immense run for days, months or years, until the very world gets weary and sick of them. No word has done more service for all sorts of immature ideas than the old slager "depression", which has done more harm by the very insistence of everybody upon its use in every day language.

Now everybody is using it, the time has come to drop it for the word after passing through so many minds, has worn out, is threadbare and means scarcely anything.

That is just what one hundred and fifty publishers have decided and to them this word, of Latin origin, not Anglo-Saxon at that, is banned from the English language.

When everyone on the street is talking and thinking depression, surely depression must be intensified.

So the world is going to see if there is any psychological effect in the dropping of the word.

GOOD MORNING, WORLD!

By Aline Michaelis

Good morning, World!
How good to see
The sun-god rise
In majesty;
To feel across
The deeps of space
His touch upon
My lifted face!

Good morning, World!
How sweet to hear
The meadow-lark
With matin clear,
As he lifts up
His happy voice
That makes my heart
In turn rejoice!

Good morning, World!
How my soul sings
To hear the dawn
Dawning brings:
New faith, new cheer

PRICES OF FOODSTUFFS, wearing apparel, and other lines, have touched lower levels this summer, but with the fall there is a noticeable tightening up, a strengthening of prices and an upward swing. Folks who have been frightened by that bogy old man Depression and have been hiding away their money in savings banks at three per cent. should now try investments in good companies of all things needful, buying enough for present needs and some distance into the future. Now is also a good time to get all sorts of odd jobs done about the home or business place, for there is a plentitude of all kinds of help—painters, decorators, carpenters, masons, etc., anxious to take these jobs at living wages. There will probably never be again in our lifetime an opportunity such as at present of buying necessaries at such low prices and getting work done so reasonable. Folks who get rich, as a rule, are those who take advantage of times like these when opportunity just waits upon the investing dollar and promises a return of several. Of course there will always be the person who cries "wolf" and buries his talent in the garden, it is no help to anyone, even himself.

WHOSE BUSINESS IS IT that this army of young Britishers, from England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, are being herded up and down the country like professional hoboes, given a bite and a bed here and then told to move on elsewhere? These are the young men who came out here to till the soil, build railways, and help build up Canada generally, came out in answer to fervent invitations from government and railway agencies and glowing posters painting pictures of wealth and comfort in this wonderful Canada. Their present mode of life will make professional hoboes out of them as surely as the sun rises and sets, and worse. Government and municipalities should take this question up earnestly and seek some positive solution. We can make good Canadians out of these young men, or we can do the reverse. Let's do something, quick.

LAST WINTER the city Council expended ten thousand dollars in relief. Each individual householder was also called upon frequently for cash or goods, the churches all had relief cases to look after, the Salvation Army, W. C. T. U., Rotary, Kiwanis and other welfare organizations, amounting in all, if totalled up, to a very large sum. The "Civic" Unemployment Relief Committee seeks to concentrate all this relief work under one head, financed from the one community chest, and every dollar expended by this central organization will be supplemented by two more dollars from the governments. The citizen who spends a dollar on charity direct, just spends one dollar, if he gives that dollar to the Civic Relief Unemployment Committee it becomes three dollars in the spending. Individual relief giving will not be necessary with the functioning of the central relief organization, and any citizen approached for direct relief has only to refer the applicant to relief headquarters at the City Hall.

A LESSON

Canada is no place for revolutionary agitation. The people of this country anywhere where the individual enjoys greater freedom, provided he is willing to respect the rights of his fellow-citizens as expressed in the laws of the land. These laws have been made for the protection of all, and they are administered impartially. This is true, at least, in regard to those activities which have not been enacted to the advantage of the classes, the class which goes by the name of labor, but which is organized for the promotion of its own interests. The aims of communism are wholly and utterly inconsistent with the established principles of government and the organization of society in Canada, and are therefore opposed diametrically to the will of the people of Canada as now satisfied with existing institutions and their progressive adaption to new social and economic requirements as these arise. Nothing that communism has found nourishment in's false atmosphere of security, due to the prolonged inaction of federal and provincial governments in the inaction which persisted despite the fact that federal governments, at least, make known from time to time the existence of this movement, its wickedness, its criminal methods of its advancement and its purpose. But the reaction is there. It is probable that the mischief might have been checked more effectively in very early stages, and had this been done the record which has been written in the streets of the Winnipeg strike of 1919, the recent Estevan brutalities, various demonstrations which have occurred in Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, Windsor and the conviction and sentence of those eight scoundrels in Kingston Penitentiary would not have been written. —Montreal Gazette

MUMMY WHEAT

During the past year, several accounts have been published regarding the pass about the germination of wheat kernels found in Egyptian tombs preserved for thousands of years in Egyptian tombs. The most substantial story came from the Canadian West and was widely circulated. Inasmuch as the corresponding properties of grain generally are fairly well known, a few persons have indulged in a skeptical attitude as to the ability of the wheat possessing any mysterious power to germinate, and a recent correspondent ago published the statement of an authority who intimated that stories of "mummy wheat" sprouting were due to tourists being taken in by unscrupulous dealers who first "planted" the grain in tombs. However, the stories continue to have unabated enthusiasm and detail, with the result that the Dominion Dominion arsenals, Ottawa, has indicated that in the spring of November an article designed to squelch them. He points out that the statements given particular in Canada have attracted the attention of government officials, and who in due course appealed to officials of the Egyptian government information as to whether or not wheat seeds after the long period of years is capable of growing.—Woodstock Sentinal Review.

EDUCATION BY AIR

Thirteen Canadian Universities are co-operating in the winter program of radio talks, which will include a great variety of subjects—literature, music, art, philosophy, economics, science and history. This is a very promising experiment, which should be of great benefit to the people of the community, and it is an evidence of the public spirit of the institutions which have offered their facilities for the work. The executive committee of the National Council is also taking an independent part in the broadcasting of the Christian programme of an educational nature, especially in the matter of records, the lectures of famous men on cultural subjects. On Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, Sir Henry Newbolt will be heard reciting his own poems and Professor Jilan Huxley will give an extremely interesting talk on Ants and Their Habits.

These broadcasts add greatly to the value of the radio as a medium of worth-while entertainment. It is nothing short of wonderful that by the thinking artists, the learned men of science are in our daily able to speak forth on their subjects in which they are recognized authorities. Through the radio the universities are being brought to the homes. It is to be hoped that the broadcasting of the National Council will be duly appreciated and that other organizations will be encouraged to do something along the same lines.—Hamilton Spectator.

Letters to the Editor

CONDITIONS IN WEST

Editor Ontario Intelligencer—

As I am a reader of your paper I take the liberty to ask a small space in your column to publish a letter which I received from a sister in a relative that I placed in a pail of honey that I sent to Canada for the relief provisions at Nagasee and shipped to the city by the Canadian Northern Railway. I feel that this letter will be very interesting to everybody who is kind enough to read it, to know that the car landed safely and the goods were very gratefully received.

Mrs. Wesley Gray.

Craik, Sask., Nov. 9, 1931.

Dear Mrs. Wesley Gray—

I am writing a line to let you know who was the fortunate one to receive the parcel. I can't begin to explain how grateful we are to get such generous assistance from the people in Ontario have sent to us who live in the get-rid of Southern Saskatchewan. We haven't had any rain for three years now and this year we did not even get our seed back.

We haven't got fend for our chickens, the feed we have to have has to be shipped in from government relief plan. It is exactly three and one-half years since I left home and any rain to speak of. We have to haul water for the stock and we have to haul the water we use for three and one-half miles.

We have our living from our chickens and cows so we manage to get along without buying any groceries on relief.

We have been in the east must have had wonderful gardens and you certainly have been very generous with your gardens, honey and canned goods and we are very glad to say we're thankful for the things you have sent us. It certainly is a wonderful help.

Dr. Watt Smith had a very nice ceremony when he opened the car. The men all stood bare-headed during the time. He is very much indeed and I hope some day we will be able to repay you for your generosity. The cattle will very much I will close wishing you the best of health.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed)
Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hopenson,

The ships, each with a capacity of 400,000 bushels, have been tied up since the middle of the summer.

"Ketchup Hounds" in Bad Odor in Restaurants of City

Boys Who Make Floating Island of Sandwich, Unpopular

IT'S A RACKET

Japan and China are on the verge of war; conditions in Russia are going from bad to worse, and the export trade is breaking daily of new conditions all over the world, but right here in Belleville there is another problem which is confronting many of the restaurant keepers and other eating houses.

War has been declared on the "ketchup hounds." Trouble looms in the offing for those fellows who sit at the lunch counter, order the customary egg sandwich and then proceed to make it a "floating island" with the aid of the ketchup genuflex. "Things are going from bad to worse," sighs the restaurant man, looked to be from there I stood a plate of chili sauce on which a few potatoes and other articles floated in a red sea, we almost have to put up with it nowadays. A year or so ago sugar was cheap, and although a lot of them did try to make maple syrup out of their coffee and tea we put up with it. But now the end is in sight. The shape of a little spout which comes out of a bottle opened by one squeeze of a thumb, but tell me how we can arrange some sort of a measuring device on a ketchup bottle." Just then a party of hungry looking men approached the cash register, paid their check and went out. And I immediately went in to see if by chance the ketchup bottle had been left stood before their respective plates still contained any of that product made famous by Heinz. It was empty—as bare as old Mother Hubbard's cupboard, and the proprietor automatically reached for it with one hand, and with the other he pressed a button under the counter for another one to be placed on the counter.

"Whether it is a new fad or not," he remarked, "I do not know, but I do know that even a couple of sandwiches and tea will not be had half as much as we do now. I've never seen the like of it. Some are hastened to the cash register to accept another check from a departing customer, but the ketchup bottle in the soup they get nowadays, and I'm wondering how long we will have them do before," said he, returning to the fact that small moments later the cry from the other end of the counter, "another bottle of ketchup, will ya?"

Remembrance day has caused many queries and questions relative to military matters to arise. As a result a number of ex-officers and ex-soldiers where the name Tommy Atkins originated, they admitted they were stopped; some offered explanations, but none seemed satisfactory. It was left, however, to a veteran of the Boer, South African and Great War to answer the question. He was in the old British army, some forty or fifty or more years ago, so joining the colors, was given the "small book" in which he kept a personal record of military service, pay, changes of grade, his assignments to different stations, and commands, etc. This book also contained examples of military forms and on the inside of which he would come in contact and the soldier was referred to the Act or Part so-and-so. Four Dead, Many Ill, of Septic Sore Throat—Parents Alarmed

NURSES BUSY

St. Thomas, Nov. 16—An emergency meeting of the Local Board of Health and the Board of Education was called Saturday to consider what course would be taken to check the outbreak of septic sore throat which has already claimed four young lives in the city and scores in the surrounding country.

As a result of the meeting eight rooms in two of the city's public schools have been closed for fumigation. In addition strict quarantine will be enforced. Dr. D. A. McGillivray, medical officer of health, and the local school nurses are working without cessation, visiting absentees from school, checking up on all sickness that they can trace through the various schools, and preaching, fumigating, advising in oculating—all with a view towards preventing the spread of the dread disease.

The first victim of the streptococcus is Patricia Ann (Patsy) Carter, nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Carter and grand daughter of Dr. F. E. Bennett, D. D. S., well-known emissary of flowers. Little Patsy died Saturday morning, leaving the second death in this family in less than a week, another child died of the same trouble on Monday night. Funeral services for the family is still seriously ill. The death of Frederick Margaret Carter occurred 12 hours previous.

General alarm has spread throughout the city. Dr. D. A. McGillivray the medical officer of health, and the local school nurses are working without cessation, visiting absentees from schools, checking up on all sickness that they can trace through the various schools, preaching, fumigating, advising in oculating—all with a view towards preventing the spread of the dread disease.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC LOWEST IN YEARS

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)—Freight traffic through the Sault Ste. GRADE OF CHEESE BETTER THAN LAST YEAR

Falling Off of Exports in Dairy Products is Cause of Grave Concern

South Hastings Dairymen Are Pointed Present-Day Picture None Too Rosy of Conditions in Dairy Industry.

HARDER WORK AHEAD IS VIEW

Clem. H. Ketcheson is Re-Elected as Director of South Hastings Dairymen's Association.

Members of South Hastings Dairymens' Association under the direction of Mr. C. H. Ketcheson, held their annual convention in the council chambers of the city hall Saturday afternoon. This meeting was held under the auspices of the Dairymens' Association of Eastern Ontario and the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and although very sparsely attended, matters of great importance to local producers in that industry were lengthily discussed.

Must Take Action

Unless action is taken, and that very quickly in the direction of awakening local interest among the men directly concerned with this industry, the opinion of the members of that board and association is that Ontario, and Canada, as a whole will soon cease to exist as far as the export is concerned. If conditions, which some of us realise is deplorable, when it is known that Canada once led the world in the export and marketing of that commodity. Her exports to Great Britain alone have fallen off tremendously, being some where in the neighborhood of one hundred and ninety five millions of dollars in less than ten years, when the high tariff wall erected by the United States has also precluded any possibility of export to that country at present. On the other hand New Zealand, an unheard of country almost until a few years ago, has gained in volume in this export business until the figures appear gigantic and overwhelming in comparison with that of Canada.

This condition has assumed alarming proportions in Canada, but to Ontario and the residents of Belleville and district, whose home is world wide as makers of cheese, it is of no equal. It will directly affect even the small dairy farmer, who relies more on the few cows he has, whose milk he sells to local factories, than on the farm produce, which he does but cannot sell. The lack of attendance Saturday was not due to scarcity of advertising or lack of advance notice, it was just the natural tendency of human nature to wait until things had reached the crisis before action would be taken, and it was regrettable to the chairman and the board that such a lack of interest should be shown in that important industry.

Welcomed By Mayor

At the opening of the convention Mayor Reid was introduced and he thanked them for the invitation they had extended him to be present. He then extended to them a hearty welcome and the use of the hall. Business was not particularly flourishing in the industry, his wealth was invested in it, and businesses had at present a slight decrease in volume. It was to be expected, however, that business would gain but slowly as it had not happened in a short time and therefore could not be expected to gain with any rapidity. Business must improve, and it would be prepared. He like the farmer, who sold him now that things were so reasonable in price, such as some and other livestock, as well as machinery, he was prepared to buy up his farm to be ready for the return of prosperous times. Business was frequent hitcher prices, when it returned. He thought that it would be thought that it was the only solution for particular makers. As to the percentage of butter fat it is going down all the time. This year the average was 3.9 and 2.8 but the percentage of first grade cheese was higher this year than last. As to the farmers shipping their milk to other places than the cheese factories, that was something he could not control. The factory pays a higher price than other places, which made him wonder why it was. In his district there were eight hundred and four patrons shipping.

Number of cheese graded: 27,000—1931. Number of cheese graded in 1930: 20,072.

Percentage of fat in milk in 1930: 3.22.

Percentage of fat in milk in 1931: 3.21.

Number of pounds of milk to make cheese in 1930: 11.78.

Number of pounds of milk to make cheese in 1931: 11.62.

Percentage of first grade in 1930: 80.56.

Percentage of first grade in 1931: 93.4.

Mr. Kinney Reports

Mr. Howey, instructor of dairying for Belleville district, unfortunately did not have his report ready but he availed himself of the opportunity to impress upon the members the crying need of sanitation in many factories in his district. Due to the abnormally dry season this has taken more milk per pound of cheese this year than it has in the past three eight years he has been on the job. Cows must have a balanced ration if they are to pay their way in produce. Belleville district has always had the reputation of being the best, that money could buy, and particularly this Fall it has far exceeded other years for its high average. He mentioned Mr. Linn's district as having had the best grade and consistentmost him on it. Just now, he stated, they were at the point of either losing or gaining ground—of falling behind or of going ahead, but the going below for the fall is detrimental to perfect high grade manufacture. He knew himself of cases where two foreigners waited, and they shipped more No. 2 cheese out than all the rest of the makers put together. As for the district around here he thought the makers turned out more perfect cheese, and had less defects than all the other five districts put together. The main thing was: don't use poor milk—any cheese maker who holds a certificate should refuse the milk that comes in, and it should be condemned, tested time and again. Milking machines should be thoroughly cleaned, cans should be clean, clothing, and even the men themselves should be above reproach. "There is a great deal of difference in milk," he stated. Morning's milk is often sweeter much more so than night milk and it is hard to get it. Inspectors, however, are under a great responsibility, and the makers should then work at odds with them and instead of trying to "get something over on them", should meet them half way and help them at all times. Due to the cheapness of the milk this season it was hard for any maker to get time to turn and reject a milk back on the farmer, but if they could only look ahead that far they would see that it was for their own protection. The only solution he could see was to have the farmers iron the milk themselves before sending.

A Pessimistic View

The next speaker was Mr. Irwin, Chief Produce Grader for this district who spoke in a very pessimistic vein, backed up however by facts and figures, which admitted no argument. He pictured conditions in Canada as compared with her thriving competitor, New Zealand. Canada is steadily losing her trade all over the world, he declared and if some radical change is not made at once it can see no hope for any sort of market at all. Britain says we haven't enough volume to make it worth her while to deal with us, while New Zealand steadily continues to lure the European markets. It is not that we are worse off, geographically speaking, or that our country is at fault; we have the land and we have the men and to produce that material—but we'll have to get a move on to do it, and that we are doing now. Times are not a bit of use in having those conditions if the producer and manufacturer directly concerned are not on hand to hear what is complained and also to take an interest in the industry. He stated, that the Government would be held in this hall this spring when the Dairy Commissioner of government officials, who are now beginning to become alarmed over the situation, and that it was it is to be hoped that the attendance would certainly be much larger than previous ones, which have been held, and that he exceeded other years for its high average. He mentioned Mr. Linn's district as having had the best grade and consistentmost him on it. Just now, he stated, they were at the point of either losing or gaining ground—of falling behind or of going ahead, but the going below for the fall is detrimental to perfect high grade manufacture. He knew himself of cases where two foreigners waited, and they shipped more No. 2 cheese out than all the rest of the makers put together. dairying industry. Somebody will have to wake up and wake up soon. But it will not be the British Lion, who will do the awakening—it will be yourselves, the farmers of this locality, and the rest, who are interested in the industry. Britain could not expect a deficit of some one hundred and ninety five million dollars since 1927 and still hope to remain a producer for export. Here he cited the case of bacon, which she has encouraged a severe set back in its export to Britain. Britain realizes they call wholesale produce men "over there" was delivered, but it was being delivered in such very small lots, that as much as the wholesalers wanted to deal with Canadian they could not depend on certain quantities they needed and they had to turn to other countries. Canada could not supply the volume needed and they had to turn to other countries for their supply and gradually Canada sank farther and farther behind. His solution to the dairying industry, according to his theory, is to have less smaller factories and more centrally located larger factories. It was a known fact, he stated, that factories where their milk product be had the same overhead whether they turned out one unit of production or ten thousand. Thus if a well organized larger plant could be built the cost would see how it could help but be successful.

At this juncture Mr. Howey took him to task and declared he had been his experience all through that some of the most unsanitary were the best producers, and cited instances of several larger plants he knew of in that district.

Wesley Henderson, Foxboro, stated that he thought that every farm should be regularly visited by the butter fat contents, that the farmer would know which of his cows were only "boarders". If you get a good flow, he said, you have a good cow, and you have a better percentage. Also he referred to the matter of shipping to Montreal, as it is now, the local milk is sent to the city and arrives until almost a week has elapsed. This, he thought, was wrong, and no means of knowing how their cheese is being made until after the cheese can be made between the time they send the first lot and the time they receive information as to it tests up. Then he advanced the opinion that the cheese should be placed in this district so that the makers could immediately be notified before it is shipped. After some discussion, it was decided to refer the matter it was finally brought to a motion, which was made by Mr. Henderson and seconded by Mr. Chas. Mitz of Ivanhoe.

Mr. Henderson stated that in his opinion it was a matter which should be left to the Cheese Board. Finally it was recommended that a resolution be sent forward to the Belleville Cheese Board that the Dairy Commissioner and the government in regard to a grading place to be installed in Belleville, and that the Dairy Commissioner, and Committee of Mr. Mitz: Mr. Henderson will be sent as a delegate to the Cheese Board. Mr. Henderson will be sent as a delegate to the Cheese Board. Finally it was recommended that a resolution be forwarded to the Belleville Cheese Board that the Dairy Commissioner and the government in regard to a grading place to be installed in Belleville, and that the Dairy Commissioner, and Committee of Mr. Mitz: Mr. Henderson will be sent as a delegate to the Cheese Board.

Before the meeting was adjourned a vote of thanks was taken and will be expressed to the Mayor and Council for the use of the hall for the use of their chamber by Mr. Ketcheson.

An Insane Minister in Touching Appeal

London (By The Canadian Press)—Stirring appeals for mercy and later, was a patient at a mental hospital made a dramatic plea for the better treatment of the insane in the address to the Methodist Diocesan Conference recently. He was in electrical shock treatment, he observed for the public. Suddenly, during an interval in the business, he rose to his feet, which at once gripped the conference, and the speaker, for the time, could not give consideration to the suffering of others. He declared the Church relinquished the art of healing when it refused prayer, and he declared, "the insane have been dreadfully neglected. The Church must be aroused to concern by devils. Why can it not do so today?" The Conference listened with the greatest attention to the speech. Then a member whispered to the Bishop of Salisbury, who presided, that the speaker of the Conference shortly afterwards, and later the Bishop himself, not only was I deeply touched, but I feel that all the rest of the Conference was, too, and I think that something should be done. I have learned more about mental illness in a few minutes listening treatment in a mental home."

JAILING OF LORD KYLSANT TYPICAL BRITISH JUSTICE

The recent conviction and imprisonment of Lord Kylsant, of Carmarthen, one of the most influential peers in the Motherland, for fraud in issuing a misleading prospectus of the Royal Mail Shipping Company, focuses public interest upon the rapidity and impartiality with which British machinery of law operates. Back in 1923, Lord Alfred Douglas also found British justice impartial when he was sent to prison for six months on being convicted of having libeled Winston Churchill, noted statesman, by accusing him of issuing a false communique after the Battle of Jutland. Another who found that justice is blind to social position was Mrs. Kate Merrick, London's night club queen. Mrs. Merrick spent six months in cheerless Wormwoods Scrubs prison for a violation of the English liquor laws. The fact that she is the mother-in-law of two of England's peers had no weight.

REDS NOT JAPAN CHINA'S FOE

Dr. Macquerier Warns of Danger of Communism

Victoria, B. C.—(By The Canadian Press)—Japan is not the great menace to China, Canada is not the bulwark against international strife, the pitting of north against south and east against west—and the threat of communism.

Dr. Harry Hunter Macquerier, of Shanghai, who is returning to the Chinese missionary field after spending forty-two years in the Far East. "I love China and Canada and of no greater life than to live my forty-two years there over again, but I repeat, the greatest menace to China is communism. Communism has gained a strong foothold in China," he reports.

Soviet agitators came and left, but they never left their seed, it is among the scholars—those who have not been educated in their own country that Communism has taken its firmest root," he asserted. "Russia has used the foreigners Even though Hongkong was built by the British on bare rock, and Shanghai on a useless swamp, neither of China still feel no gratitude toward other nations. Many of them feel only a bitter hatred."

"China has never forgotten her defeat at the hands of Japan forty years ago," he explained, "or the aggressive twenty-one demands made by Japan during the days of the Great War. The trouble may have its roots in the bitter political rancors for hostility are more deeply impressed upon them than any temporary trouble over that territory."

Debating Innovation Discuss Topic by Radio

New York —Preparations are under way for a debate in which Harvard University will be in an argument with the men of old Oxford over 3,000 miles of ocean.

The first international collegiate radio debate will be held, probably in the first week of December, as a result of Oxford's acceptance of a challenge by the Harvard debating union.

The National Broadcasting Company will carry the voices across the ocean and Harvard students will debate United States. They may also be broadcast in England. The subject has not been decided on the issue.

CANADIAN ROCK AS CORNERSTONE

Calgary, Alta.—(By The Canadian Press)—A solid block of granite, four feet square, cut from the Lake Louise quarries of Mount Sir Donald, at Glacier, recently will form the corner-stone from which the Canadian Pacific railway at Glacier were necessary before the huge stone was brought to rest at the foot of the mountain. Great care was necessary in guiding its passage down the steep mountain slope. This proved to be a mere preliminary, however.

GOLD COMING INTO ITS OWN IN B. COLUMBIA

Assay Office at Vancouver Deluged With Ore

INTEREST IN MINES

Vancouver, B. C.—(By The Canadian Press)—Gold has come into its own again in British Columbia, and not for years has as much gold found its way into the Dominion assay office here as during the last few weeks. It is expected that from now until the end of the year the amount will steadily increase.

Its bricks from smelters, leather pokes from prospectors, small bottles from interior banks, gifts has been pouring into the assay office. But all the prospecting has not been confined to hills and river beds. Alias, vaults and even mouths of miners have been ransacked for their quota of gold that can be converted into cash. Gold teeth, bridges, plates and dental fillings in increasing quantities are finding their way into the melting pot. While nothing under one ounce is accepted, old jewelry and scrap have been deposited in such quantities that for the first eight months of the year recorded $41,455 from that source alone.

A miniature gold rush is in progress in Vancouver as assayers, smelters and clerks handle the gold dust and scrap that is being placed in circulation. Already this year $1,200,000 in gold bricks has been shipped from Vancouver to the Ottawa mint, and it is expected that before December 31 another $2,000,000 will pass through this office.

Not since 1926 has there been as much activity in gold mining as this year. From Quesnel, which is the nearest point to many Bonanza workings, and from Vernon, near where some streams have been yielding generously, has come a great deal of placer gold recently. Not in huge quantities, but in a steady dribble that tells a story of many hard day's work at rocker and sluice.

It is pointed out that no great strike has been made in B. C. alluvial gold district, but the steady output of metal that has descended on the office proves the contention of the prospectors and miners that the province can still be made to produce its share of gold.

Beautifying Homes Gives Work Aplenty

Moscow—The oldest of Moscow's house painters cannot recall so busy a season as the past summer and autumn. Thousands of painters of paint have brightened the houses of the Soviet capital, and the city looks as if it had been born anew. Block after block of the refurbished houses allow each color of pinks, greys, blues and greens. It is all part of a drive conducted under the motto "Moscow must be a model capital" and initiated by the Central Committe of the Communist Party.

The two other important factors of this campaign are road-building and tree-planting. Practically the whole of the central district of Moscow is allowe of its main thoroughfares have been pared with asphalt or wood blocks, replacing the old cobbles.

Hundreds of thousands of trees and shrubs have been brought into the city and are being planted along the sidewalks and in the squares. Millions of dollars have been appropriated for the gardening department ,which plans to turn most of Moscow's spacious squares into parks and playgrounds.

Though she is past eighty-four years of age, Mrs. P'becca Wood has just made final proof on her 320 acres of grazing land near Bidford, Wyo.

OUTLAWS OF EDEN

by Peter B. Kyne

The project moved forward without delay. Seven days from the date of the approval of the petition by the board of supervisors the Foremost Irrigation District had come into legal existence, by a very substantial majority of the residents in the area to be irrigated. Silas Babson, tired, but happy and triumphant, was its president, Henry Hockby who owned ten acres in the district was the secretary, and the bank of Valley Centre was the depositary of the funds of the district.

Up to this time no hint of any interference had come from Nate Tichenor or Lorry Kershaw, with the result that the directors of the district had no difficulty persuading themselves that Cagan's warning had constituted a final ineffectual bluff; that Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw, realizing the bluff had been called, had now abandoned all idea of averting the inevitable, and had concluded to make the best of the situation—a supposition still further strengthened by Knowlage that Nate Tichenor had returned to New York for an indefinite stay. Dr. Donaldson was authority for this report.

Within two weeks after the district had come into official being, the State Water Commission obligingly allocated to it the flood waters of Eden Valley Creek. A bond issue was let out within a week; within two weeks the State Bond certification Commission had certified the bonds as legal investment for trust funds, savings banks and, by unanimous vote, Silas Babson was given the job of disposing of them to the highest bidder. A few days more served to float a bid of ninety-one and after deducting a month's pay for himself, selling a month's pay for his assistant, dectding the offer was one point higher than he could secure locally as the district closed on the offer, and with the receipt of the money, proceeded at once to deposit it.

It was early fall by this time and too late to commence construction of the diversion dam up in the canyon. Hence construction work could proceed during the winter—and did, with the result that when the spring freshet had subsided in Eden Valley Creek about the first of April was the dam seen completed save the diversion dam, and work commenced on that at once. By July first this dam was completed and Silas Babson could boast of the fact that he was one month ahead of his schedule. Not a letter from Cagan reminded him that any attempt to appropriate the waters of Eden Valley was an injunction. Reluctantly, therefore, he resigned himself to stay, he arrived at the gift from God in the shape of the first heavy rainfall that would see the rise in the level of the stream would enable him to commence filling his reservoir, although the main diversion canal would only run half full until the melting mowrs in the mountains brought on the huge spring freshet.

Although Babson took measures to apprise himself of the return of Nate Tichenor to Eden Valley, his words brought him no news of the latter's arrival, although as a matter of fact Tichenor had returned some four months after his departure. He came in over the mountains to the south in a four-passenger cabin plane and landed in the meadow below the Kershaw ranch-house. Lorry was in his arms before he had time to get to the house.

"Well, I'm all cleaned up in the East, 'he told her. "How far have you progressed in the settlement of your father's estate?"

"All ready to be sold, so I can find the money to pay the state and federal estate taxes."

"I'm nearly as glad as I had feared they would be. The cattle, of course, were sacrificed at a low price existing on the day of father's death—and sold it up to nine and a half on the ranch now and should be twelve cents within a year, I'm told by my cattle brokers. And the federal tax appraiser decided the land has been greatly depressed in value by reason of the diversion of the water by Eden Valley."

"That's a favor Babson didn't realize he was going to do you. In everything on the ranch running smoothly up until the coming of Nate Tenney can't attend to?"

She nodded. "As soon as he goes to ten cents I'll sell five thousand fat steers, pay the taxes and close the estate."

"Don't. Hold them over till spring and get eleven cents—maybe I'll loan you the money to pay the taxes. How soon can you marry me?"

"In about three minutes, if we had a license and a preacher handy."

He glanced up at the sun. "Justice, long delayed maketh the heart sick," he quoted. "Likewise marriage—you've made up your mind. You skip right into the house, climb into your Sunday dress, throw a few things in your old straw suitcase and meet me here in ten minutes. We're not about got time to get over mountains and into Reno before dark. In California we have to announce our intention to get married and then wait for three days, in case we decide to change our mind. I will make up, or we'll take our trade to Nevada and avoid annoying delays."

"You're a pirate after my own heart," Lorry cried joyously, and came into his arms. He held her close, his finger under her chin, tip-tilting her sweet face toward him, the while he appraised her hungrily, comparing her with the girls of her age in the world he had known before the homing instinct had brought him back to Eden Valley. He thanked God she wasn't soft, that she had high courage, initiative, and the power of instantaneous decision in an emergency; that hers was the old, fierce, unconquering spirit that was his own heritage. A man could rely on her always; she would never slavishly obey, she would stand. She was incapable of flabbiness, of the lax ideals that characterize little feminine deceits. Her code was a masculine one, but of a quality rare enough in this decadent generation—the code of a gallant gentleman rather than that of the very finest of her own sex. Yes, she had character, courage, honesty, self-reliance, capabilities of extreme selfsacrifice, and withal, helplessness—an angel with a touch of the devil in her.... Well, better a touch of the devil than a trace of the cat!

"Dear little outlaw, I love you so," he murmured, and kissed her a dozen times. "Make it snappy. Time and visibility are no plus."

Half an hour-later, as they roared upward in great spirals to gain altitude before crossing the mountains, they looked down on Eden Valley; to that tragic creek winding its silvery way through the green meadows, to the little black dots that were Lorry's cattle and the little white dots that were the homemade headstones, chevied across naked granite and marking the graves of all the Renleys and Kershaws that had gone before.

"I wonder what they're thinking down there?" the girl asked behind his ear.

He pretended he did not understand her.

"I've been so busy I couldn't get started on that new house I planned," he shouted back, "but we'll tackle it the minute we get back."

So she knew he had, at last, left dead and laid old alitter memories behind him; and there above Eden Valley, as her little hard, calloused canable hand closed over his and squeezed hers, she knew that happy tears in the knowledge that never again would hard work, misery and loneliness be her portion. The sun was setting on Eden now, but when, for them, it should rise again on Eden, the serpent would be gone.

INSTALMENT XXV

Ruby Tenney loitering the water news in the columns of the Valley Centre Register, called upon Silas Babson on the first of February. He heaved himself to his feet, extended a fat paw, and Ruby placed his slim hand in Babson's waste basket, aligned and said nothing. Babson was a man of few words.

"Well, well, well," Babson interrupted petulantly, "what's on your mind, Tenney?"

"Water Mr. Tenney replied laconically.

"I'm not interested."

"Not interested," as I do this interests o' Nate Tichenor an his wife I got to. I been watchin the Forlorn Valley Irrigation District diverfin' water from Eden Valley Creek ever since the fall rains commenced, an' I ain't said nothin'."

"Kind of you, I'm sure," Babson sneered.

"Sot a-tall. Orders from the boss. Before he left on his honeymoon Nate had a real engineer up to look over the Forlorn canals and this engineer reported you wouldn't have no success impoundin' water this year on account the canals in the first twenty-seven miles of it leaks down into the ground as well as it goes to the Babson. He told me to watch the papers and if I seen where you and your gang was goin' to spend a lot o' money concrctin' that diversion canal to stop the leaks, I'd better go and not to waste the money. It's this way, Babson, you got a lot of water an' meltin' snow from the hills into that ditch naturally carries a lot o' top soil with it—what the miners call slickens. The water runnin' through the ditch carries more top soil an' there's quality in that slickens that ain't to be despised. Nate's engineer says it'll silt down into all the cracks an pores of the bed o' the canal and gradually fill 'em up an' make 'em cement—so naturally, an' next year the loss from slinkin' water won't amount to much each year it amounts to less an' less."

"Isn't it kind of Nate Tichenor to go to all that trouble for the irrigation district?" Babson replied coldly.

"Oh, Nate's kind," Mr. Tenney assured Babson. "Kindest feller I ever did see. Jt Dumb hurts Nate to see the farmers o' Forlorn Valley stuck for another couple o'hundred thousand dollars. It ain't necessary to spend."

"I will be the judge of that, Tenney."

"I know you will. You ain't got the brains of a buck goat. However, I didn't come here to argue. I come because I had my orders to come an' tell you an' if you didn't believe this report I was to invite you up to the Circle K an' show you some old ditches up there that won't carry a fcw o' water the first year but which silted up an' hardened until now we don't lose a drop through capillary attraction which is what the engineers call it."

"I suppose you'd like to get me up on the Circle K so you could kill me!"

"Nary bit, Babson. You're a-thinkin' crooked from the scenery now, so why should I bump you off? Some crazy rumor of Forlorn Valley's liable to do that after you've ruined him an' took him his farm an' then added insult to injury by hatin' your back hcles up in his face an' holdin' him what pittance money he had on hand.

"If you've said your say you can run along now, Tenney, I have business to attend to."

"I ain't said all o' my say," Ruby Tenney retorted with dogged patience. "Here it is the first o' February an' the spring freshet due to start. I want you should open the gates of your diversion dam now an' let the flood waters come down Eden Valley Creek an' use the Circle K and the Bar H the annual roads."

"I shall do nothing of the sort."

"Also, you mean, Babson? If you took every drop o' water in Eden Valley Creek from now until May you couldn't fill your reservoir an' until you've filled it you can't start to irrigate Forlorn Valley. So why not let us have the overflow this year?"

"The Forlorn Valley Irrigation District is not conferring any favors on Nate Tichenor or Lorry Kershaw, Tenney."

"The only reason I asked you," Tenney went on patiently, "is because Nate, an' his wife are in Europe on their honeymoon an' it don't sort o' look fair to have to bust up a honeymoon to start a fight that's been started by order of the court from diverfin' our water. I sort o' figured he finished sadly, "to enjoin you myself!"

"I opened the gates in your tarnation diversion dam myself this mornin and I go a couple o' times an guard in the fresh up in the mountains every day to see that no people come to clog them gates. If somebody comes you take my word for it he ain't goin' to go away under his own horse-power, because these boys I've engaged most usually hits whatever they shoots at."

"A sheriff's posse will close these gates, Tenney."

"Whereupon Ill will you for engagin' Phil River Charley to hunt off Nate 'Tichenor."

Babson's face paled. "How long do you require the flood waters?"

"Till I'm through with 'em," Mr. Tenney rose and waddled out on his marvelicheal legs.

Meanwhile, beyond Rube Tenney's ken, Silas Babson to the effect that his honeymooning in Europe, notwithstanding had been heard from Nathan Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw, at Forlorn Valley still continued to refuse her—as doubtless they always would, until she was much too good a personage nor to lose her identity in marriage. Although questioned adroitly by the curious Rube Tenney remained as monumentative as a clam on his present lips and Valley Centre.

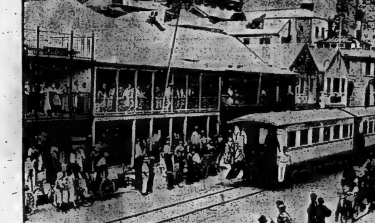
In June of 1927 the news spread through Forlorn Valley of the return of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Tichenor to Eden Valley. Shortly thereafter huge trucks laden with lumber and building materials came through Valley Centre from Gold Run, bound for the old Circle K ranch. Immediately Crenshaw, the manager of the Valley Centre lumber yard, motored up to the Circle K to see Nate Tichenor and ask for a share of this new business. He had been reassured by Nathan that he had the orders for lumber for building material could be given him because Silas Babson was one of his heaviest stockholders.

When Crenshaw returned to Valley Centre he informed the Commercial Chamber of Commerce of the projected country of a new deal of money in Eden Valley. Nate Tichenor and his wife had merged their interests with those of Dr. Donaldson, were to be razed and the old Circle K log ranch-house was to be given over to Rube Tenney and his family, after the Tichenors had erected on the Circle K a country home that was to cost not less than a hundred thousand dollars. There were stables and kennels to be erected also, grounds to be laid out and flowers planted. The lumatic Thicher nor was even going to build a nine-hole golf course and a huge swimming pool. Crenshaw thought that the payroll for labor necessitated in these operations would go to Valley Centre, so the vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce called upon Tichenor to suggest that Valley Centre in general and Valley Centre in particular be asked to forget the past and be friendly with you, Mr. Tichenor," he stated "As proof of that feeling I call your attention to the fact that we gave you the use of the fresher waters of Eden Valley Creek this spring when we found we couldn't use them ourselves, owing to the necessity for concretin cur diversion canal. We didn't have to do that, but we decided to make a friendly gesture."

"My dear man, I entirely those flood-gates opened myself and I had been quarreling with him and not that nobody would close them until our hands had had their annual soaking. That's the sort of friendly gesture I like to see in Forlorn Valley. I was on my honeymoon at the time and didn't want to bother with the fuss, so I just went back to the old Eden Valley custom. It worked. And I'm going to have from Valley Centre of Forlorn Valley. I do not like anybody in that section of the county. And here's another message you can take back with you; within two years I'll own every acre of Forlorn Valley that is included in the irrigation district. I'll fence it and run cattle over it. I'll have the only water for the thriving town of Valley Centre, so if you people don't want to see it and disappear; Valley Centre will then be a ghost town, inhabited by rents."

The vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce was irritated but he was also amused. "Is there no way in which we can escape this horrible fate that awaits us?" he pleaded in mock distress.

"Yes, there is," Tichenor replied pleasantly. "Get rid of that bumptious Babson, and start doing your own thinking. Show an inclination to be fair and I'll meet you two-thirds of the way toward an amicable adjustments of this water war. Continue to permit Babson and his paid henchmen to dictate to you and me and ridicule us and I'll smash you. And after I've smashed you I'll buy up the passes and own the district. I'll tell you what I'll do, though with the state of California. The state will be out of the business of giving away water. I own my own land that document Babson got from the State Water Commission will be perfectly worthless."



The vice-president grinned upon Tichenor humorously. "What a long tail our bull's got," he remarked.

"Oh, I'm only a common little bobcat, now," Tichenor replied easily. "Wait until I become a real tiger—and then watch my tail swish!"

HUNTER DROPS DEAD WALKING THRU BUSH

SAULT STE. MARIE, Nov. 16 (CP)—While walking through the bush yesterday, Victor Schuknecht, 49, Detroit, Mich., police sergeant, dropped dead. A heart attack brought on by over-exertion was given as the cause of death. Schuknecht had been hunting with two companions, Elmer Naumann and A. M. Hood, near the Shelldrake.

WHEN BERMUDA TOOK A STEP FORWARD

With the official opening of the first railway in Hamilton, Bermuda, it lost its appearance of having been lifted bodily from the Victorian era and dropped into the midst of our modern civilization. Before the building of the railway the only mode of transportation was bicycle, horse-driven lorry, or old-fashioned carriage. Practically the entire population of Hamilton turned out for the great event when progress took a step forward with the dedication of the first car line.

ODD COLONY WHITES FOUND

Steamer Off Course Finds Men After Many Years

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — A strange colony of thirteen persons, all descendants of a white man William Masters, has been rescued by the chance visit of the freighter Golden Coast to the whitercrted island.

The Golden Coast, blown slightly off her course during a trip to Australia recently, passed close to the lonely coral atoll listed only on the largest charts of the South Pacific. The skipper was surprised to see a small boat put off from the island.

The freighter stopped and lowered a gangway, up which clambered a whitered but active old man attended by a number of half caste boys who called him "dad". The latter explained that nearly seventy years previously his father had gone to the island and that all the present inhabitants were descendants of this original settler.

He said that all loved their island home with its flowers, abundance of tropical fruits and foods. The boys dived for pearls to pass away the time. They also cut a forged piece of coiton cloth containing a hundred dyes which he traded for a pile of old clothes. The wireless operator took the shirt off his back in payment for a pencil as big as a pea.

Most of the islanders have attractive olive skin and fair hair. The Golden Castle intends to stand off for two hours, was the first ship they had seen in five years.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN, No. 22. (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tarzan —followed close upon the warrior waiting for a clearer space in which to hurl his rope. Suddenly he caught a fleeting glimpse of a tawny hide worming its way through the matted jungle grass. It was Numa, the lion. He, too, was stalking the black man. Instantly Tarzan realized the native's danger.

Now Tarzan's attitude towards his erstwhile prey changed completely. Here was a fellow man threatened by a common enemy! Like a flash, things happened. The lion sprang from a bush..... Tarzan shouted a warning, and the warrior turned just in time to see Numa halted in midair flight by a slender rope.

The noose stopped the beast, but the strain over-balanced Tarzan. He came tumbling to the ground. The lion turned upon him. Defenseless, Tarzan of the Apes was nearer death that instant than ever before, for it was the black man who saved him. His fierce heart. Across the body of their foe, the white man and the black native signs of peace and friendship.

Hideously raging, the brute turned again upon the black, but Tarzan's rope again caught him. Swiftly the ape-man ran thrice around a giant tree, binding Numa fast. Next his giant arm encircled the nearer death that instant than ever before, roaring throat. A long blade sank into its fierce heart. Across the body of their kill, the white man and the black native

WHEAT UPTURN SILVER SLUMP PUZZLES MART

Hesitancy Shown in Market Trading Today

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 16.—Ag uptura in wheat, contrasting with a slump in silver bullion provided a confusing background for the security lists, markets today and share prices were finally permitted to drift lower, after fluttering uncertainly during the early trading.

Dumper, electrical equipment, coal and public utility issues were conspicuously heavy.

Westinghouse Electric was sold in considerable volume in the share market dropping more than 4 points. Among other issues of importance in American Telephone New York Central Goodyear Tractor, American Smelting and Allied Chemical, while tax ed today as long as it remained firm. U.S. Steel General Electric, American Can, North American, International Nickel and Montreal Canadian Pacific.

Silver and others, Radio and Radio Keith sagged fractionally to new lows Radio Keith selling under 3, to continue the year's high to 3 1-2.

The new week found the stock market in a distinctly hesitant frame of mind. The market has now lost nearly half of the extreme rise from the October 5 low point and as much as 1 can lose if the setback is to be generally regarded as merely a technical reaction.

The New York clearing house banks have acquiring funds in the call loan market for corporations and syndicate tons effect short term and had but a slight influence upon the investment. Call loans dropped a 2 1-3 per cent at the loan desk, but were a little firmer in the outside market.

Westinghouse Electric was apparently sold in response to report of a falling off in business in October. General Electric and Radio were presumably still under the influence of the statement in Radio Keith Radio Corp's Subsidiary. The Corporate issues were comparatively firm with bar silver, and were also influenced by International Nickel's quarterly dividend of 5 cents, reduced from 10 in the previous quarter.

Huge trees in Brazilian forests are felled by beetles, which dig a furrow around the trunk, going deeper and deeper until the tree falls. These insects destroy much valuable timber each year.

Asbestos withstands temperatures up to 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit.

Lifeless Phase in Stock Market

Most News at Opening of Week is Bearish

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 16—The Toronto Stock Exchange market experienced a lifeless session this morning but close followers of the market professed to take much encouragement from the fact that Toronto once again acted independently of New York. The news and outside sympathy was bearish as the week got under way, but on the whole this Toronto market was practically unchanged from last week. A few scattered losses of a small fraction were offset by like unimportant gains in other sections.

The sharp break in the price of silver had little effect in the divident of International Nickel to be paid in the quarter were unsettling factors. In addition bear raids directed against individual stocks in the golden would have normally tended to depress prices but here, too, important bullish factor was the rebound upward in wheat prices. Declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on Hudson Bay Company Preferred was a bit of good news which was accepted without enthusiasm. International Nickel for a time got below last Saturday's but on the opening of the quarter were currently the dividend reduction had been discounted. Trading failed to hold its strength of the opening and prices eased off in the early hour. B. A. Oil was easier while the interest of stocks in that group were firm and unchanged. Brazilian did not appear on the list. C.P.R. and Bell Telephone were both up small fractions. Utilities were firmer and industrial issues were unchanged.

Trading in Dominion Stores was particular group favored. Smelters at mid-day was unchanged at 7½.

Nickel Paying 5ct. Dividend

Payable Dec. 21 to Stockholders of Second Dec. 1st

New York, N.Y., Nov. 16— International Nickel Co. of Canada today declared a dividend of five cents a share on the common stock, payable December 21 to stock of record December 1. The company paid ten cents a share on September 30th and fifteen cents a share in the June and March quarters this year.

The 20-cent rate is a dividend rate established with the quarterly payment of March 31, 1930, a reduction from an annual rate of 40 cents paid from the second quarter of 1929.

Silver Weakness Upsets Market

Winnipeg Shares Weaken in Sympathy With Price Decline

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 16.—A break in price of silver, amounting to 7 cents an ounce in London and over 3 cents in New York, unsettled the Standard Stock Exchange today, changes market in today's forenoon trading. Silver and Base Metal shares showed a weaker tendency, while oils and golds were irregular. Mining Corporation continued the most important recession, price declining 30 points to $2.00. Most issues of Tar-recent advance. Eldorado was down 5 to 81 and Gunther-Chalmers dipped a couple to 20. Nipissing was quiet at International Nickel declared a quarterly dividend of 5 cents payable December 31 compared with 10 cents a share the recent quarterly payment. Silver stock emily had been discounted and the stock was down 2 points below last Saturday's close. Noranda dipped 20 to $21 and Aldermac Copper was off a point. Coup eout other Lindsleys were firm.

Hollinger, down 10 and Teck Hughes, up 5 showed the only changes among higher-priced golds in the cheaper stocks Macassa and Kirkland Lake Bay were up a piece, and Kirkland Lake Gold down 2. Bagamac changed hands at 2 to record the only change among the lower-priced issues.

POUND STERLING

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)— Exchange rates at noon today were as follows: Pound sterling in New Orleans $4.18 1-2; pound sterling in New York $4.86 7-8. Canadian dollar in New York 89 3-4.

BOOST IN WHEAT

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 16 (CP)— Strong Liverpool cables gave boost to wheat prices on the grain exchange here this morning. After a routine opening Liverpool cables came in higher than due and this put the prices up an even two cents, a half an hour after the market had opened gains of 2 1-2c to 2 3-4 cents on all wheat futures had been recorded.

Fifteen thousand cases of brandy the largest shipment for consumption were unloaded at the London docks in eight hours recently.

Review Favors Canadian Shares

In a recent review the Standard Statistics of New York City takes a rather optimistic attitude towards the future of Canada. They go so far as to say that American investors would be well advised to include Canadian shares in their investments.

They point out that there have been readjustments of late in Canadian industries and these changes should be for the better. Canadian industries who ship goods to the United States have benefited by American currency and they also point out that Canada is in a position that is on Canadian money in New York is worth more than it is worth on American goods thus forcing the Americans to reduce certain American tariff rates.

They say without hesitation that the Canadian dollar will, after some reconstruction of trade balance, return to its original standard, especially do they laud the Canadian progress in the field of industry and state that it will be through this medium that the investor will obtain substantial profits in the future.

They believe that American investors are justified in seeking repre sentation in the pulsating Canadian issues where broad diversification is possible in the following groups: Metal Mining and Smelting, Dominion Bridge, Hiram Walker, Imperial Oil, International Nickel, Ontario Frontenac Oil, National Breweries, Ontario Steel Products, Massey Harris, Page Hersey Tubes, Power Corporation, Steel of Canada, Toronto Water and Power, Steel of Canada, Textile Common.

"Relatively the most attractive of the stocks listed in the "hold" group are:

"Liquidate—Abitibi Power and Paper, Canada Cement, Dominion Canners and Foundry, Cockshutt Plow, Corporate Bonds, Dominion Bridge, Dominion Textile, Fraser Companies, Hollinger, Howard Smith Paper, International Petroleum, Massey Harris, Price Bros., Quebec Power, Winnipeg Electric."

Major Ponton K. C. is Crown Prosecutor

Major R. D. Ponton, K. C., who acted as special crown prosecutor at the Fall Assize of the Supreme Court held at Owen Sound last week has been appointed Crown Attorney in the criminal case on the docket over which Mr. Justice Riddell will preside presided. John Malaski of Ford Motors, Ontario, was charged with manslaughter in the death of Joseph Gobert, whose horse and cutter was struck by the car Malaski was driving on a county road in Sullivan Township, when the car crashed into a buggy driven by Gobert going in the opposite direction. The victim was smashed to atoms, the horse was killed and the driver, Joseph Gobert, died in hospital later. The only evidence of speed to be adduced was that given from the point of impact to where the horse-driven car had run a distance of 137 feet. The horse weighed 1100 pounds. The trial lasted one whole day and was concluded on Saturday, the jury retiring at 11.30 a.m. and returning with a verdict at 5.30 p.m. Charles W. Bell, K.C., of Hamilton, was defence counsel. Owen Sound, defended the accused.

headed for the Jersey City yards of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The trip, from 10 to 3 p.m. enroute to Washington to meet President Herbert Hoover.

With Signor Grandi will go a dozen members of his party, including the pretty, vivacious Signora Grandi and representatives of the diplomatic staff, as well as representatives of the Washington press corps. From New York to welcome the foreign guests will be Governor Roosevelt.

Col. Lindbergh was well on his way to Washington today when he made fly a slater ship of the giant plane that will transport the party across the Caribbean, when the state department suddenly decided to ask him to take charge of the trip. Signor Grandi's party from New York harbor this morning.

Washington, D.C., Nov. 16 (AP)— Washington looked down upon Gotham sky today for the approach of blackshirted Dino Grandi, Foreign Minister of Italy.

Instead of the usual frock-coated gathering at a railroad or steamship station, the official line of reception was assembled at the airport to welcome the youthful Fascist statesman. Grandi, however, arrived at the same time added a novel, vigorous touch to the international affair.

The aerial entry, result of a delay at sea caused by storms, struck officials here as typical of the Italian dictator.

HONOURED AT GIFT SHOWER

Miss Gladys Page, Recipient of Many Gifts

Sidney Crossing, Nov. 16—On Tuesday evening, November 10th, a miscellaneous shower was held in honor of Miss Gladys Page, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ar. Page, second concession. A large number were present and Mr. Stanley Spafford acted as schairman. He called the gathering to order and the following address was read by (Miss) Edith Hogle.

Dear Gladys:—We, your friends and neighbors, on hearing of your advenure in life, could not let this opportunity go by without spending a social hour with you, before your departure. When we realize that our loss is another's gain, we can overlook Gerald's intrusion into our naighborhood and taking one of our most popular young ladies.

Gladys, we will miss you in all our church, as well as social affairs, and Gerald will find a warm welcome awaiting you both in our community, as often as you are able to join us. We hope to have you frequently in our midst, but we may we wish you every joy and happiness, in the new home in life, which you are about to take.

We ask you to accept these gifts as a token of esteem in which you are held, and may you always have a warm corner in your hearts for your friends at Aikins

Somebody and Others

The papers declared it.
That Gerald and Gladys
Were made one week ago.

Fast travelled the word.
Until every one heard
And we still dote about
To make the news spread.

We scarcely believed,
When the word we received
That Gladys would leave us
As other girls do.

Now, we are convinced.
That to Gerald's world
Not in the personage,
That stands on the hill

But in your old home
On the second concession.
Where Gerald made trips,
Two or three in succession.

He won for himself
A remarkable bride,
And Gladys, we are sure,
Will add by his side.

Gladys, we'll miss you,
Not only in the pew,
But, in the choir loft,
And Sunday School, too.

We'll miss you in League,
Not a little or lot,
Because Mr. Sexsmith
Will be tieing the knot.
Signed on behalf of your many friends,

Irene Grills.
Marion Aikins
Mrs. Somebody

Gladys and Gerald both replied in a few words, thanking the kind friends for their beautiful gifts and inviting all to come and see them. Then Mr. Moses Sexsmith said: They are Jolly Good Fellows" a few were called for speeches and a social evening spent by all.

Lunch was served and every one reported a good time.

BELIEVED A SUICIDE

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)—Relatives are searching for the body of Andrew W. Graham, 52, of Buffalo, N.Y., who is believed to have committed suicide by leaping into the Niagara River from the Falls View Bridge Friday night. Clothes and papers found on the bridge have been identified as the property of Graham, and every one reported a good time.

"A CHARMING LITTLE FELLOW"

George St. Lawrence Neuffles Pennoyer, infant son of Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Countess of Bessborough, smiles at the camera as he posed for this charming study. The baby Governor-General was born at Montreal on August 14.—Photo courtesy John Powis, Ottawa.

GOD'S COUNTRY

Mion Pendelton rerily believed as he stepped off the train at Waverly Court House, that he was coming home to God's country. Though his mother had left this country a little more than thirty-five years before and until her death had not returned, she had conveyed to Mion little or anything else but God's country. Nothing had compensated her for the loss of her native state—not her active life in the center of her husband's prosperity or the very likely hand's prosperity or the very likely hand a prosperity or the very likely hand son she had brought into the world. Strangely, however, she had never wanted to go back. Most of her friends had gone away, she said, and besides she dreaded to make her self less conicited than she was in the home of her adoption.

But Mion, young enough to satisfy even a young westerner and much in need of a vacation, had no trouble through an agency in Richmond with a B. F. Robertson in Waverly who ran coal to be hauled to real estate in the tiny village. He wanted an old house, he said, full of antique furniture. Just that he was told could be found in Waverly. Therefore he had come to see and perhaps to purchase.

An old negro porter picked up the bag which the train porter had set on the platform.

"Miss Bee done sent me to fetch Mr. Pendleton," he said. "I reckon you him. We ain't got no car, but I gwine tote ya bag. It ain't a fur piece."

The reception pleased Mion immensely. He was glad that no yellow cabs flocked around the depot, glad to stroll leisurely down the quiet, shaded streets with the old negro shuffling beside him. So far the picture was perfect—rambling houses, tangled gardens worn old fashioned flower bloomed, hitching posts that one gathered later the trouble to remove. He was sure that behind those shutters were lovely girls who would emerge later in ruffled dimities and floppy leghorns. Like his perhaps he had never really been at home in the west. Perhaps he had not married because he was waiting for a southern belle whom he could woo in the soft-scented moonlight.

The house to which the old negro led him was enviery right—square and spacious and sadly in need of paint. In the cool, dark hall were rugs, chairs and a table of just that which Mion knew must be the southern antique—the kind he somehow had forever been comparing with the furniture in the shops of Richmond.

Then down the stairs sprang a girl of the sort one pictures as hurrying to sell my own house, something that Mion could not do in reconsidered it. Gosh, with your hankering after antiquity I thought you'd be at least a hundred."

Mion was speechless as he extended his hand. How could a modern young thing like this, who wore a boyish bob and a sport skirt and stood with hands in the pockets of her sweater, be related to Mion's God's Country? How could she sell her birthright for the promise of postage he was about to offer?

"My mother died in child birth, I'm sure," she warned. "Everything rare. Everything included in the sale price. Dining room to the left. Genuine Duncan Phyfe table and chairs. Waterford glass on top of everything, guaranteed to carry all the dust in the village. Ancestral plate that holds tons of silver cleaner in every crevice. Parlor to the right. Those horrific things on the walls are ancestors—not scarecrows—up for sale too and all." Through the hallway at the rear—two thousand volumes nobody has ever gone through unless you count the worms—the dirtiest collection of books. Kitchen in the yard contains all the comforts of southern cookery—a wood stove that dances with heat one moment and freezes the next. Not a drop of running water has ever desecrated the inner sanctum. If one must be modern and bathe, one must be strong and haul. Now follow me up. Winding staircase, carpeted to take care of dust, guaranteed to cause death by tripping."

Several times Mion had opened his mouth to speak and closed it again, knowing that feeble shots from him could never interept a volley like this.

"Canopied beds, high-boys, and chest that have never been moved for the lack of a derrick," the girl was continuing. "Hand-woven spreads, so valuable that no laundry would dare tackle them."

When the girl stopped for breath, Mion, too, was gasping. The pace was exquisite. It was exactly what he wanted.

"Bought," he said, reaching for his check book. "But how can you bear to sell it? Where are you going to live when I take possession."

The girl laughed, and Mion realized how exquisitely pretty she was.

"I want't born here," she replied. "The house was left to me by an uncle who never healed the heart wound my mother broke. I haven't the money to keep things up. Neither had he. What I just told you, I got with cuts a ribbon had been tied. a peck. Your mother wrote it.

Mion knew the word. Wait downstairs while I find the deed that's all right."

Mion groped his way down the curving stairway. His mother might have lived here. After all, she had really liked the comforts life in the country had brought her. Through the magnolias he could see the faint afterglow of a late autumn set. Mystery, romance, and chivalrous he had found all in a moment. As minutes slipped by the great room became wrapped in twilight.

"Here's the deed in the slim. In the doorway stood a girl about whose dark curls a ribbon had been tied. a girl wearing a period dress of ruffled organdy.

"Is the picture complete now?" she asked gently.

As Mion extended his hand involuntarily, the girl came toward her. Her lips were quivering, and she was trembling like a leaf.

"For don't want to sell," he said.

"Oh I do," she insisted. "I want to go into New York and get a job in town just as your mother did, but all my life I'll be homesick."

"Then come with me, and we'll return whenever we can. I very active attack on its way."

As Mion Pendleton took the girl in his arms, the deed she held fell her head was crumpled along with the organdy ruffles.

PLAN TO USE STUDENTS TO DELIVER XMAS MAIL

Piles All Gone

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly and don't come back. Stops pain almost at once. Bad blood circulation in the hemorrhoidal parts causes piles by weakening the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and cutting fail because only an internal medicine can help nature correct the cause of piles. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt discovered a real internal Pile remedy. After 5 years of trial on 5,000 patients with success in 960 cases, he named it HEMORROID. J. S. McKeown's Drug Store says one bottle of HEMORROID checks most and end your Pile misery or money back."

Beatrice Fairfax Letters

Parents From Married Men

Dear Fairfax:

I am asking you only one question and with your reply be so kind as to put the answer in the paper. Is it right for me to take a present from a married man who says he loves me, but who don't care for and have told him don't? I have also told him it isn't right because he is married, but he said he is only giving it as a friend. I wish you would please tell me what to do. The present is a fire dollar gift for my birthday. My intention is to send it back. Am I right, or is it all right for me to keep it?

A.H.

Send back the five dollars by all means. It is not considered right or proper for a girl to take money from a man she is engaged to, to take it from a married man is worse and would subject you to serious misunderstanding. I think you realize this from the text of your letter.

Miss Hazle Slowly

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Before my girl friend was married she introduced me to her future brother-in-law. The four of us went to theatres, parties, etc., and always had a good time. Now my girl friend is married and lives with her in-laws. I visit them about once a week and her brother-in-law always takes me home. If it isn't too late, we go for a ride before I go home. Every time he goes out he never goes alone, he asks me along. Do you think he cares for me? If so how can I tell? He has never said about love. I really care for him more than as a mere friend.

M.E.L.B.

Things seem to be progressing fine between you and him. I hope you're not going to spoil them by being in too great a hurry. Many love affairs go on this way for a long season, and if the other of the parties is for rushing things at too swift a pace, he or she may decide to do not show that you're too eager to have him commit himself.

Old Fashions Returning

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A boy I like very much always walks home with me from parties. He cared to kiss me good night, but each time I refused and he has never tried to kiss me any more. If you don't let boys kiss you they think you are old-fashioned; if you do they say: "Oh yeah, I've kissed that girl. She's easy!"

Janet.

Wasting Her Time Here

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 22 years old and in love with a man of 40. He told me many times he loved me and even asked me to marry him. The date of the wedding was arranged, but the time drew near, he said he hadn't got started. He promised. My birthday passed and he didn't even send anything. Then Christmas, Easter, and again my birthday on which he promised to have been married. He didn't. I've come to see me on these days. I'm not now even pretending to care for him. Don't you think that if he never loved me he would come to see me by giving me a small gift? I know I can afford it.

A Puzzling Girl.

I hope you'll forget this man as soon as possible. He has given you reason to see that he has finished; why be so slow to like a leaf to a dead tree? Get yourself some new and beautiful clothes—they are so cheap these days that you can afford to—and you'll afford this most cheering help to a belief in herself. Go out, accept invitations, you're only twenty and you're wasting the time of your youthful life before you. Good luck!

She Never Loved Before

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I met a young man two weeks ago. He is nine years older than I am. I never had that feeling of love for anyone before. The man takes a drink occasionally. I've heard he is crazy about me, but I don't think it would never do for us to go together since I asked why, and he said he thought he would be. I've had several dates with him, but never before have worried to keep company with him or not.

Worried.

Why sign yourself "Worried" when you seem to be getting along swimmingly. The only thing about the affair that demands watchfulness is his drinking. Never go out with him when he has been drinking. Cultivate him as a friend; that's why she got the prince. As long as we have this so-called prohibition, young men drink for parade, just as little boys get hold of their fathers' razors and try to shave—often with the same disastrous results. When he told you he was afraid to see you often—well, men, poor things, often try to make this show of resistance against Cupid! Enjoy yourself while you're young—but watch your step.

Fashion Flashes

Just a splash of color lends beauty to a dark hat. Smart is a hat of dark gray felt that has a band of trimming of bright yellow grosgrain ribbon. A tiny yellow flat feather is set in the bow.

There's a sparkle in the air when bright dresses appear. A new even has a bodice of white sequents crepe is sprinkled with crystals in the form of tiny flowers and leaves. The skirt is draped and there is a surplice neckline.

Seek comfort in a furlined coat for rough Winter days. A grand new model is made of string-colored tweed and is lined with beige lapin. It would be ideal with brown or red woolen frocks.

Weddings

MARTIN-HUGHES

At eleven o'clock, Saturday, Nov. 14, a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride when Alice Mildred, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hughes, Black River Bridge, was united in marriage to Mr. Ross Wellington Martin, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Martin, Sidney. The Rev. S. F. Dixon of Milford United officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March played by her cousin, Miss Gertrude Hughes, Belleville. The room in which the ceremony was performed was artistically decorated with ferns. The bride was charmingly attired in an ensemble of navy blue silk chiffon velvet made with a long full skirt sheer coat and dainty beige lace vest blouse, short-sleeved and with snug fitting hip length coat. Navy blue shoes in a harmonizing shade of hose completed the costume. A bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums and maidenhair fern was carried. She maid, Miss Lillian Martin, sister of the groom, was attractively gowned in brown flat crepe, made on straight lines with brown suede shoes to match. The groom was supported by Mr. Harvey Brown of Belleville, cousin of the bride.

During the signing of the register the groom's mother, Mrs. Martin, sang, "Always" very delightfully. Mrs. Weir acting as accompanist.

At the close of the ceremony a reception was served in the dining room. The table looked very pretty with its decorations of pink and white chrysanthemums with the wedding cake as a centre piece.

Only the immediate members of the two families were present, numbering about a dozen in all.

Immediately following the bride and groom left for Belleville by motor, where they boarded the train for Toronto, from which city they will spend a couple of weeks. The bride's going away dress was of blue travel tweed made on tailored lines trimmed with squirrel fur, over which she wore a seal coat. Her hat was of blue matching showing a touch of Spanish tile in its trimming. She also wore a gift of the groom, a white gold wrist watch.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Martin will reside at Black River Bridge.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beekman
Guest at Home—

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. Will you please tell me the proper gating arrangement at the table for a family of four and a young man who is visiting them for a few days. The family consists of two daughters and parents. The young man is a bachelor friend of one of the daughters.

2. When the time comes to serve the wedding cake who should make the suggestion?

3. When the guest arrives at our home, do we take him to his room, or does he remain with the family in the living room? Kindly tell me just what to do upon his arrival.

4. Is is necessary for either or both of the parents to remain up until the daughter and her friend return from a dance or other place of amusement?

B.

1. The mother of the family, the hostess of the home, sits at the head of the table, the father sitting opposite her, at the foot of the table. The man guest and daughter should be placed at the right of the mother, the seat of honor. The daughter whose guest he is, should in might sit on the other side of the mother, with the guest seated between the guest and the father.

2. The man guest should make the suggestion that the "Lady guest" might sit next to him, between him and the father.

3. The man guest should make the suggestion that he is at home, unless, course, unlikely he has with it the idea of retiring, and the guest will follow the lead.

4. When the guest arrives, no matter how short the journey has been the hostess shows him at once to his room. "May I show you to your room. Mr. Wells? We will have your bag sent up, and I hope you will be very comfortable."

5. No, not of the daughter has arrived at the "age of discretion."

Bread and Butter Note

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. How long should I wait before sending a bread and butter letter?

2. As I am a rather distant relative of my hostess, would it be correct to write a letter to a friend? Or more personal things in this letter?

1. Don't wait at all—write the note the very first opportunity you have after your return home. And the sooner the better, for a bread and butter letter written immediately after one returns for a visit expresses a heartiness that a delayed letter never can express.

2. Yes indeed. Be as personal and as friendly as you wish to be in such a note, for the fact that you are invited for a visit means that we should be friendly in our expressions of appreciation of the hospitality.

105th Anniversary of St. Andrews Church Held

Dr. Wm. Barclay of Hamilton, Special Speaker of Day

SERVICE OF SONG

As the congregation sat in their pews of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church on Sunday, they looked back with pleasure and much thanks to those stalwarts of a century ago, who formed the church and kept it alive during the intervening years. On Sunday the 105th anniversary of the founding of this church was celebrated. Dr. William Barclay of Central church, Hamilton, being the special speaker of the day. The church dates its time for 105 years in this city but information has been given, that the Order in Council to associate the Church with the Church of Scotland was given in February of 1822. The imposing but impressive structure was filled for the celebration of the anniversary at both services and the congregation was treated to interesting and inspiring messages by the special speaker of the day.

Beautiful Song Service

The service of song conducted by Professor Wheatley the organist and choir, do with the pleasure of the day. At the morning service Mrs. Wheatley delighted with an appreciative solo as did Mr. E. V. Illsley. The choir rendered an inspiring anthem, while at the evening service Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Bell and Mr. Illsley also contributed solos of a pleasing character, while the choir rendered an anthem. Professor Wheatley delighted also a number of organ solos in his brilliant style, and the hymns, lustily sung, were in keeping with the celebration. It was another milestone in the life of St. Andrew's Church and the congregation is progressing towards the heights, while the church is rendering a distinct service to the community, which it serves.

Dr. Barclay speaking at the morning service chose for his text "if any man will do his will, he shall know of his doctrine", taken from the seventh chapter of St. Johns in the 17th verse. The speaker pointed out that one must believe before he can understand. Illustrating the remark he showed that one might be possessed of all the knowledge of swimming yet one could not swim on dry land but would have to apply the rules and make the venture to swim in the water. Christ upon earth walked the way of man, picked from here and there men of high station and of low birth and to all he said "follow me" and by following Jesus then they came to understand Jesus. Experience comes before theology. One must find out what Christ would do and then be convinced of such. Was Changed View

"In the stress of war" said the speaker, "the soldiers were forced to throw aside all the encumberances that had been thrown around religion and get back to the fundamentals of faith, and they came back with saner views and a more perfect understanding of Jesus. They were simple facts and not intellectual difficulties". We must get back to the practical things of religions," Dr. Barclay stated" and it is the task of the church to get back to simplicity of facts. All creeds have had thrown about them the system of theology, full of logic, full of suggestion and legislation and it is up to the church, it should be built on more faith and less creed. Christianity not as a protest against the ornamentation of the church failed" said the speaker and the call he, goes forth to get back to the simpleness of it all and find the simple facts about Christ so that all can understand.

Dr. Barclay congratulated the congregation on the simple but beautiful structure in which they worshipped week by week. He also delighted with the true marks of Presbyterianism, that could be found about the walls, St. Andrew's Cross, the Celtic cross of John Knox and other outward signs, in the simple faith will all be brought to mind a unique thread ornamentation or elaborateness of creed.

Descendant Has Dividend Cheque After 39 Years

Williamsburg Family Gets Money From Investment

FIRM FAILED

Failure Took Place Nearly Four Decades Ago

Kingston, Ont. (By The Canadian Press)—A divident cheque after 39 years from stock bought when Queen Victoria was the paternal sovereign received by the Newberry family, Williamsburg, of which Hiram Newberry is a descendant.

The cheque received a unique from an English company on stock in an English concern from owned by his father.

Conditions will remember Jabez Balfour, English company producer and his failure and flight which netted ruin for many persons in the financial crisis of 1291.

His escapade lasted but one year and he was brought back to England in 1892 from South America, convicted and sentenced to the penitentiary. The investors, in order to salvage what they could from Balfour's most ambitious scheme, formed a new company, the Liberator Building Society. The assets included a block of unfinished buildings between the Strand and Thames Embankment, London. The block was finished and became the site of the Hotel Cecil, the first of London's modern hotels. The new enterprise—although a big hotel—paid no dividends throughout the two decades, and last year it was taken over and the site sold. It was from the sale that it was possible to pay dividends to the members of the company or their descendants. Miss Newberry stated the stock in the company had been handed down to her father from his father but such a long time had elapsed that the family had forgotten the holding.

MARMORA W. I. HOLDS MEETING

Answer Roll By Giving "A Thanksgiving Thought"

MARMORA—The November meeting of the Women's Institute was held last Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. F. R. Wells with a good attendance. After the opening exercises the roll call, "A Thanksgiving Thought" was responded to by the members, each one having by they had contributed their bit to the evening's program. The minutes of the October meeting were read, also the treasurer's statement, both being found very satisfactory. Mrs. T. Schofield and Mrs. E. C. Prentice were appointed to act as hostesses on the next well baby clinic day, December 4.

It was decided to make a donation of $51.00 to the library board and postpone the rest of the grant fund for the board until after the New Year as there are a number of events that will make the next six weeks busy for one moment.

The drawing of names by members to make the Christmas present exchange took place and the December meeting will be an interesting one. Mrs. Ernest Wright's name was commenced with community singing after which Mrs. R. Bonter read a splendid paper on current events prepared by Mrs. C. A. Bleecker. Miss Loraine Bell sang a solo, "Duna" with Mrs. Litt acting as accompanist.

Mrs. Thomson, chairman of the religious education, gave an interesting paper on this topic which was read by Miss Thompson after which Mrs. Litt and Miss Tait contributed a duet. Mrs. Hillman and Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. Prentice and Mrs. Sabine drew for the prize, Mrs. Prentice being the lucky one. A dainty lunch was served at the close of the meeting.

Remembrance Day

Remembrance Day was observed at Marmora by an imposing parade of Marmora Boy Scouts and Cubs, Boy Scouts and local war veterans to the memorial building with Marmora Community Band leading. School children and others not in the organizations represented marched in the rear of the procession.

The short observation of the two minutes' silence the National Anthem was sung, the silence being broken by recitation of prayers by the Rev. A. E. Caldwell who also gave a short address. Then followed the immortal lines by John McCrae which Rev. F. H. Howard read a "written of Scripture" and delivered a address. Another hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past" was sung before Rev. F. H. Howard pronounced the service with prayer and benediction. Many citizens attended the Marmora public school where Major A. V. Yates held a memorial service gathering on the significance of the day.

Wreaths were placed beneath the two tablets which constitute the roll of honor on the memorial building.

Reeve and Mrs. P. N. Mareti spent a couple of days in Toronto this week.

A number from town attended the dance given by "The Curling Club" at Campbellford on Wednesday evening.

A successful euchre and bridge party was held at Deloro on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Queen's circle of the Ladies' Aid. The following were prize winners: Bridge, first, Mrs. W. Rhind; second, J. H. English; ladies, first, Mrs. R. D. Cheesman; second, Mrs. F. R. Wells. Euchre, gents, first, G. Harry; second, James Brady, ladies, first, Mrs. T. Cousins; second, Mrs. Pollock.

Journey of 3 Weeks Necessary to Reach Lone British Consul

Addis Ababa, Abyssinia.—Sir Sidney Barton, British Minister to Abyssinia, accompanied by Lady Barton, left here on Monday on a three-weeks' journey through wild country to receive Mr. Harold W. Gore, Captain Erskine, the British consul.

Gore is being developed as an outlet for the rich Abyssinian via Khartoum and Port Sudan, but can only be utilized during the three months of the year when the river is deep enough to enable steamers to navigate the lake away produce. A road suitable for motor traffic is being constructed but so far has not been paved.

CONFERENCE OVER ST. LAWRENCE PLAN

Washington, D.C., Nov. 14 —By Ken Clark, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—A conference on the St. Lawrence waterway project attended by Secretary of State Henry L. Martians Wiser Than Men So Claims B. C. Astronomer

Bases View Upon Canals of Great Length Across Planet

NO EXPLANATION

Victoria, B. C.—(By The Canadian Press)—The theory that Mars is inhabited by a people of intelligence as high if not higher than those of this earth is advanced by H. B. Bryden, Victoria astronomer.

"The canals on Mars are practically the same as on the earth," said Mr. Bryden. "People could give there provided their breathing apparatus was somewhat different. And science has never been able to offer a satisfactory explanation of the apparently artificial canals which have been discovered.

"These canals are of phenomenal length, some of them hundreds of miles long, and it must have required rare skill to build them," said Mr. Bryden. "Their purpose was irrigation, for there isn't much water on Mars. There are very few mountains, too, because the planet dried much more quickly than the earth and there was not so much water.

"We're rather handicapped in studying Mars," admitted Mr. Bryden. "When at its closest Mars is still 25,000,000 miles away from the earth."

Mr. Bryden came to Victoria from Chicago and is establishing an astronomical observatory at his home.

EVANGELIST WAS FINED

Charged in Picton Court With Reckless Driving

PICTON, Nov. 18.—Evangelist C. M. Smithson, who is at West Lake conducting meetings and who comes from Decatur, Illinois, was fined ten dollars and costs for reckless driving in Picton on November 6th. He also pleaded guilty to the charge and will pay one hundred dollars damages to the car which he forced into the ditch.

Smithson was motoring to Picton and a mile or so from the western limits of the town overtook a car owned and driven by Ed. Purtelle of Consecon. He attempted to pass and struck the car causing it to go into the ditch. The car turned over but righted itself and went on some distance in the ditch. The top was smashed and other damage sustained. Mr. Smithson's car was also damaged.

Mr. Purtelle escaped with bruises and a shaking up.

Western and Sarnia Win Rugby Titles

Varsity's Victory Over Queen's Gives Western First Title

MANY UPSETS

Sarnia Blanks Balmy Beach to Wni Interprovincial

TORONTO, Nov. 16.—An Intercollegiate championship and an O. R. F. U. title which journeyed east last season, have been taken west, when Western University and Sarnia landed the respective titles.

Although the Western college aggregation dropped their week-end title to McGill, their win over the previous week coupled with a Queen's set-back at the hands of Toronto Varsity, set them a point margin for the Intercollegiate title. Improbable, however, made certain of the provincial O. R. F. U. championship when they handed Balmy Beaches of Toronto, last year's Dominion champions, a 10 to 0 licking. The third eastern Canadian title was not down for decision as Western's Mustangs of Montreal captured the "big four" leadership a week ago.

Surprise victory

The surprising victory of Toronto Varsity over Queen's was the biggest upset of the week-end. The Toronto team, who had tallied 70 record a win in five games, moved up Kingston with a 17 to 6 victory after some edgy work with a whirlwind attack, which netted them three touchdowns in the last two quarters. The final score was 17 to 6.

Sarnia Imperials had little to expect the dope, when they succeeded in whitewashing Balmy Beach 10 to 0. The victory marked the second time this year that the seasons the Beaches had dropped a game to the tunnel city squad at home on a muddy field.

Despite the fact that Western were fighting for the group title they were unable to match strides with the fast McGill squad, who after a bad start wound up the season with two wins and a tie in their last four games. They were outclassed from the first whistle.

Morrison and Whelan made it six in a row at the expense of Ottawa in the Senior O.R.F.U. play when they marched to a 12 to 1 victory over the Rough Riders. While the big four champions were annexing their sixth win, the Ottawa crew were creating the unique record of dropping their season's league schedule whilst winning every game.

By virtue of their 5 to 4 win over the Tigers in their home ground Saturday, Toronto Argonauts wound up their inter-provincial campaign in second place. A well kicked field goal by Ormie Polnis in the Toronto Turville, while the Tigers were unable to score more than a field goal and a single point.

Davidson, Toronto; treasurer, Lloyd J. H. Ironson, Oshawa; Secretary, W. A. Hewitt, Toronto.

The annual meeting of the O.H.A. takes place here next Saturday.

GRANTS GIVEN TO SANATORIA

Two Governments Will Pledge 85% For Relief

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 16.—(By the Canadian Press)—The Ontario Cabinet has approved large grants to Tuberculosis Sanatoria of the Province, Hon. Dr. J. S. Robb, Minister of Health, announced yesterday in connection with Unemployment Service Club. The Government had decided, in connection with unemployment relief, to aid in extension of buildings. The Dominion and Provincial Governments would jointly contribute 35 per cent of the cost, he said.

"We passed large sums of money to be spent in connection with our Sanatoria," said Dr. Robb. "The National Sanatoria are asking to spend $600,000 and the Dominion and Provincial Governments are going to give 25 per cent. in addition if they carry out their programme we will add 200 beds."

Current Sport

By The Observer

Jos-manking has finished at the Arena and both the seniors and juniors will be out to practice tonight. No doubt the rail-birds will be there in force to see what new players are trying for a position on the Belleville teams this season.

X—X—X

Now that the Arena has opened and a long season in front of the sport fans it is about time that something was done about a city or industrial hockey league. Two teams have signified their intentions of operating a city league team, if such a league can be formed, but they emphatically say they will not enter a team if O.H.A. players are permitted to participate in the loop. We commend them in their stand as the league should be for players who are not fast enough for O.H.A. hockey. There is no doubt but that a league of this kind would meet with success in Belleville.

X—X—X

Then again, there are two bodies of sportsmen who are willing to back a juvenile loop in a proposed juvenile league for the city. This idea is about the finest that has been brought forth in some time. As sport fans know there is a big gap between a hockey player of note developed in Belleville and a big time. If a league consisting of players between the ages of, say 16 to 18 years could be formed this coming winter, a year or two Belleville would be producing their own hockey players and would not have to import them.

X—X—X

Of course such a loop would not be a paying proposition but if they could write up a good team city league then the fans would see a real game of hockey and a juvenile league game each night. Every sport in town needs a boost in the way of juvenile loop and see that the kids were given a chance to develop star, far, it is from players of this age that the future big league stars are developed.

X—X—X

"Old Man Time" plays some funny tricks. Last Spring Ollie Mavhilli played for Belleville against Windsor; while Napoleon Thomas, who used to say that Ollie Mavhilli is now playing for a position on the Pla-Mores against Patterson, who last year played against Ollie in the Windsor series. The comparisons speak highly of both players.

X—X—X

The B.C.I. juniors kept up their record of not losing a game this season when they defeated the Tweed seniors by the score of 11 to 3 on Saturday. But for the first time this season they were beaten on their own course this was an exhibition game and therefore will not count in their record.

X—X—X

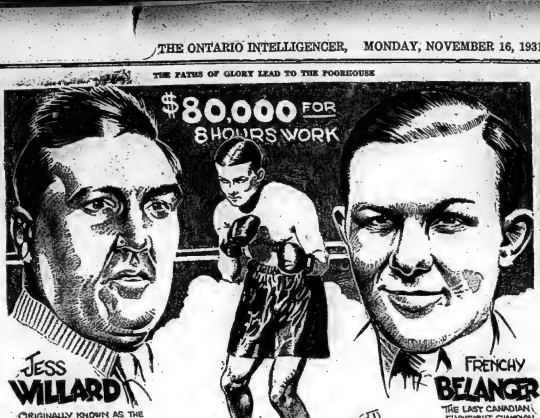
The Northern Belt rolled a fast one when they made the locals play on the hard ice with only 22 yards long, the rules call for 25 yards. We are glad that the field was more fit for rocky mountain goats than for football teams. The reason being that the field was literally covered with boulders.

X—X—X

Between the muddy foot of Jimmie Folwell and the line plunging of Jack Gains, Shriebergy, Hilton and McElrith between them managed to come home victorious. Ostrom and Shriebergy also played their usual heady game while Gains starred at snap was always on the job.

X—X—X

Whether or not the B.C.I. seniors will be in the city for the provincial title hunt is still a deep and dark mystery. (?)



X—X—X

We are that it is an assured fact that Gene O'Neil is the manager of the Toronto Leafs next year. Charlie Good, of the Toronto Star, makes the suggestion that the Toronto magnate might do worse than hire Georges Slaier as manager for next year. Slaier was voted most valuable player in the American League for the season and that is at least something to his credit considering that he was with a tail-end club, namely, the Browns.

The St. Louis Browns is the only club in the American League which has never participated in a world series.

Child Killed When She Ran Into Engine

Welland, Ont., Nov. 16—Hurrying home through the rain, Olga Heckman, 11, Crowland, ran into the side of a locomotive on a level crossing here yesterday and was instantly killed. The girl had her coat collar turned up to keep off the heavy rain. The bell on the locomotive was ringing and the whistle had been sounded. An inquest has been ordered by the coroner.

FORMER CHAMPS FIND LIFE TOUGH GOING

Exerpt for perhaps Jess Willard and few other boxers whose names were once a by-word in sporting circles are now thrust into obscurity and poverty. One of Canada's most famous, "Frenchy" Belanger, former World's flyweight champion, and the man who once made Toronto the Fireside centre of the continent, is now working on the trans Canada highway, wielding an axe. The mighty has fallen.

Belanger is putting himself in shape for a comeback, but there are other whispers afoot which sound suspiciously like the opposite. As for Jess Willard, the former heavyweight champion, known in his prime as a "tight wad" is getting the busy end of his existence. He puts enough away to get him started in a side departmental store and is making good. Dempsey has apparently had to take the comeback trail too, but Willard, who has never been in the game for fun or publicity, is another game. He's far from the Leonard of old. And so on down the line. Hardly more than one or two per cent of famous boxers are the ones who have gone through the mill and they're cracked up to be. By the time the sport gets down to them all they're entitled to is a new pair of shoes and a pat on the back.

Jack Gains, now the all time great of the British Empire, is making a nice living in England against a flock of set-ups.

Jr. Griders Defeat Tweed

Exhibition Game Won By Collegiate By Score of 11 to 2

On a field that was perhaps more fitted for mountain climbers than football players the Belleville Collegiate Juniors defeated the Tweed seniors, in the northerns' home town by the score of 11 to 2 on Saturday. The game was filled with thrills from the start to the final whistle and as the battle was staged on a field that was covered with boulders, rocks and large sized pebbles making it a hard proposition to complete good plays in football as the players were at all times almost in danger of their lives so to speak.

Three Many Fusses

To start with the field was but eighty yards long and this naturally capped the kids as they are used to playing on a regulation field of a hundred and ten yards. The game was filled with spectacular plays as both teams tried forward passes until they had each other quite fatigued chasing the old "pig-skin." Only Belleville Jimmie Pollwell was again to the front with his trusty foot and he kicked for three passes for nearly of Belleville's points. Ostrom at quarter and Carruthers at snap play ed bank up football and it was through some of their plays that the locals gained considerable ground in the second period. The Belleville line of scrimmage was the outstanding feature of the game. Cole, White, McKinney and Hilton crashed through the Tweed line for many gains. This line of both offense and defence are about the finest line of juniors that ever graced a Belleville grid-iron. Schrieder and McElrath as outside ends resembled themselves during the battle and their broken field running was one of the features of the game.

Cotton a Star

Cotton, Tweed's big husky half back, was the outstanding star for the northerners and he was closely followed by McCrea at quarter while Graham, on the outside, was always a thorn in the sides of the locals. Cotton kicked for the only two points that the homesters got.

Belleville kicked off and Arbour ran the ball back twenty yards. On the third down Cotton kicked and Countryman was downed in the midfield. McElrath went around the outside for a gain of five yards and on the next play McKinney gained the other five. The Belleville line of Cole, White and Hilton then went to work on a series of line plunges that resulted in yard gains each time. Pollwell kicked over the line and before Marsaw could get out Laughlin downed him for one point for Belleville. The locals then tried another aerial attack that resulted in gains and after a few more plays a well kicked to the dead line for another point for the locals

DRUG MENACE IS REAL, SAYS DR. J. VINING

Connected With Social Welfare League of United Church

MANY ADDICTS

Rev. Dr. J. A. Vining of the Social Welfare League of the United church spoke to the congregation of the Tabernacle Church Sunday morning on the narcotic or drug menace to this country. Dr. Vining was for a number of years the Minister at College Street Baptist Church in the city of Toronto but for the past number of years has been working in the social welfare department of the church.

Using the text, he took part of the 20th verse of the 10th chapter of St. Luke: "And who is my neighbor?" Dr. Vining went on to say that when Jesus was asked this question He told, in reply, the story of the Good Samaritan. Mr. Vining said of the present experiences on the road between Jericho and Jerusalem where this story happened during the ministry of Our Saviour's preachings on earth. "The road is still a trap for travellers," said he, "and the British isles were gradually stamping out the banditry and robbery that was that section of the country." Dr. Vining was of the opinion that the priest and the Levite, who passed by the wounded man, were still to be found in the men and women of today who were either inclined to shirk their duty to their neighbour. "The Good Samaritan taught us a lesson. He not only took the wounded man to the inn but also forgot his own personal business until such time as he was assured that the man was well on the way to recovery", said Dr. Vining. "This is the true spirit of the statement, "Love thy neighbour as thyself."

JOSEPH SEDGWICK, Solicitor in the Ontario Attorney General's Department, who took a leading part in preparing the case against the eight Communists convicted and sentenced to long terms in the penitentiary.

The Organization

Dr. Vining after pointing out the answer of the question, "Who is my neighbour?" went on to tell about the organization and how it first worked. It was founded 34 years ago by Dr. Ryerson for the sole purpose of helping the underprivileged children, the neglected, the blind, the crippled children, the widows, illegitimate children and their mothers and any other classes which may present themselves for their help.

It was also through their efforts, that the present juvenile courts had been established throughout Canada. They have published pamphlets and booklets on child welfare and on the narcotic menace and social problems.

Speech on Drug Problem

It was chiefly on this latter topic, that Dr. Vining spoke. He convincingly stated, that he had never gone into a town, or city in Canada without finding at least one drug addict. This statement was borne out by reading Government statements to the effect that the governments of this country realized the greatness of the narcotic menace. Dr. Vining stated, that he had been accused of exaggeration in his statements on this subject, but, he flatly denied these accusations as he said, that he had no reason at all to exaggerate as the menace was here and to a much greater extent than the people of this country realized.

He told, from statistics, the ever-growing narcotic conditions in Canada, especially from Winnipeg west to Vancouver. It was disgusting the head that the drug addict have gained in Canada. He also read from statistics that there were at present 886 drug peddlers in one penitentiary in the United States. "It is the greatest evil in the world, it no doubt had its bearing on Canada," he said. The most surprising thing that confronts the welfare workers in fighting the menace is the fact that about 90 percent of the dope users are under thirty five years of age and most of them are adolescents. He stated that from 146, who were examined in Toronto, there were 91 of them, who had started the habit before they were the age of 17. The teen age children are the ones, that the drug peddlers seem to centre their efforts upon as they are easier victims than are adults, he pointed out.

Children Taken by Ring

Dr. Vining also gave some statistics stating some figures such as over 90 per cent of the addicts are under 17 years old; 15,000 young girls disappeared from their respective homes in United States, through the drug ring, last year. The present crime wave, murders and bandits today are all backed by a drug ring. "The average peddler is worse than a murderer," said Dr. Vining. He pointed out that at present they were treating nearly 8,000 addicts in the city of New York and they were all under the age of 30 years. "It is when young boys get as 'hopped up' that they become banditts, murderers and perhaps worse", he said. As there are over four million addicts in the United States it is now presents a problem of just how to combat the menace in Canada and therefore it is the duty of every citizen to fight this great battle if we do not wish our country to go as Chicago or any other great crime centre of the world, pointed out the speaker.

Dr. Vining did not have time on Sunday morning to go into the matter as fully as he would have liked but, he assured those present that he would tell them true facts that would astonish them at his lecture on Wednesday evening. "The drug menace is here and it is up to us citizens to try and abolish the peddler as quickly as possible," he said. In closing he definitely stated, that he was assured of the fact that there was absolutely no hope for the cure of a confirmed drug addict, as he had seen too many cases, which were thought to have both cured in the past, but, later got returned to the drug or other narcotic. The only way to prevent it is to wipe out the drug peddler and then we would not have dope", he said. "Let citizens stand our guard if we expect to carry out the programme, that has been started in the matter of eliminating the dope" said Dr. Vining in his closing remarks.

During the church service the Tabernacle united quarette sang, "I will follow" which was greatly appreciated.

Sabatini to Study Canadian History

Toronto, Ont. (By The Canadian Press)—Tall and scholarly looking, the silver and well-poised like a business-man, the famous Rafael Sabatini, whose works "Scaramouche", "The Sea Hawk" and others have made the best sellers of his day, today told Toronto newspapermen of his plans for a historical investigation of Quebec City was unfolded to him when he arrived there yesterday aft.

"There must be any amount of romantic material in Canadian history," he said, "and I certainly intend looking into it."

Readily Sabatini answered a barrage of questions concerning himself and his work. When asked whether he dictated his stories, he replied, he could not do it for he'd be wondering all the time what the amanuensis thought of them. The writing of a novel with the famed author, takes an average of two months. He seeks privacy and shuns public libraries and museums the atmosphere of which he finds depressing.

Sabatini began reading history before he was seven and has kept up the study ever since. "I find I must read a great deal more than is directly necessary in the book I am writing," the author declared. "You need 100 pounds of facts to write 10 percent. But the addition of 90 per cent, in some way I cannot explain, has a valuable influence on the smaller proportion."

"Every author retains impressions from which stories grow. I usually have two or three themes in which I do considerable reading. Once I start, the writing part of it is the easiest of all. But this does not always mean that the story works out as originally planned. Sometimes the characters take the matter in their own hands and drive the author along their way."

Employers Adopting Potato Selling Idea

Toronto, Ont. (By The Canadian Press)—Ten bags of potatoes were in the cellar, or other place of storage, for every Ontario family. That is the objective of the Ontario Growers' Markets Council in an intensive potato selling campaign now in progress throughout the province. A. R. Wilford, representing the Council, has secured endorsation of the scheme by various organizations of employers. The idea is to take the large stocks of potatoes off the farmer's hands at the present low prices and deliver them to consumers. The support of manufacturers and others at the head of large industrial concerns has been secured with a view to distribution of large consignments of potatoes to their employers at current prices. In some cases the cellars of factories have been devoted to storage of these consignments and the individual employees are not ready to receive them. Promoters of the scheme express themselves as highly pleased with the success so far achieved.

THEATRES FORCED TO HOLD LECTURES

MOSCOW—The Russian stage is nothing if not educational, and so the "Industrial Theatre for Technical Propaganda" has been organized here. Lectures are given between the acts on the various industrial subjects portrayed on the stage. The first production, called "Automobile", deals with the development of Russian automobile good roads. The actors had to take special courses of instruction in driving at an automobile factory as preparation for their roles.

ANN HARDING PICTURE "DEVOTION" NOW AT BELLE

Rose Quaris Dressmaker Tonight

Each lady attending the Belle Tonight will be presented with a beautiful piece of Rose Quaris Dressmaker, with the compliments of the management.

"Devotion" the feature offering at the Belle Tonight and Tuesday, matinee and night, starring Ann Harding, reproduces the famed and lovely Temple district of London.

Against this exquisite background in contrast to its air of history and tradition, there is played an unusually pleasing story of modern romance, light-hearty, and charming.

That such a story and setting should have Ann Harding as the star is one of the happy combinations too seldom seen in pictures. Miss Harding gives a superb role demanding a wide emotional range Perhaps never has Miss Harding appeared to more excellent advantage. She proves once again that she is an actress of fine ability, whose talent is not confined to one role.

Leslie Howard, who will be remembered for his fine work in "Outward Bound" is splendid in the leading role opposite Miss Harding. Robert Williams does another outstanding characterization.

Robert Millton did fine work in directing this entertaining film.

Thelma Todd and Patsy Ruth Fitts are co-featured in a highly amusing comedy called "The Pajama Parade," the popular Fox Sound News, and Aesop's Fables in a clever and original comedy, "100% Service," are announced for exhibition on the same program.

At The Capitol

THOMAS "ARIZONA" BROUGHT TO SCREEN

"Arizona", one of the most popular and successful stage plays ever written, has been made into a talkie in film and is showing Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre, with daily matinee.

The play is the work of Augustus Thomas, one of the greatest of present day playwrights. It is considered the leading work of this talented author, and it has had a colorful career on American dramatic boards. The long history attached to this play started in 1899 at the Hamilton Opera House in Chicago where it had its premiere and played for more than a year with a cast which later became famous—such names as Theodore Roberts, Robert Edeson, Arthur Byron, Guy Standing, Mason Mowbray, Edmund Holt and Lionel Barrymore.

For over nine years "Arizona" had its grip on the public and it went down in theatrical history as being the most popular play of its time. It is considered an American Classic. Following its Chicago run it was the most successful showing at the Herald Square in New York and then at the Adelphi in London, while several companies presided in this play tancously on the road in the United States.

It was revived with great success in 1902 and again in 1906 by an all star cast. It was filmed by Douglas Fairbanks in 1918. In 1925 the Shuberts put a new face to music under the title o f "The Love Call" and proved that its popularity was as great at that time as it had been when the play was first presented. The film showing Tuesday and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre is a modern adaptation of this famous play.

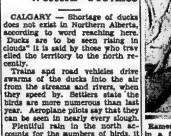
The following cast support roles in the screen play—Laura La Plante John Wayne and June Clyde have the leads and Nena Quartaro, Forrest Stanley, Loretta Sayers and Susan Fleming in supporting roles. George B. Seitz handled the direction.

Extension Course Draws Attendance From Many States

Toronto (By The Canadian Press) —Anyone who has the right desire to sit at the University of Toronto with students from all parts of the world, can find himself there. Of over 2,000 students, ranging in age from 21 to 76, and coming from every walk of life, Carpenters, professors, society women, gardeners, and business men gather there in community for the sole purpose of self-culture, the effect of their study ranging from art to mecanization law, from Shakespeare to metallurgy.

Most unexpected of all possibly, is the recent application of two truck drivers for an advance course in public speaking. One of them intends to be an enquiring newspaperman should he wished to improve his knowledge of language for the benefit of his children.

"It is amazing to notice some of the things laborers do not understand in," R. W. Sharpe, supervisor of the classes, recently told an interviewer. "Economics, psychology, conversational French or English composition are being taken by electricians, carpenters and painters. At the other end of the educational scale, and sitting for the same lectures, are professors and their wives. More than 100 members of the University faculty are taking one or more of our night courses."



The most popular of the 30 courses offered is English fiction which numbers counts 140 attendants after having started with 20.

Ducks Plentiful in Western Province

CALGARY — Shortage of ducks does not exist in Northern Alberta, according to word received here. Ducks are to be seen rising in flocks and it is said that who tried the territory to the north recently.

Trains and road vehicles drive swarms of the ducks into the air from the streams and rivers, which they speed by. Settlers state the birds are more numerous than last year. Aeroplane pilots say that they can be seen in nearly every slough.

Plentiful rain in the north accounts for the large numbers of birds, it is stated. Dry weather in the south accounts for the large numbers in the north.

NO TIME LIMIT FOR DIVORCES

Britain's Supreme Court Rules That Cases Are Not Barred Out

London—(By The Canadian Press)—An important ruling was given by the British Supreme Court recently on "stale" divorce cases, the Court deciding that there was no time limit thereon and delay was not a bar. Some 50 law books dealing with marital cases were brought by counsel to Supreme Court when Justice Gardiner and Justice Sutton were asked to decide the important divorce problem as to whether there was any limit to the time in which a husband or wife could claim a restitution order, lifting which frees them.

Two cases were argued by counsel, that of George Davidson Carey who was suing his wife, Mary Jane Carey, petitioning that of Engela van der Nest against her husband, Nicolaas Jacobus Johannes van der Nest. Evidence was given that Mrs. Carey deserted her husband 23 years ago. Mrs. van der Nest alleged that he husband deserted her 9 years ago.

In both cases Justice Gardiner questioned whether the Court should assist in such "stale" desertions and he thought that it was unable counsel to look up the authorities. Advocates appeared to argue both cases, Gerald Gardiner, dealing with Carey's case, held that the Court did not have a statutory discretion to refuse restitution orders if the desertion was for many years old.

"The cases show that decrees have been granted after a long delay, and I cannot find any legal reason why decrees to grant a restitution order and finally divorce," said the Judge-President, "I do not mean to say that delay in bringing a matrimonial action may never affect the Court's action, but it seems to me that if it affects it, it will do so by way of evidence. There is a bar preventing the plaintiff from suing an order for restitution."

Carey was granted a restitution order. Justice Sutton, granting Mrs van der Nest an order, agreed with the reasons given by the Judge-President.

SHEEP MALADY IN AUSTRALIA

Veterinaries Do Not Know Cause of Mortality Among Sheep

Sidney, N.S.W.—(By The Canadian Press)—Australia's sheep industry is deeply concerned and not a little mystified by the growing mortality among the flocks during the past season.

Although some of the most skilful veterinarians in the country have been studying the problem, the pandemic has baffled them, and so far only theories have been advanced as to the cause of the disease.

Chief Veterinary Surgeon Max Henry states that the disease is not a new one, and that thousands of sheep have died from the same cause in the past year. He believes that the heavy rainfall and consequent heavy crop growth have had something to do with it.

"The trouble so far only belongs to mortality is evidently a very powerful one and is capable of causing death in sheep of all ages," said Dr. Henry. "Feed has been so plentiful this season that the sheep have maintained a high condition without having to move about to obtain their food, and this condition may have accentuated the mortality. As the season becomes hotter and the food hardens it is probable that the disease will be checked, but in the meantime we have been helpless in our efforts to find an effective combatant agency."

GEN. SEELY TELLS OF COMBAT OF GENERALS

Relates Battle at Army Manoeuvres Between Gen's Hughes and Beyers

South African Remarked South African Superior to 10 Britishers

FIST FIGHT

On Same Day Horse Seized His Majesty's Foot

(By Thomas T. Claridge, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 17.—An account of a fist fight between Gen. Sam Hughes, Canadian Minister of Defence and General Beyers, South African Minister of Defence, and intimated by King George, Marshal Foch and other notables, is contained in a book of reminiscences by Major-General J. E. B. Seely, published today by Hodder Stoughton.

The author commanded the Canadian cavalry brigade during a considerable portion of the war Two years before he was made Secretary of State for War in the British government and when the army manoeuvres were held in the eastern counties, he was in attendance upon the King. Several unfortunate incidents occurred that day, Seely's own horse bolting, but for the remount department supplied him with a fresh mount.

Snags at King's Foot

The book continues: "I told His Majesty it was arranged he should meet the representatives of the foreign powers, India, and the Dominions, the staffs of which assembled about three miles away. We cantered away for about a mile or two when the King suddenly asked me who were the representatives of the Dominions who were about to meet. While I was explaining to His Majesty that among those in the group of visitors we could see some dump of trees, was a representative of South Africa, his horse put in a cry. Looking around, I saw my remount had bent its head and caught its left foreleg in a snag. In fact, the King said 'I wish you would stop your horse eating my foot,' and I jabbed the animal in the mouth and he let go.

Two Men Boxing

"I asked permission to gallop forward to tell the officers the King was coming. His Majesty was naturally delighted to agree to my going, following, at a slow canter. Imagine my surprise when I approached the group, to see two men, both in khaki uniforms, actually engaged in a fierce boxing match. Some of the officers stood apart while one or two were trying to separate the combatants. I galloped into the midst of them, told them to be ready at once to receive the King. Nevertheless General Sam Hughes—for he was one of the combatants—and about of 'traitor' managed to land a tremendous blow on the ear of his antagonist General Beyers, representing South Africa.

Stepped Just in Time

"I rode on between the two men while Beyers shouted 'let me get at him'. I was only just in time to quell the disturbance before the King arrived. If course he had done so, I think that after all the officers had been presented to him, he would have had to find out the cause of the trouble. It appeared afterwards that I had to Hughes that one African was equal to ten Britishers, and that he was fit for fight and that Hughes had replied that one Britisher was equal to twenty South Africans and that if Beyers liked to repeat his allegation, they could have a fight to see better man. That was how the fight began."

Both men, adds Seely, were Ministers of Defence in their respective countries and retained their positions until the declaration of war. Sir Sam Hughes organized the Canadian Revolutionary Force served throughout the greater part of the war, was made a Privy Councillor in South Africa against the government in the rebellion of the World War. It was he who seduced Kaiser's Hindenburg. Botha swiftly crushed the rebellion, Delarey was shot accidentally and Beyers drowned in the Vaal.

General Botha said: "Peace and be slain," is his second. Safety first is a vile motto, he declares in the forewords.

OLD MILL BURNS

Gall, Ont., Nov. 17—A land mark of Waterloo County and twelved one of the oldest flour mills in Canada, the morning established Sept. of E. A. Graves at Blair was destroyed by fire overnight. The loss is placed at $12,000 partly covered by insurance. The mill was 75 years old and had run continuously all that time and for over 40 years was operated by the Hilborn family, pioneers of the district.

Chief Witness is 3 Year Old

WIENER NEUSTADT, Austria, Nov. 17 (AP)—Adolf Beer, aged three, was chief witness against his mother, Josefa Beer, today, when she went to trial on a charge of murdering the boy with the death of her two-year old son Hermann.

The mother was arrested when Adolf prattled at the funeral: "Mamma threw Hermann into the canal."

FOG SHROUDED LAUNCH FOUND

Eleven Coastguard Vessel Search Bay For Launch

CAPE MAY, N. J., Nov. 17 (AP)—The three high school teachers and two girl students missing since Sunday in a motor launch have been found safe in a Manhattan to Delaware Bay.

The Coast Guard Patrol Boat No. 107 radioed the information to Coast Guard Base No. 9 here. The lighthouse is known as fourteen foot bank light. It is in the middle of the Delaware Capes.

A boat was sent from Cape May to the light house to use the launch either to Cape May or to Bivalve from which place the party of eight left Sunday afternoon for a short cruise in Delaware Bay.

BIVALVE, N.J., Nov. 17.—One of the heaviest fogs to settle on Delaware Bay in many years enveloped the fate of eight persons today as a search continued for a 26-foot motor launch in which five Millville High School youths and three teachers went on an outing Sunday.

Eleven coastguard vessels searched the bay all night, making slow progress in the fog, while yesterday their force was augmented by privately owned launches and other craft. Capt. Charles Mitchell, retired baker after a chart yesterday, was in charge of the search as well as acted as a rift appeared in the fog.

Harper Sound, on whose father built the motor launch, was skipper of the missing craft. With him were Isabelle McCaugher, 25, of Millville; Gertrude Hitchner, Alma Moyer 26, Kulpmont, Pa., teacher of French; Hanna Ewan, 21 of Millville; Irwin Ewan, 24, brother and Marshall Roe, 18, and Ralph Hitchner, 18, and Norwood Jr., 17 of Dorchester. They left at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Marry Chance Port Norris, shellfisher, skipper of the motor oyster, asserted his son understood the boat and had probably sought safety in the fog to find the mouth of the Maurice River which led to Port Norris. Chance also expressed confidence.

CAFE KEEPER IS ACQUITTED

Judge States He Wanted Not Conviction On Suspicion

NORTH BAY, Nov. 17.—Peter Georgeas, proprietor of a local restaurant appearing before Judge Valin yesterday on a charge of dispensing with his books with intent to defraud creditors, was acquitted, sentence on both counts. The judge found that there was no evidence to prove him guilty on either charge and stated emphatically that he could not convict a man on suspicion.

World-Famous Paintings Found Buried in Tins

MOSCOW, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Priceless art treasurers were restored to the world today following the discovery of five noted paintings buried in tin cans in two places in Moscow.

The pictures were stolen from the Moscow Art Gallery in 1927. They were the property of Count by Rembrandt: the "Ecce Homo," by Titian the "Holy Family" by Correggio; St. Kokorev.

John the Evangelist by Carlo Dolci and the scouring of Christ by Pietazaro.

The tins were found sealed and the pictures were covered with a protective composition to protect them from damage. The Titian was damaged slightly by moisture, but it is to be restored by experts.

Several persons have been arrested, including a painter

LEAGUE STIRS OVER CHANGED U. S. ATTITUDE

Faces Test of Dozen Years in Effort to Keep Peace

CHINESE ADVANCE

Rengo News Says Truce is Accepted By Mah

(By the Associated Press)

Evidences of a change in the attitude of the United States toward interference of Japanese evacuation of Manchuria were reported from Paris today and it was said the League Council was agitated by this and by reports that Russia is reasoning settled at Japan's activity.

General Mah's troops were reported from Manchuria abandoning ground south of Angangchi with no intention of withdrawing although earlier reports to the Reno News Agency from Harbin said General Mah acceded to Japanese conditions for a truce.

A demand that the Nanking government cease its "week-kneed" attitude toward Japan was made at Shanghai by Hu Han-Ming, former chief of the government's executive branch and leader of the Nationalist party.

Paris, Nov. 17 (AP)—Portents of changes in the relations of the United States and Russia today were borne from the air of secrecy that the League of Nations' Council wore in facing the test of its dozen years in an effort to restore peace in Manchuria.

Reliable indications appeared certainly that the United States was relaxing its frown for Japanese evacuation of the disputed area and that Russia is beginning to bestir herself against Japanese military activities close to the Siberian frontier.

Tokyo, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Tsitihar was reported by Rengo news agency at Harbin today said General Mah Chan-Shan began withdrawing his Chinese forces from the Nonni River front after accepting all conditions of the Japanese truce.

THREW BEEF TO STOP PACK

Wolves Are Chasing The Farmers of Parry Sound District

PARRY SOUND, Ont., Nov. 17.—Packs of wolves raided a farmyard and chased a farmer for several miles through the bush in recent forays in this district.

The farmyard raid was carried out on Sunday night. Hare returning home to find his family shut up in the house, several of his sheep injured and two of them missing. Calves had invaded the yard, setting two sheep to flight. Left alone at home, his wife said.

Gus Adams, leaving farmer, won a race with wolves when his two horses carried him to the safety of the house just ahead of the snarling pack. Throwing meat from his sleigh a quarter of beef to slow up the fast gaining wolves.

Dumping Duty Not to Apply to Canada

Loudoff, Nov. 17 (CP Cable) — The National Government does not intend its new dumping duties shall apply to goods from the Dominions, says The Daily Telegraph today. The Government's policy is unchanged says where a duty is imposed, a concession will be made in regard to goods from the Dominions.

The paper says the duty against goods from the Dominions is benefited at the equivalent to the imperial preference rates.

Storm Traps Dozens in Snow Covered Hills

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 17.—A storm which trapped dozens of persons in the snow-covered mountains of California among them Noah Beery, screen actor, held much of the Northwest and the Pacific slope in its cold grip today.

Mountain roads, especially those leading off the Sierra Nevada from California to points east, were closed, due to the heavy snowfall. Dozens of motorists were rescued after having been forced to abandon their automobiles.

With but six exceptions, all those marooned were reported safe last night, including Beery and two companions, who struck out Sunday morning into the snow-clad San Gabriel Mountains near Palmdale, Calif., to search for Robert Elliott of LLano, Calif., who was reported lost.

Elliott was found by an Indian and brought to safety, but Beery, D. C. Norris, his ranch foreman, and Lt. A. Hendricks, a real estate man, were themselves lost.

Caught in a terrific windstorm which followed a heavy snowfall, the three braved the elements for thirty-six hours. They found shelter in a deserted mine during night.

Early yesterday they started the hard trek back and reached Hollywood late last night.

Search was under way for two men believed to be near Oroids, an outpost in the high Sierra east of Angels Camp. The two, Alexander and Fred Lombardi, father and son, were rounding up cattle when the storm broke.

SHEPHERD DOG ESCAPES FATE

Human Agency Saves Roxie From Court Action

Battle Creek, Mich., Nov. 17 — Roxie, pedigreed German shepherd dog, has escaped the executioner.

A month ago the court ordered Roxie's picture, and told how Justice Paul Sather had sentenced the dog to death on a charge of vicousness. Dog lovers took up Roxie's case, and letters from all parts of the country deluged Justice Sather.

Wayne Reardon, Battle Creek college student, and master of Roxie, was presented with funds for the defense of Roxie's case, and he was granted. Roxie was furnished with a $20 legal bond.

Now, three days before Roxie's trial was to be given a circuit court, Rosenbaum announces that Roxie was given to him in Michigan, and requested dismissal of the case as being outside the court's jurisdiction. Judge Sather said the request would be granted, since the trial, which promised to cost the county $300, would prove too much of an expense.

Rosenbaum presented Roxie to a friend in Berne, Ind.

Relief and Welfare Mobilization

Activities of Various Committees of Relief Work in Belleville

Rural residents of this district are beginning to take more of an interest in donations of foodstuffs and other necessaries for the local unemployed. Today Mr. Thomas Highland of Prince Edward County phoned the relief headquarters and asked to have someone go over and get ten bags of apples he had waiting for them. Other donations of lesser quantities are also reported daily.

U. S. SENATORS STUDY LAWS

Will Study Canadian Sales Tax Law Here

Montreal, Nov. 17 (CP)—Welcoming to Canada a large party of Senators and Congressmen from the United States now in the Dominion for the purpose of studying the Canadian Sales Tax, Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, paid a tribute to the American minister, Col. J. Hanford MacNider, who had already done much to increase the friendship between the people of these two countries.

Mr. Manion's welcome was expressed at a dinner given last night by Sir Henry Thornton, president and president of the Canadian National Railways to the members of the party now in Canada. Sir Henry Thornton, who presided, expressed the view that no two nations in the world were given so favorable opportunity to lead the world to better days.

BANKERS WARN ON BORROWING

Inability to Borrow in U.S. Complicates Situation

MONTREAL, Nov. 17.—Grave warning to Provincial Governments and municipalities contemplating extensive borrowing programmes was issued in a resolution adopted by the Canadian Bankers' Association and made public yesterday.

The statement issued by the Association follows: "A general realization took place at the recent meeting of the Association upon the need for strenuous efforts in the direction of limiting borrowing programmes during the present year and later by municipal authorities. The conviction was expressed that many public bodies judging from the announcements which have been made to bankers and public works in actual construction, have undertaken more than can be fully seized of present financial conditions and of how far the ability of this country to lend, in the circumstances, now that borrowing abroad is practically at an end, can provide such necessary funds to meet such outlays."

SINGER LOSES RIGHT APPEAL

Supreme Court Denies Motion For Appeal From Conviction

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 17.—(By the Canadian Press)—The supreme Court of Canada today denied the application of Hon. Jacques Bureau, former head of the Amalgamated Builders of Canada, from a conviction, and a fine of $8,000 for conspiracy to prevent or lessen competition in plumber supplies and for being party to the operation of a conspiracy. Mr. Singer was tried in the Exchequer Court and his conviction was taken to the court of appeal where it was sustained.

Mr. Bureau appealed then to hear the appeal of Ray E. Belyea and Harry Singer, who had been convicted with that of Mr. Singer.

DINO GRANDI PRESENTED TO PRES. HOOVER

Received With Warmth and Splendor at Nation's Capital

IN ACCORD

Describes Hoover's Moratorium as "timely" and For The Best

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 17.—Dino Grandi presented at the conference with President Hoover this afternoon with a statement that it was "high time" that the world sought a practical solution of the disarmament problem.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—Received with warmth and splendor, Italy's Foreign Minister, Dino Grandi, on today spent a full day preliminary ceremonies before formally offering his services here his country's "contribution to the common work for the common good."

So the statesman described the purpose of his visit to the conference upon Washington soil Fittingly, his early rendezvous this morning was at the marble shrine of the Unknown Soldier. Chief Brigadier Grandi's visit is the preservation of the peace for which the warriors lie buried.

Late in reaching the Capital last night, the 39-year-old minister and Signora Grandi were welcomed with the full honors due foreign guests of the nation. A few minutes later they were presented to President and Mrs. Hoover at the White House. Informal greetings were exchanged in English and the couple hurried off to Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's home for dinner and a good night's rest.

Meanwhile it has defined the general purpose of his visit in a statement to the press and in private chats by Ambassador Garroni, "Woodley", the Stimson home in Massachusetts Avenue, Washington.

He talked after dinner with Senator Borah, and unlike Premier Laval of France, his immediate predecessor in that scene, Grandi found himself in fairly close accord with the outspoken chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In his first statement to the press since landing at New York yesterday afternoon, Grandi emphasized necessity for co-operation among all nations.

He described Mr. Hoover's moratorium as inter-governmental debt moratorium as "timely and aptly" it marked the beginning of a period of "immediate and practical activity" with the heads of all nations taking "a direct personal part" to "find the best way out of the difficulties of the moment."

DENY REPORT OF THE PRESS

African Press Brought to Task By English Government

Cape Town, Nov 17 (CP Cable)—The British government emphatically denies the report appearing in the American press that it had intervened in the Nationalist agitation in "views with disfavor a British Dominion should be the scene of agitation against the British Empire." The government is bolstering up loyalty to the English people, opposition to the English people.

The denial was made public by the Imperial Government. The announcement was communicated most emphatically assures the Union Government there is no truth in that statement and that such an attitude on the part of any individual is to be would be wholly contrary to the policy and indeed unthinkable."

CAMPAIGN IS NEAR CLOSE

Hons. Finlayson and Mc-Crea Speak on Behalf of Conservative

GUELPH, Nov. 17.—(By the Canadian Press)—Pore-seeing a turning in the tide of economic and financial conditions in Canada, Hon. William Finlayson, Ontario Minister of Agriculture and Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, addressed a meeting here last night as part of the Conservative campaign in the Guelph-Wellington Provincial by-election. She ever people blamed the other half for the meeting of W. P. Gamble the Conservative candidate indicated that while $18,000,000 had been spent on interest charges, debt retirement and maintenance of the road work only $16,416,000 had been collected from gasoline and motor taxes for other than highway purposes. Mr. McCrea quoted figures which indicated that while $18,000,000 had been spent on interest charges, debt retirement and maintenance of the road work only $16,416,000 had been collected from gasoline and motor taxes for other than highway purposes. He condemned the policy of borrowing money for which the procedures would be piled up "much more than ever before."

Mr. Finlayson said it was "a good thing to be in power at present time, with the party in power at Toronto, Ottawa and the British Isles. He outlined the work being done in Northern Ontario and said the government was acting intelligently and was getting one hundred cents of road for every dollar expended.

HASTY CURING BLAMED FOR BARN FIRES

Methods Used in Counties Produced Combustion, Marshall Reports

FEW INCENDIARY

Check-Up By Price Revealed Owners Indirectly Responsible

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 17.— (By the Canadian Press)—Spontaneous combustion was given as the cause of the majority of the barn fires which have occurred in Ontario in the past six weeks in a statement issued yesterday by Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Agricultural General. Incendiarism is not believed to have caused any large series of fires.

The attorney-general bases his declaration on a general visit to the scene of the Wentworth County fires and on the reports of the Provincial Fire Marshal, E. P. Heaslip and the Commission of Provincial Police, General A. B. Williams.

Since farmers first expressed fears that a firebug was at work, inspectors and provincial police constables delegated to investigate them. The fire-bug theory has not been serious or unfortunate enough to fire the marshal or provincial police, said Col. Price.

MUNICIPAL FIELD STILL UNDECIDED

No far there has been very little interest displayed by the electors in this municipality regarding the coming election. The time for nomination is fast approaching but so far only one candidate has expressed himself as being willing to offer himself as aldermanic candidate in this city.

From now on this paper will be glad to receive statements from those who may be willing to offer these aspirants, and allow them space in this column for them to express their own personal views on the matter.

Mr. R. F. White, 14 North Front street, and former alderman of the city, expressed his intention last night of offering himself for nomination as alderman in the coming election. This is considered a very interesting announcement on his recovering from a recent illness, with which he is still confined to his home, in time to personally meet and discuss the subject with the many friends who have approached him on the matter.

COLLISION UPON FOXBORO HIGHWAY

A slight collision between two cars, the names of the owners were not ascertained, occurred on the Foxboro highway last night a mile or so North of the city. No damage was reported and it was said the matter was amicably adjusted between the drivers.

POLICE LOOK OUT FOR MISSING CAR

The city police on Tuesday received notice to be on the lookout for a car reported stolen from Kerril serial number 231877, stolen from Toronto on Nov. 6, containing samples and articles and candy. Also for a car stolen at Hamilton on Nov. 7, carrying license number R8200—serial number 13883.

CALL MEN FROM FRONT OF CITY HALL

Beginning next Thursday morning, November 19th, the names of workers on the city registration list will be called for work at the South side of the city hall instead of at the city yard as has been formerly done. The time will be the same as formerly at 7.30, to enable the men to be called out and be on the job at eight o'clock.

When asked today if any average time could be struck for timen and that they would know approximately when to report for work, Mr. Seyfield, the clerk in charge of these names said it was very hard to know beforehand as the many men would be required on any particular day, due to the different jobs being finished up, and new ones starting.

Y'S MEN'S CLUB HEAR REPORTS

The regular meeting of the Y's Men's Club was held in the Association on Monday night. There was a fair percent attendance, after the regular business of the week had been finished the meeting was turned over to Geo. Pauley, chairman of the Boys' Work committee. An interesting and complete report of the Boys' Work Conference held at Toronto, Edmonton was given by Bucky Calther and Glen McKinney. The following new members will be inducted at the next regular meeting: Bert Gardiner, Bill McEwan, Harold Crowe and Jarrell Partridge. The musical programme was supplied by Harry Archer and Spencer Young Tom Williams and Fred Evans vocal soloists, this delighted all the members present. Arrangements are being made to hold Ladies' night in the near future.

BELLEVILLE DOGS AT WINTER. FAIR

Two entries from Belleville for the Winter Fair which opens in Toronto are reported. Mr. Swarts of Belleville has entered a Spaniel, one of the city's local dog fanciers, and Mr. Tilbrook is showing Spaniels while Mr. Tilbrook is sending four beautiful Cocker Spaniels, one of which he expects to qualify very high in the puppy class.

MIZPAH LODGE HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Members of Mizpah Lodge, No. 127, of the Order of Rebekah, held open house for themselves and friends at their lodge room last night. Mr. Mack's friends took the opportunity during the impromptu speakers which followed to express appreciated. During the progress of the dinner, telegrams of congratulation were received from a number from Mr. Mack's friends throughout the district.

Mr. Mack has made a host of friends during the short time in the city and it is hoped he may long remain a resident of Belleville.

FOUR WANDERERS GIVEN SHELTER

Monday night was very quiet at the city police station, only four wanderers sought shelter in the Immigrant.

WANT SIDEWALK NEAR NEW SCHOOL

At a meeting of the Home and School Club of the King George school held last Friday evening, it was unanimously decided to petition the city council to lay a sidewalk on the west side of Front street St. Many children come from upper Coleman street, and when Moira street and these have to cross the street either on their way to school and twice when returning from school. This is considered dangerous, it is hoped that the sidewalk will extend from the railway track to the entrance to the school grounds. Since North Front has been paved it has become quite a speedway and every day children run the risk of being run down by motorists.

MILLER'S BODY FOUND IN LAKE

The District Office of the Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville on Tuesday received a report from Provincial Constable Thomillon of Stanford Lake, advising that the body of Ernest Miller, who was drowned in Green Lake, Provincial County, on November 8th, was found about thirty feet from the shore in forty feet of water, on Saturday, November 14. Dr. H. H. Seldon, the coroner, states that an inquest is unnecessary.

Ernest Miller was a farmer, married and forty-six years old. He was hunting and while crossing Green Lake alone in a boat, in some unaccountable way fell from the boat and a companion on the shore saw him go down.

MANAGER FORHAN DENIES RUMOR

"Absolutely no truth in the rumor that notices of admission are to be advanced at this house," said Manager George J. Forhan of the Belleville Theatre today. "I know no reason for such a report and patrons of this theatre may rest assured that there will be no increase in prices."

SAINT JULIEN CHAPTER MEETS

There was a fine attendance at the regular meeting last evening of St. Julien Chapter, I. O. D. E. The meeting was held in the I. O. D. E. room and was for the purpose of planning the entertainment. This organization which has always been prompt with its part in the work is arranging to do their share in helping the movement for relief to the unemployed.

NOVEMBER BOUQUET PRESENTED TO STAFF

Mr. W. C. Reid, nurseryman, 179 Dundas street east, is a very successful cultivator and grower of flowering shrubs, which are in evidence in his garden nearly every note. Monday afternoon, Mr. Reid very kindly presented to the staff of the Intelligencer office the month's Intelligencer a very lovely bouquet, composed of red and pink roses and sprays of a flowering shrub of variegated colors. The roses are the Chrysanthpilis variety. They are very large and bloom from June until the coming of frost. The flowering shrub is called Symphoricarpus. It is something like the Snow Berry but the berries are of many colors. The lateness in the coming of frost this year has made it possible to enjoy these beautiful flowers much later in the season than is generally usual.

LOW WATER LEVEL HANDICAPS VESSELS

The barge "Warrenoo" towed by the tug "Salvage Prince" arrived in port Sunday last and cleared yesterday after discharging coal at the Conger Coal Co., dock. This is the second trip within ten days, these vessels have made. Although the water is somewhat lowering a full cargo, it is expected that several more trips will be completed before the close of navigation.

The Younger Girls' Club of John Street Church held a tea and sale on Saturday afternoon which met with splendid success. The affair was held at the home of Helen Tuby and receiving with Miss Jones was Dorothy Boyle, president of the club. The room was prettily decorated with late autumn flowers, the tea table being centred with yellow chrysmums and cran candles. Tea was poured by Miss Roberts. Hall and Miss Corbett. The guests were invited into the tea room by Marjorie Hall while Madge Howard and Jean Catcher assisted in the serving. The popular home cooking table was in charge of Helen Cook and Susie Denike while Miss Jean Wickerson acted as treasurer for the tea. A gratifying sum was realized.

ENDS LIFE WITH HIS SHOT GUN

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Nov. 17.—William Rae, Artemesia farmer, committed suicide yesterday when he placed a shotgun at his head and pulled the trigger. He died almost instantly. No reason can be advanced for the act.

CASTE SYSTEM IN INDIAN CURSE

Rev. Dr. Vining Addresses Victoria Avenue Church Meeting

Monday evening in the Victoria Avenue Baptist Sunday School auditorium a splendid audience had the pleasure of hearing Dr. A. J. Vining of Toronto, lecture on "India at the Crossroads."

The meeting was under the auspices of the B.Y.P.U. A hearty song was led by Miss Norman who also contributed a solo in excellent voice and pleasing manner. Miss Mabel Peck in a short address welcomed the visitors from the other churches in the city. Rev. A. E. Mochtchoun of the Tabernacle Church opened the meeting with prayer and Rev. Hilliard Jones, the pastor of the church introduced Dr. Vining.

From the first, Dr. Vining held the close attention of the audience. Of great interest was the account of his early activities in work in India and of his first trip to that country. The speaker told of the wonderful work being done in that far off land by missionaries of the various denominations and he graphically described the condition of the outcasts or pariahs of that great country, who suffer cruelly from hunger never knowing what it is to have sufficient food.

The great curse of India— the caste system was revealed through the graphic picture of a high caste whom Dr. Vining saw at a railroad station as the train stopped there for a few minutes. Dr. Vining invited to give his startling address, had scorned to one of the men selling cakes at the station for them, but when the child saw that the man was of a lower caste than himself, he refused to touch anything. He would rather starve than break the caste laws. Other incidents were told of the wonderful work being done by the Gospel men, women and children are being taught to live the darkness of superstition and ignorance into the great light that is found in Christ. High-caste men in the middle class sit side by side in the Christian schools, but refuse to eat any food unless the Gospel message goes together.

The work of William Carey, of Henry Martyn and other great men was touched upon. The native preachers, teachers and hospital workers who are doing so much for the salvation of their people.

India need is Christ, said Dr. Vining, and when it finds Him, then will it be ready for Home Rule, but not today with the antagonism between Hindus, Mohomedans and other religions.

Dr. Vining brought his wonderful message to a close by appealing to the young people present to give seeking souls to Christ, and also to give their lives to Christ who alone can give peace. Our prayers and our support are needed for India, said Dr. Vining.

Rev. Mr. Willoughby of the Alliance Tabernacle closed the meeting with prayer.

DRUG MENACE IS DEPICTED

Rev. Dr. Vining Assured of Support of Ministers

At a special monthly meeting of the Belleville Ministerial Association held at the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon the local ministers were addressed by Rev. A. J. Vining, representing the Social Service Council of Canada.

The meeting was very well attended and in the absence of the president, Rev. Robt. Hall, Rev. H. B. Neal, assumed the chair. Secretary Rosier Caswell read the minutes and they were approved. Some little business was done before Rev. Neal introduced the speaker of the day. Mr. Vining spoke to the members present on the narcotic menace, going into the drug trade quite fully. He urged the ministers to bring this great menace to the front in the ministry as far as possible and the trouble was much greater than the public ever suspected.

He suggested sermons at intervals to keep the matter before the public. He also suggested education and legislation against the drug traffic. During the discussion the members present that there was a program being mapped out then by the Social Service Committee and it would be forwarded as soon as possible.

Those present thanked Mr. Vining for his very interesting address on matter of drug traffic and assured him they would do all in their power to help eliminate the evil.

Obituary

MRS. CAROLINE HODGES

After a lengthy illness Caroline Rosa, widow of the late Charles R. Hodges, passed away at the Belleville General Hospital late Monday evening. Mrs. Hodges was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Rosa, and was born in Belleville 64 years ago. She was raised in Belleville all of her life and her many friends will mourn her loss. Mrs. Hodges was a member of Dundas Church in which she took a very active interest until her poor health forced her to discontinue the work, which she loved so well.

She leaves four daughters, Selena, Thelma, Margaret and Laura; two sons Harold and Warren, all at home, to mourn her loss. There are also two sisters who survive Mrs. John Ferguson, Montreal and Mrs. George Andre of Kingston.

LATE DR. J. McC. PITTS

The funeral of the late Dr. James McC. Pitts took place Monday afternoon from his late residence in Stirling to the Stirling cemetery and was largely attended. The Masonic fraternity, in which order the late Dr. Pitts was very active member, was largely represented by men of the official staff and ding in the craft from Belleville, Madoc, Tweed, Trenton and Picton and Prince Edward County. The burial service at the house and at the grave by the Rev. A. Rosier Caswell, B.A., of Dundas Street Church, Belleville.

The pallbearers were Colonel Vanderwater, D.S.I., Dr. C. F. Walt, Mr. Wm. Bleecker, Mr. Wm. Bird, Mr. T. Solmes, Mr. A. E. Dobbie and Mr. Ernest Bird. The honorary pallbearers were representatives of the Masonic order and were: Rt. Wor. Bro. Hugh Wallace, Dr. Ponton, and J. O. Herity of Belleville; Geo. Wright, Stirling; W. B. Anderson of Trenton; W. J. Potts of Trenton and Dr. Ross of Picton; Colonel Rawdon. The Masonic burial service was read by Rt. Wor. Bro. F. J. MacDonald of Coe Hill. The bearers were W. N. Gilroy, Irwin Gilroy, Jr., Lloyd Bird, Robert Bird, Wm. Garratt and E. Mindle.

Dr. Pitts is survived by a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colin Campbell and was born in Haliburton Township 43 years ago. She had been a resident of Coe Hill and, near Coe Hill, for a number of years and her many friends were shocked to hear of her passing. She was the wife of Robert C. Pitts, who is well known in North Hastings and to Dr. Pitts' many friends in this city friends are extended.

Besides her husband Mrs. Beggs leaves three children to mourn her loss. Two daughters, Annie and Verna and an infant son one month old. Two brothers, John in Western Canada and Frank in Detroit; two sisters, Mrs. H. Donald of Madoc, and Mrs. Wood, of Saskatchewan, also survive her.

Out of a single pound of cotton 4,170 miles of thread had been spun.

WOMEN'S BOARD MAKES DEBUT

Daughters of England Hold Successful At-Home

Last evening about 150 gathered in the Orange Hall for a delightful social evening, given by the local lodge of the Daughters of England. The evening began with cards, the prize winners being: Ladies, first, Mrs. Wm. Gale; second, Mrs. G. Hilarby; third, Mrs. R. Cook. Gentlemen, first, Mr. Ernest Hammond, Mr. B. Hazzard; third, Mr. J. Savage. The nursery prize was won by Mrs. Whillard. After cards fish and chips, cheese and crackers, cake and coffee, etc., were served. The fish and chips were exceptionally good. Next the Daughters of England exemplified the new drill, led by the captain of the degree team, Sister C. Billiton.

The initiation also made its debut of the Daughters of England band, the bandmaster Sister Mrs. Hilarby, and certainly deserves credit. Music for these two items was supplied by the Wesley Presbyterian orchestra. Dancing was enjoyed until the wee small hours of the morning, the music being supplied by Miss Darrah. Trenton lodge attended in a large body, also the lodges in Madoc and Tweed sent down one by Sisters Walden and Anderson. The best contest was won by Mr. Hammond, for hard work and co-operation of every officer throughout the Pride of Belleville Lodge, No 87, made this evening the outstanding success every person there voted it.

LOAN NOT MENTIONED

A. VAN HORNE WILL APPEAR ON FRIDAY

Charged With Arson and Writing Threatening Letters

EXPERT EVIDENCE

Hugh McDonald, Bloomfield Town Home and Contents in Fire

Picton, Nov. 17 (Special)—Picton Collegiate Girls' Basketball teams, both junior and senior, continue their winning streak, Last Friday night at Napanee both teams were successful.

The score of the junior game was 21 to 13 and of the senior game, 32 to 18. Both games were fast and exciting, a large crowd was on hand. The locals were entertained after the games. Picton's next games are with Belleville on Friday night. Belleville teams have never yet been defeated while Picton teams have lost one each and Ellis in Belleville. The local teams have improved greatly since their encounter and Friday night's game should prove very interesting.

Heavy week end rain

There was a very heavy rain over the week end and this will delay the farmers with their ploughing. The lovely fall weather has enabled farmers to get a great deal of fall ploughing done.

Trial on Friday

A case of unusual interest will come up before Police Magistrate C. E. Gandier on Friday of next week when Leonard VanHorne will be charged with arson, and also writing threatening letters. It will be remembered that the case of the burning of the barn owned jointly by the two brothers, Leonard and Walter, letters had been received by Van-Horne Sr. demanding that $200 be left in a field not far from the house or the barn would be burned. The request was not complied with and the burning of the barn followed—other barns had been burned in the same district within the same month.

VanHorne is at present out on bail. A handwriting expert of Toronto is among those to give evidence.

Little Election Talk

There is little election talk as yet in town. Voting takes place Jan. 1st from 9 o'clock a.m. there is a fairly general opinion that acclamations should be accorded this year. The town council has received enough praise for its efforts in keeping taxes down and a little money has been spent as possible.

House Burned

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh MacDonald who reside near Bloomfield lost their home and practically all contents by fire. Both were absent from home at the time and cause of blaze is a mystery. A passing motorist saw the fire and broke down the door and succeeded in saving some of the household goods. The Bloomfield fire brigade also turned out but were not able to save the house as the flames had gained great headway. However they succeeded in saving nearby buildings. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Many Prince Edward County ladies, attended the Women's Institute meeting at Belleville. Mrs. W. R. Munro of Demorestville, who is secretary-treasurer of Prince Edward County Women's Institutes is again Intermediate chairman.

Mrs. R. P. Dodds of Cherry Valley; the Prince Edward County district president, is paying her official visit to Cherry Valley Institute on Friday evening. The meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Ward.

Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Slack and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Walmsley, attended the Queen's-Varsity game in Kingston on Saturday.

Rev. Mr. Armup addressed the United Church congregation on Sunday and gave very interesting talks on the special subjects of missionaries in China and Japan.

TRENTON NEWS

WM. H. POLLY DIES, AGED 87. WAS PIONEER

Belleville Car Damaged Near Brighton on Monday

TRENTON Nov. 17.—(Special)—An old Trenton resident passed away at his home Monday morning in the person of Mr. William Harrison Polly in his eighty-eighth year. He was one of our old pioneers, having resided here for sixty years. Mr. Polly came here from Castleton as a young man when Trenton was nothing but a village. Here he settled and entered the exporting business, which he continued until 1913 as Collector of Customs, where he carried on his duties making a host of friends. He was superannuated in 1931 when he retired to his home on Murphy St.

He is survived by his wife and daughter, Miss Bertha, also of Trenton. The funeral took place from St. Georges Church on Tuesday. Afternoon, the Rev. Heywood preaching the funeral sermon. Interment took place in the Anglican Cemetery where Mr. Polly will be buried. Many beautiful floral wreaths attest the fact of Mr. Polly's many friends.

Mr. W. J. Byers and wife Belleville on business was in the highway about one mile and a quarter west of Trenton on Monday afternoon. When a car driven by Mr. Douglas McMasters and owned by Mr. Chas. N. Coville of Algonquin, Ont., was proceeding in the direction of Belleville. The car was going to pass Mr. Byers. Finding no room to pass and on account of a car going east the driver pulled up and Mr. Byers' car was struck by the car. The car suffered some minor cuts and bruises. Mr. Byers' car was not damaged by the car.

The Daughters and Maids of England held a tea and sale of work, on Saturday which was very successful realising nearly sixty dollars. Mrs. Mary Smalley, president of the Lodge and Mrs. T. Smith the convener of the sale were in charge. Afternoon tea was served at one o'clock and the proceeds were given to the Belleville Hospital. Other members of the Lodge assisting were present.

A tea and bridge was held at the Public Library on Friday afternoon, Mrs. W. G. Avery is president of the Club, with Mrs. Whittier in charge of the programme. There were ten tables of bridge, both auction and contract being played. Mrs. J. M. Hennessy was the winner of the prize. Miss Ida Reddick was winner of the auction prize, Mrs. Reid holding the lucky number 300, was the winner of the beautiful quilt made and donated by the members of the Club.

Mr. Wells Gibson was driving east on the York Road, Saturday morning, when a car driven by Miss Lee struck the rear end of the wagon making an accordion of it. Luckily only the wagon suffered any damages, which was settled to the satisfaction of both parties.

Chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys are the order of the various shooting matches now in full swing through the country. Take a tip you sharp shooters and try a few practice shots in your back yard because some of those boys are sleepy guns.

Weedacre—Chouinard

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peters in Chains yesterday morning, Father Buckley officiating when Miss Virginia Chouinard became the bride of Mr. Frederick Sherrard. Mrs. Walter Woodacre was matron of honour and Mr. Walter Woodacre groomsman. A reception was held at the home of the bride.

The happy young couple will reside in Trenton, where Mr. Woodacre is employed at the Hinde and Dauche Paper Mill.

Mrs. and Mrs. J. Ritchie and family returned from a vacation in Algonquin, Ont., where they visited parents, Judge and Mrs. Mulligan. According to Mr. Ritchie the trip was very fortunate in having such mild weather here, as they have three or four inches of snow there.

Mr. Chas. N. Coville of Algonquin, R. No. 1, Ont., Provincial Police was driving east on Meleiian Ave. near the corner of Dundas street. A car was parked on the north side of Meleiian Avenue. A team with a wagon load of apples was proceeding along the street driven by Mr. Douglas McMasters and owned by Mr. Chas. N. Meredith. Mr. Coville in attempting to pass the parked car and swerved into the rear of the wagon, breaking the wagon and scattering apples all over the street, for the children were soon collected them. Little damage was done to the car. Mr. Coville reported having in the front seat suffered minor injuries to his knees. Miss Edith Briant of Belleville was also slightly injured. Neither Mr. Coville nor Mr. Hurlburt were injured.

FIRE FIGHTERS BUY POTATOES

First Deliveries Arrive of Two Hundred Bags

Delivery of potatoes bought by them from different farmers in newspaper communities by the boys of the fire department are busy storing some two hundred bags of that nourishing tuber in the fair hall near the upper bridge. Besides potatoes they have on order almost everything else in the line of foodstuffs. The list includes apples, oranges, honey, bread, cabbage, beans, and in fact most vegetables and many other staples.

Because they believe that these articles will be appreciated a great deal more by the families in the latter part of the winter months, when the supplies most of them already have will be run out and found to hold most of their supply until just before Christmas and then distribute it around to the ones whom they personally know in need. Also an order of a supply of goodies for the wee kiddies to whom Santa for the last year or so has been only a myth. Their little hearts will no doubt be gladdened by these unaccustomed dresses in a uniform of blue. And it is just possible that the boys will get as big a kick out of it as the kids do.

CAR OF TRENTON DRIVER DAMAGED

Kingston, Nov. 17.—A number of minor motor accidents were reported to the police and investigated over the week end. Constable Harry Wolfe reported an accident that he witnessed at 12:50 on Bagot street. He stated that W. Byron, driving a truck for the National Express Company north on Bagot street, stopped in the middle of the road to pick up a parcel back into the sidewalk at the express company's entrance.

Kenneth Crews, of R.R. No. 3, Trenton, following Byron north on Bagot street in a car, stopped when Byron stopped. As Byron backed into the walk, he collided with Crew's car and smashed the left front lamp on Crew's car and also damages the radiator. The truck escaped damage.

THOS. CHARLES MACCONNELL SUCCUMBS

Enlisted in Forestry Corp. at Age of 56 Years

ROAD BUILDER

Lengthy Experience in Local Municipal Office

RAWDON, Nov. 17 (Special) — Thomas Charles MacConnell, well known and highly respected resident of Rawdon Township all his life passed away at his home in Springbrook on Monday evening. On Sunday evening after visiting with friends and relatives he was taken stricken with a stroke and never regained consciousness. His wife was alone with him at the time he was stricken and his daughters were summoned soon and every human aid was utilized but he failed to rally from the stroke.

The late Thomas Charles MacConnell or "T. C." as he was familiarly known to a legion of friends was born in Rawdon Township and except while serving overseas with 39th Forestry Corps all of three years was assessor of the township. Always a firm believer in good roads the government saw fit to appoint him superintendent of colonization roads in Northern Hastings and there was no man in the county more suited to undertake that task than the deceased. After returning from overseas he joined the Canada Assurance Company as superintendent of agencies and remained at Prescott, Meaford, Stirling, Picton and Deseronto where he was under his supervision. When the Forestry Corps was decreased enlisted at the age of fifty-six years in the Forestry Corps as a sergeant and served with that unit during the entire remaining time in the front seat suffered minor bruises to his knees. Miss Edith Briant of Belleville was also slightly injured. Neither Mr. Coville nor Mr. Hurlburt were injured.

LONE WOLF FLIGHT FROM N. Y. TO EUROPE

Bert Hinkler, famous Australian pilot, is making a "lone-wolf" flight from New York to Bangor via Jamaica, Central and South America. Sponsored by Lord Wakefield of Hythe, he is making a close scientific study of flying conditions in this entire region with a view to submitting a private report to the British Air Ministry on the possibilities of fast but safe transport of mail to and from America via this route. His first non-stop flight was from Port-au-Prince to Miami, next from New York to Jamaica, thence on to Maracaibo and next to Trinidad. Capt. C. D. Browne, Inspector for Canada of C. C. Wakefield & Co. Ltd., has remained in Jamaica, Maracaibo and Trinidad from Hinkler who states that he has gathered very important information on his flight so far.

B. C. DONNAN IS RE-ELECTED

Belleville Arena Co. Gave Stewardship at Annual Meeting

At the annual meeting of the Belleville Arena Company Limited held last night in the Chamber of Commerce building the election of directors and other business were the main item of business. Some changes in the directorate resulted and it was necessary to fill four places made by their resignations.

Mr. Sam Ling was elected to the chair and opened the meeting. Mr. Jack Fraser, secretary of the arena company, read the minutes of the last meeting and they were adopted. He then read the financial statement for the past year. It was found, that the company had lost considerable money in the past twelve months. The financial statement was then approved and adopted.

President Donnan explained to the shareholders that the arena season would no doubt show considerable revenue as the B.A.A.A. had taken over all hockey activities in Belleville and were hiring the rink from the company. He told the meeting, that the last hockey club Belleville had been out lately selling season tickets for the winters skating and he had been assured, that they had sold at least 500 tickets to date. This was welcomed news to the shareholders. He also stated that the present directors were personally responsible for the payment of the present deficit and it was moved and seconded after by them.

The next order of business was the nomination of directors for the ensuing year. The following directors will look after the interests of the Belleville Arena Company during 1932; Messrs. H. Bateman, A. Allan, B. C. Donnan, J. H. Patterson, C. A. Payne, P. H. Wills, E. J. Ryan, J. Ryan, G. Rowsome and S. R. McCrary. The directors elect then held a director's meeting and the following officers for this coming season were elected: President—B. C. Donnan; Vice President S. R. Burrows; Secretary-Treasurer A. F. Allan.

Plans For Meeting in John Street Church Laid

An executive meeting of Belleville Presbyterial W. M. S. was held in the parlours of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Friday, November 13th with an attendance of fourteen. The president, Mrs. E. C. Guy of Foxboro presided over both sessions and conducted the morning devotional. Splendid reports of the year's work were given by the department secretaries who were present.

Rev. W. D. Harrison, chairman of the Home Mission Board gave a splendid address dealing with relief work for the dried-out areas in the west and said there was still great need for children's clothing. He also gave a few helpful thoughts after the work of the year.

A memorial re temperance was received from Mrs. Ira Armitage, Stirling, and passed on to the Presbyterial.

Plans were made for the coming Presbyterial to be held in John St. church, Belleville, on Feb. 4th and committee appointed. All reports of the year's work are to be in the hands of the Presbyterial Secretaries by January 15th.

Dr. Kagawa's "Kingdom of God" movement" will be further inaugurated in this branch contained in the main features. "Read membership" and "Systematic Giving" prayer each missionary. Take time daily for prayer. "Let us pray more and give one extra kindness."

The sum of $4,332 has been received by the treasurer.

Members present were: Mrs. S. C. Guy, Foxboro; Mrs. E. Farnsworth, Belleville; Mrs. F. Dafoe, Madoc; Mrs. A. Gordon, Belleville; Mrs. E. L. Fraser, Trenton; Mrs. Armitage, Napanee; Prayer each W. HISTORY OF WATERMAIN

Consulting Engineer's Letter in Regard to Improvements

The chairman of the water-works department has received from Mr. William Storrie of the firm of Storrie, Nasmith & Storrie, consulting engineers, a communication relative to the history of the watermain, at the request of Alderman P. R. Wills. The letter is as follows:

Toronto, November 12th, 1931.

Alderman P. R. Wills,
City Hall, Bridge Street,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Alderman:

Your letter of recently early this week you indicated to me that there was a little discussion on still the opinion that the laying of a 16-inch main from the Pump Pumping Station to Front Street was an unnecessary expense at the present time and you asked me if I could put my views in writing regarding this matter.

"Under date of January 25th, 1922, I reported on improvements which we considered necessary for the Belleville Water Works System and all of the recommendations which I made were carried out with the exception of this new 16 inch main, which we then thought would be necessary, but at the present time there is a 16 inch main from the Pumping Station to the central part of the City, which has been laid underneath the Moira River close to the Lower Bridge. When the foundations for this new bridge were recently placed in position the water in the bridge which has been surrounded with concrete in places for protection purposes, showed anything happen to this main the City has to rely on the 8 inch main carried over the Lower Bridge and a similar size main over the Upper Bridge but with both of these 8 inch mains in use should anything happen to the 16 inch main there would be a decided shortage of water in the City. When the planning at the Lower Bridge is one that we should not be concerned about particularly when it is remembered that the main is now 43 years old.

"You have of course a stand-pipe with a capacity of 345,000 gallons which under the minimum conditions of water usage this tank would not supply the City for more than one hour and then at considerably reduced pressures.

"In our judgment a duplicate main is required in order to ensure at all times a plentiful supply of water to the City both for domestic and fire fighting purposes and to make sure that should one of the mains fail the other will be available and in a position to furnish the City with the necessary supply. It is customary in all cities to have a duplicate main of this type and it is recommended by the best engineering practice. The saving would be in the long way of Fire Insurance rates we are unable to ascertain, but we would judgment the saving will be considerable.

"In the years 1917, 1921, 1922, 1925 and 1928, the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association made an inspection of the Belleville Water Works and Fire Fighting System and on each occasion strongly advocated the construction of a duplicate main. In their last report they state that the main is too small to deliver the necessary quantity of water required under the Fire Underwriters' Regulations and these regulations state that a duplicate main is required.

"In view of the fact that the Fire Underwriters have for years back advocated the construction of this duplicate main and we, as your Consulting Engineers, have as recommended from time to time and taking into consideration the grant that is being received for the construction of same from the Dominion and Provincial Governments and the amount of relief that it will afford the Belleville citizens in need of work we are of the opinion that the more opportune time could have been selected for the construction of this main. Its construction has been advocated by those best able to advise and you would be in conformity with the best engineering practice.

"If there is any further information which you require regarding this matter please let me know and we will be glad to let you have same.

"Yours very truly,
(Signed)
"Dore, Nasmith & Storrie,
William Storrie."

Discussion Held On Waterways

Washington, Nov. 17 — Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister to Washington and Mr. Hume Wrong, counsellor of the Canadian legation, called at the State Department yesterday and continued with Assistant Secretary of State James Rogers and John Rickerson, in charge of Canadian affairs, discussions on the St. Lawrence waterway project initiated on Saturday.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson thinks the negotiation of a treaty with Canada may take some little time. Asked whether a treaty would be ready for submission to Congress at the session which opens on December 7th, the secretary said, "I don't know. It takes time into consideration, but I think this matter would take some little time."

SUPPORT OF OUR WRITERS

This is the season when more reading is done and when it comes to a matter of relaxation that they have a duty to perform to Canadian art as well as have the writers of the Dominion. Canadianization of locale and setting is demanded as the standard of Canadian art. This being true, there should also be the demand for Canadian stories by Canadian readers. Canadian authors cannot bear the whole load of both writing and reading. The duty is plain—there must be created a public which will read all that our writers produce.

Perhaps we have the feeling that Canadians are not such successful writers as foreigners and that there is good ground for Old World characters and a general Old World attitude towards life. But have not the Canadian novel, drama and poetry atmosphere to offer to Canadian readers and theatre-goers? Are not our people as rich in sentiment as others? The answer ought to be in the affirmative.

Despite the bowing to foreign artists, Canadian writers are creating a body of literature which more than merits the wholehearted support of the reading public in its grasp of life problems, its rich characterization and its wholesomeness, reflecting many admirable aspects of the life of the people.

Perhaps we feel that we are too near—we would rather have Hollywood's choice of a setting in the hills around about than a scene pictured in Toronto or Montreal despite the fact that there has been an excellent body of fiction created founded on the life of our people as pioneers, and of contemporaries.

The time has come when we should be proud of our creative artists. Support will develop them. Leave that to the artists who have a faculty of thriving on appreciation.

What finer pictures have been presented to any people at a low price than that given by our writers? Really they are standing within the meagre rewards they get, but artist-like they love art and life more than money.

ONE PROBLEM OF TODAY

St. Thomas Times-Journal declares that the church has heard a great deal about having the battle of the sexes fought, has been said about the girl. "Parents who exhausted themselves in an effort to save the boys apparently forgot that the girl had daughters to save. It is all right to save the boy but the girl should not be neglected. The downfall of a girl is one of the saddest things that humanity can possibly witness."

The Mail and Empire, citing this editorial in The Times-Journal adds, that "the relationship of the sexes is the real problem of the day since the war against liquor has been largely won. Let the churches take notice." The Mail cites the creation of new problems with the coming of the motorcar and the relaxation of the old conventions which create the danger of a "lax morality" which will prove the devil in our midst."

How generally references to sex problems are avoided in churches is hard to say, but it is a known fact that many congregations do not hear at all the note should of the imminent peril in which people walk today. A word of caution founded on knowledge of life and actual conditions would put much life into sermons and act as a guide to the young who really would appreciate words of help. There is no need of fear that the tender sensibilities may be wounded by reference to such matters—lives and characters are at stake. The Bible itself is a clear index upon these questions, such issues are faced boldly, the Proverbs are a compendium of world knowledge on these points. All that requires to be done is to point the moral to the present age.

The motorcar and other new conditions and the dropping of some of the older conventions have wrought a change in the conditions surrounding youth. This means a new challenge.

A toy balloon is reported as having drifted across the Atlantic. And an effort been made to direct it across the ocean wastes, it is doubtful if it would ever have reached the west shore of the ocean. It is less unreasonable in their course.

Mild weather is helping the relief situation though it is not aiding business along some lines as a snowfall and chillier weather would help trade.

The none too light labor of the pioneers are held to blame for conditions which have arisen in some parts of the country where the clearing of the forests has left nothing but a "blowsand" country, says The Ottawa Citizen. Swamps are better far than "blowsand." The forest floor is a sponge, cleared land is largely a pavement, as far as moisture is concerned. The remedy is more trees, but how grow trees on bared rocks?

WIND IN AUTUMN

By Aline Michaelis

Now have the wind's finger's taken
Toll of the poplar trees;
Rose-petals, scattered and shaken,
Now lift no cup for the bee.

Unseen, this singer, who passes
Lightly through garden and field,
But by her steps in the grasses
Path of her choice is revealed.

Only her draperies, trailing,
Blend down the asters' bloom,
Setting the thistledown sailing
Out into summer's bare room.

Now has the wind in her going
Flustered the scarf of the haze,
Banners of amethyst flowing
Over the autumn days.

SUFFER LITTLE CHILDREN to come unto Me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of God.—St. Luke, XVIII, 16. How many of God's children in Belleville need warmer clothing, better food, and fuel to keep them warm this winter? What are you going to do about it?

HOLLYWOOD, where men are mountains until women make molehills out of them, said Walter Winchell in his radio talk the other evening. Wonder where Walter lifted that one?

ONE OF THE FIRST to contribute to the relief fund through the group was a man who had been on the list for civic relief himself last winter. Now he has a steady job and is grateful for it. At the same time being anxious to help those in need of relief. A little touch of adversity sometimes helps to all of us our duty to the other fellow.

A LOAD OF APPLES was brought in by a generous farmer on Armistice Day for the relief committee. Being a holiday the City Hall was well nigh deserted, but a couple of the officials were found who helped unload the barrels, and did their back ache next day?

PRIDE WILL CAUSE SOME FOLKS to suffer in silence this winter rather than ask for relief. A general survey will be made in an effort to find out just what relief will be needed and make the work as efficient and effective as possible, and every effort will be made to find all cases of need and extend help without publicity or sacrificing that pride which can face even hunger and death without complaint.

JAPAN AND CHINA are pummelling one another and Soviet Russia is dancing around on one foot trying to get a fist in the fight, too. By and by either Japan or China or both will declare war and Russia will decide whose side to take in the fuss. Looks like the makings of a man's sized war before it is over.

KNIGHT McGREGOR, Belleville vocalist, whose name makes him a headliner in New York City, and is in great demand on the concert stage of the United States, will be heard over the radio next Friday night between ten and eleven in the Travellers Insurance Company program from Hartford, Connecticut. Knight's many friends in Belleville will no doubt be eager to tune in on him.

BUSINESS IS GETTING BETTER all the time, for which everybody is thankful, and it would be a great deal better if more would take advantage of the fact that prices now on most commodities are at low water mark. With the improvement of business prices will rise, they are already rising in fact, and folks will wonder why they did not do their buying when the buying was best.

Other Papers' Opinions

AND LET WHO WILL BE CLEVER

A director of home economics at Cornell University stirred up the meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs at Lake Placid by telling the ladies that daughters must no longer be brought up merely to be good, sweet and "fashionable girl" doesn't stand a chance in these days of push and progress, she declared. Must retrain their girls in simple acceptance and obedience. That kind of gentle education for girls is out of date and must be revised.

After the shock of this statement, a substitute for learning to mend samplers, play the harp, bake, mend and sweep was offered. Little girls from the cradle on must learn, not to obey, but to cooperate; not to wait to be told, but to show initiative. Power from within, not authority from without, must rule their lives.

It is "old stuff." Educators have been saying it ever since the first girls took their lives into their own hands and went to college. Mother and no worse than their mothers. Old is the educational illusion now to get children to be good, if possible, by making them like their own. Girls with a natural tendency toward old-fashioned virtues have to ape the clever ones if they want to be in the swim. Somebody should tell them that following their own instincts is more likely to bring them happiness than being guided by a temporary popular pattern.—New York Times.

BONES OF THE PAST

In the construction of a highway at Wiseton, Saskatchewan, the grading machine turned up the bones of a mammoth. Molars in the teeth were each as large as a man's hand. The tusks were 12 feet, the tusks measure four feet in length. Its thighs and shoulders were four feet long and proportionely thick. It requires no great imagination to appreciate the changes which have taken place on this continent since this animal roamed the plains of Western Canada.

But change is constant, and the changes which go on about us may not be so readily recognized, particularly within our own times consistent with the changes which are bearing animals, which once supplied the principal wealth of the country, have been driven further back into their forest fastnesses. Lumbering operations in the forests have depleted our forest wealth, and immigration has also learned that land-mining has its limits and that the exploitation of the mere scratching of the soil is not sufficient to give the abundant crops of other years. We have boasted of Canada's inexhaustible riches and have been in the past not proof against prodigality.

Yet the future is not altogether dark. Nature is ready to work in recuperation when man will. So it is recorded that last year, out of Canada's twelve million dollar raw fur output, 40 per cent was the product of fur farms. In the future the conservation of the forests, the creek, irrigation and fertilizers have resources which will be developed exhaustion. And in reforestation and the planting of trees it is possible to maintain our timber supply if we are ready to make the effort. Man is a destroyer and a creator. The prehistoric monster wasn't. It's the creative power of man that has brawn. If man didn't use his brains he might be as helpless as the mammoth into the realm of extinct animals.—Toronto Telegram.

EXTRAVAGANT SPEECH

The world-wide campaign for retrenchment has invaded the field of speech. A correspondent of the Institut de France has come out in favor of word economy. He believes that the budget of adjectives should be cut down. Many expressions superlative, should be hoarded for an emergency. "We live in an age of hyperbole," he says, "and forms of overstatement is sadly needed.

Mr. Hoover has acted in the Travellers Insurance Company program from Hartford, Connecticut. Knight's many friends in Belleville will no doubt be eager to tune in on him.

Mr. Chauvelin would be regretfully to the days when Talleyrand could say of a colleague that another kind owed him a debt for "some good expressions," and Louis XIV could characterize Racine as a "man of much wit." Even the use of Frenchmen apply such adjectives as extraordinaire, formidable and epatant to their orations.

Some of the blame for this "superlative" tendency may be put down on advertising. Its writers are wanton squanderers of their superlatives. Yet constant explosion of high-powered adjectives has a tendency to deaden the ear and to set up insensibilities and to rob a word of its full meaning.

The servants of the Institut are ready to set up a system of superlative rationing well each adjective before us in it. America would be benefited by a movement for economy in flamboyant speech.—New York Times.

New Stores Mark Retailing Invasion of Pope's Domain

Vatican City—Retail trade soon will in ade the Vatican. Two six-story buildings with modern flats in the upper floor and 29 shops on the street level are to be erected in the Via della Zecca. The structures will replace old houses formerly occupied by workmen and minor employees.

The stores will be the first within the Pope's domain. Hitherto there has been here only a commissary which sold a restricted variety of articles on certain days at certain hours to citizens of the tiny papal state.

Heard On The Street

Loud words over the ownership of a piece of wood which was floating around in the harbor the other afternoon. Further up the street a couple of small boys were engaged in discarding a free fight further up four or five more were teasing an old dog which was too lazy to either run or bark back at them. Front Street Saturday night; crowds in front of the fire and dime store. An old man selling balloons, some could be had for a dime, others for a quarter, which is a raggedy vest. News lights in nearly all the windows. Overflashing this and that. A slight collision between a car bearing an Ontario license and another car bearing a New York number. How the people do collect. There goes a double for Clara Bow. Only two or three years seen how well she could be made up. There's another girl in town who is a dead ringer for Louise Fazenda. Some children in a window. With all the prosperity talk there are others report business as good as ever. And nearly all other men's hats are brown. Wonder how long it will be before we look in one of these derby hats. With a red feather in the band. And spats. There goes Mr. ..... and Alderman ..... both talking away to each other as fast as they can. Who invents all the different toys we see in the window each year. Some of them show plain genius in the method of their working. Yet I suppose they must all millions of them all over the world. A woman upbraiding a man for forgetting a shopping list she had given him. And they are standing right in the middle of the sidewalk. He is chewing a cigar and watching the traffic with a view to getting over at the next safe gap. Just parked on the sidewalk and a crowd of young sheiks giving all the girls the eye. Also a well-to-do old man who is always going along mumbling to himself, and bumping into people as he walks with his head down and his hands clasped behind his back.

x—x—x—x

There goes one of our local laundrymen, too. Won't it be hard on the boys out in the take-up room if those jags and chlorox go to war. Just think of the names of some of those towns. And there goes a fellow who has become more than known since he started in business. He is going to build a big house very soon. The lords that Jack built. Why do some ladies try to wheel baby carriages down the centre of the sidewalk, leaving no room for the rest of the people? And there goes a chap with a new pair of shoes—and do they squeak. Here comes ..... who will offer tickets for the Santa Claus section this year. And one of the planks in his platform will be that the relief money will be spent in Belleville by being given to storekeepers very well given out as wages for badly-needed work around the city. Roads for the car. Sewers. Where's a pumpkin pie? Here comes ..... who is going for a register. They and their out-of-town friends have their names and addresses written all over it. Boris Volkoff mimed his train from Toronto during the day and the busy eye. And a big fat man who looks as if he is going to be disappointed. Another medicine man in town with his kerosene lamps. And his medicine. And his little bottles of the stuff. And the dog which lives on the East side. His owners let him out for a walk in the morning. He noses back and find his way home. Seems to hunts up some one he knows and asks in his dog-like manner for them to open the door and open the door. Now there are very few popular little animals who dance across the screen, and are being shown in Belleville theatres. Crazy Cat and Mickey mouse. Wonder who thinks up all the different ways to make that candy in the window. Must be a lot boy with his fist screwed up in his eye, just ready to bawl. A little girl in blue and her daddy. Eye. And a big fat man who looks like a department store. Three little girls going by, all chewing gum. And here comes another one of those dandy little social orchestra in town. Those odd little hats seem to make them look older.

x—x—x—x

Worried-looking bank clerks still working. End of the month. Why do fruit dealers take their display out of the window every night. Wonder if it is because they are advertised for sale. Here comes a policeman looks suspiciously at this that direction and starts to approach it just as the man carrying the fruit is backfiring like a machine gun. And if that were in Detroit or Chicago the police would be shot at. Wonder why there are so many taxis on Front Street. Part of an orchestra going somewhere. And as usual the man who is carrying the flute is a big, husky-looking fellow. The little fellow with the drum is as if he were too heavy for him. There's that dog who hates policemen. He barks at every one he sees. Another baby shop open—wonder how long it will be open. Another, for teen cents. Wonder is there a branch of the S.P.C.A. in Belleville. Whatever became of that old-time Belleville custom of the police naming of the new bridge. There's the young fellow who goes around with a scissor grinding and knife sharpening music, and they tell me he clears plenty every day. Also I know a lad who travels from coast to coast every year and does it in fine style by just painting discolored spots on his clothes. He carries in his pocket. It takes him about fifteen minutes for each job.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Pads Simkins was sitting in the back row and the teacher was telling to her about different subjects and trying to make her think we was each grate, and a waggon slopped over in front of the class and got tilted out a big ice box as easy as pie, Mary Watkins saying, "Gee, I wish I could do that every day." Making me feel pellus, and I said, O I could do that, I'm just as strong in comparison to my size as anybody in there, I'll bet I had a iron bar here id soon show you what I can do. Then myself about 4 times without stopping, or maybe even 5 or 6 for all I know, because I was too tired to count. Then another scared fit later. Only I didnt go around braging about it, I dont think that's right.

That's a way it is with me, Pads said, I can mussel out 3 balls on top of each other stunts out without hardly trying, but you dont see me going around carrying on about it. That's a credit to you it. I know I can do it as easy as a bean and thats enough for me. I dont show off about it, im not that conceited, Re said.

Then Pads went away around here at Indian wrasselling, but what of it, that's nothing, I dont tell anybody about it, and if nobody wants to know about my muscles their scared ill beet them, its all a same to me, thats how modest I am. Then I says to Pads I Pads wants to Indian wrasslе rite now why they dont ask me, I dont care or not, but if he's afraid to it dont tell anybody I am, I'm not that ilt yet, what do I care? I said.

Pads wrasse anywhere, rite here or anywheres elts at regular wrasselling costumes, according to be a Indian, I'm a regular white wrasseler and I dont have to pretend, but of course nobody is not that ilt throw them without half trying why they dont ask me, because no need I want even speak of it, Im as modest as anybody else, I says, Puds said.

Him being the champeen wrasseler on account of being so heavy and big, I let him just keep, and I said, O believe itrs change the subject.

Nich we did.

CAMERA WILL ASSIST TIMERS

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 17.—A two-eyed motion picture camera will clock the work of human timers at the 1932 Olympic games in Los Angeles.

One eye records the movements of a stop watch and the other catches the motions of the races. An electrical attachment on the starter's gun sets the watch in motion.

Operators Accept Lay Off in Work

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 17.—Canadian Broadcasting Company operators of Toronto district have agreed to the request of the company that they accept a two-day layoff each month to allow men to remain on the payroll who would otherwise have to be laid off. Certain other districts have agreed to this scheme, although acme chiefly, in Western Canada, are opposed to the plan.

STIFF IN HIPS AND KNEES

Widow who Wondered why Her Joints Would Not Work

THE REASON— AND THE REMEDY

A strange stiffness that suddenly developed in her hips and knees, which painfully increased, but couldn't understand why, when she wanted to step on a chair, the second foot wouldn't follow the first.

She called a physician at the theatre—but happily she used the right remedy. This is her own account of her experience :—

"I began to wonder why I felt so stiff in my hips and joints. If I wanted to get on a chair, I found it difficult to raise my second foot. But after taking one bottle of Kruschen Salts, I have developed great health. Going upstairs was difficult, but now I can walk up comfortably and I feel I have got the Kruschen feeling. I had jaundice many years ago and occasionally I suffered rather sallow, but since taking Kruschen Salts my skin seems very clear. At the age of 67 I am working like a young one—even better than some at 30 years. I recently lost my husband, but I feel I owe my health and living, thanks to Kruschen."—Mrs. M. C.

Do you realise what causes rheumatism pains and stiffness ? Just what caused her and everyone else's—nothing but sharp-edged crystals of uric acid which get between the joints.

Kruschen Salts will swiftly dissolve these needle-pointed uric acid crystals which have settled in the joints. And derived great benefit. Going upstairs was difficult, but now I can walk up comfortably and I feel I have got the Kruschen feeling. I had jaundice many years ago and occasionally I suffered rather sallow, but since taking Kruschen Salts my skin seems very clear. At the age of 67 I am working like a young one—even better than some at 30 years. I recently lost my husband, but I feel I owe my health and living, thanks to Kruschen."—Mrs. M. C.

Supt. H. B. Fetterly, of O. S.D., Speaks to C. A. A. S. on Life Values

FULL DEVELOPMENT

It is indeed regrettable that those people of Belleville who are most interested in one of greatest things of life, that of moulding the life and character of children, should have missed such a stirring, brilliant and illuminating talk as was given in the Y.M.C.A. yesterday afternoon on the occasion of the meeting of the members of the Children's Aid Society.

Introduced by the President of Society, Mr. Charles Hanna, who in briefly outlined the past activities of the speaker, Mr. Fetterly made his initial bow to the public of Belleville as an impromptu speaker, for whom you instinctively felt knew the subject of which he was speaking. And knew of the as surface learnings, or stuff culled from a book, or yet regarded sentiment that many a child had become old to him, but rather as a story which came from the heart. A story which was poured out in voluntary and with a fervour of absorption in the subject until one involuntarily pondered whether or not he had made it his life work, his ultimate knowledge of which the Child and his problems. For those who could not understand—could feel it and respond from the depth hearts—there was a message there. A message to be taken as one would take his religion; a message which was even more than that of any religion and all other things which make up life, and make it good to be alive; good of some help to those who so depend upon the activities of such as the Children's Aid. There wasn't a flowery sermon there spoken for the betterment of the public, nor the plaudits of the crowd, there was only honest sincere statements from a man whose heart and mind had been long and devoted to the welfare of these life's unfortunate—the homeless child, the deaf, the dumb and the mentally incompetent, and as he spoke he was taken as one would talk

More mothers each year.. check Colds

2 WAYS at once!

More and more mothers every year turn to the double action of Vicks VapoRub in check-ing colds, coughs, sore throat and spasmodic croup.

Rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the heat of the body, are inhaled direct to the air-passages.

This double action of Vicks breaks up congestion and eases breathing, thus preventing the night coughs which so often rob both mother and child of restful sleep.

Being an external treatment, Vicks is especially approached by mothers because it avoids the necessity of "dosing" which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

NEW LAMBETH NEWS

The Foriorn Valley Irrigation District proceeded at once to the task of constructing its huge diversion canal. The job was completed by November first. Almost from the beginning the diversion canal ran half full and Lake Bahoon commenced to take form. The snowfall was unusually heavy in the hills and hot spring came early and the run off due to the melting snow commenced about the middle of January.

This was the season of overflow in Eden Valley Creek, the season of God's gift of free irrigation to the Circle K and the Bar 3S and Nine Tchenor, watching the water's rise knew that in another twenty-four hours the trestle would be on, so he sent Rube Tenney and half a dozen armed men opposite the flood gates, in charge of the ditch-tender's protest and the flood waited on down Eden Valley. The ditch-tender immediately mounted his horse and rode down to Valley Centre to report this act of vandalism to Silas Bahoon, who motored into Gold Run and, as president of the Foriorn Valley Irrigation District, petitioned the judge of the county superior court for an order restraining Nathan Tichenor et al. from interfering with the orderly diversion of the flood waters of Eden Valley Creek to the canal of the Foriorn Valley Irrigation District.

To Bahoon's vast amazement the judge declined to issue the restraining order. "I hold, Bahoon," he informed the latter, "that the law under which the State Water Commission has been empowered to allocate to riparian owners the flood or waste waters of riparian owners, is unconstitutional and that hence Foriorn Valley has no legal right to the flood waters of Eden Valley Creek."

"Well, Judge," Bahoon replied "perhaps you're right, but we don't think so. We have counsel as well, sent in the law on this court and our counsel advises us we are quite within the law."

"They are entitled, of course, to their opinion. Several superior court judges in other counties in this state have ruled that the law is constitutional and given verdicts accordingly; half a dozen superior court judges have expressed opinions identical with mine."

"Why hasn't our supreme court declared the low unconstitutional?"

"Because no one has carried a water fight up to the supreme court."

A week had gone by since Nate Tichenor and his men had opened the flood-gates up in the Handle and as yet Bahoon had not been able to secure legal relief. Upon his return to Gold Run, therefore, he called upon the sheriff of the county and requested that officers be take half a dozen of the deputies and guard the employees of the Foriorn Valley Irrigation District against attack by Nathan Tichenor et al. when the former closed the flood-gates in defiance of Tichenor's decision. In the interest of peace the sheriff consented and the following day the gates were closed without interference from Nat-

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The calendar said "NO"

Fear of cramps made her refuse! If she would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, she could go any day in the month ... never have to avoid the calendar.

But Mr. Rookby's airy advice failed to bring the measure of comfort for which Bahoon yearned. Even his own assurances presently failed him. Nothing in life is more distressing than uncertainty, and the uncertainty as to whether Nate Tichenor and Lorry Kershaw would apply for an injunction restraining the Foriorn Valley Irrigation District from diverting water from Eden Valley Creek was a profound uncertainty indeed. Bahoon wondered whether Tichenor and Lorry departed over this situation, really disinclined to a fight in the courts.

When, finally, could have been the proposition Nate Tichenor had tried to get before him for a hearing in the plaza a year and more ago? Had he, Bahoon, been playing for time, trying to create floods and marshal sufficient deputies and malcontents to bring upon Bahoon at the election to decide whether the district should be organized or not? He had the following morning kindly by Parson Valley, after all? Bahoon wished now he had not set Henry Rookby to heckle the man, to interrupt him, to manhandle him and silence him.

That night Silas Bahoon went home with a violent headache. He did not sleep well, either and the following night he was even more indisposed. The third night he was still sleepless and then his old enemy insomnia kindly by Parson Valley, after all? Bahoon wished now he had not set Henry Rookby to heckle the man, to interrupt him, to manhandle him and silence him.

That night Silas Bahoon went home with a violent headache. He did not sleep well, either and the following night he was even more indisposed. The third night he was still sleepless and then his old enemy insomnia kindly by Parson Valley, a nervous breakdown.

So the interior Eden Valley had seen very little of Lorry. Sundry billiums, calling sight of her as she motored through the valley in her enormous limousine, thought she carried the grand lady business off very well and resented her accordingly only to stand amazed when along in April - she rode through Valley Centre on horse-back with a drove of five hundred head of two-year-old steers, just as she had been wont to do in the days before wealthy Nate Tichenor had married her.

INSTALLMENT XXVII

The postmaster at Valley Centre reported that Nate Tichenor must be losing the long with a great backing, because not a single letter from Tichenor, his wife, or their employees was ever posted in Valley Centre. And, as everybody knows, to pay off a country postmaster is predicated on the amount of business he does! A similar complaint came from the local telegraph agent and the local telephone operator. Nobody could ascertain, via these agencies, anything of Nate Tichenor's business and this was a genuine deprivation. Nor was a single dollar of Tichenor money expended in Valley Centre for anything that could be purchased in Gold Run.

The Irrigation district's engineer reported to Bahoon that before the first of April Lake Bahoon would be filled to the top of its flood-gates. Bahoon was jubilant. Under his urging, promulgated in the Foriorn Valley Citizen, thousands of acres of land had been prepared for alfalfa the preceding fall. They had been seeded just prior to the first rains and succeeding rains at both intervals had kept the new crops growing steadily and had deposited in the lands sufficient moisture to last until the spring rains caused it to be would be necessary to employ surface irrigation to develop the first crop about the first of June. Bahoon decided therefore, to open the Lake Bahoon head-gates for the first time on May first and to make the occasion one of general rejoicing; the descent for the first time upon Foriorn Valley of the life-giving waters of Eden Valley Creek should be an epic event.

The prospect filled him with delight, thrilled him to an unwonted generosity. He owned rather a love-affair for the waters of irrigation in this district, and through this far the main canal was finished, the lateral system leading from it down a gentle slope to the east and taking up details, e of every contour. There was a groove of Valparaiso live oaks growing on this farm close to the edge of the main canal and here Bahoon decided to hold a barbecue for his people. He erected speakers' platform and benches under the trees; he purchased five steers, two-year-old steers to be barbecued, engaged the Gold Run Silver Cornet Band and the best of the local vaudeville talent included Henry Rookby, who had achieved a tremendous popularity as a result of leading the community singing in Valley Centre on Saturday nights. Mr. Rookby had led the singing at the weekly community sings held each week in Rotary Club and at the "exercises" planned to precede the barbecue. Mr. Rookby, in a burst of profound amazing in such a slim creature, a baritone ballad entitled "The Waters That Roll". Bahoon's little daughter, aged ten, was to recite "How the Waters Come Down at Lodore." Miss Amy Gilfeather, who taught music in the Valley Centre High School, promised to sing Senderemeer's "Stream" and the local barber, who had a contralto voice and learned to strum the guitar while waiting for trade in his barber shop, was engaged to sing "Where the Rio or Shannon Flows". All in all, Bahoon planned a singularly moist program and regretted deeply that he had not sent an notice to the proceedings sooner, so that Tichenor might still further with a couple of cases of good California wine, or, as I thought modestly wet in private, Bahoon was vociferously dry in public.

A dramatic frenzy gradually seized him. May-day, immensely gaily dedicated to festivals, was to be his day of days, although as he should repay him for his years of labor, and gain for him the civic seal. Of course, as president of the Foriorn Valley Irrigation District, his right to be the orator of the day could not be gainsaid and nobody tried to gainsay it. He dictated his speech to his secretary, edited it, revised it, labored lovingly over it, and when it was complete he memorized it and delivered it, with appropriate gestures, to Henry Rookby after the band had closed for the day. Meanwhile he had had an electrical contrivance installed in the speakers' headquarters, a wire led eight miles down country to connect with a push-button on the speakers' stand at the barbecue grounds. He had the district's engineer figure approximately how long it would require, he want to flow from the headgates to the grove, for he planned, at the moment of mounting the platform to press his push-button, which would raise the head-gates at the reservoir and release the water. Then at a certain dramatic point in his oration the water would arrive in its dramatic appearance. Henry Rookby was to discover its approach and interrupt Bahoon with snuff and appropriate cries of amazement and joy.

Bahoon had a motion-picture camera man from a news-reel service engaged to photograph the head of the vast brown flood as it rolled down the dry forty-foot main canal, knee-deep. He sent out engraved invitations to the great event, county and platiered the barns and fences of Foriorn Valley with notices of the great event and a cordial invitation to attend—everything free. At the last moment he forgot his early religious scruples and erected a dance platform. He decreed everything liberally with red, white and blue bunting and the American flag and resurrected the striped trousers, Prince Albert coat and top hat he had once been forced to purchase—a most ridiculous garb when acting as pall-bearer to a deceased congressman from the district.

He was so happy he elected to forget Joe Strickland had once punched him several times on the nose, and sent over to the office of the Register a detailed announcement of his plans, for he was ever one who loved publicity. Promptly on the morning of May 1st the Eden Valley, where Nate Tichenor's grove glowed strangely. He set off immediately for the county seat.

The great days arrived, and as Bahoon mounted the speakers' platform and gazed out over the hundreds of happy faces before him—the Gold Run Silver Cornet Band broke into "Hail, the Conquering Hero Comes" and three cheers rang out from the throats of the vast audience. Bahoon turned to Conwoman Henry Rookby—at that moment at work in Washington had aided to make Eden Valley Creek and secured permission to run the diversion canal through the public domain, and remarked that he was convinced at last that he had not lived in vain.

Bowing to the audience, he removed his shiny top hat and laid it on a small pine table before him. He gazed lovingly at the magic push-button, his hand reached lingeringly out to press it—all unseen by the audience (happily, he had taken the precaution to see to it) his hat that the pressing of the button would not be observed) when a rude interruption occurred.

A commanding voice cried sharply "Stop that, Bahoon!" and Bahoon looked up to glance at the angrity. Nate Tichenor was stepped up on the platform; behind him came his wife and Rube Tenney, and a silence that was almost thunderous settled over the grove as it was observed that all three were wearing two six-shooters each. Straight to Bahoon's side Tichenor strode; he shouldered Bahoon aside, set his shoulder a gentle accolade with a blue-backed, legal-looking document and then thrust it into Bahoon's hand, the while he said so all might hear:

"This is a temporary injunction from the judge of the superior court of this county, restraining the Foriorn Valley Irrigation District, its officers, successors, employees and agents from diverting the waters of Eden Valley Creek into its canal system, and ordering the district to show cause, within ten days why this injunction should not be made permanent. I warn you, Bahoon, that if you press that button you will be in contempt of court."

He turned, facing the audience. "If any enterprising males in this audience would like to avail themselves of this opportunity to tar and feather me and punch and kick me into a resemblance of something remotely human, I am quite ready for the experiment."

There was not a sound. For fully two minutes the throng in the open form waited grimly, then Nate Tichenor said: "But, stink and be merry, for tomorrow you'll be broke." His wife and her party through the assembly descended the platform steps to the audience, while Mr. Tenney grinned coldly, and trudged stolidly in the rear. Down through the entire aisle they passed in an automobile waiting outside the grove; they entered and rolled away, as Silas Bahoon was standing, silent to his people the damnable legal document that had changed his hour of triumph into one of despair. With cliffishly controlling his voice he announced:

"Mr. Tichenor has a habit of dramatizing himself, and while he has, of course, robbed this historic moment of certain high lights I had provided for your entertainment, still his rude and ungenerous interference does not cast the shadow over us. We are here to enjoy ourselves and we shall do so." And he proceeded to deliver his speech. Congressman Cornwall Beasley followed him and assured his hearers that they had nothing to fear for the future of Eden Valley from that. Henry Rookby, invaluable in desperate moments, had the good play wherever the speakers paused for breath or a drink of water, and little by little the gloom of Nate Tich enor's dramatic visitation was dispelled and the party took on most of the aspects of a genuine jollification.

Township of Thurlow
Gas Franchise Bylaw

ON MONDAY, NOV. 23, THE ELECTORS OF THURLOW TOWNSHIP WILL VOTE ON A BYLAW TO GRANT TO ONTARIO SHORE GAS COMPANY LIMITED, THROUGH EUGENE C. LANG, A FRANCHISE TO SUPPLY AND DISTRIBUTE GAS IN THE TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW.

A MODERN SERVICE

Of gas adds to home comfort, home con venience and home cleanliness. The passing of this bylaw will enable those homes, adjacent to Belleville and now enjoying gas convenience to continue to have that service. Unless the bylaw is carried they can no longer be served. It will also place at the disposal of those not now in a position to secure gas this economical and modern fuel for home heating and cook ing purposes

AT LOW COST

The bylaw fixes the rates to be charged for gas. Within one mile of Belleville the rate cannot exceed that charged in the city, and only a small extra charge to cover cost of transmission lines is levied on those outside the city limits in that area. New gas installations can be provided at one-third of the cost of electric installations, this bringing gas within the reach of everyone's income. The bylaw also provides the township

WITH ADEQUATE SAFEGUARDS

Against claims for damage or loss in the installation of the system. It also leaves the way open for the granting of a franchise to any other company should the people of the township so desire, because this is not an exclu sive franchise. There will be not one cent of expense to the township, and there is not any risk in connection with the gas system. The company takes all risks, and is bound by the bylaw to protect the township fully against loss.

You Have Everything to Gain—Nothing to Lose

Voting Day, Monday, Nov. 23rd

Polls Open — 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

WORK AND VOTE FOR THE GAS FRANCHISE BYLAW

Public meeting in the Town Hall, Cannif ton, on Friday, Nov. 20th at 8 p.m. Prominent speakers will discuss and explain the gas by law. Everybody welcome.

Chairman.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN, No. 23. (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

A moment after the lion's death the two men were surrounded by an excited horde of savages. They asked a thousand jabbering questions. The ape-man's new friend told the story. Then the whole tribe vied with one another in honoring Tarzan, this strange creature who had saved their fellow and battled with fierce Numa.

They brought Tarzan to their village and gave him many presents, including weapons. His first night with the savages was devoted to a wild orgy in his honor. There was feasting on antelope and zebra meat. As the warriors danced in the firelight Tarzan noticed many wore heavy ornaments apparently beaten out of solid gold.

For weeks Tarzan lived with his savage friends, hunting buffalo for meat and elephants for ivory. Quickly he learned their simple speech and their customs, finding that they were not cannibals. Busuli, the warrior he had saved, told him of the tribes' power and pleasure. Whence came this

But Arab slave-raiders had reduced their numbers. As Busuli talked, his gold ornaments glistened. The sight of that precious metal awakened the sleeping civilization that was in Tarzan. With it came the lust for wealth. He knew that gold meant power and pleasure. Whence came this

WALL STREET STARTS CLIMB PRICES BETTER

Further Wheat Strength Sends List Upward

(By Claude A. Jagger, Associated Press Financial Editor.)

New York, N.Y., Nov. 17—After ragging for six successive months, the stock market did in its heels and managed to resume its climb today, as further strength in wheat gave bulls new courage.

The market was under pressure during the first hour, but selling was checked some after the opening of the Chicago grain pit, and the list began to rally. Trading quickened on the advance. Early losses, ranging from 1 to 3 points or especially in the rails and specialties, were regained, and by early afternoon, shares had advanced generally 1 to 3 points included U.S. Steel, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, American, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Standard Oil, United Aircraft, National Biscuit, Borden, Sears Roebuck, American Smelting, International Harvester, Standard of California, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, American Can, Eastman and others.

The share market had ignored the resumption of the upward trend in wheat yesterday, but as the rise continued for the second day, Wall Street was apparently impressed.

Bullish demonstrations appear in some of the issues, too. General Motors was presumably bought in connection with its financing of new models. The Petroleum group also firmed up for a time.

WILL NOT SOON RETURN TO GOLD

British Attitude is Explained By Chamberlain

London, Nov. 17 (AP)—Great Britain does not contemplate an early return to the gold standard it was indicated in the House of Commons today by Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

In answer to a question, he said, "there are a number of important conditions, some of which are not subject to our control, which must be satisfied before the pound sterling in terms of gold can be contemplated."

"Our immediate object is to balance the budget for the next adverse trade balance and maintain the internal purchasing power of the pound."

The Government considers that no action should be taken at present by calling an international conference to stabilize the price of silver be added, or the possibility of the establishment of a silver standard for currency in the far east.

18 POINT BREAK IN RUSSEL CAR

Removing of "Pegs" Unmarked Except in Russel

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 17. — An eighteen point break in the share of Russel Motor Car Company featured an otherwise dull and dragging market on Toronto exchange this morning. Russel common which was added to the free list, opened at 50 and an odd-lot sale was recorded at that level. Some forty stocks in all had the peg removed today but from Russel there was no noticeable change in the quotations.

The main body of stocks sold unchanged to small fractions higher. Abitibi, Brazilian, Steel of Canada, Canada Cement, Dominion Textile, Ford A, International Nickel, Imperial Oil, Massey Harris and Simpsons "B" were among the issues which showed small gains.

Brazilian slipped slightly as did Canada Car preferred, Page Hersey and Windsor.

B. A. Oil was again freely offered but after absorbing selling at eleven finished. Imperial was just above last night.

WHEAT PRICES SHOW ADVANCE

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 17 (CP)—Improved demand and higher Liverpool cables sent wheat prices from the ascendancy for the second day as trading opened this morning. Within fifteen minutes after the market opened prices had jumped 1c to 1¼ cents higher than Monday's closing figures. There appeared to have been a substantial trade workup for export overnight, although no figures were available.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 17—Foreign Exchange was in demand today. Great Britain 3.78 1-4; France 3.91 7-8; Italy 5.21 1-2; Germany 23.70.

Canadian dollars at 10 1-4 per cent. discount.

LANDOWNER DIES

London, Nov. 17 (CP cable) Lieut.-Col. Miles Stapilton, noted landowner and sportsman, died today. Free Mason, whose family has been associated with Yorkshire since Norman times, died today.

PRICE ACTION IS CONFINED

Trading on Standard Exchange Moves in Limited Area

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 17.—Confined price action was the feature marked forenoon trading on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market today, the list lacking both feature and trend. Midday changes showed small losses and gains with about evenly divided.

Teck Hughes, whose annual meeting is being held here this afternoon, was under pressure for a time and dipped to $5.90. A noon rally carried price back to $6.10. Wright Hargreaves recovered 7 to $2.15. Among cheaper golds, Hoyle, Barry Hollinger and Dominion Explorers were slightly lower, while Moffatt-Hall sold up over a cent to 19 1-2 and Central Patricia moved a fraction.

Price of silver was up in London and down in New York, unsettling White Metal Shares. While majority were steady through lack of attention, Castle-Trethewey dipped another cent and Edgeray Extended 5 to 31-32. Poor results from the Dividend Holding Corporation also disturbed tone of the base metal group, but Nipissing Mines showed up some slightly lower, while Moffatt-Hall sold up over a cent to 19 1-2 and Central Patricia moved a fraction.

EXTEND WHEAT BELT IN WEST

Aim to Grow Wheat on Pacific Coast, if Possible

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 17 (CP)—To extend the Canadian wheat belt to the Pacific coast has been for the past six years the objective of the faculty of agriculture at the University of British Columbia, the result so far have been highly encouraging, according to Dr. J. G. Moe, a member of the faculty.

Experimental crops grown at the university area wheat seed from all the principal agrarian countries of the world has been sown. There is wheat from China, Scandinavia, Europe, India, Argentine, Australia and the United States. More than 200 varieties have been being tested. One of the varieties is flowering, which Dr. Moe says ago assisted in perfecting under the direction of C. P. Hoffman, chief of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Lacombe, Alberta.

Dr. Moe said in perfection of Reward wheat has been made, but further north, so the universities hope to find a wheat which can be planted in British Columbia soil. The Reward wheat yields 40 bushels per acre to the acre, while Marquis and Garnet yield from 25 to 30 bushels per acre.

"We are seeking the wheat which will have the highest milling and cents value to the British market," Dr. Moe said. "Sweden has developed a wheat which is not subject to rust. Rust is a germ that causes a large demand in China."

How wheat is grown in Sweden is proposed to being adopted here was given by Dr. Moe. He cited varieties which flourish in the Palouse country of eastern Washington. Wheat of low protein content which does well in the Judith Basin, Montana, in the Columbia Valley and in the Palouse area immediately east of Spokane, Washington, were taken into British Columbia, it was shown. In these districts Swedish Argton and Oregon changed entirely in character.

Wheat which flourishes in Sweden is a hard, spring wheat. Swedish wheat, unlike the sturdy spring wheat in Canada, does well in British Columbia, where the winters are not harsh. This climate, it does not have the rainfall and therefore has been counted out by Dr. Moe.

It is not yet possible for the experts to say that this particular wheat will serve the purpose here, Dr. Moe pointed out. Another year suits after that perhaps seeds from Ontario, Indiana or Kansas may be the ones which will make food here west of the Rocky Mountains.

NOV. MONTH OF SUNSHINE

Ontario Enjoying Balmy Weather, as Trees Bloom

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 17—While Winter is due in the Province of Ontario Canada, Ontario is still enjoying balmy weather. November is also a month of blooms and sunshine, according to reports coming from all parts of the province.

In Prince Edward County, apple trees are in blossom again, raspberries are yielding fruit and violets and bluebells are flowering.

Even the Muskoka district Province is basking in an unusually mild spell. Temperatures, 50 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie, reported a full bloom of pansies and Haliburt reports five ripe strawberries.

COTTON, FLOUR INDUSTRY IN CHINA ARE HIT

Facing Bankruptcy if Steps Are Not Taken Against Japan

SHANGHAI, China—China's cotton and flour mill industries face inevitable bankruptcy if prompt and appropriate steps are not taken to strengthen the Japanese competition, according to Yung Chung-chi, one of the largest owners of cotton and flour mills in China.

Mr. Yung believes that the importation of Japanese flour through the leased Manchurian ports has made it possible for Japan to seriously undersell Chinese prices. This, says Mr. Yung, is the direct consequence of the fact that by shipping their flour through Manchurian ports such as Dairen and Antung the Japanese escape the payment of taxes to which the Chinese are subject under the laws of their own country.

Mr. Yung contends that the Japanese should be made to pay the same taxes that Chinese producers are now subject to. Failure to do this, he claims, all other efforts to improve the industry will be futile.

"Chinese cotton mills in Shanghai are not much more than training schools as to quality of yarn, while the Japanese mill owners," he said, "have developed a reputation for so longer trained to perform their tasks properly that their products are now Japanese establishments spirit them off with great rapidity and they pay good prices because they have the perfection of their own military forces which serve to protect them. The cultivation in Japanese plants, thus removing a factor that counts in the cost of operating Chinese mills.

"Conditions would be improved in China if the Chinese people would give greater support to their own industries whenever possible. The owners of the superior facilities offered by foreign industrial companies say their companies have made it a policy to ship their products at a profit of only 5 tons. If all industries pursued this policy it would be a good thing for China."

FREE APPLES AT CITY HALL

At Relief Headquarters, City Hall there are a quantity of apples for immediate distribution. They were brought in this morning and donated by a resident of the municipality. These apples will not keep any length of time and it is requested that they be distributed at once. Citizens who can use some of them can have them by calling with baskets and taking them away.

Discovery Brought Impetus to Sailing

VANCOUVER, B. C. — Gold discoveries in California and Australia were the greatest impetus to shipbuilding and navigation of sailing ships, but the latter industry owed their doom, according to Captain E. Allerton, R.N.R., superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services, to the same cause that is facing history.

The use of sail to steam, in the last few years, has seemed more like a revolution than an evolution, and the change from sail to steam was a climax, during which it received its finishing touches in the days of the Suez Canal," recalled Captain Allerton.

"The golden age of sail included the years 1853, 1854 and 1855, due to the gold strikes in California and Australia, when the United States and Britain were building their famous clippers, which were the finest sailing ships, seriously competing with Britain's supremacy. Canada also had shipbuilders got busy and the result was seen at the famous Quebec timber races in the history of the sea.

"Alexander McNair, a famous clipper ship, fast and beautifully built, made her maiden voyage to Australia in 1853, under the command of "Bully" Forbes, who, when appointed by a distinguished list of passengers asking him to take sail off his ship when in a storm, replied, ed: 'Hell or Melbourne in 60 days. Sail on, Mr. Forbes.'

"The Marco Polo carried 930 immigrants, and she was just about 1,500 tons register. Talk about overcrowding, I wish we could get that kind of crowding. Be sad."

As an instance of the fine navigation displayed in those days, the great old days of iron men and wood ships, Captain Allerton spoke of the famous tea clipper race in 1866, when the Taeping and the Fiochow on May 30 in a race for the docks of London.

After sighting each other in the doldrums of the equator, they separated, two of the finest ships the Ariel and Ta Ping, docking in London within 20 minutes of each other after a race of approximately five thousand miles, all five ships, in fact, docked or berthed within twenty-four hours of each other.

"In 1868, sail tonnage, I mean British ships, amounted to four and a half million tons, while steam was less than a million. In 1870 the Suez Canal opened, and the end of sail was coming ever to the fore, sail went down for in 1890 sail tonnage amounted to less than three million, and in 1913 less than a million. The final death blow was dealt in 1914 when the Great War broke out."

ditions imposed by General Honjo, commander of the Japanese troops, for peace in Northern Manchuria, it is said.

Tokyo, Nov. 17 (CP)—General Mah Chan-Shan, the Chinese commander in Manchuria, already has submitted a set of counter-proposals to the Japanese demands, it was said in dispatches from Mukden said today. The proposals, the ground mouth of Angenchi will not be removed that he intends to withdraw.

Tokyo, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Japanese war office said today General Honjo, Japanese commander in Manchuria, advanced to a point ten miles from Mah Chan-Shan's capital of Tsitsihar just north of the Nonni River Bridge, and that Chinese troops threatening to envelop the Japanese right flank.

Despatches to the Rengo news agency from Harbin, Manchuria, however, stated that General Mah had accepted the truce demands of Major Gen. Kenji Doihara, Mukden Japanese commander.

The war office official despatches said that Japanese cavalry attacked at Shunghuiyuan, northeast of Tsitsihar yesterday morning and inflicted ten casualties before they were repulsed.

TEMPERATURES

After Monday's severe local fog the mercury rose sufficiently in today's temperatures were 50 high and 37 low. The mercury rose until it registered 62 at midnight on Monday and had only dropped as low as 46 during the previous night. Women's Interests in the Home

TEACH HEALTH, HAPPINESS TO CHILDREN

Supt. Fetterly, of O.S.D., Talks to Rotary on Child Education

The home has fallen down and it is up to the church and other organizations to spend more time on social and moral training of youth and less time on other things not so important, to the end that there may be one thousand human decisions annually enters one of facts which annually enter one of life, the state institutions may be reduced, said Mr. H. Fetterly, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf, in addressing Bellerille Rotary Club Monday on child educations and training. How to obtain and maintain health and happiness was a feature of child training, which should not be overlooked by the speaker, who referred to the O.S.D. work. He pointed to added and told of the splendid results from the formation of the Red Cross Society among the pupils. Through this the children studied health and took health games, they learned the value of good food and fresh air. Last year there was no sickness at the school, largely due to the fact that the children had learned through the Junior Red Cross to protect their health. Thirty or forty thousand children now going to school in Canada would be patients in mental hospitals are long, a condition of affairs which is the greatest study and seeking for remedy. Children must be taught how to attain health and happiness, and avoid the pitfalls of life which lead to the penitentiaries and blighted lives. Incidentally Mr. Fetterly spoke of the good work being done by the Citizens' Service Association which seeks to re-establish discharged prisoners and give them a chance to make good elsewhere. Three-fourths of these men have been found worthy of the effort.

This society is headed by veil. General Draper, head of the Toronto police force.

QUINTE W I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Quinte Branch of the Women's Institute was held Tuesday afternoon, November 10th, at the home of Mrs. Wm. Reader, Herchimer Ave. A large number were present to enjoy the splendid program provided. The president, Mrs. Jas. Bunnett was in the chair.

The meeting opened with the Institute Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. There was considerable business transacted and it was decided that the Institute take a kit of Christmas cheer to the County Home of Deeds. It is the intention of the branch to again take up the work at Shannonville cemetery. The secretary read cards of appreciation and thanks from those who had been recently been bereaved, and had sickness in their homes.

Miss B Jones very capably gave a paper on the work of Fauli Food-ing." It is indeed quite easy for us to see others' faults, and not so easy to find the cause of some of fault finding; just a discontent unrest arises within us. Miss Jones referred to the Bible and the beautiful thoughts contained on this fault finding. A reading by Mrs. Clifford Mitchell on "Mother" was much enjoyed. "Music" it heard from pole to pole, brothers learn it from the cradle and what a comfort it is to the lonely.

Mrs. M. Reid and Mrs. F. Parrot favored with a solo, cutilled "When You and I Were Young Maggie" and Mrs. John Donaldson gave an excellent, yet humorous paper on "Domestic Day." Mrs. Donaldson spoke of the support the Institute had been made during the World War and the debt we owe to those who paid the cost. That beautiful poem "In Flanders Fields" by John McCrae was recited.

The Roll Call "Question Box" set all thinking and our minds went to their several homes much enlightened. Mrs. Reader gave a humorous reading "Heard in a Local Crescendo" which afforded much of laughs. Community singing was partaken of during the afternoon and the patriotic songs were sung in keeping with "Remembrance Day". Mrs. Stanley Grills gave an instrumental solo, which was much enjoyed by all.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem after which the hostess, Mrs. Redner, served a dainty lunch

The Beauty Box

By Helen Follett

Now that curtes are permitted we hear that the plump dollies are going to hand the hefty lady to the tin ones, but don't our believe it. It is the willy slimy with delicate curves who appear lovely in long skirts, bouffeuting from the svelte waistline. The more yardage there is in an evening robe the less adipose padding should be under it. There must be a youthful moulding of the bust, not flatness or over development. Today's fashions are exacting. Do you require good lines, standard proportions and, above all else, the queen ly carriage.

Black lace over pink crepe with bandings of soft chinchilla form this luxurious model that is to be worn at a British International film star, Kathleen O'Regan.

The Beauty Box

By Helen Follett

When the glorious crown gets emotional, throws brain storms, looks dry and dull and won't stay put, it's time to give it a little special attention. Hair gets down to the heel, despondent, and no wonder considering how some grab mistreat it. It might be thin, thick oughly, strand by strand, holding the hair away from the head. Rub a tonic into the scalp and friction for five minutes. Place thumbs and fingers outspread, thumbs down over the back of the head and move the tissues with a rotary movement.

The bitchy skin is usually due to internal causes, a digestion that must wrestle with it. Diet is rich for the stomach's well being. Delete pastries for a time, substituting fresh or cooked fruit and fruit juices. Drink plenty of water a day. Cut out condiments and fat meats. A balanced diet consists of eggs, cereals, lean meats, fish, green salads, raw vegetables. Tomato juice is recommended for piping down a complexion that flushes easily.

Choosing a hat is a serious matter. Some of these sassy lids don't suit a youth and a good appearance to the back. Take an all-round look. Consider the profile, consider also the arrangement of the hair. The wrong pose of a feather can turn the most charming face into a caricature, adding a comic element.

The white of egg face pack will freshen the heart of the woman whose tissues are sagging. Beat the egg white slightly, adding a few drops of cold water. Spread on with a clean skin surface. When the epidermis begins to draw and tighten, bathe away the pack, crystap in a hery pink food for five minutes. Remove the skin food with a soft cloth, never with soap and water for the good effects will be lost.

No girl can hope to make the beauty grade unless she is blessed with a lovely voice. Monotonous tone, slovenly enunciation and too much voice volume are common faults.

Hold Impressive Memorial Service

Ceremonies Largely Attended on Remembrance Day

Frankford, Nov. 17.—No truer conception of the solemn and sincerity with which the memory of the supreme sacrifice made by Frankford departed heroes in Flanders' Fields is enshrined in the hearts of Canadian people, could be conveyed, than was portrayed at the Memorial Monument at Frankford on Remembrance Day.

At the hour of 10.30 a.m. a parade up of veterans of the Great War, the Frankford Company of Girl Guides and the Boy Scouts formed at the Church of England, and marched in military formation led by the Frankford Band to the Memorial Park. Mr. Arcnes MacAllister acted as official director of ceremonies, the veterans and military service directed by Capt. E. E. Ketcheson and Lieut. R. J. Madill. And it is only right to say, although Frankford has not the thousands of veterans as in the larger centres, yet no better display could be made, than was every one witnessed on the local company, both in deportment and military bearing, a demeanor with which they regarded the sacred cause in which they were engaged.

The Girl Guides turned out in full company led by Capt. E. E. Ketcheson, Capt. Harriett and Lt. Badgley, and the scout troop was conducted their part of the ceremony in a most sincere manner to the competency of their officers. The ceremonies, following, were in charge of Veteran Southworth. Capt. C. D. Powell being unable to attend through the scene from town.

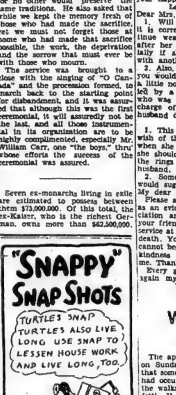
At the monument, the Veterans formed a Guard of Honor, flanked to right and left respectively by the Guides and Scouts, and the ceremony opened by the singing of "The King" and the hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," followed by prayer by Rev. J. Vanderwater. Mr. MacAllister opened the programme with an address complimenting all those instrumental in arranging the service, and in this connection it was Mr. MacAllister who was the originator of the cenotaph to erect a memorial in Frankford, and the splendid response to the memorial campaign can be attributed largely to his individual efforts. Being personally known to every one of those whose names are engraved on the tablets, his address needed personal reference to them, bringing back in retrospect the memories of those days of anxiety and sorrow, and in inaugurating the period of silence, the speaker impressed on the audience the sacred purpose of the assembly and that the two minutes silent prayer be offered on behalf of the bereaved families and that the memory of the sacrifice be kept ever green in the hearts of the people.

All the raising of the hand for silence a beautiful wreath by the Veterans was placed on the monument by Veteran Harvey Lapum and the way in which the silence was observed showed that the speaker's words had gone to the heart of every person in the audience. The silence was ended by the beautiful notes of "The Last Post and Reveille by Bugler Shepard of Belleville A.L.C., who with a few of his comrades assisted at the ceremony at Frankford.

The next speaker, Rev. A. S. Dorgent, emphasized the futility of war, with its attending sorrow and degrading effects on humanity, being the only compensating factor and that real peace must come from the uniting of those elements of greed and consecration for the good love of true principles in the hearts of men, humanity being the only final arbiter. Rev. J. D. Kenny, Catholic priest also a member of the original memorial committee, spoke of the part Canadians and veterans on the responses at this their first memorial service, and with all his brilliance of delivery, emphasized the beauty of the purpose of the service and the reflected glory to the village thru' the supreme sacrifice made by those departed heroes, as well as those who had survived to appear there in their honor.

Col. Canon Vanderwater, in his address, perhaps brought home to the audience a new conception of the trials and difficulties which veterans undergone by those who were mourned, and of the purpose they had fought for, and in that connection he gave a beautiful explanation of the British flag, the Union Jack, made up of the different ensigns of the British Empire, in their own union standing for the unity of the Empire, in freedom of religion and protection to the oppressed. Also, that while motions had been made to change the old flag, yet he would be in favor of keeping it as it was, for no other would preserve the same traditions. He also asked that while we kept the memory fresh of those who had made the sacrifice, yet we must not forget those at home who had made that sacrifice possible, the work, the deprivation and the sorrow that must ever be with those who mourn.

The service was brought to a close with the singing of "O Canada" and the procession formed, to march back to the starting point for disbandment, and it was accepted that although this was the first ceremonial, it will assuredly not be the last, and all those instrumental in its organization are to be highly complimented, especially Mr. William Carr, one "the boys," to whose efforts the success of the ceremonial was assured.



Seven ex-monarchs living in exile are estimated to possess between them $73,000,000. Of this total, the ex-Kaiser, who is the richest German, owns more than $62,500,000.

"SNAPPY" SNAP SHOTS

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman
Good Manners

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I think I am asking you a question about it. How I have been has ever asked you. When I was married as a young girl I wanted to be married in a church and have a veil and everything. But mother said "No" I must be married at home and at eleven in the morning and have one attendant. Also I had to be married in blue silk.

I have always been heart hungry about it. Now I have been a widow a little more than three years, and have a chance to marry a nice man and I want church wedding. I am an Episcopalean and of course cannot go into church with the head uncovered. Is there any way for me to have even a small veil and train and lovely?

Perhaps you may think I am silly but you do not know that dear has always been my desire.

M.M.

Yes, my dear girl, this appealing question has been asked me many times in this column—and well do I know, for each time it is asked, I wish, sincerely, that I had it within my power to answer it as I know the bride would have it answered. But if I did tell her that, as a bride for a second time you may wear a white wedding be faithful that high tradition and a veil, I would be breaking one that forbids this.

Of course I don't think that you are silly, and I wish that I could tell you that I understand and appreciate your yearning to be dressed in "real bride" fashion, but on the other hand, I would save you from the disagreeable feeling that inevitably would be heaped on your head if you impolitely—as decreed by that later you will regret.

Don't let a superficial desire to wear a certain attire at your wedding about your happiness, dear friend. Avoid the tradition grove fully—after all it has no value as compared with the many happiness that has come to you. I wish you every possible for your happiness.

Letter to Minister

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I wish you kindly tell me if it is correct for a widow to continue wearing her wedding ring after her husband's death. Especially if she is keeping company with another gentleman.

2. Also, I would appreciate it, if you would tell me what to say in a little note of thanks, accompanying a gift to the minister who was so kind and had charge of the funeral when my husband died.

T.

1. This depends entirely on the wish of the widow. In any event, I should not advise her to marry again, she should at once cease to wear the ring given her by her first husband.

2. Something like this perhaps would suggest itself:

My dear Mr. Wright:

Please accept the enclosed check as an evidence of my deep appreciation and gratitude to you for your friendliness and courtesy and service at the time of my husband's death. You were most kind, and I cannot begin to tell you what your thoughtful consideration meant to me. Thank you most sincerely.

Every good wish to you and again my appreciation.

Very sincerely yours.
Mary Browne Smithson.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN supplies "BULK," VITAMIN B, IRON

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" in a convenient, ever-ready form. Eat it with milk, like that in lettuce, but it is concentrated in more convenient form to stimulate regularity.

Inside the body, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN isn't like you see it in the package, but a soft mass. This gently cleanses the intestines of waste.

In this, it is aided by Vitamin B, richly present in ALL-BRAN. This vitamin tones the intestines, promoting regularity.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily in chronic cases. Often unusually enough for most types of constipation. If you suffer from intestinal trouble not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a good source of iron for the blood. Enjoy it as a cereal or in cooking. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman
Out of Town Visit

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like this opportunity to thank you for the advice you have given me some time ago, and I have another problem now which I wish you would help me with.

1. My boy friend who is living with his married sister in another town, has asked me to come and spend a part of my vacation with them. Would it be correct for me to do this? I have never met his sister but have heard a lot about her from my friend.

2. If it would be correct for me to visit them, would you suggest that I take a gift for her to express my appreciation and gratitude for letting me stay at her home? and what would you suggest that I get her?

A.K.

Welcome, you are, and I am glad that the answer helped.

1. This would be quite the correct thing for you to do, if—and remember if—the sister of your friend writes you a note of invitation. You must not go without this. If it isn't forthcoming, and you know that she really wants to have you come but perhaps does not realize that her invitation is necessary alone she is the hostess of the home, it is perfectly all right for you to suggest to your friend that you would like to make this visit if the sister writes you a note of invitation. She will understand this, respect you for it, and will write to his sister asking her to write yo uthis note. This is often done so don't hesitate to make this suggestion.

2. You might take a more or less impersonal gift when you go—a box of flowers, a box of candy or a basket of fruit or sweets, a book, a group of the latest magazines. Then, when you are home, keep your eyes open for something that you think your hostess would enjoy having, and send this to her with your card and letter thereof.

You might send a half dozen or more lovely tea-napkins, monogrammed perhaps, a vase, or some smoke accessory such as a set of ash-trays or cigarettes or a matching cigarette box, some records for the piano or victrola, phonograph, a desk-accessory, a notebook set, one or two tray pitches, a set of salad dishes, in china or glass.

Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for a guest to wear a hat at a church wedding? I am to have a dress made for the evening and is a formal affair.

2. Is it proper for a divorcee to wear any sort of veil or Juliet cap? If not, what would you advise as a proper head dress?

J.D.

1. Whether or not hats are worn at an evening church wedding depends on the rules and regulations of the denomination of the church in which the wedding is to be held. But most denominations allow women guests to wear appropriate clothes at a formal evening wedding, and no hats.

The guest who is doubtful about this would best telephone to the secretary of the minister, or the minister, or find out from some one who is.

2. It is not proper for the widow for the second time to wear a bridal veil. Since the wedding will be an informal second marriage, usually are, and correctly—the bride will probably wear a hat. The hat can be of any degree of formality or informality, to harmonize with the rest of the costume.

Buying Wisely

An old and conservatively managed banking institution has issued to its 240,000 depositors a circular message that merits consideration, also by customers of savings banks generally on the North American continent.

This bank points out that hoarding and thrift are not synonymous terms; that, in fact, they are quite as different as courage and fear. The circular therefore gives the following advice: "Keep on deposit a reasonable reserve against emergency, not a hoard."

"If you have a surplus above all likely need, make careful purchases of things you want for permanent use while prices remain low."

"See that your home is put in good repair. Do not let your automobile or any other property get run down. If you have long needed an added piece of furniture, shop carefully and buy it now."

"Buy clothing and other needs in reasonable quantities. Buy real estate if you are planning for a home of your own."

"Wise spending at the right time is just as essential as preventative measures to ensure good health. Wise spending of available money encourages prosperity and corrective measures, good health and enjoyment."

"Every citizen who spends such money in some useful and wise way is contributing to the relief of unemployment and to the return of confidence and prosperity in this city and county."

Babson's Statistical Organization in their Canadian Babson's Chart, points out: "We feel that pessimism has been allowed too free a rein. In our anxiety to get over the world's depression epidemic we sometimes fail to give proper evaluation to existing conditions. The depression is acute, not chronic."

"First Nighters" Put Seal of Acclaim on Hockey Teams

25 Juniors Turned Out For Initial Practice of Season

RAILBIRDS PRESENT

Seniors Looked Promising in Their Season's Debut

Judging from the crowd at the initial workout of the season, the ville hockey teams had slight this district in for one of its biggest hockey seasons in years. Not only were the players out in large numbers but also the "rail-birds" were there by the hundreds. At least 400 fans were on hand to welcome the first appearance of the "pucksters" and when one saw the fans interested in the pre-season workouts it is a very good sign that they are interested in the welfare of the team.

New Faces Seen

Many new faces were seen during the evening's workout in the vicinity of the rubbers. The B.A.A.A. have engaged Jimmy Thompson to coach Herbert, to coach the kids and he was right on hand to get the ball start his work. Harold Legate, Bill Rankin and Stewart Pender, the men behind the pucks in former teams in Belleville, also were on hand to welcome the new coach and of their teams. These men have worked long and hard so that good hockey could be produced here this Winter and it was due to their untiring efforts that Belleville will have two of the smartest teams that they had in years. The coach credit cannot be given these men in their endeavors.

Twenty-Five on Hand

Precisely at six o'clock Coach Thompson ran out the first batch of juniors. There were at least twenty-five kids out there battling as though their very lives depended upon their showing last night. It will take Tommy at least two weeks to even call roster down to a size where near the amount of players that he intends carrying this Winter. The only junior goal tender to put in an appearance was Chambers of last year's Trenton juniors. George Scopal and McCrie, of Tweed, is expected to try out with the local juniors this year. Shannon is a forward player and made a big hit in Drayton Valley league last year. The new faces seemed were Hood, a junior defence player from Toronto, this boy should make a swell running mate for Bill Sherry. Hood weighs 165 pounds and can skate and carries a puck well.

Bill Sherry was only out for a few minutes, he was forced to quit as he broke one of his skates. But when Bill needs no introduction to the Belleville fans, McDonald, of last year's Toronto Parkdale Canoe Club team, was at centre ice and displayed some real hockey ability. He looks like a finished hockey player as he seems to know the position of his team mates. Murray, of Penetang, also looked like a likely prospect to the rail-birds. Nichol, of North Bay, was the pick of the beginners and he displayed many good traits, that go to make a real smart junior. Carl Morgan, a local boy, on the defence, looked like a real good prospect and teamed with his cousin, Harry Morgan, of last year's juniors, and made a real showing.

McGuire Looked Good

Of last year's team Jimmie McGuire looked like the best bet. This slight, little left-winger has put on a little weight and he stayed out during both practices and was travelling as fast as ever. Rene St. Denis showed the fans that he has not forgotten any of his old cra-ft-ness as he brought along his bag of tricks and had himself an hour's fun with the boys. "Shod" Ethier, "Toots" Ethier young brother, gave a fine account of himself in the rushing and will bear watching during the pre-season games. Ty Barriage, Jack Graves, Munn and a host of others all displayed real hockey ability. The juniors will be out again tonight and the coach is anxious to have all the kids in town try out for a position.

Seniors Show Some Seniors

Just previous to the seniors going on the ice the management of the fans announced that "Bouncer" Holway would be the senior coach this year. "Bouncer" is a real student of the game and it is with the best wishes that the fans of Belleville heard of his appointment. Bouncer learned his hockey in Belleville and has played on many teams in his varied career and experiences. He has played in Canada and the United States under many different coaches and should make a real good coach this year.

Some of the players expected out last night with the seniors were unable to make an appearance but will no doubt be out tonight.

"Dutch" Cain of Collingwood, and his defence mate, were absent, but Holgate, of last year's Belleville juniors, and Riggs went on the defence for Lee Bros., who made a host of friends while playing for Windsor here last Winter, was in the nets and he demonstrated that he still knows how to stop the old bootbeel. "Rube" Buskard was in the rink but did not put the pads on last night. George McMeekin, of last year's Owen Sound juniors, took the fans' eye at centre ice and his puke check was one of the features of the evening. This boy looks like a real hockey player and will no doubt give the fans many a thrill this winter. Happy Day, of last year's Sterling team, was out and so was Smith, last year's right winger of the Belleville seniors. Smith looks to be in fine shape right now and no doubt will play better hockey under the prevailing conditions than he did last year. Herbert, a newcomer from Port Hope, although a shade on the small size, showed a lot of speed and will bear watching before the season opens.

Pete Morgan Improved

The most improved player on the ice last night was Pete Morgan. He now weighs 180 pounds and seems to be in the best of shape. Pete was travelling at his old speed last night and seems to have lost his one bad habit—of carrying the puck. The newcomer, Johnnie Leachman was a late-comer Rib-he-naz-trawling with the fastest of them before the end of the practice. Johnnie and Mc-Meekin should start a real smart pair of centre players for any team. The boys appreciated the ice conditions last night and they will be out again tonight.

X—X—X

The front of the night was the appearance of Mike Grills after a few minutes. He did not travel at a very fast clip but made a few nice rushes. He got his feet warmed up and went out into the swellest nose dive you ever saw. Mike was taken off and got his skates meshed up in one of the nets. He will be on the ice tonight for Dutch Cain, who is now with the St. Louis team of the "Flyers." Gilly has turned into some smart player as the Flyers and is considered one of the best centres in the American Hockey League.

X—X—X

After last night's hockey practice there is a little more talk around town in regard to a city hockey league. From here appears to be a few mistakes made in previous years does not seem to be the opposite of a city league. The age-old question of whether to let 25-cent A players participate in such a league is again the burning question of the hour. The best city league that has operated in Belleville in recent years, barred all intermediate players and limited each team to two juniors.

X—X—X

Of last year's team Jimmie McGuire looked as good as any of the boys while Rene St. Denis showed that he still has was as tricky as ever. On the defence we saw a new boy, Carl Morgan, and he looked like a good prospect. "Cy" Hartnagel and "Shod" Ethier were in the thick of the battle and displayed some good qualities. There were numerous other kids out and it will take Coach Thompson all of his time for the next couple of weeks to weed out the best players.

A few days ago we spoke of the forming of a league of figure skating club in Belleville. There has been some controversy lately on the subject and now that the Arena is opened it is expected that a meeting will be called in the near future to try and organize a club and perhaps engage an instructor.

X—X—X

Following the hockey practice the Arena officially opens tonight for public skating.

To ancient times the seventh child of a seventh child was credited with supernatural powers.

were absent we were Bob Hull, Alex Wolz, Murray Green and Frank Gerver, the two Cannings and some more of last year's team we will be out at a later date it is expected. Lee Tice, who needs no introduction to the fans was in the nets and he does not seem to have forgotten how to send real. Smith, last year's right winger, also was on the ice. Geo. McMeekin of Owen Sound, was quite in evidence with his poke check. The most improved boy we saw last night was Pete Morgan of last year's juniors. He now ups the scales at 180 pounds.

X—X—X

Johnnie Leachman was right on the job at centre and was travelling at a fast speed. Harold, a big husky defence boy from Toronto, also looked like a good prospect. Herbert of Port Hope, although a big fellow in stature, made up for his size in his speed. The boys had new skates and did not exert themselves to any great extent. They will be out again tonight.

X—X—X

The front of the night was the appearance of Mike Grills after a few minutes. He did not travel at a very fast clip but made a few nice rushes. He got his feet warmed up and went out into the swellest nose dive you ever saw. Mike was taken off and got his skates meshed up in one of the nets. What a gang of rail-birds welcomed the first workout of the new Belleville hockey team last night. If pre-season fans are any indication of interested fans then the Arena will be filled to capacity for the games this winter. Fully 400 fans were on deck to watch the "puck chasers" in their initial workout.

X—X—X

Coach Tommy Thompson, of Barrie, had his juniors out first from 6 to 7. And what a gang he had to handle. No regular goalie was seen in action, we noticed. Chambers of Trenton, and Lee Tice of the seniors, were the only two "net minders" to put in an appearance. We did see Rube Buskard in the stands but he did not don the pads last night.

X—X—X

There were so many kids out that I think it was a good job to single out any star. Hard, of Toronto, looked good and should team well with Bill Sherry, who was forced out of the practice with a broken skate. Nichol, of North Bay, and McDonald of Parkdale Canoe Club, both took the fans' eye at times. Murray of Penetang, and a couple of new faces but some of the hockey players that Coach Holway has to show the fans were not able to be out last evening. Dutch Cain and his defence mate

LAUNCH LOAN ON NOV. 30TH

Indications Loan Will Mature in Five and Ten Years

OTTAWA, Nov. 16 (CP)—Preparations for the Dominion of Canada National Service Loan which will probably be launched on November 30 are progressing satisfactorily. The committee which will have charge of the campaign were made public last night.

Although no official statement has been made the indications are that the new loan will mature, the first series in five years and the second series in ten years. It is believed that there will be no longer term than ten years.

One of the important committees announced last night by Hon. E. N. Rhodes, acting minister of finance, is the honorary advisory committee to the general campaign committee. Sir Charles Gordon is chairman of the general campaign committee and Victor M. Drury is vice-chairman.

The advisory committee includes the Lieutenant-Governors and Premiers of each province.

GRAINS BUT NO MACHINES

Australian's Handicapped By Lack of Harvest Equipment

Sidney, N. S.—(By The Canadian Press)—Despite the financial difficulties confronting Australian wheat growers this season in the supply of machinery, especially that used for harvesting, financial stringency has prevented many farmers from making the necessary replacements to maintain standards in an efficient condition.

James Dunn, minister of agriculture, expresses the opinion that for the farmers' assistance who have been sown this year ample machinery is available on the farms for taking off the crops, and that all that is necessary is active co-operation in the use of this equipment.

"There will have to be a good deal of wholesale borrowing from neighbors this year," said Mr. Dunn. "The man without a machine must borrow from the man who has, and it is the patriotic thing for both parties to this arrangement to keep the machinery as much in use as possible."

He warned farmers who were not in a good position financially to avoid making heavy commitments at this time.

What Theatrical Managers Say of Coming Attractions

At The Belle

BIG NAMES IN CAST OF "SON OF INDIA"

Laurel-Hardy in new Comedy Hamon Novarro will be seen at the Belle Theatre starting tomorrow two day engagement daily in "Son of India". This is the star's first oriental characterization since "The Pagan". It is based on the F. Marion Crawford novel "Mr. Isaacs," and was directed by Jacques Feyder, who produced Novarro's last film, "The Pagan."

Where as in "The Pagan" Novarro portrayed a native of the South Seas, in "Son of India" he is seen as the son of a Hindu jeweler who is plunged from wealth to beggardom and then to the governorship of a series of spectacular incidents.

The episodes of the melodramatic story take place in and around Bombay, India. Highlights include a thrilling tiger hunt, an ingenious trick by which Novarro is buried alive but escapes, and a dramatic bandit raid.

Madge Evans, as a famous child star with Montagu Love Antonio Moreno and other favorites, but proves the real romantic lure of the New York stage beauty from Perth.

Conrad Nagel, Major Marquette, makes her talkie debut in the picture as the woman with whom Novarro loves.

The strong cast also includes Conrad Nagel, Marjorie Rambeau, C. Aubrey Smith, Lucien Lewis, John Miljan and Madge de Bassini.

Stan Laurel and Babe Hardy, famous screen fun-makers in comedy with another Bomb Shell of joy entitled "Laurel-Hardy Murder," which is being exhibited with the above picture of great interest with the popular Metrotone News, a clever Novelty Reel, and a distinctive travelalk "Pearls and Devil Fish.

ANN HARDING SEEN IN NEW ROMANCE

Ann Harding, glamourous star of "Holiday" and "East Lynn" is seen in another delightful romance, the type of which she has made so popular, in "Devotion" which opened before a large audience at the Belle last night.

Cheated of romance, like so many other women, Helen Kingsley essays the part of a young girl who falls in love with Leslie Howard, a young married lawyer. Howard's wife is on a trip to Europe and Miss Harding, delighting in fair in love, gets a position as governess to his child by disguising her age via a wig whiz. makes her appearance many years greater than it is. Being near the man she is in love with does not alleviate matters and complications and heart throbs set in as she finds she is more in love with him every day.

Although basically romantic drama, "Devotion" has been handled with a light touch which seasons the interesting plot with deft bits of light but gay mirth. Again, it is said, that Miss Harding reveals a knack for light comedy in many of the amusing situations which hold forth in "Devotion".

Leslie Howard, Miss Harding's leading man, was last seen in "Free Soul" with Norma Shearer and in "Five and Ten" with Marion Davies. Dudley Digges and O. P. Heggie, two popular character-players are also in the cast along with the late Robert Warwick.

A varied and entertaining program of short offerings preceded the feature presentation.

At The Capitol

AUGUSTUS THOMAS' "ARIZONA" STONG FILM

Laura La Plante takes off the make of the comedienne and runs dramatically romantic in "Arizona," the picturization of Augustus Thomas' celebrated stage play which is furnishing good entertainment and some excellent acting at the Capitol Theatre, Tonight and Wednesday.

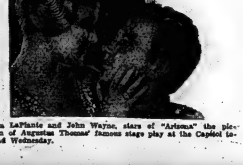
Looking more beautiful than ever and wearing her frocks with that immaculate air that all women envy, Miss La Plante carries the burden of the plot with a high hand. As Evelyn Parker she is seen first as the sweetheart of a West Point football hero, but finds the hero always thought that Bob would marry her after he graduated, and when he breaks the news rather abruptly to her that he is through, and that he doesn't consider her good enough to introduce to his guardian, Colonel Bonham, her reaction is swift and terrible. She is that dangerous thing, a woman scorned!

Meeting at a ball, she meets Col. Bonham, on a brief visit to New York from his army post in Arizona, and he falls in love with her and puts forth such ardent court, she sees her chance for revenge and for fun, and encourages Bonham. Who his guardian's bride she does not reach Bob until he arrives in Arizona for graduation, to take up his assignment with the cavalry. Complications galore in the role of Mrs. Bonham is the result as Bob and Evelyn suddenly realizes that Bob has the power to make her love him again, for she has fallen deeply in love with the Colonel and realizes he is very much in love with her, but considers a trifler.

Bob arrives not to reveal their previous relationship to Bonham but when the latter sees the open flirtation with Evelyn's pretty young sister, Bonita, Evelyn is tortured into the desperate measure of framing Bob so that it looks to Bonham as if he had attacked Evelyn. Bob is acted for his resignation and then it is discovered by Evelyn that Bob and Bonita are secretly married. She realizes that it's too late to save Bonita, and she doesn't care to save anyway.

How Evelyn undoes the damage and saves her own happiness too, is revealed in the final scenes of "Arizona," which moves swiftly from scene to scene to climax against a background of West Point, New York, and an army post of the southwest. A thrilling football game gives John Wayne, as Bob Denton, a chance to re-live the days when he was a college football star.

June Clyde as an exquisite young person as Bonita and Forrest Stanley has the proper poise and dignity of Colonel Bonham. Neal Quartaro supplies a dash of spice in a small role and Loretta Sayers, Susan Fleming and Hugh Cummings complete an excellent cast. The directorial hand of George B. Seitz is recognized in the swift movement of the story. "Arizona" is commended as a thoroughly absorbing and entertaining drama.



Wettest Summer Yet Then Driest Autumn

London, — (By The Canadian Press)—In meteorological records 1931 will go down as the year of extraordinary weather.

Summer was the wettest and coldest for more than a century. So far, autumn, is the driest and coldest for more than a century. For 17 days recently there was no rain in London and that during the month which is generally one of the wettest. Official drought prevailed in many areas in Eastern and Southern Britain.

The normal average rainfall for October at Kew Observatory was just under three inches. The previous driest October was in 1921, when there was a total fall of slightly less than half an inch.

The average night minimum temperature for October 1931, was approximately 41 degrees. Not for many years, however, has there been an autumn with such a succession of crisp, sunlit days.

Laura LaPlante and John Wayne, stars of "Arizona" the picturization of Augustus Thomas' famous stage play at the Capitol tonight and Wednesday.

Conrad Nagel and Madge Evans in "Son of India," featuring Conrad Nagel and Marjorie Rambeau, opening at the Belle tomorrow.

CHURCH UNION IS TALKED

Bishop of Mombasa Will Inquire Into Matter

Nairobi Kenya (CP) — The question of the union of Christian churches in East Africa is to be the subject of an inquiry by the Bishop of Mombasa, whose see corresponds the whole of Kenya and part of Tanganyika as the result of a resolution unanimously adopted by the Diocesan Synod meeting in Nairobi.

The African delegates especially pleaded for union in place of the present divisions, and the Synod passed the resolution welcoming the signs of a real desire for union. It expressed particular interest in the movement known as Unified Church in South India where circumstances are similar to those in East Africa. Definite conferences were proposed so that a fuller understanding of each other's problems could be obtained and a genuine search for real union under one ministry could be made.

Further discussion concerned the position and future of the Anglican communion outside England following the references to the Lambeth resolutions concerned with the subject. The Synod passed a resolution welcoming the ideal of Anglican communion as set forth in the last Lambeth report as being no mere extension of the Church of England, but as growing into a federation of self-governed churches in full communion with one another which might play an important part in a much wider union of the separated branches of a universal church.

EXPORT TRADE ON INCREASE

Canada Exported More Than She Bought in October

OTTAWA, Nov. 16 (CP) — Canada's so-termed unfavorable balance of trade for the present fiscal year was substantially reduced in October when Canadian produce exported exceeded the value of goods imported for consumption by $9,567,043. The export of Canadian produce rose to the value of $53,577,617 and the imports for consumption $43,940,574.

For the seven months of this fiscal year Canadian produce to the value of $351,054,815 has been exported and the imports for consumption totalled $364,162,891. The unfavorable trade balance is therefore $13,107,726. For last year's corresponding seven months the unfavorable balance was $78,973,053.

REV. A. H. SCOTT DIES AT PERTH

Served in One Church For Thirty-Seven Years

Perth, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)—Rev. Dr. Alexander Hugh Scott, retired minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, is dead here, aged 77. He retired in 1925 after serving as minister in the same church for 37 years. He had been in poor health since last September.

Dr. Scott was a former Moderator of the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa, and at the time of his death was clerk of the Presbytery of Lanark and Renfrew. He was once nominated for the office of Moderator of the Presbyterian Church in Canada but did not allow his name to stand.

Born in Martinown, Glengarry County, Ontario, he was educated there and at Queen's University, where he received the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Doctor of Divinity. Following ordination, he spent ten years as Minister of Knox Church in Owen Sound, Ont. He came to Perth in 1888. Dr. Scott was a well known lecturer and writer.

Surviving Dr. Scott are his widow, four sons and one daughter. The children are: Dr. Ronald Scott of Montreal; Major Clyde R. Scott of Ottawa; Gordon Scott, Perth; of Brantford, Ont.; Gordon Scott of Willingdown, Ont., and Charlotte Scott, of Perth.

The funeral will take place here Monday and interment will be at Martinown.

DEW IMPORTANT IN PLANT LIFE

As a Source of Moisture and Agency Against Rust

Winnipeg, Man.—(By The Canadian Press)—Long regarded as of little consequence among the phenomena of nature, dew has recently come into its own. It is recognized among scientists as an important factor in plant life, both as a source of moisture and as a contributing agent to the development of such plant diseases as wheat rust and potato blight.

Scientists have run into an obstacle, however, in their attempts to study dew and its effects. They have no way of measuring either the density of dew or its duration.

There is a golden opportunity for some bright young inventor or research student to make a name for himself and at the same time make a real contribution to agriculture and to science by perfecting a device to measure dew.

Almost everyone knows that dew is the more or less light film of moisture which forms on the ground in the evening, caused by a sudden cooling of moisture-laden air. Sometimes there is a heavy dew and sometimes a light one. Sometimes it lasts all night and on into the morning. Sometimes it is but only a short time.

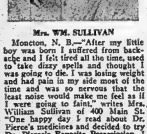
What is needed is an instrument which can be placed outside and will automatically record both these features of the dew. The effect of varying degrees of dew on different aspects of plant life could then be determined.

It has been determined that some plant diseases, due to fungus growth cannot thrive without dew. The spores rest on the plant leaves but require moisture to cause them to germinate and damage the plant. Rust is of this character. If one knew how much dew is necessary to give the rust a change one would be able to foretell the damage likely to result to crops.

Manitoba has no potato blight, a disease which causes great damage in other provinces. This is said to be due to the dry climate. There is not enough dew in Manitoba to give the blight spores a chance to germinate.

Hindus and Moslems Mourn Death of Seer

Poona, India —A Mohammedan prophetess named Babajan, who claimed to be 125 years old, has died here.



For as long as any living person can remember Babajan sat under a tamarind tree, giving advice and guidance to all who came to consult her. Both Hindus and Moslems flocked to seek her counsel and to listen to her prophecies of future events. Her death has been followed by extraordinary demonstrations of popular grief.

Medical Expenses to Be Paid By Gov't

Melbourne, Australia—The government of the State of Victoria has decided to pay a portion of the bills which farmers owe to doctors. The government has been assisting farmers with food, stock and seed, but this further liability was accepted by farmers moving away and leaving thousands of families in the back country without doctors, it was said.

The first book entered for copyright under the laws of the United States was "The Philadelphia Spelling Book."

DERBY CUP TO BE SOLD

Cup Won By "Flying Ebony" to Be Sold at Auction

New York—Six years ago a little jock colt named Flying Ebony in his racing records pounded around sloppy Churchill Downs course to in the premier trophy in United ates thoroughbred horse racing circles—the Kentucky Derby Gold Cup.

Before thousands of turf devotees Earl Sande, then rated the greatest jockey in this country, rode the blackbird thoroughbred to victory. Sande one of the most popular jockeys at the time, secured seven cents on the victor when the late Gifford A. Cochran, wealthy sportsman and patron of the arts entered Flying Ebony, not in the hope of winning the coveted premier but just to give Sande a mount in the race, for the great jockey had been strangely overlooked by other owners.

Now, nearly a year after Cochran's death, Flying Ebony's gold cup is to go on the auction block. Announcement of the sale of the historic trophy, caused a time activation in United States racing circles, because never before had a derby trophy been offered for sale. Always these treasures are held in families as heirlooms and the price one would bring in auction is not being considered.

In addition to the cup, sporting prints and paintings, early English and United States furniture and decorations will go on the block.

NEW CASES OF SEPTIC SORE THROAT

ST. THOMAS, ONT. Nov. 16.—No new cases of septic sore throat have been reported here in 24 hours. The last death from the Streptococcus infection occurred Saturday, nothing and all patients now under doctors care are reported improving. These facts, local health authorities assert, show that the situation is clearing up and their fondest is backed up by Dr. McNally, district officer of health, who was here Saturday and again this morning.

KAISER DROPS AXE FOR SAW

Has Chopped Down All Superfluous Trees on Estate

Doorn, Holland—William Hohenzollern, long the "Imperial woodchopper of Doorn", has dropped his axe for an electric saw and almost worked himself out of a job.

The former Kaiser made the change partly because of his advancing age—he is nearly 73—but mostly because he has chopped down every superfluous tree on the estate. He now buries himself in reducing to stove-size with the mechanized saw lumber imported to Doorn manor from elsewhere.

75 U. S. SENATORS PAY CANADIAN VISIT

Montreal, Que., Nov. 16—The party of 75 United States Senators, Congressmen and officials visiting Canada under the aegis of William Randolph Hearst, publisher, to study operation of the sales tax, had an opportunity today to discuss its workings with prominent business men when they were guests of the Montreal Board of Trade. They arrived in Montreal yesterday and will visit Ottawa and Quebec before returning home.

Alentian Islands Come Into Own

Vancouver, B. C. (By The Canadian Press)—The Aleutian Islands, once regarded as almost valueless, are becoming an important factor in North Pacific wool trade. Twenty five tons of wool from sheep ranches of the Aleutians were brought south recently and turned over to the Pacific Co-operative Wool Growers.

The wool was produced by sheep grazing on islands in the North Pacific more than 1,000 miles due west of Prince Rupert.

Dutch Harbor, a United States radio station, is the shipping point for a number of scattered farmers in the Aleutian Islands engaged in sheep raising and fur farming.

The Aleutians are in the same latitude as much of the British Isles, although the climate is much milder, this in certain areas the climate is such as to encourage the growth of fodder crops.

With the advance of trans-Pacific aviation Dutch Harbor will attain considerable importance.

DEATH ENSUES IN BLAST INJURIES

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Nov. 16—Robert Edgar Hough, 27, of Bishop's Mills died last night in the general hospital here as the result of injuries received on Thursday last in an explosion of dynamite at that place. Deceased lost one eye and one hand in the accident as well as receiving other injuries. With Murdoch Fitzgerald and Adam Murdoch, Hough was engaged in blasting a rock on the farm of Arthur Baker, when a charge of dynamite exploded prematurely. Hough receiving the full force of the blast. Fitzgerald is reported less seriously and is recovering, while Murdoch suffered only from shock and slight cuts.

Kenya County Suffer From Locust Plague

NAIROBI, Kenya, East Africa —(By Canadian Press)—East Africa Kenya Colony is again suffering from a severe plague of locusts. As yet no satisfactory check for these devastating insects has been found. The insects are known to emerge from definite breeding areas. They travel in closely packed swarms for long distances. Then the swarms spread, settle, and breed again. The new generation begins at once to devour crops and pasture, and soon reduce prosperous country to a desert.

The last invasion of Kenya began in May, 1931, and did not cease till March, 1930. The insect was then the variety known as the desert locust, and came from the Sudan and Abyssinia.

Breeding grounds are believed also to exist in the French Sahara, and a conference was opened in Rome this September to discuss ways and means of international co-operation to combat the pests.

This year, however, the species is the migratory locust. It is even more destructive than the desert locust and harder to deal with. Its breeding-grounds in Central Africa are as yet unknown. The government is using various measures of defence, and a reward of £5 sterling has been offered for an effectual method for destroying the second generation as it emerges from the eggs. But until the original breeding grounds have been found and silenced there seems little hope of checking the plague.

Minister Asphyxiated Says Jury's Verdict

London—The Rev. F. W. C. Woodall, vicar of Lessfield, was "possessed of an evil spirit, had lost his faith in God, and had put curses upon his wife and children," a coroner's jury decided after he had been found asphyxiated at the vicarage.

The evidence showed Rev. Woodall kept his children in bed for days, feeding them only dry bread and water. After his 19-year old wife died from the same fare, some in fright, it was testified, the vicar wrote: "I lay upon you punishment which shall live with you until your last hour. Nor shall you shall enter into your existence, and if you have children, they shall be a curse to you."

Just before his death he left a note for his wife saying: "You will spend the rest of your life on charity. You are a murderess and shall not benefit by my will."

Playwrights Prosper By Selling Plays

Moscow—Playwrights in Russia are their own play brokers. They pay no commission and no "middle man" figures in getting their plays to the production stage. They submit them directly to the theatre which considers and buys if they produce them. Those with average reputations earn from 500 to 5,000 a year. The better known authors earn upwards of $25,000.

A new play is subjected to rigid inspection not only for artistic merit, but to determine whether it conforms to communistic doctrines. It does not if it is either rejected or changed.

Hunts Big Game with Bow and Arrow

Prince George, B. C.—(By The Canadian Press)— When Forest Ranger of Milwaukee goes after big game in central British Columbia he shuns firearms and trusts to his bow.

Pursuing big game in the mountains north of Longreach, Ranger shot down a large moose, a bear and numerous with his bow and arrow. He said the country was ideal for the bow and arrow sport.

"There is far more sport in hunting big game with bow and arrow than with a rifle," said Ranger, "it requires more skill on the part of the hunter and gives the animals a better chance. You have to be a pretty smart bowman to bring down a bear, and I consider myself fortunate in being able to kill a bear with a narrow in fifteen seconds."

HEAVY VOTE ANTICIPATED

Balmy Weather and Keen Interest Brings Out Voters

Guelph, Ont., Nov. 18 — Prospects for a heavy vote in the South Wellington by-election on Monday were indicated today as electors went to the polls to chose a successor to the late Hon. Lincoln Goodeve. Bright, clear weather is manifestation of a keener interest than has yet been shown were taken as indications that the balmy weather would be heavy, particularly in the party organizations and the campaigners and cars were busy from the moment the polls opened at 9 o'clock this morning. The polls close at 5 p.m.

Little doubt was expressed that the result would be a true result of the voters in the city, and the particularly favorable weather was welcomed wholeheartedly by all the parties.

The campaign closed last night, Mitchell Hepburn, Liberal leader, wound up a vigorous two weeks' activity in this riding by further criticism of provincial extravagance and Hydro administration at a meeting which crowded the city hall auditorium.

The opposing candidates in the by-election are Dr. Paul Munro, Conservative, and D. Paul Munro, Liberal. Munro is a well known manufacturer and Mr. Munro is one of the city's prominent young barristers.

Grain Export From Russia is About Over, Says Ottawa

Rosy Picture of Wheat Exporter Seen By Bureau

BUOYANT FEELING

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—A rosy picture for the Canadian wheat exporter, with Canada and the United States predicted to enjoy increased sales in the world markets, is set out in a monthly review issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

From now on Russia, at best, it is considered, will be but an occasional exporter, it being regarded as certain that the bulk of the grain movement of Russian wheat will come is over for this year. The early movement of Russian wheat and barley this will be heavily drawn upon during the balance of the 1931-1932 crop year.

Canada is in a particularly favorable position, adding, as she does, only moderate supplies of relatively high grade wheat, and the augmented future is bright. World import requirements for the present crop year will amount to at least 625,000,000 bushels, against 585,000,000 bushels of the 783,000,000 bushels during 1930-1931. The Bureau's Review says:

"To fulfill import requirements on this basis, it is apparent from preliminary production estimated in exporting countries that the entire surplus from the 1931 wheat crop in exporting countries will be insufficient to meet the import requirements and that before July 31, 1932, accumulated stocks will have to be drawn upon. Canada and the United States, the two countries that have been holding the bulk of the accumulated stocks for the past several years will benefit and will emerge from the present crop year with comparatively reduced holdings in the way of surplus wheat."

PRINCE DEFIES KING CAROL

Quarrel Arises When Prince is Wed to a Commoner

PARIS, Nov. 18.—Prince Nikolas of Rumania is under threat of arrest by his brother, King Carol, following a hot quarrel between the two at the Palace in Bucharest after the prince's recent marriage to a commoner, it was learned today.

The details of the quarrel, just arrived here, told of a stormy scene in which King Carol tore up the marriage certificates before the eyes of the Prince and the Prince countered with defiance, declaring he had had philosophical courage.

"I anticipated your unreasonable behavior," the Prince snapped, "over your bad temper. I had copies made of those papers. You don't think I intend to allow my children to be declared illegitimate, do you?"

"You will have time to think to think this over, young man," the King replied. "Remember, I can put you under arrest at any moment and deprive you of all your royal privileges."

Prince Nikolas, it was said, turned his back and walked out of the royal presence. Bucharest is said to be waiting the outcome with excitement.

SALARY CASE BEFORE BOARD

Senator Murdock Outlines Case of Railway Men

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 18 (CP)— The proposed reduction of 10 per cent. in the wages of the various classes employed on the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National Railways to whom the decrease would apply would mean a saving of approximately $5,000,000 to the railways, on the basis of the current payroll, George Hodge, vice president of the Canadian Brotherhood C.P.R., informed the board of conciliation here today.

Senator Murdock "served notice" on the railways that the men would "consider the matter fully" and at a determining factor in the adjustment of wages, but demanded that such adjustment be made on the basis of comparative standards as between Canadian and United States railwaymen. Expressing dissatisfaction with the financial statement of the roads presented yesterday by Mr. Hodge, who asked that two directors of the C.N.R. be requested to appear before the board in order to clarify some figures given.

In five years the C.P.R. had paid out $167,000,000 in dividends to share holders, he said, the point why men should be required to take a cut in pay, reduction just because "there was a falling off in figures was in the red for the first nine months of this year. Some consideration must be unduly slanted, he thought, must be held to operate a better deal on the Canadianism.

The session adjourned with a plea by Mr. Murdock for more time when in to examine the railways' reports. Sessions are expected to present further rebuttal evidence. It was indicated whether the deliberations would be resumed this afternoon, but announcement of further procedure will be made around four o'clock.

Where is "Coleman Flats" Building? Tenant Anxious

Whether some of the local boys were indulging in a little leg pulling on the part of some newcomers or not it is hard to tell, but "last evening a young traveller in an obviously weary and heavily loaded right car stopped one of the residents who lives near Coleman Hill and inquired the way to Coleman Flats.

He was, he explained, looking for an apartment in the house called Flats," (a building it I presumed) and some young men had directed him across the river to the prob-able location, but so far he had been unable to find it. When asked if he had the correct address or not he said he had it from Hamilton, and showed a very crumpled note on which he had got located he would drive back and bring her here. When asked as to what the house one evidently had been "taking him for a ride" he said that he had no rent expression, he started up the road with his bits of furniture, kitchen utensils and mattress-ticking out of it and disappeared down North Front street hill.

FOOD FOR MEN WITHOUT HOMES

Quite a large variety of food which was left over after the anniversary supper at St. Andrew's Church on Tuesday evening, was given to the city police department for the use of transients. The department appreciates very much the kindly action of the church authorities. Nineteen transients registered at the city police station on Tuesday night.

STOLEN MOTORS VERY PLENTIFUL

The city police department received a number of inquiries Wednesday morning to be on the lookout for stolen cars. On November 11th, a car bearing license number 9-431, serial number 18598, was stolen at Toronto. From Ottawa two cars were stolen, one on November 12th, a Ford, and one on November 11. The numbers are Ontario license BY-105, serial number 2-561468 and Quebec license 57507. BY license number 6 was stolen and was received that car bearing license number 6 was stolen in that city.

ARGYLL CHAPTER ENTERTAINS

The ladies of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. were hostesses last night to some hundred guests, in the officers' quarters at the Armouries. The occasion was an invitation bridge, twenty tables playing during the evening. The proceeds will be devoted to the Whitby charity work of the Chapter. Mrs. Eric Keeler, regent of the chapter, and Mrs. E. A. Green received the guests, while Mrs. Lorne Green and Mrs. George Caldwell presided at the luncheon table.

SGT., MRS. STOREY ARE ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Booth, 47 Yeomans street, entertained Tuesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Storey, who are leaving Belleville to reside in Ottawa, to which city Mr. Storey has been transferred to fill the position of Sergeant at the Ottawa District Office of the Ontario Provincial Police. A most enjoyable evening was passed by the guests, all of whom expressed regret at the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Storey from Belleville and as a slight remembrance presented them with a handsome Cascarole.

MRS. BUNKIN IS INJURED IN FALL

While descending the stairs of a Front Street apartment house Saturday morning, Mrs. Bunkin unfortunately missed a tread and fell quite heavily, bruising herself severely. She was taken to the hospital and to the home of Mrs. Andrews, 12 Bosworth street.

CAR HITS CULVERT ROSS PAYNE HURT

While driving home from Belleville on Saturday, Mr. Ross Payne ran into a culvert near Mt. Pleasant, smashing the car badly. Mr. Payne suffered a badly cut lip and other injuries. He was taken into the Morris home and Constable Lovelace was called to investigate the case. The car, a Ford, was badly smashed, and was removed to Channell's garage, Bloomfield.

REV. CECIL WINTER NOW RURAL DEAN

Word has reached here today that Rev. Cecil Winters, Rector of St. Mary's Church, Campbellford, has been appointed Rural Dean by the Rt. Rev. John C. Roper, Bishop of Kingston. At the last rural deanery meeting in Madoc, Mr. Winters was nominated to receive this distinction.

TERMS TO EXPIRE ON SCHOOL BOARD

Two year terms on the Board of Education have been completed by seven members of the Board, who will either stand for re-election or retire; —E. W. Dickens, Foster Ward; P. B. Smith, Sampson Ward; Chas. E. Cameron, Ketcheson Ward; —. E. McLean, Belleville Ward; Wm. Harvey, Bleecker Ward; R. P. White, Coleman Ward; A. Schryver, Murney Ward. H. W. Ackerman and J. W. Marlow are completing 4 years terms as appointees of the city council.

MARKET JAMMED WITH NIGHT CARS

Several times a week the city market square is used as a parking place for cars belonging to people who are passing the night at hotels in town. Wednesday morning at eight o'clock there were thirty-five cars parked there besides several large transports.

RED ROSEBUSH IN FULL BLOOM

Mr. Wesley Deline, John street, is proud of a rosebush which is in full bloom today in spite of the late date. The bush has many buds.

NEARLY 500 FETED AT ST. ANDREW'S

Nearly five hundred partook of the chicken dinner at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening this being the annual banquet held under the auspices of the church. The members and their friends assembled early and more than two sittings were required to meet the total of those who attended the function. The tables were rich in decorations and especially those provided by the rich looking viands of all kinds from cake, pie, to cakes, jellies and every other kind of edible. During the progress of the banquet Mr. W. E. Wheatley, organist, rendered an organ program of much merit, some of his more prominent numbers including "Chanlons of Bruges" by Meale; "Suite Gothique" by Boellman; "Mighty Lak a Rose", "Down River", spirituel and "Fantasie on 'Old Kentucky Home'".

DOGS BATTLE ON COLEMAN STREET

Residents of the lower end of Coleman street were treated to a good old fashioned, knock 'em down and drag 'em out dog fight on that thoroughfare this morning. Preliminary steps in the manufacture of this pitched battle were caused by the appearance of a typical local bully of a dog, who seemed to take offense at a smaller dog who was trotting quietly by. Hostilities were precipitated when he made a rush at the latter.

The smaller dog, which resembled an Irish Setter, quickly developed the mongrel collie's rush and the fight was on in real earnest, lasting as he went by. From then on the battle was drawn to a fairly early conclusion and much attendant noise, confusion and hysterical yappings of dogs and shouting of men, doubt sincerely wished that he were away from the disturbance. After sufficient punishment had been meted out by the bulldog, it took two or three more finishing slashes at the quivering dog, evidently let go and stood among the litter of hairs on the sidewalk watching the latter retreat with the air of former enemy retreating swiftly up the street. Then, with a shake of his head as if ignoring the incident altogether, he trotted away off the way he had been going when he was stopped.

PARISH HALL WAS NICELY DECORATED

The Women's Institute whose convention was held in Belleville last week was delighted with the attractive decorations which had been provided for the occasion. The stage was a bower of greens, with a shield of blossoms, ferns and plants. The firms, who kindly contributed displays for the occasion were B. Ross & Sons and the Canadian Department Store.

ONLY ONE CASE HEARD IN COURT

Only one case was heard at the local Police Court this morning, that being a charge of drunkenness which was dangerous to the 'public' against a resident of Stirling was dismissed on suspended sentence.

WORK UPON CIVIC PICTURE PROGRESS

Work on the making of Belleville's civic and industrial motion picture is rapidly progressing and tomorrow night at the movie ball there will be shown a "Belle Belleville" of the Movies" is made will undoubtedly be a very memorable event for some time to come in the minds of those who are present at this extraordinary attraction.

The Kiwanians themselves at their noon-day luncheon today and after their luncheon as well will be "movie" by the cameramen and the producers and many other scenes about the city will be taken during the balance of this week.

Though it is a far cry from Front street to Hollywood, Main street or Boulevard in "Immaland", many of our people will experience that same thrill during the next few days that a visitor to the Hollywood studio of land experiences when first invited to witness the process which is used as "atmosphere" in the making of street scenes for a production, scenes of Belleville are being made daily now and when the picture is shown at the movie ball next week a surprise is promised.

A beautiful and loving cup will be presented to the young lady who is selected as "Miss Belleville of the Movies" tomorrow night at Johnstone's Academy, the cup being on display at present in a Front street window.

Two orchestras will be on hand for the music and with the click of the camera, the work directed and the thousands of candle power studio atmosphere will prevail.

MEN WEAR MONOCLE BUT MOTORS DO NOT

The use of the "Monocle" light on motor cars is not looked upon with favor by the city police and when one is seen in operation, which if at all possible, the driver is stopped and ordered to have lamps put in order so that two may be used. Tuesday night a Belleville motorman was driving his car on Front street with the "Monocle" lighted and was warned by Constable Taylor to have the second light put into commission. He was also understood that this is the second and last warning for this offense to be received by this motorist.

MOTOR BACKS INTO STANDING CAR

Shortly after eleven o'clock Tuesday night the Belleville taxi driver, informed the city police that a motorist, whom he named, had backed into his car on Dundas St., causing some damage to it and that the driver, however, did not stop. The matter is being investigated by the police.

JOBLESS WOMEN TO HOLD MEETING

Much interest is being aroused by the decision of the unemployed women of Belleville to hold their meeting in the city hall at 7:30 tonight. At this meeting some means will probably be received which will lead to some method whereby they will be able to get work which is needed by most of them almost as much, if not more, than the men who have already held several of these joblessness affairs.

Their meeting will be prior to the meeting of the Unemployed Association which is to be held in the same place immediately after the women get through.

MESSENGER BOY LOSES BICYCLE

While on duty Monday evening, Harold Gardner, messenger boy employed by the Canadian National Telegraph office, had the misfortune of having his bicycle stolen. Harold left his wheel parked on Campbell street as is the usual custom of the messenger boys and while waiting for a message some party took the wheel. The theft was reported to the local police who are endeavoring to recover the bicycle. The wheel was of the Ranger make and was painted black trimmed with red. The young man is naturally quite anxious to recover the cycle as he needs it in his business.

FRACTURES FOOT FOR SECOND TIME

Falling on the same foot that was injured during the last World War, Mr. Rufus Gulliver had the misfortune of falling last Sunday and fracturing the same foot. This is the sad further confinement to Mr. Gulliver who has already been at home ill for the past 9 months.

Relief and Welfare Mobilization

Activities of Various Committees of Relief Work in Belleville

Central Committee:
Mayor Reid, Chairman.
Finance Committee:
G. A. C. Weir, Chairman.
Supplies Committee:
E. V. Hisey, Chairman.
Employment Committee:
Major L. F. Wallbridge, Chairman.
Treasurer: H. B. Stock.
Secretary: R. Chamberlain.

Mr. E. V. Hisey, chairman of the Supplies Committee, addressed the guests at the annual turkey dinner made recently and the Rotary-Parmer gathering in Belleville, in regard to the collection of any fruit and vegetables for the unemployed in Belleville. Generous response has been made, including the following: 10 barrels of apples from George L. Ketcheson, fifth concession Sidney; 10 bags of potatoes, Major P. Bird, Stirling; 1 bag potatoes, Mr. Dunlop, Octavia street; 10 bags potatoes, Mr. Hamilton, Front road, Edward County. Any one having food or vegetables to contribute to city or country can have the same called for by telephoning Hisey.

Quite a number of baskets of apples were given out at the city hall as the result of the call in last week's issue of the Intelligencer and before their luncheon as well as "movie" by the cameramen and the producers and many other scenes about the city will be taken during the balance of this week.

Though it is a far cry from Front street to Hollywood, Main street or Boulevard in "Immaland", many of our people will experience that same thrill during the next few days that a visitor to the Hollywood studio of land experiences when first invited to witness the process which is used as "atmosphere" in the making of street scenes for a production, scenes of Belleville are being made daily now and when the picture is shown at the movie ball next week a surprise is promised.

A beautiful and loving cup will be presented to the young lady who is selected as "Miss Belleville of the Movies" tomorrow night at Johnstone's Academy, the cup being on display at present in a Front street window.

Two orchestras will be on hand for the music and with the click of the camera, the work directed and the thousands of candle power studio atmosphere will prevail.

Registered on the list for relief employment are 454 men. Married men with families and single men supporting families are given preference. There are over one hundred single men out of work. These are mechanics and white collar men out of work. Those who have jobs should be thankful and help those who are out of work.

Supposing some one out of work and desperate came and offered to take your job for half the salary you are willing? Make it so that the unemployed as pleasant as possible by doing your bit.

What's a day's pay a month? Supposing you only had one day's work a month?

One hundred men work three days in the corporation, more than three hundred are waiting their turn. If you can get that work three days a week he is lucky. Forty cents an hour, eight hours, $9.60 every two weeks to keep a family. How would you like to try it?

Children's clothing and boots are needed, also boys 9 to 14, also warm winter underclothing for men.

Despite the large quantities of clothing sent in to relief headquarters there is still great need. Most of the clothing sent in has already been given out. Let's not be weary in well doing.

Cash subscriptions can be, left at any of the banks, given to the city treasurer or paid in with business groups by employees. Let's get this over quickly and assure a Happy Christmas for the employed and the unemployed.

Donations of foodstuffs, apples, clothing and other necessities are still being received at headquarters of the General Relief Committee. The demand, so far, still exceeds the supply.

An urgent plea for overcoats of all kinds, boots, clothing for children and warm clothing for the little tots has been made by the women in charge of these donations. Many mothers come there daily for clothing for their children only to be disappointed when they cannot be supplied them. The disappointment is felt quite keenly at times.

WORK TO BEGIN IN APRIL NEXT

Citizens Hear From Mr. R. J. Graham of Plans

Responding to the invitation, extended to citizens by the Local Council of Women, a large and representative gathering of ladies and gentlemen met in the Council Chamber last evening when various interests were represented but no definite proposition on the location of the monument had been forthcoming, and so little accomplished, that he had decided to go ahead with the proposed work in April. He already put in the foundation at Memorial Park. At this point those who were present said, they thought the opposition had died down and the location was lessening and with Cranilton Road becoming soon, a link of the Provincial Highway system the reasonableness of the selection of the Memorial Park was favorably received. The park would with adjacent streets accommodate a crowd of 3,000 to 4,000 in times of celebrations, while those who wished it to be a spot of quiet for meditation would find the memorial situated far enough from the traffic for this purpose.

Mr. Graham related the steps taken during the past few months in connection with the monument, finally deciding on a duplicate of the Soldiers' Memorial in Ottawa. It should not be confused with the monument commemorating the battle fought there in 1837. Mr. Intosh Bros of Toronto, had erected this, and had the contract for similar work with them to start work on the Belleville memorial in April next.

A. C. Campbell, Belleville will do part of the work. The base (in three sections) and the shaft will be of Queenston stone. The shaft having roughly 30 feet high while the figure surmounting it will have a height of 12 feet. It would result in immediate available parking space and would then be the explanation becomes an actuality, and would go far towards relieving the undesirable congestion now prevalent on Front street.

ENGLAND DEFEATS WALES

Liverpool, Eng., Nov. 18 (CP cable)—England defeated Wales by a goal to 1 in an International Soccer Match today at Anfield Road. The sides were deadlocked at half time, both having scored a goal.

COL. ADBY TELLS OF EARLY LIFE IN ARMY

Last evening at the Salvation Army Citadel, Colonel Adby, lately retired from active Salvation Army service, after 46 years of duty, gave an "Inspiring and interesting lecture" "Early days in the Salvation Army." Had the subject been made known of this lecture, the hall would have been more than filled and should the colonel again give the lecture here, he may feel assured of a prepondering and interested audience. While in the city Colonel Adby was the guest of Ensign Calvert and band master Wardle.

SMALLER JOBS CONTEMPLATED

Prospect Other Work in Addition to Water Main Digging

Members connected with the relief work being performed by the city department of public works feel that an explanation is due some of the local workmen regarding conditions under which different construction projects are now being undertaken. It is claimed that some dissatisfaction exists among them because there are not more men being called for work, particularly on the spare water main excavation which is now being dug.

If, as it was explained to them, some one hundred men were to be hired and put to work all at once as it is wanted to be done, then the men would not only be in the way of each other on the job, but also the whole thing would be largely completed before the really cold weather sets in. This also would necessitate extra foremen, extra cost of construction and other incidentals. It was stated that smaller jobs now being contemplated by the council and it is hoped that the greater majority of those on the registration, will be absorbed.

Among the number of improvements is included the suggestion that several of those now on the list be put straight on up the rear of some of the stores along where the proposed explanade is to be routed. This would result in immediate available parking space until such time as the explanade becomes an actuality, and would go far towards relieving the undesirable congestion now prevalent on Front street.

700 SKATERS OPEN SEASON

Ice is Heavy But Band Keeps Crowd in Good Humor

Young, old, large, small, good, bad and indifferent skaters were out in large numbers at the official opening of the Belleville Arena last evening. Over 700 people, the largest crowd of the winter to date, were present on the surface, took advantage of the early skating. The ice, although a bit wet on the surface, was in very good condition considering the mild weather. Toe-maker Martin explained to the Ontario Intelligencer that with the mercury hovering around 58 and a crowd of skaters, such as were in evidence last night, it was almost an impossibility to keep the ice dry. He explained that it was much easier to make ice for hockey as there were no spectators on the ice at one time and therefor did not produce the moisture that skaters as a large number of skaters do. Martin assured the public that as soon as the mercury dropped a bit he would have much better ice.

The music for the skaters was provided by the Belleville Citizens' Band and was enjoyed by all present. Skating is evidently on the upward swing and with over 500 season tickets have been sold so far this season and every possessor of one was present last night.

Following the skating the Napanee hockey team practiced from 10 p.m. until 11 p.m., the preparing for their scheduled league game in Kingston tonight. Owing to the fact that the ice plant of the Kingston Arena broke down, the Napanee team were forced to come to Belleville to practice last night. It is expected that the ice plant of the Kingston rink will be repaired in order that their city league can open tonight.

MERCURY REACHES NEW HIGH OF 62

Steadily rising until it reached 62 yesterday afternoon, the mercury established a high record for the month of November. Although the present weather is somewhat unseasonable it is not nearly as much so as the citizens of this vicinity. Today's temperatures were 58 high and 34 low. This is the most unusual recording that has been seen locally in some years past as there was but a difference of 8 points between the high and low of today's temperature. At this time of the year it is customary for a difference of between 25 and 30 degrees.

HIGHWAY JOB HAS ITS CHARM

Belleville Boy Writes Home Telling of Romance of Construction

The thirty men who left Belleville a short time ago for the road construction of the Government highway in Northern Ontario had no idea as to what kind of an adventure they were embarking upon. This did until lunches, parka and calculations—they required were and there was much to be done in the opportunity to go north and help to build this highway. Many were willing to take a chance on being property taken care of. Their attitude was the right one and now that they are settled in camp and they are well pleased with the job itself and with all the arrangements of the camp. Friends of the men in Belleville will be interested in receiving the following letter from Ken Brown, telling of their work and camp life. Ahmic Harbour is inland from Burks' Falls, which is the railway point:

Nov. 5, 1931, Ahmic Harbour, Camp 1, Highway Camp
The Ontario Intelligencer:

Just dropping a line to tell you we are all well. We only had two hours this week because of rain. The boys are all in the best and are not complaining. There are eight of us in a tent. Each man has a heavy wool blankets are allowed to each man and we have a stove in the night watchman flees the fires every hour and supplies the men with hot water, drinking water and soap. He also mails all letters but doesn't supply stamps. We had fresh roast beef, green peas, boiled potatoes, fresh bread, jam and butter, apple pudding, cake and tea for supper. Last night we should have seen Joe Crewson eat. About fifty lumber jacks in the lumber camps on Saturday. We are situated on the shores of Ahmic Lake. We can also see the beaver working on trees across the harbour. We probably have a few more camp in the north. Well, must close now, hoping to hear from Belleville soon.

Yours truly,
KEN BROWN.

Mr. C. E. Hanna has received the following two letters from the boys on the highway camp:

Mr. J. C. Birtstaste,
Care Stewart's Camp,
Ahmic Harbour, Ont.

Dear Charlie:—

We are all safe and sound, arrived here Monday morning 6.20 a.m. We started work the same morning. Some of the boys were feeling rough when they arrived but we are 22 miles west of Burk's Falls and are making a road to Perry Sound. There are about 14 camps engaged in this work.

Weather fine and good, there good meals a day, and 8 hours work. Pick and shovel.

The boys were a little disappointed at first, because they can't edit Government Store to get clothes, they can only buy cigarettes, and lots of the boys are flat broke and pay day is not until the 15th of December.

We have a decent bunch in our Hut, 8 in a hut, and 30 men to a camp. There is Reg. Brockhurst, Art Crewson, Jim Harvey, Roy Clark, Carl Salisbury, Ken Brown, and myself and we were wondering what price a Coleman's Eastern Flyer and Bell & Howell Panatrales and two generators. Will you let me know what price these articles will cost the boys. (Wholesale).

Hoping everybody is well and things are picking up in Belleville.

So Au Revoir from Hut No. 3 which we have named The Beavers.

(Signed) J. Birtstaste.

Dinky Moores Hut,
Camp Highway Camp,
Ahmic Harbour.

Dear Friend Charlie:—

Just a line to let you know that things out here are alright but we have no way of smoking and well we, the boys of number one hut, appeal to you to help us out as we do not receive any money until about a month and not a damn one of us has any tobacco. We are nearly 12 miles to the nearest town, and no canteen in camp.

Would you kindly look into it for us and we will appreciate it very much.

We remain,
Yours truly,
The Boys of Dinky's Hut No. 1.

Signed by the following: Ernest Moore, Bert Kidd, Joe Hall, Reg. Humphries, Jack McEwan, Jack Cottrell and Art Woodrow.

STEEL TRADE IS BROADENING OUT

MONTREAL, Que., Nov. 18.—While the Mackinnon Steel Corporation, Limited, had only sufficient orders on hand to operate at part time until March, 1932, there were some indications of a broadening demand for steel, D. H. McDougall, president, told the annual meeting of shareholders here yesterday.

The steel corporation's Officers and directors were re-elected and Thomas Hutchinson was elected a director to fill the vacancy created by the death of Robert A. McCuaig.

CHOICE OF HURON

Bishop C. A. Seager, M.A., D.D., LL.D., of the Diocese of Ontario, who was yesterday offered the Bishopric of Huron. He has not yet decided whether or not to accept.

FAVOR SEAGER IN HURON SEE

Bishop of Ontario Will Take Time To Consider Offer

Kingston, Nov. 18—"I have made no decision as yet," said Rt. Rev. C. A. Seager, Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Ontario, when asked this morning as to what action he would take in connection with his appointment as Bishop of Huron.

"I am going to London today and I will meet a committee of the Synod of Huron this evening, after which I will no doubt be able to make a decision.

"I know nothing of the condition of the Diocese and although I have been long among them I am hardly well enough acquainted to say definitely what I will do at this moment."

London, Ont., Nov. 18.—Rt. Rev. Charles Allen Seager, M.A., D.D., LL.D., Lord Bishop of Ontario, whose cathedral city is Kingston, was last night elected Fifth Bishop of Huron to succeed Archbishop David Williams who passed away in October 7.

Whether Dr. Seager will accept the Bishopric of this important diocese is not yet decided. Today a delegation from the Synod goes to Toronto to meet with Bishop Seager and press the claims of the Diocese of Huron. When the result of the ballots was announced last night Dr. Seager was informed of his election over the phone. Canon Perkins, Chatham Honorary Clerical Secretary of the Synod, talked with Dr. Seager and informed the Synod that the Bishop-elect was not ready to accept the office last night. He desired time to consider. The election was unexpected he said and he must take that careful consideration the different field of work offered by the two dioceses, Ontario and Huron. He could not say when he would give a definite answer but as he is to be in Toronto today he asked that a delegation here this there. The Synod decided to accede to his request.

Consequently the Synod adjourned at 12.30 o'clock this morning to meet again at the call of the chair if necessary. Dr. Seager does not accept then Synod will meet again, likely within a month.

Prior to the election of Dr. Seager, the Bishopric had been offered to Very Rev. Dean Carlisle, of Montreal, who after thinking the offer over for an hour or so decided to refuse. Dean Carlisle was the choice on the second ballot. He was a local high school graduate and his acceptance was considered certain. Many of the Synod members left after his election without waiting to hear Dean Carlisle's decision.

CATERWAULS STIR SECTION

Wails As of a Lost Spirit Rouse West Moira Street Folk

The other evening the balmy stillness of the clear Fall air on the neighborhood of West Moira Street was torn asunder by an unearthly yowl, which seemed to come from nowhere, and lingered in the atmosphere until human nerves jumped and jangled and hung waveringly at the breaking point until it seemed as if no power on earth could ever restore them to their former condition of normality.

Presently stood transfixed, awed and uncertain, and peered fearfully around and over trembling shoulders as if expecting the hoo as all devils to come up to them at last, lay strong hands on them and carry them off to unknown and terrible regions. Those, whose consciences were not so guilty, peered fearfully around peering around hedges and bushes and nearby fences, but could see there to be seen any source of what must have been a despairing cry of some lost soul. Then, in nearly all houses were thrown open, harried householders dragged themselves out in the gathering gloom and looked in vain for some sign of the unearthly animal or human being wilfully tortured. But as the wailing-piece, which seemed to be the master of ceremonies, bounced hither and yon and distributed themselves slowly but still audibly, silence again descended upon the countryside.

Then came a second agonizing cry, weird and awful. Slow and full of suspense in its initial stages, gradually mounted in crescendo until it rose to a height that were hushed, and all four-footed animals and birds, including the biting-place, featured ear-drums again were racked with its terrible portent of dire happenings and impending disasters, summoning up unheard-of courage to investigate, but not daring to cast to its hiding place.

Local police parties were organized; small boys were pressed into service, but the search failed to find strong-hearted enough to bear the noise of this frightful demon—and the work of the night was abandoned. Surely help was needed badly for the wailing-piece, for the last, which sagnished tones to the sky above.

At last the thing was discovered. It was a cat, a poor, lost cat, which sat on enormous cat, pet of the Hamilton family, who had been probably chased there by some wandering dog. Ladders were procured to the fence in the manner of the rescue. "Thomas" was slowly hauled down spitting, screaming and clawing at all who tried to help him regain once again old mother earth who he had deserted to sit in a tree and pour forth heart-rending caterwauls for all who might hear.

Once more peace and quietness has descended upon the neighborhood, and once more Thomas sits on the doorstep in the warm sun by day, and the soft rug in front of the kitchen stove by night. His chances are being taken by his owners of late, and he seems to sit in in any tree and practise what might be termed the conceivably called "music," but which seemed to the neighborhood at large a lost soul looking for some place to rest its weary spirit.

Local Star-Gazers See Nary a Lenoid in Starry Heavens

Astronomers Seek 1931 Flock of Meteors, See None

AGAIN IN 1932

Amateur astronomers were out in force last night scanning the heavens with all sorts of weird optical instruments, ranging from opera glasses right up to real telescopes—but nary a Leonid was to be seen. Not even a little teeny weeny one. However, don't sell your high power binocular or your little brass telescope just yet. Put them by on the shelf in the clothes closet until 1932 or 1932, when, scientists tell us, there will be a whole new flock of them coming to visit us.

Leonids, so a contemporary informs us, are "any of the fire balls that come from a lot of star-peepers down in Washington, are caused by the earth's atmosphere coming into contact with the orbit in which the meteors move. This orbit is an ellipse 1,000,000 miles long and 100,000 wide, around the sun, in which the meteors move at the rate of about 50,000,000 miles per year"—which sounds like a lot of speed when you get it quite other considered—the earth strikes the concentrated part of the meteoric swarm and then we have such displays as those of 1833 and 1866. Sometimes the orbit misses the earth completely, in that it appears to have done this time.

Well, there's the figures all marked down for you and you can do the rest of the calculations yourself. Unfortunately we haven't the instruments here to check those particular statistics, but even then if we did have them and did check them over we would probably have to enter into some controversy with some of the local astronomers, so perhaps we had better let them alone. All we were interested in anyhow was the fireworks.

TRENTON NEWS

15 YOUNG MEN LEAVING FOR HIGHWAY POST

Hockey Prospects None Too Bright in Trenton

CAR IN DITCH

Trenton, Nov. 18 (Special) —Fifteen Trenton boys are leaving for the back north and the men are to go to Tache, between Port William and Winnipeg, Man. The men are to go by C.P.R. as this is the nearest road to Tache. They are very anxious to be away and will no doubt do well in their new jobs. Some of the boys are badly in need of the jobs. It is expected to place about 100 men by the New Year. This will take care of most of the single men who are unemployed in town. A list of those boys who will board the C.P.R. train tomorrow includes A. Scarlet, E. Scarlet, H. Gilbert, J. Beckwith, J. Dadswell, A. Vaughan, W. Macachen, J. Fullerton, K. Bakewell, R. Sherrard, J. O'Neil, R. Mikel, W. Coe, E. Fitzgerald, J. Dafoe will be the escort.

Mr. L. F. Green, of the Government Employment Office, is in Trenton today arranging for the departure and transportation of the men.

From all indications at the hockey meeting called in Canton last night the people are not very much enthused over hockey. About 100 people turned out. It is a fact though there won't be much hockey played around Trenton, the meeting was adjourned until Wednesday next.

The automobile of Mr. J. Donovan, of Belleville, in passing a car, of them going west on the highway Tuesday morning about 10 a.m. skidded into the ditch turning over on its side. One tire was torn completely from the rim. Front wheel. Mr. Harry Semark, of Belleville, driver of Mr. K. Kellaway's truck, was going by at the time and stopped to help the good Samaritan pulling the car out of the ditch and changing the tire. Mr. Donovan was able to proceed on to Trenton. Mr. Semark is to be commended on his assistance.

The last rose of summer is plentiful this fall. Mrs. Cronk, of Quinte Street, Trenton, has some very nice roses in bloom. The buds are continuing to burst as in the spring.

Mr. Hurley Terry, of Trenton, an employee of the Canada Creosoting Co., had the right arm while cranking his car yesterday.

Canada to Benefit Under New Tariffs

Will Not Be Taxed Under Anti-Dumping Legislation

SWEEPING POWERS

Dominions Will Have Preference of One Hundred Percent.

LONDON, Nov. 18.—Canadian goods will not be taxed under the National Government's anti-dumping legislation. This was made clear in the House of Commons last night when the new measure, which gives sweeping powers upon the president of the Board of Trade, passed through both stages. It is expected the bill will be rushed through with a like disregard for long-established precedents and become royal assent Friday.

The resolution would grant to the President or the Board of Trade Power to impose a maximum duty on any manufactured goods on the list of products. But L. Hore-Belisha, Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade, explained on Canadian and Empire products would be affected. "The Dominions are to be treated as though they asserted amid cheers, "and it is to be on the basis of 100 per cent."

Fuis In Amendment

There would be no cause for complaint encompassing the Dominion products, said the parliamentary secretary.

Later in the day, Charles Williams, Conservative, proposed an amendment which would provide that the duties applied from Empire countries would not exceed two-thirds of the rate imposed on similar foreign products. This would represent, he explained, a preference of one-third for the Empire. At this stage of the time, he hoped the government would accept the amendment which would be excluded entirely from the scope of the legislation.

There was need for no alarm, replied Mr. Hore-Belisha. "I have already made clear that we do not make it again, that no articles which were made in Canada will be available for duty under the bill." The Williams amendment then was withdrawn.

The measure was an emergency one, members of the government frankly admitted, designed to meet abnormal conditions. It is advantageous, it both stages at the one sitting, the House obtained a good precedent in sure but "ordinary procedure would take months. The bill was introduced by Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, and the House agreed to speed up its routine.

Clearly there has been an abnormal rush of foreign goods in the past ten days, "in these circumstances," proceeded Mr. Runciman, "we were bound to take the steps we have taken." The board of trade, he admitted, was taking, "a very wide range of power" but he thought it was necessary.

THRIVING BUSINESS IN WOLF-SKINS

Port Arthur, Nov. 18—Wolves may be many and varied in their ways, but may or may not be scarce, but Henry Hamilton finds them all the same. Henry, who lives at Centre car, Ontario, near Sioux Lookout, has brought in many wolf skins in the past week to claim bounty, at one time bringing in seven pelts of the timber and brush wolves.

Yesterday he appeared at the police station with nine skins, all of timber wolves, to make formal application for bounty. The catch, believed to be a record for timber wolf skins, will net Heilliuen $225. He has three more at home, drying.

CITY LEAGUE MAY OPERATE

Meeting is Called For Thursday Night to Discuss Plans

President Don Roe has announced the annual meeting of the Belleville City Hockey League will be held in the City Hall on Thursday night. All teams that were in the league last year are expected to send a representative as well as any new entries. It is the hope of the executive that all teams come to the meeting fully prepared to go ahead and that interested operating a team this winter. Belleville will be admitted for last year's league and some new ideas brought forth for the coming season.

It is hoped that the league will accept the offer of Belleville at the meeting. There are two or three players here in town of note such as an industrial league, a city league and a district league might be formed for the coming season. There is a movement on foot to try and organize a Belleville-Trenton league with teams from Picton, Napanee, Deseronto, Trenton and Belleville.

Whether Trenton and Belleville will entertain the idea or not remains to be seen, but some kind of league will no doubt be the outcome of Thursday night's meeting.

All city league teams, industrial leagues are expected to have representative at the meeting, which will be called at 8 p.m. sharp. The election of officers and the league business will also take place at that meeting.

Picton, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)— The freighter Kaga, reported here yesterday in Lake Ontario just outside the harbor. It is expected she will free herself at high tide on her ballast. The Selkirk is owned by the Canada Steamship Lines.

SUSPICIONS UNFOUNDED

Men Are Victims of Automobile Circumstance

Wednesday morning about eight o'clock the city police received a telephone call from a woman residing on the outskirts of the city asking that they send an officer at once to investigate the actions of two men, who had stopped in their car near her home. Chief Constables Gow and Taylor arrived at the scene they found that the woman's suspicions were entirely unfounded. The men were not particularly handsome, nor were they arrayed in the natty and sporty clothing which is worn with such admirable grace by some tourists—but the quality was well worn,—possibly shabby, but nevertheless that which they wore bespoke the proper thing for the work they had in hand, which was the repairing of a tire. The starting battery punctured tires and making other repairs to the car which had suddenly refused to function properly. The incident at this hour of the morning was not such as to interest the police, for two men suddenly called upon to stop in their journey and perform a distasteful task, as in this instance they threw the tools about with some vehemence to relieve their feelings and argued a bit as to the best method to do it. The fact as many people have gone before and will do so long as car are subject to the numerous failings and weaknesses motor cars are heir to cause them to fall down on the job.

The men were able to give a good account of themselves to the police officers, however, as to show that one can not always tell from appearances. The motto is "wait" and yet on the other hand there is also the most excellent motto which reads "Safety First." So there you are.

SCENTING OF BOOKS

In the modern world has odor been given its proper place? Science has produced scents which please the mind and affect the mental attitude but the theatre and the movies, and the public perhaps sedulously omit to give scent its place as in real life.

It has remained for books to bring in a novel treatment—that by which scent and odor have been transmitted to the paper. Announcement has been made that books of one publishing house are to be perfumed accordingly.

Modern books, according to the New York Times, could be made more durable if they were scented and some are so lacking in the odor of sanctity that a fragrance having nothing to do with their contents might make them tolerable on the library shelves. All the perfumes of Araby could not make sweet some trashy works. The Times even thinks that if people buy books for their bouquet as some have bought them for the odor spots of color or atmosphere of learning, publishers could save the expense of putting print on the pages.

Will the smell of the old books to which the booklover has become accustomed fall out of fashion so that modern synthetic perfumes will have to be added? Not all the spices of the East could equal the rich odor of an old book, some claim.

In inexperienced hands the putting of spicy covers on books or spicy paper within might create an entirely erroneous opinion of a book, which might either damage it or make it a best seller.

Perhaps books there will be scent. Who is to pick out a more popular?

WHAT'S TO BE DONE?

Oshawa Times takes up the hint made by Governor Stanley C. Wilson of the State of Vermont that a family's wealth can be doubled very easily and his advice is to move to the country. His suggestion is—

"A family can live much more cheaply in the country than in the city. Comfortable homes with lawn and garden can be bought or rented for less than half city prices. This leaves more money for clothes, food, medicine, magazines, books, radio and automobile and other things that most class as necessaries or semi-necessaries.

"In the country nobody considers manual labor demeaning. The wife is the housekeeper, just as the husband is a worker. Clothes are bought to wear and not to display a few times. There is a wide spread between city and country prices for milk, eggs, meats, vegetables and other farm produce.

"A man and wife with an annual income of $500 to $1000 a year can live comfortably and respectably in the country. With an income of $1000 to $2000 in the country they can be comfortably well off.

"So, if you want to double your wealth, move to the country. In addition to financial betterment, you will find real neighbors, people who will really care for you."

The point arises—If everyone moves to the country who will make the things that the countrydweller requires—the radio, clothes, magazines, motorcars which he wants if he is to be an uptodate countryman?

But then everyone will not move to the country even if the governor recommends it. So those who want to double their income may as well move to the countryside because there is always a guarantee that there will be a few people who will not take the good advice and will stay in cities, will work in factories and make the inventions which help to make life endurable in the city and on the farm and the men who work in the copper mines and refineries and those who work in factories making electrical devices to help towards the electrification of the countryside.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Detroit Times says that the Empress Eugenie hat has been killed by too many girls looking out from under the brim with one eye.

Santa Claus—in his factory has been working hard to get everything in readiness for his great presentation of prizes some weeks hence. The mint, it may fairly be assumed at this stage, is becoming more popular than ever. His popularity will reach its peak of course on Christmas Eve.

Those who witness falling meteors these nights do so with a different attitude from that manifested by barbarians or the people of some hundreds of years ago before the generalization of knowledge of the heavens. Meteors meant more to them than to us, they created terror. To-night they are but a moment's sensation, an idle gaze.

NO WORDS
By Aline Michaelis

When I was deep in sorrow
To you I came for aid,
From you I sought to borrow
Strength not to be afraid;
And all my need was spoken
And all my want revealed,
While silence was unbroken,
In silence I was healed.

When I was thrilled with rapture
At joys undreamed I gained,
With goals life let me capture
And dearest hopes attained,
To you I journeyed, sharing
My gladness, from far lands,
To you I hastened, bearing
My bliss in open hands.

Yet by no words are speeded
The secrets I impart,
No words from me are needed
To reach your loving heart!

WHY HE HATES WAR

We quote from the Reader's Digest a paragraph or two from an article by Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, thinker, preacher and a leading moulder of public opinion.

For what nation is it that is out of the League of Nations? The United States. What nation is holding back from the World Court with a fearful reluctance that is nothing less than a public disgrace? The United States. What nation is it that notably this last year passed a tariff bill erecting new barriers to make even more difficult its own and the world's economic situation—a bill that seems to me one of the most stupid and vicious ever passed? The United States. What nation is it that in 1890 paid for its army $36,500,000 and in 1931 appropriated for its army $351,000,000; that spent on the navy, in 1890, $21,000,000 and appropriated for its navy, in 1931, over $380,000,000? It is the United States.

I hate war. I hate war because I have seen it. I hate war for what it does to our own men. I have seen them come in freshly gassed from the front line trenches. I have watched the long, long trains loaded with their mutilated bodies. I have heard the raving of those that were crazed and the cries of those who wanted to die and could not. I hate war for what it forces us to do to our enemies, slaying their children, with our blockades, bombing their mothers in their villages. I hate war for its consequences, for the undying hatreds it arouses, for the dictatorships it puts in the place of democracies, and for the starvation that stalks after it. I hate war, and never again will I sanction or support another!

I call to witness on this point a great soldier. Listen to him. "The business of the churches is to make my business impossible." Who was that pacifist, a disloyal man? No. Field Marshal Haig, with the straightforward candor of a soldier saying what he thinks: "It is the business of the churches to make my business impossible." So may God help!

JESSE JAMES and his brother, Frank, the Dalton Brothers, and other big bad men who terrorized the West in the penny dime and half-dime novels of our childhood, were products of the "great open spaces" of the Golden West. Their daily exploits as bank holdups and train robberies were held to be typically Western. Today the bold bad man of the Brazos or elsewhere in the wide open spaces who holds up banks and persons with impunity right in the shadow of the headquarters of "John Law" is a statistic in every land. Down in New Jersey the other day a bank was held up in daylight and over eighty thousand dollars taken out of circulation in that immediate vicinity. Even in Toronto the Good, holdups and bank robberies have become so usual as to hardly merit front page treatment unless their guns happened to go off and spill some blood. Jesse James and his rough riders had to depend upon their horses for a getaway, hence had to work in a sparsely settled country. The fast automobile of today affords a quick means of escape for the bandits who can operate in the most crowded sectors, but all the romance of our youth of the past has been swept away in the businesslike procedure of the motorcar bandit of today. Jesse James lived long and precariously, sleeping with a gun under his pillow, it is said, but greed for gold was his undoing when he was shot to death by one of the gang while hanging a picture in the home of his mother, having foolishly laid his pistol down while he attended to the chore. His brother Frank passed years in prison in expiation of the crimes of the gang, but was finally released to spend the declining years of his life as a more or less prominent citizen of a small town in the more or less Far West.

Other Papers' Opinions

VISCOUNT SNOWDEN

Official announcement that the Right Hon. Philip Snowden has been created a Viscount will cause no surprise. It was unofficially intimated before the general election in Great Britain, in part explanation of the fact that he would not seek re-election to the House of Commons, that he would go to the House of Lords; and his appointment some days after the election as Lord Privy Seal in the present government does not regarded as a preliminary to his elevation to the peerage. Nevertheless, the fact is not without a certain irony that the Philip Snowden who entered the Socialist movement as a missionary amongst mankind should end his political career in the House of Lords, amongst Tories whom his harsh tongue has so often castigated. But feats are stubborn things, and a record of new facts lately has helped to bring to others besides Mr. Snowden realization of the national danger that was threatened to Great Britain by such outright socialization as was advocated by a party which so signally failed to comprehend the vast and complicated problems of the country's industrial and economic system. Mr. Snowden's translation of his old party is proof of a profound appreciation of the hard facts of government and economics.—Hamilton Spectator.

THOSE FLOWER STORIES

When the editor of the Belleville Ontario Intelligencer took out his little hammer to build an editorial, he hit the nail right on the head with several massive blows. Speaking of man's vain wishing for warm winter weather, he points out the effect this would have on the crops next year, but says the wishing doesn't do any harm because it keeps people occupied and doesn't change the weather anyhow.

The Belleville editor says that flowers, seeds and plants have been attracting unusual attention during the past two or three weeks. The strange thing is that those who draw attention to the unaccustomed lateness of floral and plant growth do so with thanksgiving in the rest of their minds that these may be proof that the coming winter will be a brief and moderate temperature.

Man is ever looking forward—he has warm weather as the ideal. This ideal would eliminate large chunks of the frigidity of winter, and lend a florid aspect to the whole landscape.

Canadians know better than to expect some such thing—they know that when winter comes there will be snow and cold.

Still they have the safety valve of hope in their makeup—a harmful winter is an ideal to which they all look, or they take a pessimistic view over to springtime.

The hoping does not do any harm—it is a mental exercise, and it helps to bear the chills and the others ills of winter. It satisfies the longing of man for something different, which is never to be satisfied.—Lindsay Post.

PLAGUE MINING REVIVES

Substantial increase was shown in October of the tonnages of ore milled in Ontario, and gold production was $3,748,190, or $700,000 more than in the corresponding month of 1930.

Nevertheless, failing discovery of entirely new fields, it appears unlikely, according to an eminent authority writing in the Financial Post, that Canada will within the next decade become a potent threat to South Africa for world supremacy in the production of gold. It is pointed out that there are three courses of an increased gold production in this country; extension of existing mines in established fields; higher recovery and possible commercial exploitation of low grade properties resulting from improved milling processes, and the discovery of entirely new fields. From both of the first two of these sources indications are that a material increase in gold production will be attained.

The writer makes no specific mention of placer gold mining, but a Canadian Press despatch from Vancouver reports a noticeable revival in activity among the sluicers. Not since 1926, it is stated, has there been so much activity in gold mining. From Quesnel, which is the nearest point to many Cariboo workings, and from Vancouver, many mining adventurers have been yielding precious metal, has come a great deal of placer gold recently; not in large quantities but in a steady dribble that tells a story of many hard days' work at rocker and sluice.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

Poet's Corner

AUTUMN IN THE TOWNSHIPS

Wreathed in the incense-smoke of summer's pyre,
The pumpkin and the fallen
apple lie,
Cupped in the grass with cheeks of mindful fire.
And, wheeling round, like motes in sunrise sky,
Crows caw lament for summer's dying glory.
But crafty bees, with weary wings, explore
The last flower on the sunlit promontory.
While leopard wasps lay siege to their sweet store.
The Farmer smiles to see his bursting barn;
The jolly chipmunk builds his winter house,
While from' cloud-veiling heights
the sun doth warn
The last hawk swoops upon the last poor mouse.
But Autumn tarries still—so loth to go—
Till winter claims her with a kiss of snow.

OPERATION FAILED TO SAVE HIS LIFE

Last Patient of the Late Dr. Mowbray Passes Away

HAMILTON, Nov. 18.—William A. Kincaid, on whom the late Dr. F. Mowbray was performing an operation at the time of the noted surgeon's fatal seizure, died in St. Joseph's hospital Sunday.

The late Mr. Kincaid's death was attributed to pneumonia and concussion, physicians describing the operation completed by the late Dr. Mowbray as having been successful.

OUTLAWS OF EDEN

by Peter B. Kyne

INSTALMENT XXVIII

In Nate Tichenor's latest move Silas Babson and his fellow directors read only a last-minute effort, inspired solely by malice, to embarrass the district with a lawsuit that would drag through the summer and thus for another year deprive the valley of water. To thwart this, Tichenor, in his capacity as trustee for the district employs an imposing array of legal talent, instructing them and have Tichenor's suit to obtain a permanent injunction go to trial without delay. Four days later both sides had finished with their witnesses, both legal batteries had fired their last broadsides, and his Honor looked gravely over the top of his desk at the belligerents.

"Since this case went to trial," he announced "the Supreme Court of the State of California has rendered a decision rendered and rendered by the superior court in a case similar to this one. The effect of the decision of the Supreme Court, an advanced copy of which I received this morning reached me, I find myself in the unenviable position of having to reverse my previous view as to the meaning of Section 1, Paragraph 534 of the Code of Civil Procedure upon which the defendant and corporation has based its argument in the issue at trial.

"In granting the Supreme Court of the State of California has rendered a decision rendered on the question of the right to divert the flood, storm or freshet waters in a stream, the gravity of the rise and fall of the stream and that all waters, impounded or stored in a so-called summer or normal flow, are riparian to the bed thereof, and may not be diverted by any riparian lands for the use and benefit of a non-riparian owner. The Supreme Court holds that all of the waters of said stream, during, of course, applies to all streams throughout the state, are the inalienable and vested right of the owners of the bed thereof.

"This court has no alternative but to award to the plaintiff the permanent injunction prayed for restraining forever the defendant pub lic service corporation, Eden Valley Irrigation District, from diverting any of the waters of Eden Valley Creek. This court also assesses the costs of this suit to the defendant, as prayed for in the complaint. The court stands in recess for a later date the court will issue a formal written decision, but the court can see no reason for refraining from rendering an informal decision at this time and referring the defendant corporation to its sole and inalienable right at law—the right to acquire the lands of the Bar H Land and Cattle Company, or all through condemnation suit on payment by private treaty. Court is dismissed."

There was nothing else for Silas Babson to do or say—and he knew it. He had his tired head on the counsel table and sobbed as if his heart must break. "Don't take it so hard, Sid, Tichenor," Nate Tichenor continued. "You have one more arrow in your quiver. You can appeal from the condemn Eden Valley and acquire its water rights."

"Oh" said he can." Nate Tichenor was speaking from the other side of the table. "Under the law, Eden Valley's fertile acreage far exceeds that of the Bar H Land, and it is infinitely more valuable. You cannot buy the Bar H for less than two million dollars and the lands in the Eden Valley Irrigation District are already mortgaged to the limit."

Babson, red-eyed gazed at him with something of the malevolence of a trapped animal. "I'll appeal to Forlorn Valley," he quavered. "You realize that, Nate?"

"I haven't given any thought to Forlorn Valley," Nate replied coldly. "Just now I'm revving in the joy that comes with the knowledge that I have ruined you. All I have to do to save Forlorn Valley is to press a button."

"For God's sake, Mr. Tichenor, do lo" Babson began, but Nate cut his poor people—"

"Who refused to permit me to be kind to them and save them from ruin," Tichenor interrupted him. "All these poor people who followed their false leader blindly and stupidly ,who refused to believe Harry Kershaw and I had hearts in our breasts! All these people who hooted at me, cried me down, smashed my body, and smeared me with road oil and feathers! All these poor people who refused to receive my wife and me, in reciting our sorry family history—"

"Then," said Babson, aghast, "you intend to release the deed of trust on Forlorn Valley?"

"One minute you default on the payment of the interest Babson. I—"

"And then—you'll "—press the button?"

"Naturally, I'll have to—to make my investment secure. Shut now it's a wee bit sour."

Silas Babson gave vent to a moaning little cry, like a hurt animal; he slid softly out of his chair to the floor. He had fainted.

A group of farmers seated in the rear of the court room now got up quietly and stalked out. Tichenor followed them to the door and stood watching them. As if acting under the stimulus of a common purpose they walked to their shabby automobiles parked along the curb and drove out of town at a high rate of speed.

When Babson let himself in the side door of the Bank of Eden Valley Centre about four-o'clock that afternoon Henry Hookby's face peered out at him from the cashier's cage where Hookby was balancing his cash.

"We got to do something an' do it quick," Hookby quavered. "I've had a run on the bank since noon. What are we going to do tomorrow if this run continues, Mr. Babson? We haven't more than twenty thousand dollars in the vault now.

"Don't open the bank tomorrow if you see a crowd in front waiting. Paste a notice on the window that this bank has closed temporarily and will reopen as soon as I have returned from San Francisco with cash to meet all demands for withdrawals. Got to have an excuse to keep 'em quiet."

Babson got out his life insurance policies, and read their provisions carefully. He knew there was a clause in them which nullified them if he injured himself intentionally while sane or insane, within a certain period following the issuance of the policy. Yes, that period had long passed. He had two hundred thousand dollars' worth of life insurance in force and his wife was the beneficiary. His creditors could wait seven years. But, on his wife his life, instructing her how to invest the insurance money safely. He signed the policies across the face of each, addressed them to his wife, inclosed them in a large envelope and stamped it to the air mail. Finally he wrote a letter to Nate Tichenor, which opened with the words "Personal". The box he placed in the bank vault where it would be found readily; then he left a note for Mr. Hookby, got in his car and drove away up country.

Two weeks later Babson's body was found in a body floating beside the head-gate at Lake Babson. A gentle wind was blowing across the lake and Mr. Babson's body was buffeted by the head-gate and persistently as if he still insisted it should not.

INSTALMENT XXIX

When Silas Babson failed to come home for dinner that night the Bank of Valley Centre closed forever, his wife waited until eight o'clock and then telephoned Henry Hookby at the bank. Hookby immediately fell a suspicion that something was wrong. Babson's car was in the garage but Babson's tin box unlocked, so he opened it and found Babson's letter to his wife in the envelope with the life insurance policies.

Shaking slightly with apprehension Mr. Hookby went into his cage and found a small note addressed to him. It was from Babson and read:

"Dear Henry: I can't stand it. If I live you will see that your wife and children will be paupers and I'll be the most hated man in the valley. I have asked for it, as best back—and I'm too old to try. So I'm going to Lake Babson. Good-by and good luck. B.B."

Mr. Hookby telephoned the superintendent of state banks at Sacramento and received orders to take charge of the Bank of Valley Centre. Then he posted a notice in the window, announcing the "closing of the bank."

Two days later a representative of the superintendent of banks took charge of the institution and, commenced an investigation of the bank's affairs. This was thoroughly done. A preponderance of the evidence indicated that Babson's death was accidental. There was immediately available a fidelity bond conditioned to the depositors; the superintendent of banks issued a statement that in time a further dividend of ten or fifteen per cent might be available from the assets remaining in charge of the Bank of Valley Centre, leaving the depositors to wait patiently until an event occurred to revive its activities as a going concern.

Somebody had opened the flood gates and the waters of Eden Valley poured from Forlorn Valley was running beneath. Instantly there was a new picture that was half a greeting, half a question.

"There's one of them moving out, Sid," Darby said one day to Tichenor. "It's trifle of the bondholders to stampede their property, and winter," Lorry declared.

"That's the man that kicked my wife down the step sqnat," her husband reminded her. "Still, now that she's kicks me up-stairs, I'm not say I'm enjoying his pitiable condition as much as I thought I was going to."

"He waved to you, Nate. He did not appear to be hostile."

"Still, he may be pretty well. I went to school with him. An ignorant chap but not a bad fellow. I'll stop and see."

Her hand sole across and over the top of his car so you couldn't hold a grudge, darling."

"I'm afraid it has to be fed regularly in order to thrive, Lorry. But I'll not grudge against the people of Forlorn Valley has been starved for nearly a year.....Well, I went through with it, just as I promised them I would—just as I promised you I would. I can forgive my worst enemies, I think, but forgiving yours is quite a different matter."

"I've felt the same about you and your persecutors, Nate. Still, I wish we hadn't met that man and his little family."

He stared wistfully ahead. "Would there be any sense in paying our debt of hate if we couldn't see our enemies suffer?" he demanded.

"Oh, Nate!" the girl cried to her and saw her eyes were moist with emotion. "We're still billionaires, dear. We should have stayed outside several years more. We're not quite civilized yet."

"Are you chiding me, Lorry? I thing that's the first time you've ever in a kind word for these people hereabouts."

"I know it, Nate. I had my share of concern, too. The words came tremblingly. "I thought I could hold a grudge better than you could and I myself regret that he no longer held title to his farm and demand was made upon him for the money. But within thirty days from date, else legal measures would be taken to dispossess him!

On December thirtieth Nate Tichenor and his wife rode past Babson's tin box unlocked, so he opened it and found Tichenor's letter to his wife in the envelope with the life-insurance policies.

Shaking slightly with apprehension Mr. Hookby went into his cage and found a small note addressed to him. It was from Babson and read:

"Dear Henry: I can't stand it. If I live you will see that your wife and children will be paupers and I'll be the most hated man in the valley. I have asked for it, as best back—and I'm too old to try. So I'm going to Lake Babson. Good-by and good luck. B.B."

Two days later a representative of the superintendent of banks took charge of the institution and, commenced an investigation of the bank's affairs. This was thoroughly done. A preponderance of the evidence indicated that Babson's death was accidental. There was immediately available a fidelity bond conditioned to the depositors; the superintendent of banks issued a statement that in time a further dividend of ten or fifteen per cent might be available from the assets remaining in charge of the Bank of Valley Centre, leaving the depositors to wait patiently until an event occurred to revive its activities as a going concern.

Somebody had opened the flood gates and the waters of Eden Valley poured from Forlorn Valley was running beneath. Instantly there was a new picture. The water had arrived and since nobody knew how long it would last Darby and Lorry Tichenor began to act quickly. The gates into the irrigation canals were closed, directors of the irrigation district got on the job and the water was delivered to irrigation commenced.

When the last sluicing of alfalfa was half harvested, Forlorn Valley had another surprise. Again the farmers began to load the tank irrigation canal running bankfull-again and again a second, a third irrigation and when Forlorn Valley had staked a claim to Eden Valley water,

FINANCIAL NEWS

WEAKNESS ON STANDARD BD.

Took Hughes Target For Selling on Wednesday.

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18—(Mining Leas)—Standard Stock and Mining Exchange mart was marked by weakness in several individual issues in today's forenoon session, major portion of the list holding unchanged in the lightest volume seen since late September.

Tree-Hughes showed only unimportant changes.

Lack of interest from the International conference of Copper Producers, resulted in heavy declines in base metal prices in London today, was reflected in softness in Canadian metal stocks. Noranda and International Nickel opened easier, firmed for a time, but weakened in afternoon, former show loss of $1.25 at $16.50 and the latter a loss of 75 at $16.75. Hudson Bay was down $6 to $6.50 and Consolidated a couple of.

Wiltsiang recovered 10 to $1.25, Eldorado 5 to $1.05 and Premier 4 to 86, with short covering evident in a few of the issues. Beaver Dam sold at 22 to 23 in a quiet oil group.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 18—Cattle 162; left-overs totalled 700 head. Trade was active on a plain quality supply, with prices unchanged. Quotations furnished by Dominion Stockyards from $3.00 to $5.50. Good store cattle were scarce.

Calves 246; calves were slow with prices steady. Good vealers sold to $7.50 and a few choice brought $8.00. Grass calves sold at $5.75 to $3.00.

Hogs 1200; hogs were unsettled with bids of $4.15 to $4.25 f.o.b. per bacon or $4.85 weighed off cars.

Sheep 170; lambs were unsettled with $6.50 bid for good ewes and wethers and with $6.75 asked. Sheep steady at $3.00 to $3.50 for good light ewes.

Prices Sagging on Wednesday Despite Volume's Fall

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 18—Toronto Stock Exchange market was still in a depressed state, the fact that the volume contracted on the decline is a good sign, while the display of strength but nevertheless prices dropped back steadily even without a weight of offerings.

In the oil group, B. A. Oil was under the influence of declining holdings above 11, which has proved a rather firm resistance point on the latest reaction. Imperial Oil and International Nickel opened easier, firmed for a time, but weakened in afternoon, former show loss of $1.25 at $16.50 and the latter a loss of 75 at $16.75. Hudson Bay was down $6 to $6.50 and Consolidated a couple of.

Wiltsiang recovered 10 to $1.25, Eldorado 5 to $1.05 and Premier 4 to 86, with short covering evident in a few of the issues. Beaver Dam sold at 22 to 23 in a quiet oil group.

NARROW GAINS ARE SOON LOST

Copper Stocks Weaken And Loss in Silver Bullion Helps

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 18—Wobbly weakness in metals and the appearance of some negative mid-week business statistics were also contributed to a heavy tone in stocks today. Narrow gains of the previous session were more than lost during the morning and by afternoon the market was sagging, all groups participating in a slow decline. Trading showed signs of dullness.

News that the Belgian Copper producers' group was unsuccessful without reaching an agreement on output quotas was also disappointing to the twice-postponed department of the White House around which is that a solution might be reached. Copper Stock weakened sharply, and had the further effect of 2 cents in silver bullion help the speculative group toward easier trading.

American finishing was particularly adverse, losing about 4 points, with losses in others of the same calendar. Reductions in the Radio Union Pacific and Delaware and Hudson worked into new low ground on the year at 9½ and 107 respectively, New York Central, Steel and Allied Chemical.

American Telephone sagged in this neighborhood of 139 and Westinghouse failed to find much stimulus in the declaration of a dividend against a decision that had been fully expected. Sears Roebuck showed a gain of 3 or so in sympathy with wheat. United States sagged a couple of points.

Weekly surveys of the Steel Industry showed a decline in the operating ratios had been halted, although they were down to about 33 per cent.

"Iron ...ge" placed the current ratio at 31 per cent, unchanged from the week before but pointed out that if the present rate could be maintained November will show, on a daily basis, the best rate in 3 per cent. over October.

A slight improvement in the freight loading statement for the week end ing Oct. 17, was followed as shipments had not been stimulated by the fact that railroads and shippers were making during that period.

The money market appeared to have readjusted itself to the idea of withdrawal of loans for the account of "others" and funds were again available unofficially at 2 per cent.

SHARP UPTURN IN WHEAT PRICES

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 17 (CP)—Sharp early upturns in wheat prices developed today after the mid-session period on the grain exchange when cash and future values were 1 1-4c to 1 1-2c higher. Trading was somewhat more somewhat but the market was steady in tone. December wheat opened at 63 3-4, up 1 1-4; December at 65 1-2, was up 1 3-4c and closed at 64 3-4c, showed an advance of 1 1-2c, while the July future, 1-4 70 3-8, was up 1 1-4c.

"YELLOW BOOK" WANTED

Paris, Nov. 18.—The Foreign Affairs Committee of the French Chamber by a vote of 16 to 11 today directed that M. Tardieu call on Premier Laval and tell him that his explanations of his recent talks with Chancellor Bruening of Berlin were insufficient.

The Committee demanded that the government publish a "yellow book" on the negotiations.

WHEAT PRICES BELOW OPENING

Influence By Weak Close and Weak Export Demand

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 16.—(By the Canadian Press)—Influenced by a weak close in Liverpool and a weak export demand wheat prices again fell today, the bulk of the trade on the grain exchange here being checked. At the close prices were clipped to show losses of two cents under the opening.

November was quoted at 64 1-8; December at 64 1-4; May at 69 3-4 and July at 69 1-4.

APPLES OF P. E.

Picton Society will be guests of the Cherry Valley Young People's Society at a social evening and banqueting the program. It is expected that about fifty will go from town. The public meeting today evening tags at the church and everything points to the most successful season. Freighter Aground

While nursing the entrance to the Picton Harbor, Tuesday morning, the steamer Grand Trunk which keeps Gleanship Line ran aground, having evidently left the channel marked by the buoys. The Selkirk is an Upper Lake boat and is a rare visitor to the other end of the water she visit this port. The water at the point of the mishap is not the "upper channel they have no difficulty in getting in the channel. Just how the Selkirk came to leave the channel is a mystery. The ship did not come ashore and at time of writing the freighter was still aground. Tugs were sent to her herald by lightening the ballast. The boat is on a bar of sand and gravel and so that it is not expected that the ship will be long there as the big freighter which was coming to load the apples and canned goods. Exhibit at the Royal Prizes awarded County has a splendid apple exhibit at the Royal Winter Fair, Mr. Earle Wesse is in charge. The display includes many varieties of apples grown in the county. The exhibit is arranged in several kinds of containers, including boxes, barrels, baskets, etc. The display is a very attractive one.

Furniture Supply for Offices Is Curtailed

LONDON—(By The Canadian Press)—It is not only the sadness of Civil Servants that are to be considered, but the public will also to be applied to the supply of furniture to Government offices. The Post Office has a furniture committee within the official and staff sides are represented. At the meeting on Tuesday a statement stated that the Office of Works had been pressed to cut down expenditure and that instructions had will be applied not alone to existing offices but to new buildings already provided in the estimates for the coming year. The Office of Works is surrendering moneys voted where the building has already commenced to expenditure. In the Post Office, where contracts have been placed for the supply of furniture of old furniture—there were several instances mentioned—it will be deferred for an indefinite period.

PRES. HOOVER AND DINO GRANDI CONFER

WASHINGTON, D.C., Nov. 18.—President Hoover and Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy came together today for the first time in a conference upon which they could unite in the interest of maintaining the world peace of the world.

Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson accompanied the visiting statesman to the White House. Mr. Stimson carried a bulky bundle of papers with him into the executive offices.

Before settling down to business, the President and Foreign Minister and the Secretary of State walked unattended to the south grounds of the White House to pose for pictures.

COMMUNIST RURAL HELD AT WELLAND

Welland, Ont., Nov. 18—Funeral services for Nick Zelenko were held this afternoon at the Ukrainian Labor Temple, under the auspices of the Ukrainian Labor Farmer Association, for Olga Hackman, aged 13, killed accidentally on Monday when struck by a train.

Rev. Mr. Kolesnikoff officiated and delivered an address in which he declared that he intended to have criticized the railway authorities for not providing proper signals at the crossing. It was said that the Young Communist funeral held in this vicinity for some years.

4 DIE IN WRECK

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 18— Pennsylvania railroad offices here reported four persons were killed and scores had been killed shortly after noon in the Wood Creek, Pennsylvania freight train three miles west of Irwin, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and that a number had been injured.

London, Nov. 18—James P. Hogarth, 20, former London township farm-hand, pleaded guilty to police court here today to nine charge of stealing automobiles and was sentenced to seven three years in the Portsmouth Preliminary on each charge, the terms to run concurrently.

4 C. N. TRAINS TO DISCONTINUE

Passenger Train Service of Lakefield to Be Ended

PETERBORO, Nov. 19.—For the first time since the C.N.R. trains were placed on the railway map, Lakefield is to be without a passenger train service when the revised Canadian National Railways schedule goes into effect on November 27.

Four trains are being taken off the C.N. local division in all, which will leave Peterborough for Toronto four passenger trains over those leaving per day—up and down. The times of these four remaining trains are not to be altered. They leave Peterboro from Bethelville and the 4.37 p.m. from Port Hope for Toronto via Lindsay and the noon for Port Hope and the 8.47 p.m. train for Belleville for Kingston and Lindsay.

The changes have made no provision for mail service to or from Lakefield, as there is now only one run on this section as circumstances dictate.

One Busy Section

Formerly one of the busiest sections of the Grand Trunk system, traffic on the Peterborough-Lakefield line has felt the growth of automobile travel of late years, and with the close of various lumber mills in that district, fallen off to a negligible quantity of freight and there has been no uncommon thing, state railway officials, for the train to come over there with a solitary passenger.

The change will also mean the orbit of the railway economy axe as no less than 200 employees, through at 6.45 a.m. for Port Hope; 10.30 a.m. for Toronto; 2.30 p.m. arriving here at 12.37 a.m.; No. 372 leaving Peterborough for Lakefield at 12.10 p.m. and No. 373 arriving here from Lakefield at 4 p.m.

Number four is the last one of the trains to come off shortly, is a mixed train, leaving here at 8.47 p.m. while ago to replace the passenger train No. 6 now leaving Port Peterborough at 8.05 a.m.

Effect on Staff

There are no changes in the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's schedule on this division.

JAPANESE ARMY

General Honjo used his cavalry to good effect, and by nightfall the Chinese front line and preparing the way for an infantry attack which swept around the Chinese right flank.

The Chinese effort to encircle the Japanese flank failed and the Chinese began flight.

Honjo, the dispatches said, swept up to Anshanhsien, midway south of Tsitsihar, crossed the Chinese eastern railway look over a suburban village and by the time the sun had the walled city, then moved into Tsitsihar.

The battle, beginning early in the morning and ending in darkness, lasted half after dusk, word from the front said. It was fought in a driving rain weather with a wind out of the Arctic sweeping down from the frost bound Mongolian plains.

Japanese dispatches said General Mah's withdrawal from the vicinity of Chinese troops ready for the offensive had been ordered unexpectedly in the fighting below Angangsi. They said that 10,000 Japanese were said to have been accomplished with little or no resistance.

Weather conditions were such as have rarely been experienced in most of the history of the region. Soldiers were required to do more fighting than in any other single campaign for decades.

The Japanese war machine, however, was more than a match for the heavier odds. Tokyo's dispatches indicated and General Honjo's troops were driven into flight, apparently toward Hailar.

Occupy Tsitsihar

TOKYO, Nov. 18.—Foreign Minister Honjo's Japanese army occupied Tsitsihar, Manchuria, today, Japanese announced.

This is the capital of Heilungkiang Province, eighteen miles north of Angangchi, a town which the Japanese occupied yesterday in their drive.

To enter the capital the army had to cross the Nonni River, half-way in the zone of Russian influence, about 200 miles from Harbin, commander, Mah Chan-shan, who refused to obey the Nanking government's Chiang-Kai-Shek's ultimatum, that he evacuate Tsitsihar and withdraw to the north.

Mah's army scattered in all directions as the Japanese pressed their Chinese Eastern Railway and over the last stronghold of resistance. There was little or no resistance.

The Chinese commander is reported to have fled northward with several thousand of his soldiers, using trains of the Chinese railway.

It was said that Japanese crossed the Chinese eastern railway without jarring with traffic.

The Japanese War here said today that the Japanese forces had no intention of entering the city and that once Eastern so long as General Mah's troops do not use it, and that when the Chinese troops have been scattered General Honjo may retire to Taonan or Chang-Chiatun.

OFFICE ENTERED ON COLEMAN ST.

Sometime during Tuesday night the office workshop of Re-Mayo George Bessey, Coniscon, on Coleman Street, was broken into, and a quantity of tools removed by thieves. Entrance was made by prying open a window in the rear of the building.

Things would get better if people would cease—Billy Sunday.

HUNTER LOST

Barr, of Lake St. Peter, and he was asked to render assistance in the search. Mr. Hunter left Belleville by canoe with Game Overseer C. Mulligan and Game Warden Thomas Wm. Stringer, both of whom are well known to the expert woodsmen. The Provincial Constable left Mr. Barr and passed the night at his home at Lake St. Peter. Yesterday morning they left very early in the morning and paddled up river and upon arrival there a party of 30 men were organized to search the woods for the missing man. They were divided into parties of twenty-five o'clock in the evening, weary and discouraged at having found no trace of the man, when a party was ready and they were sitting around a camp fire and making brush and all in bodily and mental exhaustion by his harrowing experience.

The hunters were overjoyed and thankful that the man was found safely back in camp and soon had a hot meal prepared for him. Chemists told them that he had wandered about continuously and in this way by the aid of his compass he had kept in a straight direction and had travelled north instead of south and Tuesday evening he was a party of hunters on Lake Lake and they, after taking care of him, brought him to shore and sent a guide with him to the railway line at Tweed where a motor car point he was able to make his way to Belleville. Mr. Stringer, the Deputy Chief Fire Ranger, said that Clemens would travel seventy miles from his own camp to Lake Lake where he was fortunate to find the hunters on the first day.

The report of Clemens' experience was received Wednesday morning from Provincial Constable Thomas Wm. Stringer, Deputy Chief Office of the Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville.

FIRST LADY OF HALIFAX IS MODERN

Mrs. Fanny Lenoir Has Watched The City Grow Up

Halifax, N.S., November 18.
She might be called Halifax's "first lady". She remembers the arrival of the Marquis of Lorne to Canada as Governor-General in 1878, she can tell you about the growth of the Cunard steamship line, she saw the first automobile in the city, she enjoyed the talkies the other night, and she was ninety-eight years young November 2, 1931. She is Mrs. Fanny Lenoir, nee Smythe, living at 36 Queen street.

Her memory is remarkable, her conversation thoroughly up-to-the minute. No current event escapes her attention. She is modern dicty, the little old lady welcomes many friends to her quaint, old-fashioned room and chats humorously. On her hundredth birthday her relatives in the United States are all united to Halifax for a big celebration.

It was born in Windsor, Nova Scotia," she told us, "And I've travelled through the United States and Western Canada. I've made ways a dream of my brother's and mine to return to the old home in Windsor together. He was premier of British Columbia for a short period during the late eighties—But before the dream came true, he died."

From an old fashioned hightop, Mrs. Lenoir produced souvenirs of her lifetime. There were faded pictures of herself in bridesmaid and their two children, deep-set in ancient cases. "I'm the only one left," she remarked. There were gorgeous jewels—a filigree bracelet, hand worked, enormous amethyst brooches in unusual designs, rings, and bracelets, dray lillie watches on long gold chains red locked from the days when them.

She ogged the closet door and for a few minutes was lost in its depth. When she reappeared, she carried a long brocaded silk skirt over one arm and a white silk shawl over the other.

"I had this when I was married seventy six years ago," she told us. It was in perfect condition. The lenoirs threw a ball and glowing as we must have been in 1855. The evening train was a delight to our modern eyes.

She was laughing at us again. "Modern clothes are much nicer, I think," she turned to the object again. "How do you like my new seaskins coat?"

Drop in Attendance at London Schools

LONDON—(By The Canadian Press)—Nearly 20,000 fewer children are attending London schools than in 1931, the annual report of the London County Council Education Committee states that the number is 658,004, a decrease of 19,913 compared with 1930. In 1915 there was 898,439.

It is estimated that 15,000 of the decrease during the last two years is due to the falling birth rate and 15,000 to transfers outside the London County Council area.

Greenwich has the only district that shows an increase. This is due to the new housing estates at Downham and Charlton Park. The heaviest falls in child population have occurred in Wandsworth, Camberwell, Southwark, Poplar, the City and Stepney and Chelsea.

Only 620 children in London were certified as uneducable. Of the children between three and five years of age 43.5 per cent are attending school.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tucker Celebrate Golden Wedding

Friends and Relatives Assemble For Celebration

GIFT OF PURSE

On Monday afternoon and evening, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tucker, Trent Road were at home to their many friends on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of their marriage. Many sent messages of good-will, congratulations and best wishes while others were present to give them in person. Amid a profusion of beautiful chrysanthemums Mr. and Mrs. Tucker received their friends.

In 1881 Mr. and Mrs. Tucker were united together in holy wedlock by Rev. Marsh, then the minister of Rawdon circuit. Mrs. Tucker was formerly Miss Amelia Lott of the Township of Rawdon. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Tucker lived at Belleville. They were always active in the former Methodist Church (now the United Church) and served there most devotedly and faithfully. Their home was always a place of friendliness and hospitality and the open door led many into very close friendship.

On Monday evening their many friends from Rawdon Township and from a distance as well as friends from Belleville joined in the happy occasion. Mrs. Tucker's three sisters were present— Mrs. Edward Scott, Mountain; Mrs. Mason Thorpe, Stirling and Mrs. J. C. Reynolds, Trenton and Mr. Roy Mitchell of Toronto was present. During the evening the following address was read by Mr. Wilbert Tucker, an old friend of long standing:

"November 16th., 1931.

"Dear Mr. and Mrs. Tucker:—

"We your friends received at your neighbours gather at your home tonight, on this happy occasion of the 50th anniversary of your wedding-days—your golden wedding day.

"We greet and bind you both enjoying such a measure of good-health and we are sorry to convey to you our hearty good wishes on this great day. As we look back over those wonderful years since you launched your barc on the matrimonial sea on that very occasion your friends wished you bon voyage and many memories come of memories stir our hearts tonight as we think of the many happy hours spent in your home.

"Many sailings you have had periods of calm smooth sailing and then the rushing winds and dashing rain. But thanks be unto Him who rules the waves, your anchor holds, and he still guides you over life's tempestuous arc.

"Your kindly disposition and Christian faith has been an inspiration to many of us, leading us too, to take up our cross and follow the Lowly Man of Galilee. And now what is the secret of such a happy union? Is it not because you trusted your wife as a splendid flower and she has crowned your life with love and joy and happiness? And now we ask you to accept this purse just for remembrance sake.

"Signed on behalf of your friends."

Mr. and Mrs. Tucker were the recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts. Mr. Tucker in a few well chosen words expressed his pleasure in welcoming so many of their friends and thanked all for their kind wishes and for the gifts. Mr. Harold B. Neal, Mr. and Mrs. Tucker's pastor, acted as chairman and congratulated the happy couple. He also recalled many of the changes of the last fifty years. Secretary speeches were given by friends complimentary to the bride and groom of fifty years ago and an interesting program presented opened by all singing "Should old acquaintance be forgot", "Bless be the tie that binds" and "God be with you till we meet again."

MOIRA W.M.S.

The postponed October meeting of the Moira W.M.S. was held in the Sunday School room of the church on a late date in the month. A fair attendance being present. In accordance with a year-arranged plan a new leader is selected from among the members for each meeting. Mrs. Clayton Hagerman was chosen as leader for the October meeting and announced the opening hymn, "Joy to the World the Lord is Come" followed by prayer by the leader.

Mrs. Chas. Ketcheson read the Scripture lesson, choosing Isaiah, 35th chapter. The report of the sectional rally, recently held at Foxboro, was given by the two delegates, Mrs. Blake Ketcheson and Mrs. Hagerman. Mrs. Hagerman gave the report for the morning session, and Mrs. Ketcheson for the afternoon. Both were indeed very helpful and interesting. A duet was rendered dust was given by Blake Ketcheson and Mrs. (Rev.) Truscott entitled "Remember me O Mighty One." Rev. Mr. Truscott gave a splendid talk along missionary lines and in connection with church activities in general.

It was decided to prepare a box to send to some needy ones, and other items of business were disposed of, the meeting was brought to a close with prayer by Rev. Mr. Truscott.

Dressing Up the Casserole Dish

By Hannah Wing

The casserole dish doesn't always have to be served in a casserole. Take for instance those shells you see in the housewares shops—oyster white, streaked with the half brown of sea weed that has formed a close attachment, for a rock.

Scallops or minced clams, crab or lobster meat, or flaked white fish, done with a smooth cream sauce or with butter and crumbs, fill these enchanting shells, and baked in a moderate oven until the crumbs are brown and the fish piping hot, they make a delicate dish, served with lemon and cress and eaten with a salad and a roll. Nice for your bridge luncheon or for an evening supper or a late bite after a show. They can be made ready beforehand and popped into the oven to bake while the coffee is being made, the rolls heated, and the salad dressed. Yes, they are very comforting little shells to have about!

A good hash that's what casserole takes care of the macaroni and ham with tomato sauce, garnished with a finishing appeal of chopped pars. A real good meal. Try it. And simple, too. And inexpensive.

Cook a good portion of macaroni. Drain. Add a piece of butter about the size of an egg and swish the macaroni around in the kettle until it is all completely buttered. Don't melt the butter first. Add it to the hot macaroni in a lump and swish the kettle around to butter well. Heat a large can of tomatoes with salt, pepper and sugar and thicken slightly with brown flour and butter put made into roux. Put the macaroni into the casserole with layers of thinly sliced cooked ham, alternating ham and macaroni. You can use the canned cooked ham; it's so handy and good, too. Cover with the sauce and bake in the oven until thoroughly heated and bubbly. Garnish with chopped pars and enjoy a delicious and satisfying meal.

Serve some fruit and perhaps a salad in aspic, and have either toast or rolls and a good cup of coffee to go with it.

Coffee is best served very hot this weather, in case you need a reminder!

Put aside one little hat for special evenings. Ideal for such purpose and to wear with a black velvet ensemble is a tuxedo of black velvet with large soft buttons forming a curved band. The turban is completed by a black nose veil.

HELD SHOWER FOR MISS PAGE

Bride-to-Be Honoured By Her Sidney Friends

Friends of Miss Gladys Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Page, 202 concession of Sidney, honoured her at a miscellaneous shower on Tuesday November 10th. Miss Page received many lovely and useful gifts. An enjoyable evening was spent and the following address was read:

Dear Gladys:

We your friends and neighbors, on hearing of your advenure in life, could not let this opportunity go by without spending a social hour with you, before your departure.

When we realize, that our loss is another's gain, we can overlook Gerald's intrusion into our neighborhood, and taking one of our most promising young ladies.

Gladys, we will miss you in all our church, as well as social affairs and Gerald, there is a warm welcome awaiting you both, in our community as there as you are able to join us. We hope to have you frequently in Sidney, and now may we wish you every joy and happiness in the new duty in life, which you are about to take.

We ask you to accept these gifts we are held, And may you always have Jesus Make the core your heart, for your friends at Aikins.

Somebody said it,
That the pilgrim declared it,
That Gerald and Gladys
Were soon to be wed.

Fast travelled the word,
Until everyone heard
And we all did our share
To make the news spread.

We scarcely believed
When the word we received,
That Gladys would leave us
And other girls do.

Now, we are convinced
That to marry you will
Not in the passenger
That stands on the hill.

But in your old home
On the second concession,
Where you made trips
Two years in succession.

We for him himself
Are really envious,
And Gladys we are sure
Will stay by his side.

Gladys, we'll miss you
Not only in the pew.
But in the choir loft
We'll miss you too.

We'll miss you in League.
Not a little, but a lot.
Because you're leaving.

Will be tieing the knot.
Signed on behalf of your many friends:—

Irene Grills.
Marion Aikins.
Edith Hogle.

ESTATE HEIR IS MISSING

Hiram Pitts, Cornwall, Has Been Away For One Week

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—The well known Cornwall man is to disappear within the past two months, Hiram Pitts, 73 year old heir to one of the largest estates which has been missing from his home for more than a week.

Cash Box in Disused Well Sends Woman Before Jury

Finger Prints said "I Did It"

The proprietor of a prosperous grocery store in Kewanee, Ill., was in the habit of keeping the day's receipts in a tin box and depositing the money each morning when the banks opened. On August 29th last, after a big day there was $300 in the box. During the night it was stolen. There were no broken doors or windows. It looked like an inside job.

Suspicion fell on John Schultze, a clerk who had lately been taken on and he was arrested. A large sum of money was found in his room. He said it was his savings but things looked dark for him. The detectives were puzzled at not finding the tin box and in their search they uncovered an old disused well across from the store and found it there. Handling it carefully they had experts examine it for finger prints and prints were found of two persons.

Prints of the store employees were quickly taken. The prints on the box were found to correspond with the Proprietor's — he alone was supposed to handle the box—and those of a woman employee who had not been suspected. She was arrested and confessed to the theft. She had wanted to buy a fur coat to please her lover and her up for trial for robbery instead.

Your Prints are Dangerous too—on Food

You do not see fresh bone nor constant crimes but your finger prints are even more dangerous to you than he's were to the women in the alley; incident. Several times a day your prints may be exposed you to great danger from disease germs. Strange? Not so strange as it seems, for doors, door knobs, books, money—things you are constantly touching, often carry germ laden fingers touch something you wish to eat—a biscuit, fruit, chocolate, and the germs enter your mouth. Once there, they multiply, germs then get multiply and penetrate all through your system and if you are susceptible to disease you fall ill. Life Extension Institute names 37 germ diseases, some of which may be transmitted by the hands.

Be brisk this autumn days and wear your wool frocks and suits for looks and comfort. The smart woollen ensemble uses an emerald green sheer wool jacket with a black wool skirt. That jacket has a tuxedo trimming of black grosgrain which is ornamented by twin clips.

Strange partners are always interesting when they form a sartorial merger. Thus much attention has been attracted by an evening frock of white satin and velvet. The very deep border of bolinsky fur and a narrow belt of gold kid.

Little but big in smartness are the new little jackets of ermine and broadtail. A very attractive model in this medium has a cape, upstanding collar and revers of leopard. The skirt has gored sections and there is a leopard melon muff.

After five many women wear a smart dinner ensemble for all but formal affairs. A new and most attractive outfit is shown in black velvet; the jacket having a square neckline banded in banquette crystals. There is a deep back peplette. The black velvet jacket has a heart neckline and three quarter sleeves bordered in black fur.

KIDNEYS WEAK DULL AND HEAVY

Hamilton, Ont.—"I have taken Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets and can highly recommend them as a genuine diuretic," said W. H. Cole of 19 Bruce Street. "My kidneys were in such a weakened condition that I had no control of them, my back bothered me and I felt dull and heavy. I took Anuric and it was very helpful to me, strengthened my kidneys and caused them to function in a perfectly normal way."

GANG'S GUNS BARK DEATH

Two Minutes Packed With Death, as Two Men Fall

New York, N.Y., Nov. 18—Two minutes packed with tragedy left the little court open kitchen in Brooklyn thick with the smoke of guns early today, and two men dead on the floor.

A motorcar drove up in front. Four men got out. They entered the restaurant with pistols in their hands and walked quickly toward a table where sat three men.

The guns blazed in unison; the roar of the weapons being magnified by the walls and ceiling.

The killers backed out the door, covering their retreat with their smoking weapons, got into their car and were lost in the darkness before pursuit could start.

The two who were slain were: Guglielmo Gulos, 29, known as a gangster and recently acquitted of a homicide charge; and Benedito Guarrera, 27, concerning whom police said they had no record.

The third man at the table who apparently saw the killers as they were entering, dropped under the table and crawled out a kitchen door. None of the restaurant workers knew who he was.

Admits in Court Paying For His Car By The Dole

London (By The Canadian Press)—Admitting that although he was on the dole he owned and drove a motor car, a welsh miner, aged 32, was tried in the Middlesex Sessions today and was sentenced to keep a car under the circumstances. "I have plenty of friends," he replied.

Council: "Did you tell the Ministry of Labor that you were running a car?"

"No, I did not see it was necessary." He stated that he had been on the dole for four months and was getting the car on the instalment system. He was paying $20 a month.

Counsel: "How much are you drawing on the dole?"

"About $3.60 a week."

"Do the Ministry know of this position?"

"They do not know anything about me I have not signed on."

The judge said he thought it showed the system should be altered.

FAMOUS WORKS ARE OFFERED

Lord Sackwill Offers For Sale Two Portraits By Artist

London (By The Canadian Press) —Two famous pictures are in danger of being lost to the nation, Lord Sackville has decided to sell the portraits of George III. and Queen Charlotte, by Sir Joshua Reynolds presented to one of his ancestors by the King in 1778, and which have since hung at Knole Park, the first residence of the Sackville family.

Lord Sackville said to an interviewer: "I shall make every effort to ensure that the pictures will be kept in England, but the matter rests with those who have the money to purchase them. My reason for selling them is that, owing to increased taxation, I have got to find more money. And as I do not want to go bankrupt, and turn off people in my services, I must some way or other get it. I am trying to get people in England to buy the pictures and have not followed up inquiries offers made from macross the Atlantic."

Two years ago Lord Sackville sold the Hoppner portrait of the Sackville children to Thomas W. Lemont an American banker, for a record price. Shortly afterwards another fantastic tapestry, crossed the Atlantic, and Rubens's sketch, "The Dean of Adonia," was also sold.

Lord Sackville, who had a distinguished career in the army, and after war became Lieutenant-Governor of Guernsey, was married in 1924 to Miss Anne Meredith Bigelow, of New York.

Unnecessary to Have High Court Action

London (By The Canadian Press) County Court Judge J. D. Crerar, of Romford County Court recently, deprecated the folly of litigants going to the expense of taking cases to the High Court. He asked: "Why cannot the British public see the utter folly of bringing actions in the High Court with all the heavy costs which are involved?" Before him was a claim of 25, who had lost an action for damages, concerning a motor accident. It was stated that the costs in the action were about $1,360 per yeard," said the Judge. "I and others have been trying to show the foolishness of bringing such actions in the High Court but no one takes any notice." It was unexpressibly and, he said, that a young man should have this millstone hanging round his neck for life. He (the Judge) wished he could do something to stop it, but he was as powerless as the pencil he was holding. He refused to make a commital order, but made a new order for $10 a month.

DEVIL IN IT SAYS HIGHNESS

Sensation of First Phonograph in England Told

London (By The Canadian Press) —The sensation caused by the first Edison phonograph brought to England is thus described by Alan S. Cobbold, former assistant Secretary of the Board of Education, South Kensington, in a letter to The Times: "Early in the nineties my wife and I were of a small party dining in the house at South Kensington, invited by Colonel George FitzGerrye. The late Duke of Cambridge was present to meet Colonel Gouraud and to hear him explain the Edison phonograph which he had just brought over from the United States. He demonstrated its working and then asked the Duke to speak into the instrument. This he did with hesitations and well-rolled r's, congratulating Colonel Gouraud upon his great success. Immediately, before the Duke could sit down the machine was adjusted to deliver the Duke's utterances, and did so with such accuracy that his Royal Highness slumped back on to the sofa cushions calling out the 'Devil's in it.'"

FLOYD GIBBONS TO COVER WAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 18—It is announced by J. V. Connolly, president of International News Service and Universal Service that Floyd Gibbons, famous war correspondent, would leave New York tonight for Manchuria to cover the Sino-Japanese situation.

His daily dispatches will be radioed to the United States from the zone of fighting for publication in The Detroit Times and other newspapers associated with International News Service or Universal Service.

Germans who wish to leave their native land must now pay a tax of $25.

ENGLISH NOT ALL MUDDLERS

People as Whole Are Skeptical and Proceed Cautiously

London (By The Canadian Press) —Lord Chelmsford, in presenting prizes at Reading School recently, deprecated the habit of self-depreciation on the part of Englishmen, and their suggesting that the proper way to do things was to "muddle through", which he thought a curious habit. Apart from its foolishness, it did the British people a great deal of damage outside, as he had found by his contact with foreigners, when they saw articles in the Press running down capacity to do this or that. "As a matter of fact," he said, "it is not true. We do not really think poorly of our selves. We have really a good conceit of ourselves and always have had whether as a nation or as individuals. If it comes to a question of 'muddling through' I believe there is a good deal behind it, but it is not muddling. We are skeptical an distrustful of theoretical principles and of logic, preferring to proceed—quite scientifically—by the process of trial and error, which in that way we reach the end, whether as a nation or individuals, which we desire."

DURHAM

x a) co

London (By The Canadian Press) —Lord Durham's decision to close Lambton Castle, Durham, and sell most of its contents will probably mean that more valuable paintings will be sold. Several months ago Lord Durham refused a offer of $400,000 for Lawrence's famous "Red Boy" made by the American collector, Jules Bache. This portrait of Master Lambton was considered to be worth nearer $500,000.

The "Red Boy's" crimson suit was one yellow. Sir Thomas Lawrence altered it because the boy's father had been nicknamed the "Yellow Dandy." Lord Durham also owns a large Hoppner painting of Lady Durham and her children, a Lawrence full-length of Lady Durham, Romney's "General Lambton," and two fine Raeburns.

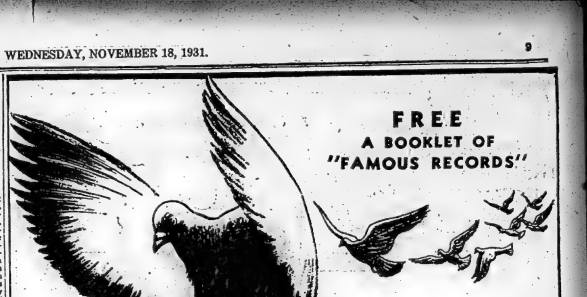
Three years ago four Reynolds portraits were sold in England for a total of $155,000. One of them, "Anne, Viscountess Molyneux," fetched $62,500. In 1921, the Duke of Westminster bought Reynolds's "Blue Boy," and the same year it was purchased from Sir Joseph Duveen by an American millionaire magnate, the late H. E. Huntington, for $795,000.

BALLOT COUNT IS PROCEEDING

Payne Has Lead on Gaetz of 134 So Far at Red Deer

Red Deer, Alta, Nov. 18.—(By The Canadian Press)—Ballot counters resumed their work here today with the victor in the Red Deer provincial contest not yet determined, yesterday still very much in doubt.

Chances of election for James Bannerman, Labor, and P. O. Day, Communist, have been eliminated, and Payne is now leading R. J. Payne, K.C., Conservative and R. L. Gaetz, United Farmers of Alberta and government supporter.



When first choices of 55 out of 57 polls had been tabulated last night Payne had a total of 124 over Gaetz. The standing at that time was: Payne, 1,624; Gaetz, 1,314; Bannerman, 478; Bray 245.

FROM HOME AFFAIRS

Hopedale, Labrador, Nov. 18—Date for an inquiry into the affairs of the Home for Aged and Infirm will be set in the near future, Controller Sam Lawrence announced today. Mrs. Lawrence commanded last evening charges as to the treatment of Miss Nora Scott, now dead, and Mrs. Margaret Friend, who resides in the neighborhood of the home. She declared that food was of poor quality and that patients were neglected, even when ill.

NEW COMPANY FORMED

SALVAGERS GO INTO ACTION

Rita Howard is Beached With Load of Hard Coal

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—A coal mine drifted up on Charlestown beachway years ago and the countryside dwellers for miles along the shore are spending by land and sea to get their winter's supply for the furnaces. For seventeen years the barge Rita Howard ploughed through the seas, safe and secure at the end of a tow line. But one day her tow line snapped and, helpless and wallowing, she beached hard and fast near Charlestown, never to go to sea again. She was laden with 600 tons of hard coal worth $12,000, and now the coal is there for the taking. The barge itself was valued at $5,000.

For a time the owner, the Howard Line, 1 Broadway, New York, held hope that the barge, which was enroute from Kingston, N.Y., to Providence, could be refloated and the residents in the vicinity held off, hoping that the vessel would be abandoned.

Finally the company decided that any effort to float the barge would be hopeless, and when the word went around, activity sprang into action. They came from Green Hill, Charlestown, Quonchontaug and even as far as Westerly, twelve miles distant, and they came by land and sea—in touring cars and trucks and boats.

Wise to the ways of salvaging, they came prepared, bringing large burlap bags with them. And while the Rita Howard lay broadside on the beach, held by the cargo that they wanted, the waves beating against her, that mast that carried her riding light forlorn against the sky, there was feverish action aboard her. The salvagers dug into her well-filled holds and quickly filled their burlap bags. The filled bags were placed in row-boats bobbing in the water around the barge, and transferred from there to the beach, where men in hip boots carried them on their backs to automobiles and trucks on the sandy road some distance from the beach.

Many of those who boarded the stranded barge with the burlap bags live in outlying sections, and most of them usually burn wood entirely in the winter, but now they will have coal, and plenty of it, just for the taking.

TO SHIP MALTING BARLEY OVERSEAS

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 18—Two cargoloads of Ontario malting barley will shortly be despatched to Great Britain, following negotiations between Hon. T. A. Kennedy, Provincial Minister of Agriculture and Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in London. The barley, which is of a high quality for malting purposes, is a deterrent its value for malting purposes. One car leaves Montreal on Nov. 26, and the next one will be shipped the following day.

NO SURPRISES IN GAMES OF LAST NIGHT

Canadiens Defeat Maroons and Bandmily in Inter-City Clash

RANGERS ON TOP

Boston Bruins Win From Falcons in Last Minute of Play

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 18 (CP)—Two inter-city league fixtures and the Boston-Detroit tilt in the Bruin home-coming last night in National Hockey League program. In the first two games, Canadiens and Rangers had three goal advantages over Maroons and Americans, respectively, while in the latter go, an overtime period was the five minutes to play gave the Boston Bruins their first N.H.L. victory of the season as they downed the Falcons 1-0 in a blitzy fought contest.

A Dolan-to-Weasie combination which started the Falcon defence no less than three times during the sixty minutes, gave Canadiens three of the five goals they scored in defeating their home town rivals, 3-2. On five occasions twice during the first period and once in the final frame, the Montreal defence slipped neat passes to Weasie on the right boards and each time Nick made no mistake in beating Smith in the Maroon nets. At the old rivalry of other years flared between Lionel Conacher and Babe Siebs were, by no means, scarce. Canadiens were away to a flying start, netting a brace of goals in the opening session, but were unable to hold the lead in the middle period when Nels Stewart scored for the Maroons. Canadiens went ahead at the start of the third period the Flying Frenchmen's pass from Dolan to Weasie for the second tally. Conacher, former manager of the Maroons, made his bow in enemy toggery and helped get results when Bandy Hill gave LaRochelle a pass for Canadien's fifth counter.

Bruins Win 1-0

Despite their scoring game to the Montreal Maroons, Boston made their initial home appearance last night and barely escaped with two points when, with the game into the overtime period to play, George Owen, Boston defence man, flipped a puck over to Dit Clapper in front of the Detroit cage and the speedy forward sent the puck past Connell. The Falcons were outplayed during the second and overtime session when the Bruins staged a constant attack in Detroit territory.

Earning a two-goal lead in the first period, New York Rangers withstood a lighting Chicago drive of the Americans last night and then went on to defeat them for their city rivals. Big "Ching" Johnson, Ranger defence man, the star of the game and Frankie Boucher, centre, combined early in the opening minutes of play to beat Worters from inside the blue line, for the Patrick squad's first counter. Their second goal came toward the close of the period when Bill Cook passed to Brother Bill who beat Worters, holding the Black Hawks' threat in the second frame who scored another counter in the final session when Keeling beat Roy Worters from close in. Besides losing the contest the Americs received a severe blow when Worters, their chief goal guardian, received a gash over the eye which required 15 stitches after the cut was removed from the ice with only a few minutes to play. Rangers pocketed the pads and took up the goal position.

Toronto Maple Leafs invade Chicago tonight in the only scheduled N.H.L. game.

DURHAM BOYS WON TROPHY

Made Highest Aggregate in Judging Heavy Horses

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 18.—Durham County boys won the Beaverbrey Bull Memorial Trophy when its three contestants made the highest aggregate score in judging heavy horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep and swine. The contest is for youths under twenty years of age. Durham's representatives secured 4,738 points out of a possible 6,000. Victoria County was second and Peel third. Middlesex County, with 4,312 points, ranked fourth. Carleton was twenty-fifth with 4,221 and Essex thirty-first with 4,026. A team from Sherbrooke County, Quebec, placed twenty-third with 4,348 points.

Team of farmers from old Ontario spent the day judging critics for the Bull Trophy which opens tomorrow. The Bull Trophy was one of a series of awards made yesterday.

During the past ten years or so, three great stars have stood out in the Canadian football picture. They are Messrs. Pep Leadley, Harry Batstone, and Lionel Conacher, and don't accuse us of papping them in order of merit. Now the question arises (we'd like to meet the guy who brought it up) as to who was the greatest of the three, and whether one made the other great. You see they played together with Batstone and Conacher. That would seem to give the Red Head Leadley the edge over the other two, but Batstone was a headwork and fundamentals, and his ability to kick and run. Conacher was known as the Big Train, and believe us when we say it took more than a set of six brakes to stop him. He was noted for his football, including carrying the water. Leadley, of that famous combination, "Leadley-to-Batstone-to-Leadley" combination, was noted above all else for his uncanny ability to kick a field goal from anywhere on the field up to the fifty yard line.

Current Sport

By The Observer

We notice, by the hockey dispatches from Toronto, that Doug Bentley, who starred for the Belleville juniors last season, is making a big hit in the Queen City. Bentley was transferred to three goals in the S. P. A. game played at the Maple Leaf Gardens the other night. He is leading the West Toronto juniors under the careful guidance of "Doc" Kilpatrick.

Bill Hamlin and the members of the B.A.A.A. are making hay while the sun shines. "Bill" was in town with the Wood Tweeds juniors, National Sea Flea Seniors and the Chiefs Senior hockey teams all of Toronto, yesterday. He expects to bring some real high class teams here for exhibition games before the regular season starts.

Exhibition games as a rule are not a paying proposition but the new management of the hockey teams is under the impression that if they give the fans real smart teams in these pre-season games they will receive the loyal support of the fans.

Announcement was made by the arena directors yesterday that they were going to try a new sound equipment owned by the Carl Reed Company, this winter. This is the same equipment that was used at all the big ski parades, the Ottawa Exhibition, the Sesqui Fair and other big attractions in Canada this past summer. There is no doubt but what it will prove much better than the system now installed in the arena. The new equipment will be tested for the first time on Saturday.

Harry Robinson received word from Matchmaker Brown that he was willing to back Belleville's promising young light-weight, and Freddie Carey, who made such a good showing in his last bout in Toronto, for his next all-Ontario boxing card. The next bout may be held in the new Maple Leaf Gardens.

We were glad to see that the Toronto Baseball Club has signed as a Canadian as manager for 1932. The new manager is Tommy Daly of St. John, N.B. Tommy has been playing ball for some years past and his ability as a big league catcher is still in the minds of old baseball fans. The heads of the Toronto Ball Club made no mistake when they engaged the veteran as pilot for next season.

The B. C. I. juniors are playing an exhibition game against the Tweed seniors this afternoon on the Albert College field. It is expected that the local juniors will meet the Barrie juniors in provincial play-offs later this week.

Coach Tommy Thompson had a few more aspirants out last night for his junior team. The boys are beginning to "step on the gas" and are slowly rounding into shape. Some of the newer lads are showing their class now and gave the rail-birds something to go home and talk about last evening.

We esamined Coach Holway on his method of picking the men on evening's practice. After he got the boys through about fifty minutes of real strenuous hockey he made the boys throw away their sticks and skate around at random for about five minutes. Even the lads players enjoyed this.

A few new faces were seen out with the seniors last night. "Soup" Gayer resurrected the old skates from the moth balls and had a little limbering up. Bobbie Hall was on deck as was "Dutch" Cain. Cain made a hit with the fans and according to the whispers around the rink the rail-birds seemed tickled with the showing of the new player from Collingwood. "Eddy" Sealard went into the nets last night and the boys gave him a busy evening.

President Don Roe has called a meeting of the Belleville City Hockey League for Thursday evening. All teams who were represented last year and any new teams who wish to enter the league are invited to the meeting. Some important questions are to be brought up at this meeting and it is the wish of last year's executive that all teams come prepared to state definitely whether or not they intend carrying on this season. The conclave will be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday night.

The main question to be discussed is the possibility of entering a couple of Belleville teams in the proposed Hastings County League. Tweed, Madoc and Stirling are to be approached as possible members of the new loop.

The first outside practise to be held at the Belleville arena was by the Napanee team last evening. The boys from "down east" were limbering up for their scheduled game with Kingston. They are members of the Kingston City League but would jump at the chance of entering a league as proposed above.

The Napanee boys presented a couple of likely looking prospects last evening. Young Card who caught through last year's team while Wilson also caught in his eye at some of the workouters. Both of these boys will be out with the local juniors on Friday night.

What a crowd toot advantage of the season's first skating in the arena last night. It was too bad that the weather man was unmerciful and left the ice-makers last evening. The temperature registered exactly 32 table coupled with the skating of over seven hundred skaters the ice was a bit "wet". It was noticed, however, that the ice was hard enough under the water. Both engines were on at full power during the evening and the mild weather along with the large number of skaters helped to inhibit the producing of good ice.

X—X—X

We notice that Matchmaker Jack Corcoran, of the Queensbury Athletic Club in Toronto, has matched Jim Leodos and Carabaldi in a wrestling bout for the world's championship. Those two men are considered about the best wrestlers in the business and Corcoran is taking them to the new Maple Leaf Gardens for the initial wrestling bout to be held there.

Soccer football players are coming to the front in this district. Last week the Belleville United played a tie game over the Picton against the Picton team. On Saturday the Argyll Club defeated the All-Stars of Belleville at the Albert College field by the score of 3 to 1. The first game of the Belleville and District soccer league will be played next Saturday, it is expected.

HOCKEY TEAMS SPEED UP IN PRACTICES

McDonald, of Parkdale, Turns on Juice to Give Fans a Thrill

NEW SENSATION OUT

"Dutch" Cain Makes Favorable Impression in First Appearance

Hockey players, puck-chasers, goal getters and what not were seen at the two hockey practices last evening, both teams presented a few new faces and a good hour's practise was put in by both camps.

Turn on Wales

Precisely at 8 p.m. Coach Thompson ran his juniors out to practise. Besides the large number, who put in an appearance the previous night a few new players were on hand with the local kids. Ted Henn, George High and Jack Pollin, to mix, were some of the new faces seen on the ice, which, by the way, was a bit soft due to the extreme mild weather. McDonald, who performed with the Parkdale Canoe Club last season, gave the fans something to go home and talk about when he cut loose and displayed a little speed skating. This boy also has a shot that is really 'nobody's business' also when the final count was taken, Jimmie McGuire gave a rail-birds a thrill or two when he showed up a bit realm of speed and stick handling. He is a product of the Belleville hockey player. Murray also looked as if he was ready to go to the big time before any day now Coach Thompson had a host of other kids on hand to be starting to weed out the players who just don't fit in and have his real eye cut down some before the end of the week.

New Seniors Out

Coach Holway Murray ran out a few new faces again last evening. Bohan of Trenton, Rosenberg, Ball Hall, and Dutch Cain were right on the job last night. "Soup" Gayer came out and limbered up a bit and will be out as "En aspirant for the senior team this winter. Robbie Buskard went between the goal posts for the first time in a practise evening and he spent a real busy evening trying to keep the shots from behind the nets. Robbie looks as smart as ever and will make a bid for the job. Bill Hall is also interested the fans mostly was Dutch Cain. He had a real pair of boots and skates and put in most of the evening trying to show them in. He sent the fans home, however, convinced that he was a real comer and his actions on the ice were that of a hockey player who has been accustomed to about the game. Cain carries a puck well and seems to know how to check and give a pass, while his shooting is always on the ball.

Coach Knows Business

Reine St. Denis was chased from the junior practice as it was claimed he was over age. But Coach Holway has another put out over the fact that nobody would believe he was over twenty years of age. But the scrappy little fellow can't be worked and keeps the fans that he could fool the seniors as well as the juniors. Bruce Morgan was again travelling at top speed and McMeekin uncorked a few bursts of speed that seemed to tickle the fans present. Johnnie Rosenberg and Roddy Hall were travelling at top speed as though they had forgotten their skates for a period of seven months. Smith, the big kid last summer, was better each time out and has convinced the fans that he will be a smart performer this year than last. Holgate, Day, Berbert and a number of others were present last evening and put in a real good fifty minutes practice. Coach Holway praise Coach Holway made the boys throw away their sticks and do a little free style skating for about fifteen minutes and the way of ending an evening's practice brought many words of praise from the rail-birds present.

Tony Canzoneri and Kid Chocolate Will Meet Friday Night

(By Herbert Bayard Swope, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, N.Y., Nov. 18—Class will tell but you cannot predict the outcome of the coming light-weight championship duel between Tony Canzoneri and Kid Chocolate on that basis. They both have it.

Canzoneri and already has held three ring titles, featherweight, lightweight and junior welterweight. The latter two he still holds and both will be at stake when the two Cubans clash over the 15-round route in Madison Square Garden, Friday night.

Chocolate, 24 years old, first won national recognition in this country as a bantamweight but he quickly outgrew the division and for some time was recognized as the uncrowned king of the feather-weights. That was until he battled Christopher (Kid) Mattalino for the latter's pound title and took a beating for his pains. Just before that disaster, the Cuban negro flash had been beaten by Kid Jack (Kid) Berg and Fidel Labarba and the beating he received when he had burned himself out.

But the boy came back with a rush, slopped Benny Bass at Philadelphia to win the slightly artificial junior lightweight champion-ship and now he is recognized as the not-at-all synthetic lightweight crown.

SPEND NIGHT ON ISLAND

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 18—Trapped by fog, 65 students of Queen's University, forming a geological party spent Monday night on Wolfe Island. The steamer Wolfe Islander ran aground in the fog and the students were forced to spend the night ashore. The students spent the night at a village hotel on the island and returned here yesterday.

CANADA PLAYS PART IN THE ARCTIC YEAR

Dominion to Send Three Expeditions to Arctic

SECOND YEAR

Polar Year Will Be An Important One For Government

Toronto, Ont. (By The Canadian Press)—Canada's part this summer will send three of 11 expeditions into the north country which will carry on meteorological, magnetic and other observations in connection with the "Second International Polar Year" of the 50 countries coordinating of Arctic and Antarctic date which scientists have decided to begin, according to Lieut.-Colonel Edouard Deville, Canadian artist in more intimate touch with the arctic and antarctic.

In the northern half of the enterprise five of the world's best observatories will be established on Canadian territory and the boarding of ships in the Canadian Arctic.

Countries besides Canada which have signified their intentions of participating in the various expeditions are Great Britain, Russia, the United States, Holland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Germany, Italy and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The "First Polar Year" was launched in 1882 and its expeditions remained in the field until 1883, securing much of the information on which modern navigation and meteorology is based. Next year, just 50 years after the first, the first venture, stations occupied by the first Polar Year expeditions manned by parties 50 years ago will be reoccupied as far as possible and a number of new stations will be established to make the work as comprehensive as possible.

John Patterson, director of the Dominion Meteorological Service at Toronto, who has been occupied for some time assisting in working up the preliminary details of the scheme, will organize the three expeditions which the Dominion government will send to Chesterfield Inlet, on the west shore of Hudson Bay; to Cape Dorset, on Foxe Channel; Cape and to Resolute, 75 miles north of the Mingan, Alta. The total cost of equipping and maintaining these expeditions in the field for the 14 months they will be away will be between $40,000 and $50,000. The personnel of the Canadian expedition will number about ten men.

Dr. Stupart will maintain a magnetic station at Port Rae, on Great Slave Lake. A privately financed expedition from the United States will be established at Port Conger, on Lady Franklin Bay, only 600 miles from the pole.

Mr. Patterson recently outlined the work of the Canadian participation in a local newspaper.

Methods of Operation

"At each station," he said, "we will have the most modern instruments available for magnetic studies in the Arctic regions. This point will be the nearest of the stations to the magnetic pole, and thus will be one of most strategic to be occupied during the second polar year. Here will be measured dip and strength of the magnetic elements of horizontal and vertical force, and the variations from the true north of the magnetic needle, all with self-recording instruments which will provide a continuous record of the elements involved.

"The strictly meteorological programme to be followed at Chesterfield will include regular observations of pressure, temperature, humidity, cloud, rain and wind direction and velocity, the last by sending up pilot balloons for observation through specially constructed telescope. In addition this station will make simple observations of the Aurora Borealis, and the frequency of currents will also be studied.

"The outpost at Coppermine will have a staff of four men, as at Chesterfield, but will specialize in the study of meteorology and the manifestations of the Aurora. Especially interesting work will be carried on at Coppermine in an effort to determine the actual height of the Aurora above the earth, as a form of information which will be of tremendous value in working out the causes of the Aurora, its nature, effect upon electricity, its propagation and relation to the phenomenon and will be of great help of previous scientific knowledge, it will be possible to work out from these photos the actual extent of the Aurora.

Measure Height Of Aurora

"The height of the Aurora will be measured by stationing cameras at points 15 to 30 miles apart. With the aid of radio or telephone communication, the cameras will be operated simultaneously. By noting the position of stars shown in the photographs and with the help of previous scientific knowledge, it will be possible to work out from these photos the actual extent of the Aurora.

"Meteorological work at Coppermine will consist of pilot balloon observations and daily pilot balloons for wind recordings. Radio sounding balloons will be directed of balloons carrying a meteorograph. This apparatus designed in our Toronto workshop, is a self-recording device by which every variation of temperature of humidity and pressure is automatically signalled to watchers on the ground by radio signals sent up with it. In this way it is possible to take periodic readings of temperature and variations in the upper strata of the atmosphere without necessarily sacrificing the information regarded as of the utmost importance in meteorological study.

Extent of Operations

"It is also hoped to measure at Coppermine at regular intervals through the year the electrical in the amount of ozone in the atmosphere and how far the ozone layer extends from earth, clearing up many problems of the understanding now prevailin gas to the variation of ozone over the surface of the globe.

"Most significant experiments will be made at Coppermine in noting the ability of the radio received by the pilot balloon transmitter which will be sent out at stated times to the Dominion magnetic observatory at Agincourt, from Bordeaux, France, and from Nauen, Germany near Oise, France.

"At Meanook north of Edmonton the studies of the solar variation being regularly carried on will be supplemented by the more detailed year observations of an extra man to be added the use of special equipment.

"Full and systematic observations in all fields will be made by the official United States expedition which will have its base at Alaska, and perhaps it should be emphasized that unusually full observations of a special nature will be made throughout the polar year at the regular meteorological stations in all the countries participating in conformity with the programme laid down by the International Polar Year Commission."

FIGHT FOR ARMY CONTROL FOREVER

London, Nov. 17 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi's Indian Nationalists will fight "until Eternity" for full control of the army in India, he told the Federal structures committee of the round table conference today.

"We will go through fire and storm and distress," he said, "and if it be God's will, through a shower of bullets to obtain our independence."

Mahatma Gandhi decided today to postpone his departure from India following a conference with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

SQUEAK OF SWIVEL CHAIRS TOO MUCH

Whitby, Ont., Nov. 18 — The August deliberations of Ontario county council have been thrown out of kilter lately. The swivel chairs with which the council room is equipped are to blame. At yesterday's council session, Reeve W. H. J. Philip of Brock Township complained the chairs squeaked so loudly he was unable to hear what was being said. But there will be no more squeaks. Council has ordered the property committee to have the springs in the chairs oiled at once.

THINK MAN FELL OFF LUMBER PILE

PORT GREDIT, Ont., Nov. 18.—(By the Canadian Press)—The elderly man found unconscious in a lumber yard here yesterday, and who later died in the hospital, has been identified as John Gibbons, 70, of Toronto. A suspicion of foul play has been aroused by the presence on a large bruise on Gibbon's head but police investigators at first are inclined to discount the theory, in the belief the man climbed on top of the lumber, fell asleep and rolled off causing the injury.

FALL OF CAR ON WORKER FATAL

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 18.—(By the Canadian Press)—Harry Redmile, 30, who suffered a broken back in an accident yesterday afternoon died Tuesday in Grace Hospital.

Redmile was working under an automobile that was set upon blocks. When the blocks slipped he was pinned to the floor of the garage and his spine fractured. He was paralyzed from the shoulders down.

What Theatrical Managers Say of Coming Attractions

At The Belle

NOVARRO IN "SON OF INDIA," NOW AT BELLE

"Son of India" with Ramon Novarro in the starring role and a supporting cast including Conrad Nagel, Marjorie Rambeau, Madge Evans, C. Aubrey Smith, Mitchell Lewis, John Miljan and Nigel de Brulier, is the feature attraction at the Belle, Friday and Thursday matinee daily.

The story leads on the P. Marion Crawford novel, "Mr. Isaacs," places Novarro in an oriental setting, his first since the successful "The Pagan." The picture was directed by Jacques Feyder, who produced the previous Novarro film, "Thunder."

The plot concerns the son of a wealthy Indian rajah who is precipitated into an amazing series of adventures which start out when a bandit gang murder his father. Before dying the film incident the burial-of Novarro alive up that the bandits will not find him. He is reared in Somali a beggar for the theft of his own diamond; his rescue from a prison camp by Negro; an exciting polo game; Novarro's secret meeting with the American girl in his underground jewel vault; the lion hunt; Novarro's fight with the bandit who killed his father and the stampede of the wounded elephants.

The picture is resplendent with picturesque backgrounds, dramatic sights and unusual costumes such as being faithfully reproduced as the streets and buildings of Bombay, India, with its quaint and colorful bazaar; the rugged mountain passes in which the bandits carry on their nefarious trade; and the jungle scenes in which the tiger hunt and elephant stampede take place.

GRAND FILM DRAMA OF PLAY "ARIZONA"

Columbia Pictures have made an absorbingly interesting talking film from "Arizona," the celebrated stage play by Augustus Thomas, which opened at the Capitol Theatre yesterday under the same title. One can readily understand why this play has attained its popularity.

Bob Denton during his four years at West Point, has been carrying on an affair with Jerry Palmer, a New York girl of rare beauty and comfortable means. On the eve of the Army-Navy game, Bob decides to break off with Evelyn. He tells her to take it like a sport because that was their understanding when matters turned in to the affair. His attitude in part of adventure which start out when a bandit gang murder his father. Before dying the film incident the burial-of Novarro alive up that the bandits will not find him. Strange Species of Fish Now at Zoo

London (By The Canadian Press) Occasional fish with eyes that shine in the darkness, like motor head-lights, and prawns that have a fascinating green light from their eyes in the dark, were among recent arrivals from South Africa at the Zoo Aquarium here. In addition to the prawns and fish, which are poison-tipped spikes on their spines and representatives of the octopus family. The ocellated fish with the head-lights spend its life in pretty much the dark, for nature has provided it with the means of emitting its own light.

Canada's fishing grounds include over four fifths of the total inland grounds of the north Atlantic, embracing 5,000 miles of coastline, 7,180 miles of coast on the north Pacific, 6,000 miles on Hudson Bay and a vast area of inland lakes and rivers.

Victor McLaglen whispers words of encouragement to disillusioned and heart sick Elissa Landi in her new picture, "Devotion," now at the Capitol, Thursday and Friday.

Full of exciting scenes and breathless beauty, "Son of India," now at the Belle, reveals Ramon Novarro in his most romantic and appealing role since "The Pagan." Madge Evans, Conrad Nagel and Marjorie Rambeau are seen in featured roles.

RUSHING ROAD ACROSS CANADA

Total Men Employed May Reach 10,000 By May

Toronto, Ont. (By The Canadian Press)—Hundreds of men are at work and thousands of dollars are being spent to rush to completion the Ontario section of the Trans-Canada Highway. From Hornepayne Schreiber on the west and from Northern Ont. to Cochrane on the east gangs of men are clearing the right-of-way, eliminating sharp curves and reducing grades. The central section, connecting the two outside links, has not been routed officially. Two government survey parties are now working on the alternate routes for some weeks, the Cochrane and Hearst area and the more southerly route through Sault Ste Marie and up the shoreline of Lake Superior.

Many thousand men recruited from Ontario's unemployed army have been given fall and winter work, it is estimated that at least 2,400 will leave for the north shortly. Possibly 10,000 may altogether will be at work this winter on the highway project.

The Ontario section of the Trans-Canada highway will measure about 1,400 miles—one-third of the total length from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It has been impossible to estimate the total cost, due to the unknown factors of locations that will be met. An ordinary highway between Toronto and Southern Ontario costs about $25,000 a mile but the new road will have no bearing on the costs of the Trans-Canada. The province will not build anything more than fifty-fifty in cost of the highway except in the Algonquin National Park area through a large town or city where the municipality is asked to bear a proportion of the cost.

The highway will join the Manitoba section about 33 miles west of Kenora. A fifty-mile highway will connect Fort a Vermillian Bay is under construction, linking up the Dawson Trail with the Canadian Eastward to Dinorwic, the road will continue northward to Ear Falls to hook up with the Port Arthur-Fort Frances highway.

From North, Bay to Pembroke on the south, the road will be built in the truest officially—hundreds of men are at work. Housed in camps and fed by contractors in the towns and cities of the province.

The highway will be linked by railway connect with a provincial road already built. It then will connect with the Dixie Highway, Toronto to Hamilton, sweeping on through that province to the Maritimes and the Atlantic coast.

French Exposition Not to Reopen in 1932

PARIS—France's colonial exposition which opened last June on the Vincennes Road, will not reopen when over the world, probably will close its doors forever. The government has decided there will be no reopening of the exposition in 1932 despite the wishes of many commercial people and colonial participants anxious to show their particular countrymen to the richness of the various Gallic Imperial possessions overseas.

The success of the exposition has exceeded expectations despite the most discouraging weather France has experienced since 1850. It will have drawn by the closing date, if present figures be maintained, about 35,000,000 visitors—nearly the equivalent of one-fourth France's entire population.

Although the spring and summer season of 1931 was bad for France's tourist trade, it was kind to the folk of neighboring countries have flocked to the exposition in great numbers. The Belgians, lead because of their proximity. Then, in proportion to population come the Swiss, German Czechs and the people of other central European countries. The British were less in evidence, but they kept up their country's financial situation.

Three kings and two queens have visited the exposition—Albert and Elizabeth of Belgium, Feisal of Iraq, Alfonso of Morocco and Wilhelmina of Holland. Virtually every European royalty has been represented by Princes of ministers both, the Duke and Duchess of York of Great Britain.

Next year a privately formed committee proposes to institute a "universelle" for the exposition grounds, in which the products of France's colonies will be prominently features, and which will concentrate on the amusement attractions that made the parent exposition popular with the French masses and with foreign tourists.

Warrant Issued Many Years Ago

Sheffield, England (By The Canadian Press)—When Horace Webster, of Woodlake-street, Sheffield, was treated at Sheffield Police Court, on a charge of street betting, it was stated the warrant was issued against him in May 1912. It had never been executed, though with the exception of a period of war service, he had been in Sheffield all the time. The police officer who made the arrest gave evidence against him retired on pension nine years ago. Webster pleaded not guilty, and appealed later when the fine that he might prepare his defence.

ASSAILANT OF GIRL SOUGHT

Hamilton Police Look For Man With Scratches on Face

Hamilton Ont., Nov. 18—(By the Canadian Press)—Police are seeking the attacker of a young girl, who was found by police in a serious condition in the Ballard School grounds this morning. A suitcase belonging to her was by Sherman Avenue Station North car which attempted to flee the girl leaning against a post on the grounds, stumbling and fell. She was removed to a nearby doctor's office for treatment, where it was found that she had suffered severe bruises and lacerations to her face and body and was prostrated from shock. She informed police that a man had waylaid her and attacked her furiously running away when she screamed.

Police examined the soft ground and found marks of a struggle and signs that the girls body had been dragged some distance along by the assailant. Parts of her clothing were found in the vicinity, scattered about and her shoes had been torn from her feet. Police are combing the district for clues believing the fact that the man's face was badly scratched in the struggle.

Man's African Start of Great Antiquity

NAIROBI, Kenya, East Africa, (By The Canadian Press)—An important discovery that East Africa has caused the revision of previously accepted ideas, concerning the antiquity of man in the African continent. Recent investigations by the South African archeological Expedition prove conclusively that the human skull found at Nairobi by Hans Reck in 1913 is much older than was at first thought. The skeleton has now been restored to its geological niesta of much greater antiquity.

Sir Arthur Keith, M.D., Conservator of Museums and Hunterian Professor of the Royal College of Surgeons in England, and a former President of the Royal Anthropological Institute, states, in an interview in London newspaper said; "This is a very important discovery, together with th edicovery of the Australian skull, is making a relief fund for sufferers from the severe earthquake which devastated Tokyo and other parts of Japan ten years ago.

Milk Burst Cans Taken by Gov't

London (By The Canadian Press) Milk that has been in the cans in which it arrives has been seized by the Ontario government and destroyed before it could do any harm to consumers, more than 6,000 tins having been thus dealt with at city wharves in the past seven months. The result of condemned skim milk from forty-six creameries and is rejected as unfit for human consumption. In that case any lower grade of milk gases generate within the tin and cause the tin to swell, and, in some instances, to burst.

INSTITUTION ANY CITY CAN BE PROUD OF

Ontario Business College Attracts Students From N. and S. America

When students travel great distances to attend a particular school or college, what are the reasons that impel them to do so? Undoubtedly the chief reasons are, first, a well-established reputation for efficiency and superior courses for the part of the institution, and, second, a body of successful graduates who attribute their success to the training the institution gave them. These are precisely the reasons why this year (and every year) so many have come to Belleville from distant places to attend Ontario Business College.

Besides Canadian students there have been at O.B.C. this year a number from Australia, Barbados, Jamaica (in the West Indies), British Guiana (South America), Bermudas, the United States and England, all of whom came to Belleville expressly to attend Ills College.

The representation at O.B.C. from Quebec has always been large, students being here this year from sixteen different cities and towns in that province, three of them from Montreal.

Ontario Business College has never received any endowments or concession of any kind from the city or province, or any society or any other source, and in this respect it is a unique institution. Instead of being supported by public funds, it has always contributed largely to the revenues of the City of Belleville and the Province of Ontario. O.B.C. is the kind of institution any city would foster and be proud to have within its boundaries.

PANTOMIMES NOT PLENTIFUL

Only Three Pantomimes Are Being Prepared For Christmas

London (By The Canadian Press) —Traditional pantomimes for the Christmas season seem not to be engaging the attention of producers this year to the usual extent. Julian Wylie, well-known producer and manager, has only three pantomimes in view for this Christmas, and none of them is for London.

Fay Compton will again play principal boy in "Dick Whittington" this time at Glasgow, and there will be "Queen of Hearts" (with Dorothy Ward) at Leeds and "The Sleeping Beauty," at Manchester. All the moment the only prospect of pantomime in Central London this year appears to be the unfailing Lyceum show. It will be "Cinderella," and Naughton and Gold will be in it.

JUGGLE RIGHTS OF QUEBEC

Hon. Fernand Rinfret States Speaking at Banquet

Montreal, Que., Nov. 17—The Federal Government was too prone to "juggle" with the rights of the province of Quebec in regard to the cancellation of the River St. Lawrence, Hon. Fernand Rinfret, former secretary of state, said at a banquet tendered to Hon. C. P. Arcand, new provincial Minister of Labor last night. Mr. Rinfret states Quebec was linked to the Dominion of Canada by the confederation pact only and this pact revoked not trustworthy the province was quite able to look to it. He did not think Quebec would ever submit to a policy of "United States incorporation of our national rights."

Mr. Rinfret pointed out that owing to the railway situation in Canada consideration of the grand scheme was futile at present, because both railways would suffer from water competition.

The average cost of a year's instruction of a student at a Canadian University, exclusive of board and personal expenses is around $484, of which $231 is paid out of provincial funds.

4,000 American boys took part in the 12th annual pilgrimage of Boy Scouts to the grave of Theodore Roosevelt, at Oyster Bay, L.I. The Scouts were from New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

Scouting Aids The Handicapped

In England there are 24 Scout troops of blind boys, 87 troops, Cub packs and Rover crews for crippled boys, 22 units for the deaf and 33 in institutions for the mentally deficient. In all cases the training and discipline have been found distinctly beneficial.

Visit of The French Boy Choir

The French boy choir, "Young Singers of the Wooden Cross" whose recent tour of eastern Canada was a notable musical event, was made up entirely of Cuba Scouts and Rovers of the 20th and 21st Scout Group of Paris. In keeping with the statement of the director, the Abbe Mallet, that the boys were "Scout and Crossed Boy Scouts," the French lads wore Scout uniforms throughout, except when rendering liturgical numbers. In this the French Scouts carried out the practice of the Westminster Abbey Scout choir which toured Canada in 1927.

EMPLOYMENT SEEN ON MEND

Mayor Peebles of Hamilton Reports More Work

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 18—Employment conditions in Hamilton have shown unmistakable signs of improvement, it was divulged by mayor Peebles this morning. Recently notices were sent to unemployed that their turn had come for jobs in city relief work. Total of 140 men failed to answer the summons, indicating that they had been able to secure employment in the meantime. This was about 15 percent of the number summoned for work. Notices having been sent to 975 persons.

"Talkies" for Trains Have Been Invented

London (By The Canadian Press) —If experiments which are being made by one of the railways are successful there is a good prospect that rail passengers of the future will be able to walk along their long-distance express train corridors to the "talkie" car.

Recently a test was made by the installation of two portable sound film projectors in a very long rail car attached to the end of a Scarborough express. When the train got under way guests were invited by cards to take their seats aboard the "talkie" car.

Orchestral music mingled with the sound of the wheels, songs, dances and patter came through well, but drama was not so successful because of the roar. Notwithstanding this the trial was a success, and it was learned that it would be necessary to build a sound proof rail car for "talkie" film shows. Tests were made also with small films by means of portable projectors, and several hundred passengers were able to enjoy films of travel subjects and comedies.

BUN FEED IS SURE TO COME

Annual Event of Wharf Street Club is a Fixture

The annual Bun Feed of the Wharf debating club will take place. There has been speculation in the minds of some whether this was to occur or not. Well!—it will. The night of November 27 has been chosen as the date. The mayor and members of the city council are all members of the club and will doubtless be on hand to give account, to their fellow members, of their stewardship of the year. Those new aspirants for civic honors are likewise invited to be banqued. The city may make their pronouncements. The mezzo-soprano of the club will render a ward to the usual gala night and arrangements as heretofore will be complete.

Mr. Irwin stated that Western Ontario accumulated most of the prize monies, and regretted the lack of entries from this district. Eastern Ontario producers of the very finest of cheese but unless cannot be given without effort, by makers only in this district exhibited, but one of John Pinnegan at Maxwell's received an award for his October whites.

ELECTION NOT SIGNIFICANT

Premier Henry Tells That Depressed Conditions Are Cause

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 19—The defeat of the Conservative candidate by the Liberal nominee in the Provincial by-election in South Wellington had little significance as far as the government was concerned, Hon. George S. Henry, Premier of Ontario, said last night.

"I am not very sure that it really means very much, but the result has much significance as far as the government is concerned," he said. "It is quite possible that the result is the consequence of unfavorable conditions in the city, because of unemployment, and in the country because of low prices for agricultural products."

The result of the election leaves the party standing in the Legislature as follows:

Conservatives	63
Liberals	15
Progressives	5
Independent Con.	3
U. F. O.	1
Labor	1

Farmers' Board Favored for Muscle Shoals Operation

Three Dollars for One

EVERYONE who has a spark of kindness in their makeup, and who has not? devotes a certain portion of his or her income every year to help those in need. This is only obeying the divine command to do unto others as we would that they would do unto us, and as we live that is the final judgment we will not be afraid to be judged by our deeds in this life.

Here's where every dollar we have spent in helping others has been just one dollar and we have had to take a chance on its being well spent.

Now our dollar for good works is THREE DOLLARS when paid into the Belleville Unemployment RELIEF Fund, because the Provincial and Dominion governments add two more dollar for every dollar we contribute. Then the committee by centralizing all relief work prevents overlapping and overlooking, so that all needy persons get relief and no one gets more than their share.

Therefore every dollar we have spent in helping others has been just one dollar and we have had to take a chance on its being well spent.

Now our dollar for good works is THREE DOLLARS when paid into the Belleville Unemployment RELIEF Fund, because the Provincial and Dominion governments add two more dollar for every dollar we contribute. Then the committee by centralizing all relief work prevents overlapping and overlooking, so that all needy persons get relief and no one gets more than their share.

Hereafter every dollar we have spent in helping others has been just one dollar and we have had to take a chance on its being well spent.

Now our dollar for good works is THREE DOLLARS when paid into the Belleville Unemployment RELIEF Fund, because the Provincial and Dominion governments add two more dollar for every dollar we contribute. Then the committee by centralizing all relief work prevents overlapping and overlooking, so that all needy persons get relief and no one gets more than their share.

The Belleville Unemployment Relief Committee will be very much assisted in the work by prompt action on the part of the citizens. Contributions can be left at any of the Banks or those not convenient through the relief cards or groups. It is desired to finish the financial campaign as quickly as possible, and all citizens can help by making their contributions at once through direct subscriptions at the banks, through return of the cards to the City Treasurer, or through the various groups, including Retail Merchants, Manufacturers, Railway organizations, etc. Remember that a dollar given quickly is worth more than the dollar.

GIVE QUICKLY, GIVE GENEROUSLY, AND REMEMBER THAT YOUR DOLLAR SWELLS TO THREE DOLLARS BY CONTRIBUTING TO THE BELLEVILLE UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF FUND.

Moyra, Largest Boat to Visit Picton This Season

-APPLE CARGOES

Rural Dean Winter is Congratulated By Picton People

Picton, Nov. 19 (Special)—Picton was visited by the largest boat in the present season this week. On Wednesday afternoon the Moyra, of the Inter Provincial Steamship Company arrived from Toronto and left Thursday morning for Hay Bay where she will go up the St. Lawrence and on to Vancouver. She is the Panama Canal.

The Moyra is a very large freighter and experienced some difficulty in getting room to dock, owing to the low water. While in Picton, 22,000 cases of canned goods loaded.

Shipments of canned goods and apples from Picton are very heavy this season and boats from several different lines are calling every few days.

Appointed Rural Dean announcement was received, that Rev. Cecil Winter who for five years has been rector of St. Mary Magdalene church, Picton is to succeed Rural Dean of Prince Edward. Rev. Winter succeeds Rev. C. S. Clarke, who was recently transferred from Belleville to a Toronto church. Rev. Rural Dean Winter's many friends are pleased to hear of his appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Calnan left Thursday morning to spend several days at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Webster and Mr. John and Miss Webster, Royal Winter Fair. Mrs. Webster will visit her mother, Mrs. Hamilton, in Guelph before returning to town.

Dr. T. W. and Mrs. Herrington were in Toronto last week.

Mrs. Alvin Williams has returned to town after visiting relatives at Irondale and in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Welsh and daughter Betty Ann were in Toronto where Betty has been receiving treatment for her injured arm.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Walmsley left the home of their employer Russell Day, to go duck shooting. When he failed to return at a late per time, Mr. Day became alarmed and went to the boat house which is situated about sixty rods from the house. He found the boat on land about half between the boat house and the lake and young McNab was dead. There was a pool of blood about two feet from the nose of the boat. The boat was found a single barrel, twelve-gauge shot gun, containing one empty shell. It is supposed that while McNab was pulling the boat to the lake, a distance of twenty-two yards, over a gravel and rock surface, the gun fell from the boat and discharged. The shot entered the back of his right head, killing him once and his. The wound, where the shot entered was one inch by one and one-quarter inches in size and on the other side of the head wound was seven and three-quarter inches by three and three-quarter inches in size. The gun was found by its the left hand.

The coroner was immediately reported to the Provincial Police at Lindsay and Provincial Constable Nelson, accompanied by Coroner Dr. F. A. Logan, of Lindsay, left C. cace for the scene of the shooting. Dr. Logan decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The report of this accident was received on Thursday morning by Provincial Constable Nelson of Lindsay, by Toronto Provincial Police dispatch office, Bellevile.

MUNRO GIVEN 258 MAJORITY

Conservatives Suffer Second Loss There in 29 Years

Guelph, Nov. 19—Carrying a riding that has been Conservative in one exception since 1902, D. Paul Munro, Liberal, on Wednesday was elected to the Ontario Legislature for the riding of South Wellington.

His majority over W. P. Gamble, Conservative, was 258. The vote was: Munro, 7,269; Gamble, 7,011.

The election was made necessary by the death a short time ago of Lincoln Goldie, former Provincial Secretary in the Ferguson government.

In the 1929 provincial election, Mr. Goldie had a majority of 1,489 over Beecher Parkhouse, prohibitionist.

The Liberal candidate yesterday rolled up a majority of 1,589 in the rural sections of the riding, and held the Conservative majority to a lead of 841 in the city of Guelph. In 1929, Guelph gave Mr. Goldie a majority of almost 2,000 for Mr. Goldie, the city's favorite son, and Premier Frick's—Liberal workers estimate a favorability of 800 in 1929 to a base 14.

Commission Favorable to Farmer Ownership Control Muscle Shoals

Should Be Operated Primarily For Fertilizer Concentrates

AS EXPERIMENT

Electricity Should Take Second Place at Shoals

Nashville, Tenn., Nov 19—Private operation of Muscle Shoals, preferably by a "corporation exclusive ly owned and controlled by organizations of farmers" was recommended today in the Muscle Shoals commission's report to President Hoover and the governors of Alabama and Tennessee.

It was recommended that the Shoals properties be operated "primarily" for quantity production of fertilizer and fertilizer concentrates, but the commission also advocated the use of the power for the manufacture of chemicals and for agricultural experiments.

As to electricity produced at the Shoals, the report said fertilizer and chemical manufacture should be given first claim on the power output, but added that there should there still be a surplus, provision should be made for "State, counties, municipalities and chemical companies in the region."

FOUND DEAD UPON SETTEE

Two Men Are Held For Questioning in Woman's Death

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Nov. 19. —Mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Ida L. Smith, 60, of Niagara Falls, are being probed by police. Julius P. Berry, former husband of Mrs. Smith, and Chas. N.Y., are being held for questioning.

Death was due to carbolic acid poisoning according to Dr. Logan, who conducted a post-mortem. A bottle containing some of the acid was found on a table near the settee where Mrs. Berry's body was found, the bottle is missing.

The two men said they spent Tuesday evening at the Berry House in the company of a third man, James Barr, of Niagara Falls, N.Y. After taking Shaver home they returned to find Mrs. Berry apparently asleep on the settee. After efforts to awaken failed they discovered she was dead.

PICKS MUSHROOMS ON NOVEMBER 18

Walking along Bridge Street yesterday morning a physician of that locality, was noticed picking mushrooms, these were of the shaggy mane black cap variety. The doctor, an ardent hunter for these succulent fungi, states he has never known a year when these could be found as late as November 18th, and says he does not know whether there are a late crop from last season or are a late crop of the present season or the early appearance of those of the next. Well—it's been a great and glorious Autumn.

JOHN STREET W.M.S. IS ENTERTAINED

A very pleasing event took place in connection with John Street Society on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 18, when Mrs. Gordonsmith in the new Secretary of the Birthday League and her sister, Miss Sprague entertained the members of that home on McDonald Ave. A most enjoyable time was spent after which delicious refreshments were served.

HAND CAUGHT IN WASHING WRINGER

Mrs. R. C. Newton, 18 Turnbull St. caught her hand in the wringer of her washing machine this morning, crushing it to the wrist. She was taken to Belleville General hospital, where an X-ray made that no bones had been broken although the injury was very painful.

POINT ANNE WOMAN FALLS, ARM BROKEN

Mrs. J. E. Fleming of Point Anne, fell at her home this morning and suffered a fracture of the arm. She was taken to Belleville General Hospital, where the fracture was reduced.

PRICE PAID FOR TWO CATTLE IS $120

In Bayside correspondence in a recent issue appeared an item stating that Mr. Frank Reid has bought two fine cows for $185. In fact Mr. Reid bought them for $120.00 from Mr. R. J. Reid of Thurlow.

SUCCESSFUL EUCHRE STAGED BY MOOSE

Moose Subordinate Lodge members held sway in their hall on Front street again last night in which cards and dancing were thoroughly enjoyed by the crowd of some one hundred and fifty persons who attended.

The fore part of the evening was devoted to the customary game of progressive euchre and prizes for the lowing distinguished themselves. First—Mrs. Mrs. Armstrong, followed in order by Mrs. Brunsel and Miss Pullar. The consolation prize was won by Mrs. Burke.

For the men, Mr. Palmer was first, Mr. Poole second and Mr. MacDonald third.

MERCURY DOWN TO FREEZING POINT

After experiencing rather summer like weather for the past few days the mercury suddenly dropped last night and the local citizens seemed to notice the quick change in the temperature this morning. Yesterday's temperatures of 55 high and 40 low were considerably lowered today when the mercury dropped to the freezing point at 32 degrees. At noon today the mercury had risen to 44 high as 42.

600 Vergers Will Attend

London, Nov. 19 (CP Cable)—Rt. Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, Bishop of London, and Hiram W. Page, have invited the vergers of 600 churches within the London Diocese to attend evensong tonight at St. Paul's Cathedral. It will be the first time the body of church law officers has been brought together for a service.

The Bishop subsequently will hold a reception at which the head verger of Winchester Cathedral will deliver an address.

The duties attached to the vergers in Church of England circles is attested by the fact that in the crypt of St. Paul's, where such famous persons as Lord Nelson, the Duke of Wellington and Lord Roberts is buried, are to be found the tombs of the head vergers of the Cathedral for the past two centuries.

EIGHTY MEN SEEKING MANAGER'S POST

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 19.—Here is one of the reasons why it is taking owner Barney Dreyfuss a long time to select a new manager for his Pittsburgh Pirates.

Eighty men are after the job.

Dreyfuss said all have applied in writing for the place made vacant with the release of Manager Jewel Ens and he is considering the letters carefully, one by one.

Obituary

MRS. MARY ELIZABETH CLARKE

After a prolonged illness Mrs. Mary E. Clarke, beloved wife of Wm. P. Clarke, passed away at her residence, 8 South Front Street, yesterday. Mrs Clarke was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Ghent and was born in Belleville a little over 72 years ago. She had been a resident of this city all of her life and was a member of Bridge Street United Church. Besides her husband, two daughters: Mrs. J. E. Shaw, Jackson, Mich. and Miss Agnes; four sons, R. C. Clarke, F. M. Clarke, P. M. Clarke of Belleville and W. H. Clarke, of Toledo, besides two brothers and two sisters mourn her loss. Mrs. Clarke will be sadly missed by those who had come to know and love her.

Scout Mothers Hold At-Home

One of the most successful euchres and dances ever held in Belleville was held in the Oddfellows' Hall last night under the auspices of the Boy Scout Mothers of the city. The room was decorated for the occasion by the committee of the ladies who belong to the Second Belleville Scout Troop. The evening's entertainment was under the supervision of Mrs. A. Martin and coupled with her staff of helpers, was quite busy all evening. There were forty tables of euchre in progress and well over one hundred and seventy-five were present during the evening's entertainment.

The purpose of these entertainments is to accumulate funds for the Boy Scout camp held each summer. The Scout mothers are to be commended on their great work of helping the boys. They also purchase equipment for the scout troops when it is necessary.

The prize winners for last night's entertainment were: Ladies' first Mrs. E. Lang, first; Mrs. J. McConnell, second; Miss B. Morton, third. Gentlemen—Mr. L. Holuf, first; Mr. H. Inman, second and Mr. L. Shannon, third. The door prize was won by Mrs. Davidson while Mr. Wightman won the quilt. The Scout Dave Brodford went the prize for selling the most tickets.

After the euchre dancing was enjoyed until the wee small hours this morning. At the hour of midnight luncheon was served by the scout mothers assisted by the scouts themselves. All must home assured the Scout Mothers were to be complimented on the wonderful success of their evening.

ICKORNSHAW MAY BE TITLE

Mrs. Snowden Hopes Snowden Will Make This Choice

New York, N.Y., Nov. 19—Viscount Snowden of Ickornshaw may be the title chosen by the former Chancellor of the Exchequer and privy council Lord Privy Seal in the National Government who was recently elevated to the Peerage, says a wire less despatch from London today, to the New York Times. The correspondent says Mrs. Snowden "hopes and expects" her husband will take this title. To settle doubts whether there is such a place as Ickornshaw she explains that it is the former Labor leader's birthplace, a tiny and "very English" hamlet in the west riding of Yorkshire. Figures in the Domesday Book and is derived from the Norse word meaning "house in the woods." Mr. Snowden is reported to be recovering from his recent attack of grippe.

NATIONALIZED LAND FAVORED

Advice Given Farmers of Manitoba For Security

BRANDON, Nov. 19.—Nationalization of land last night was facilitated to United Farmers of Manitoba as a means of winning security of tenure for the agrarian in Canada. The Manitoba farm body, now in annual convention, by a large vote for or against the principle of substituting "tenures" for existing land titles.

Under the resolution before the meeting, explained in detail by A. J. Macaulay, president, the Saskatchewan's United Farmers' Body the nationalization would be substituted first for provincial land and the lands now mortgaged, but for which an adjustment basis must be found. All lands now privately owned would be nationalized only at the option of the owner.

The great art is to use art and yet conceal it.

MRS. CLUTE IS DEAD, AGED 82

Native of Belleville Was For Years Resident of Toronto

At Toronto on Wednesday there passed from this life Mrs. Rose Clute, widow of the late Justice Clute, and to many of the older residents of Belleville, the news of her passing will be learned with much regret. The late Mrs. Clute was born in Belleville and was in her early childhood year, she was the daughter of the late Mr. Henry Corby, who was a prominent and progressive pioneer in the making of Belleville years ago and was a member of the Parliament of Legislature in the sixties, and seventies of the last century. The late Senator Corby was a brother of Mrs. Clute and of eleven children, only one sister is left in the person of Mrs. U. E. Thompson of Belleville. The latter part of her life was filled by Mrs. Clute in Belleville, where she was prominent in social and church life; she was a woman of most estimable qualities and was greatly beloved by her family and friends.

In 1904 the late Mr. Justice Clute moved from Belleville to reside in Toronto and since that time the late Mrs. Clute has made her home in that city. Mrs. Clute is survived by her son, Mr. A. R. Clute K.C. Toronto; her daughter Mrs. W. T. Lucy of Reigate, Surrey, England; four grandchildren and her sister Mrs. U. E. Thompson of Belleville. Mrs. Clute was a member of the Church of England. A private funeral service will be held at the home of her son, Mr. A. R. Clute, 5 Admiral Road, Toronto, on Friday afternoon. Interment will be made in the family plot at Aurora, Ont.

NAT. GOVERNMENT'S MAJORITY IS 329

London, Nov. 19—By a sweeping majority of 329 the National Government last night gained second reading for its anti-dumping bill. Breaking ranks long-established precedents, the House of Commons is sitting through the legislation. It is expected the bill will receive third reading tomorrow, the first duty orders will be issued on Saturday and that certain imports will begin to be taxed on Monday morning.

ST. MICHAEL'S ARE LOSERS

St. John's Take Junior Match From St. Michael's

The boys' division of the Y.M.C.A. Church league basketball got away to a good start last night when four games were played between the hours of 7 and 10 and the opening games the class of ball played was very fair and the teams for the most part quite evenly matched.

In the opening game St. Michael's Midgets encountered the Bridge Street Quick and the latter emerged victors by the count of 21-16. The losers gave the Bridge St. players quite a scare when they nearly overtook the latter, though their opposition piled up in the opening half but the ex-methodists managed to weather the gale.

St. Michaels—Harvell, G. Porter, Schrieder, J. Doyle, Langton. R. Doyle, F. Langton, J. Frazier, T. Maslin.

Bridge Street—Wilson, Martin, Sperling, Cook, Emmett, McGovern.

The St. Andrews, Christ Church girls provided a low scoring game with the Presbyterians having the edge throughout, the half time score stood 8-4 with the final count 14-7

St. Andrews—Green, Main, Perk, Peoples, Cole.

Christ Church—C. Bennett, Bennett, Hogan, Scott.

St. Josephs and St. Michael's staged a hard fought battle for the honors in the juvenile section. Play was very close and the checking hard, the opening period concluding with a tie score, four all. The final half saw the St. Joseph boys turn on another spurt and clean to forge ahead by the necessary few points, making the full score 11-8.

St. Josephs—A. Tobe, I. Tobe, Scott, Halsell, Ramsay.

St. Michaels—G. Sinfield, T. Doyle, Miles, Callaghan, Temple Delan.

St. Georges with last years lineup almost intact proved too experienced for the newly formed team of the Baptists but at that the latter gave a good account of themselves. The Georges had plenty of shots but they were just a bit off the mark. The final count of the fixture was 22-9.

Baptist—Harris, Faulkner, Looker, Berry, Cook.

St. Georges—Bailey, Barriage, Saunders, Pepper, Angell, Edwards, Adams.

ONTARIO HORSES WIN AT ROYAL FAIR

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 19 — All championships in hackney horses at the Royal Winter Fair last night, were retained by Ontario, though there was keen competition. Senior and grand champion stallion award was carried off by J. W. McCracken, of Listowel, on Lord Waverley, with J. S. Chandler, Peterboro, taking the reserve in both classes on Gaity. The junior ribbon was awarded to Kent Gilbraltor, of Seaton Scrivge and the reserve by Robert Kerr, Acton, on Bonfire. In mares the senior and grand championship was carried off by Newman Stables, St. Catharines, on Aspiration, with C. H. Smith and Son, Delhi in reserve with Warwick Sensation. The junior ribbon went to Albert Bingmire, Midland on Killarney Lass.

DOG WHINES AT DOGKEEP

Kind Hearted Tommy Thorn Puts Little Fellow With Own Dog

Homeless and sad a little black dog was crying its heart out at the city "dog keep" Wednesday night. The pitiful wailing and perhaps the noise it was creating, disturbed the feelings and rest of Thomas Thorn, the city officer in charge of stray dogs. Mr. Thorn took the "doggie" from the place, where it was all alone and put it with his fine police dog. The presence of the puppy was not resented by the proud and watchful police dog—in fact the little fellow is snuggle down beside him and for the rest of the night all was peace and quietness.

The little black dog is about a pound, it is a male and is about three months old. On its chest is one small white spot. Will anyone give this homeless puppy a comfort able home? If you want it, act promptly and get into touch with Mr. Thorn. Surely the doggie's life must not suddenly end after but three months of existence.

Nothing Like Home Paper When You Are Away From Home

War-Veteran Tells How Local Paper Appeals

ITS VALUES

"I notice that the Ontario Intelligencer is being sent daily to the Belleville men in camp. Some instructions on the Government highway in the north, said a prominent citizen to a representative of the Ontario Intelligencer, Thursday morning. "That is fine. Keep it continued—When you are away from home there is no paper like the paper of the old home town and I know from experience. When in hospital in London during the war in 1917, the nurse came to me one day if there was anything I should like to have specially and I said there surely was and that was a paper from my home town. She was a nice girl, a real capable nurse and on learning where I came from she said that she would see what she could do about it. In a few days I was brought the nine several copies of the Daily Ontario, explaining that she made enquiries and found that many Canadian papers were on file at a certain place in London, and that she was able to procure the copies for me. I pleased—I'll say so—that I was and I read them through many times "safe and sure." Everything interested me and I found news that was very glad to hear.

"I quite agree with you," said the newspaper man. "I too have been mighty glad to get copies of the home paper, when away for some long period and enjoyed it as you did."

"You know," replied the prominent citizen, "I dont mind telling you that the Ontario Intelligencer is now a real live newspaper and if the carrier is a little late in getting around in the evening, I am a little peeved but if he passes me up entirely, my whole evening is spoiled—this is my home town and my day is not complete without a look at the "Home" paper.

That is the way to talk, said the Ontario Intelligencer man, "thanks for the kind words—nice to hear them occasionally."

Fifty Agents Entertained

Last night at the Hotel Quinte, the Imperial Varnish and Color Co. Ltd., of Toronto acted as hosts to fifty of their agents and representatives throughout a district comprising Belleville. Guests gathered from Gananoque in the east to Port Hope in the west and from the territory north of these points.

W. F. Montgomery, vice president of the company, their general manager G. C. McEwen, and A. R. Brown, sales manager, together with W. J. (Bill) Boulthouse, district sales manager, were on hand early to welcome their guests as chairman of the meeting.

Mr. Montgomery acted as the chairman for the evening and also as a presentation by Mr. Chas. A. Hanna on behalf of those present, of a fountain pen, that he might accurately note the evening's proceedings, welcomed all on behalf of his organization. Though depression may have come in countries, there had been none in their company, with this throughout the evening after neglected or partially developed trade, and digging for business as never heretofore, they had surmounted this obstacle. The introduction of the budgetary plan by their president, had worked wonderfully well, and in the last fiscal year, their objective in sales had been exceeded, repeated also in all departments and a determination by the people to carry on depression and new life instigated in all branches of the business.

W. J. Boulstone (the familiar and genial Bill Pat to his customers) was gratified at the attendance, stating all districts in his district were represented. He spoke of trade experiences encountered, that his district represent might be imparted to them.

G. C. McEwen, the company's pyrotenal manager, spoke of the cooperation existent in his company and then devoted an hour to straight trade talk.

A. R. Brown, as sales manager, congratulated his remarks to advertising, stating that this end of the business met depression with increased advertising and distributing their outlay and plans for the coming year. The newspaper contract for example in Ontario alone appropriations were increased 25 per cent over last year. Answering this publicity campaign, sales in this district had increased 25 per cent over the same period of 1930.

Following Mr. Brown's remarks, the meeting was opened for questions, which a number of dealers present and there were answered by the officials, proving a most instructive and interesting portion of the evening.

After Mr. Hanna had expressed on behalf of those present, appreciation of the evening's proceedings, closed the evening's proceedings with a witty and appropriate little speech.

CARS DAMAGED ON WEST SIDE

Warkworth and Belleville Cars Meet in Collision

At about 7.30 o'clock Wednesday evening a run-in occurred between the two motor cars on the curve in the highway at the intersection of Highway 2 and the Trent Bridge. St. Clem Gardiner, of 23½ Water Street, Belleville, was driving west and Mr. Ben Buchanan, of Warkworth, was travelling east and on the curve the cars came into collision. There were four people in the Warkworth car and two people in the Belleville car. Fortunately no one was injured. The Gardiner car received damage to the left front wheel, axle, head light, fender and running board. The left fender, wheel, axle, headlight and running board of the Buchanan car were damaged. Both cars were towed to a garage for repairs. The Gardiner car was towed to the nearest available lizard and both drivers made out a report at the city police station covering the accident. It is understood that there is some dispute to the position of the roadway occupied by each car at the time of the accident.

St. Elizabeth Humble Worker

Today is celebrated the 7th century anniversary of the death of St. Elizabeth of Hungary, who, long ages ago, laid the foundation of our social service, charity organizations, etc. St. Elizabeth was the daughter of King Andreas II., a family in song and story and is widely known as "the dear St. Elizabeth; she belonged to the age of romance and romantic characters of the Middle Ages.

Elizabeth used to descend daily from her Thuringian castle, and bring food, medicine, and religious consolation to her poor subjects in the village. She also had established the first private hospital, where she cared for the sick with her own hands. The more loathsome the disease the more she abandoned the sauerer the more tenderness she showed. All saw in the poor and sick so many likenesses of the crucified Saviour. Her haughty relatives, however, were incensed with her lowly sympathy, compassion, and distribution, and dig everything in their power to thwart her, on the other hand, her short earthly career of 24 years was marked with many signs of providence favor, and many public miracles are recorded by tradition.

St. Francis, the founder of the Franciscans third order, of which St. Elizabeth is the patroness, had bequeathed to her his mantle, something that as Elijah did to Elisha in the Old Testament. And when Elizabeth died later, was on her deathbed she revealed to her attendant that the Almighty had given her favor at her hour when she had first received this gift mantle and prayed in the name of his servant, St. Francis.

Divine love and charity are eternal, and so long as they endure St. Elizabeth's monuments will continue to point heavenward, for the verdict of posterity that self-humbled worker for charity has become the most honored queen of history.

OSHAWA RELIEF DRIVE

OSHAWA, Nov. 19.—According to the latest reports, over $17,000 has been raised by the campaign committee of the Oshawa Welfare Society in its three-day drive for funds. When today's final returns are totalled it is expected that the total will amount to well over $18,000. Tomorrow is the last day of the campaign, and $17,000 must be raised if the objective of $30,000 is to be reached.

SUDDEN DEATH P. GALLAGHER

Trenton Man Stricken With Heart Failure Last Evening

TRENTON, Nov 19.—Special—Stricken with heart failure when he was preparing to go to an entertainment this evening, Patrick Gallagher, a well known and popular resident of the community, passed away at his home here last evening. Mr. Gallagher had been apparently in good health and news of his death came as a distinct shock to his wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

The late Mr. Gallagher, who was born near Colborne fifty-eight years ago, had resided in Trenton for many years and was a highly esteemed member of the community. For twenty years he was manager of W. A. Fraser's Glen Huntie Orchards, on the York Road and was a valued and faithful employee. Previous to coming to Trenton to live, Mr. Gallagher was a jockey and was a familiar figure at race track meets throughout the country. He was a member of Bill Fisher's Indian Chains, Trenton.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife, formerly Miss Harriet McSmall, two nephews and a niece made their home with him. Jack McCredden of Deloro, Frederick at home, and Isabel McCrodden, nurse-in-training at Hotel Dieu, Kingston. Four sister and one brother also survive. The funeral takes place tomorrow and interment will be made in Belleville. Mr. Charles Orriel of this city is a brother-in-law of the deceased.

HEAD WOUND IS SERIOUS

John E. Cassidy, of Hungerford, who was blown up in an unexpected blast on the Bell Telephone Company property at Deloro, is in a serious condition in the Belleville General Hospital today from his home near Stoco, bleeding from the mouth. It was feared that the right bleed to death before he could be brought to the hospital.

During the night the wound in the left side of the mouth which he was thought would not give any trouble.

Dr. Robertson at once took charge of the case and stitched the artery.

It is thought that he will recover.

Leveck who is blind and suffered a broken leg as a result of the explosion, is recovering.

The bleeding was stanched.

End Piles Quick

No Salves—No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the rectum. Salves only—and not one minute before. Salves can't get there. Only an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has made a wonderful record right in this city, that J. S. McKeown's Drug Store says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your Pile agony or money back.

FIRE TRAPS 2 MEN UPSTAIRS. BOTH PERISH

One Man Escapes From Top Floor of Ottawa Building

FIREMEN HURT

One Crashes Through Upper Floor, Injuries Not Serious

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 19—Trapped in their rooms on the top floor of a Rideau street block, two men, Artelius Gagnon and Joseph Clement, met death early this morning when fire destroyed the building.

Ernest Laitan, 24, escaped from the burning floor by means used around the exits, but he suffered severe burns and injuries.

For several hours it was thought the men had escaped but shortly before 6 o'clock Detective Cole, which was ruins discovered the bodies.

Two firemen were injured. Fireman Stanley Lough crashed thru the floor and fell to the floor of the burning structure. He was not seriously injured and did not require hospital treatment. Capt. Sam Blackler fell from a truck and sprained an ankle.

The ground floor of the building housed the Rideau Cafe, which was owned by Benone and Lattion. The first floor was also used as a banquet hall and the two upper floors were used as apartments.

After sweeping through the cafe building, leaving nothing but flame swept walls the fire spread to the adjacent building, next to Benone's where several firms suffered heavy damage before the firemen gained control.

Loss $100,000

Property loss, it is estimated, will approach $100,000.

Benone, who was sleeping on the fourth floor, and his unidentified partner, but is believed to have reached the window and jumped to safety.

When seen at the hospital this morning, Laitien said that he was awakened by the cries of smoke. "When I opened the door, smoke rushed into the room," he said. "I ran into the corridor and knocked at the room of my partner, Artelius Benone. The smoke was getting thicker each minute. I ran to the window and jumped to the next roof.

"When I leaned over the roof, I saw the flames coming out of the safe.

"I looked back to see if Benone had heard my cries and followed me, but he was not on the fire escape."

AUXILIARY OF JOBLESS MEET

Probably First Meeting of Kind in Canada Held

In what is believed to be the first meeting of its kind in Canada, the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Unemployed Association convened last night in the main chamber of the City Hall at 7:30, elected their own officers and got down to the job on hand before an audience of some twenty-three members.

The appointment of officers was made by various members suggesting names of others for the positions and the work proceeded quickly and swiftly all through. Fifteen minutes after the members of the association had arrived the representatives were installed in their respective positions on the rostrum and business was being carried forward. While the actual work done was transacted by the committee owing to their newness to the job, nevertheless some good ideas were brought forward which will be put into execution at the next regular meeting (the minutes of which were duly recorded by Miss Edmunds who was elected secretary for the newly formed association). The officers elected at this meeting are as follows: President, Mrs. Hickey; vice-president, Mrs. Kent; secretary, Miss Ida Edmunds; while members of the executive board are: Mrs. Pringle, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Crawford, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Nelles and Mrs. Thompson.

All future meetings to be held in the same place will be advertised a day or two in advance and members will have time to be on hand.

Sportsman Is Recovering

Duffy had a pleasant life at college, playing football, tennis, and all the sports that go with them. Then his father died—and Philip had to quit. He went to Toronto and got a job in a bank. He had little time for play in the fresh air. A cold and a bad cough developed into a long spell of illness, which finally sent him to Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives.

It has been an uphill journey, but his experienced medical attendant, kindly nursing, rest and good food are rebuilding his body and mind. "I am getting better every day," he once wrote. "I have gained 15 pounds." Philip was right when he said: I am just about right again." I will be back in the bank on Monday."

TODAY

There is high hope that his wishes will be fulfilled.

For this splendid work, money is needed. Will you help? Send your contribution to the Secretary, 111 College St., Toronto, will gladly receive it.

VOUCHERS AT SUDBURY GONE

Records of Expenditure Lacking in Many Cases 1929 to 1931

SUDBURY, Nov. 19.—That there were a large number of missing vouchers for expenditures for the city of Sudbury from 1929 to 1931 was announced to the City Council at a special session when a letter from Arthur A. Crawley Co., Ottawa, engaged to conduct a special audit, was read. The report also stated; An additional $200 defalcation is alleged against the city treasurer, bringing the total up to $6,491.06. Taxes amounting to $6,362.15 were struck off without action of the Council. It is reported that a net credit of $13,562.56 is due the Public School Board was offset by an item of $1,653.47 more than they were entitled to, and they were notified by the auditors that they owed the city that amount.

The report also stated that the auditors were unable to verify moneys received from licenses, for example it says there is no receipt issued for money received from the two miniature golf courses operated last Summer.

"In our opinion profits derived from these courses should be utilized for the benefit of the users of such utility and not of the public at large," says the report, referring to the fact that the council received over $200 from the operation of the electric light and water departments are turned over to the general fund.

THE TITLE

The world is waiting for the decision of Viscount Snowden on the question of title. Embittered Labor ex-followers according to a writer in The New York Times might name him "Viscount Snowden—of Vitriol Castle" or "Viscount Snowden—of Renegade Hall", but this writer winds up with the statement that there would be no need for a title for a man who possesses the commanding ability of Snowden and who has made such successful use of his great gifts.

Snowden has always been a dramatic figure and nothing is more dramatic than parting with Labor and his entry into the ranks of the nobility. What more dramatic can happen now remains to be seen. Certainly many think that the end of his political career, though he is now Lord Privy Seal.

GASOLINE BOOTLEGGING

In some states of the U. S. the taxing of gasoline has reached such a stage as to call for a crackdown on the problem which this word carries. This bootlegging of gasoline means a serious loss to the states. Demoralization of the retail gasoline market is one of the results of the racket.

The racket is due to the variety of taxes on gasoline in the various states, making it profitable to bootleg the explosive fluid across the borders.

Bootleg gasoline is said to be diluted with cheaper substances and the consumer is the ultimate payer for he has a poorer quality of fuel for his motorcar.

THE FIRST SIGNS?

It is pointed out in The Galt Reporter that as farmers are the last suffering most seriously from the depression since their products have fallen below all measure in comparison with the prices of manufactured products, the farmers may be expected to experience the first signs of revival from the slump.

It is to be hoped that this is just what is happening, that the fall in the price of farm produce has been permanently halted and a right-about-face has taken place which will mark the gradual emergence of the entire world from the woes which have been pressing down the bodies and spirits of the people for well on to three years.

This much is true—there will be no permanent prosperity until the farm has its fair measure of progress. The events of the past few weeks in the grain markets look significant. -

THE ILLS OF THE PRESENT

Will the world wait to right many conditions before the trend of returning prosperity is seen? There are problems which seem to pose a very powerful part in world economy and yet they are apparently not near solution. Still the solution may come at any angle least suspected.

There is the question of overproduction as it is known. This condition may not be so important in the last analysis when the world gets on its feet again.

One thing is certain—all the ills of the world will not be cured before times grow better, for it is in the nature of things that there should keep cropping up new social ills calling for treatment.

It is scary watching the trend of business to see how far the ills are corrected before the slump ends and how many remain unsolved after the rise in values.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Small doses of radium scientifically administered in food will help the general health is the view of a scientist. It will even prolong life, he claims. More and more people are coming to realize that man is made of the elements of earth—at least his body is—and that sometimes there is a close communion between him and the Mother Earth he depends upon. Some think that nature has a cure for every ill to which the body is susceptible. Probably true.

Belleville boys in the labor camp and in highway building up in Northern Ontario report that they are having a real experience. Work, good work, healthy meals and fine surroundings mean much to these fine fellows, who only needed the chance to work to show them in their true light as workers.

Many are giving serious thought to the future of business. Will the cycle of prosperity and high prices return with a consequent slump off some seven or eight years from now? As experts have failed, how is the poor individual to know? But still unless man changes it looks as if things will take the old course of cycle and cycle. Speculation and over-spending are financial crimes, everyone admits, but who is going to correct them?

NOT TO BE LOST
By Aline Michaelis

Not to be lost, though all else goes
Snatched from our hands by avid foes,
As, born on tides of time and change,
We drift to isles unfriendly, strange
Of all life brought, this much we save:
The good we did, the love we gave.

Not to be lost, years war and wane,
The nations rent and part again,
April's enchantments, new yet old,
With verdant poplar leaves unfold.
All else may pass, life wave on wave,
Save the good we did and the love we gave.

Not to be lost, although defeat
May take some treasure, rare and sweet,
With shining ranks of joys withdrawn
We still have faith to journey on,
For life has left, to keep us brave,
The good we did, the love we gave!

NO DEPRESSION IN NORTHERN ONTARIO, said George W. Lee, Chairman of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, in addressing the Kiwanis Club at Brantford. Mr. Lee brought a message of cheer out of the north which came like a burst of sunshine after rain to some of the Brantford Kiwanians, and it would be a good thing if Mr. Lee could be induced to visit every Kiwanis Club in Canada and give his message of cheer wide circulation. George W. Lee is of the north, optimistic and cheerful, no matter how things may be breaking, the spirit of the north, which never brooks defeat. Mr. Lee pointed out that the T. & N. O. Railway is the property of the North American which showed a profit during the year. Future possibilities of the north were bright with gold, silver and copper, in immense quantities, the greatest known iron ore body in the world, nickel, coal, china clay, gypsum, furs and fish, besides water power to the extent of 1,600,000 h. p.

BEATRICE LILLIE, now known as Lady Peel, was once stranded with a small concert troupe near Brockville. She didn't have to walk back home, as a letter to a Toronto friend brought the necessary cash to carry the troupe home on the railway accordion was the story going the rounds of the press. Beatrice Lillie attended St. Agnes School in Belleville, and sang illustrated songs in the first cinema show here. She went to England during the war and after a hard and hungry fight for recognition was made a favorite of the Music 'Alls, and later starred in musical comedy. She married Lord Peel but refused to desert the stage.

THRIVING BUFFALOES

During the summers of 1908 and 1909 the foothills of the Rocky Mountains in Montana were the scene of a great adventure, when a group of cowboys scoured the ranges for many miles and rounded up the last herd of buffaloes in private ownership. As the finest and powerful animals, tongues protruding and eyes glaring from sweat and exhaustion, threw themselves into the Pend O'Reille Riv-er, which fringed the compound, the cowboys close at their heels in a cloud of dust, released loud whoops over their victory.

The animals thereafter were the property of the Canadian Government, and in a short time found sanctuary in the newly fenced park then purchased from Michael Kalcho, the half-breed trapper, who since multiplied thirtyfold. His luncheon was the game, so comfortable the riverwatered plain, that the shaggy monsters soon found their ancestral traits. Only the space limitations of their new home differed from the range of fifty years earlier.

Waterton Park will accommodate only 5,000 buffaloes, and every few years when that number is reached there is a terrible slaughter. The census of 1931 showed have so increased that in 1923 some 1,000 animals had to be killed, and since then 4,000 others have shared the same fate. Another 1,000 were sent to the Elk Island Park in the far north, and now number 1,200 and are safe.

About fifty years ago the free-roaming buffaloes of the plains were all but extinct, due to the ruthless lust for easy white hides, and Indians seeking the hides, so much in demand for coats and sleigh robes. It was at the end of the great animal had come Thanks to the farsighted Stephen Pablo and the later enterprise of the Canadian Government a herd has been preserved under natural conditions which guarantees that the buffalo will not suffer the fate o fother monsters whose bones are still found in the valleys of Alberta.

There is something ironical in the fact too, that the Blackfoot Indians of Montana are now so pressed for food that 100 buffaloes are being slaughtered annually to likewise surplus stock, are to be slaughtered to provide meat for the red men. Wholesale substitence was removed when the white men pursued their game almost to the disappearing point. Thus time and events revolve in circles.—Toronto Globe.

"BUY BRITISH"

The Prince of Wales 'that man amongst Princes and Prince among men, has a genius for making the right appeal at exactly the right time. This is the latest slogan, the "Buy British" campaign. Every British nation is now concentrating first to help itself, second to help its brethren of empire, on story sound business reasons of exchange fruity this determination. With the Canadian dollar at a discount in New York, British agents report that there seem to be many enquiries for British goods to replace foreign in Canada. Australia, good business and increasing public demand all combine to foster Empire trade.

The Prince gave this rule to the people of Great Britain: "Buy great purchases and first choice for products of the Empire overseas. The Dominions and the whole Empire will echo that appeal: "First choice for home products; second choice for products of the Mother Country and the rest of the Empire."

"Those who control expenditure," the Prince reminded us, "from the state have large contracts to place to the women budgeting her household, municipal councils to think about the sources of what they buy." The responsibility of the public is great. When the ordinary housewife and the man in the street demand Empire goods the retailer sells up and buys stocks. The retailer, in his turn, is quick to inform the wholesaler of public demand. And today, with unfavorable foreign exchanges, the Canadian wholesaler has every inducement to inquire for home products first and Empire products, not foreign importations. Thus the forces of interest which control keep trade in well-worn, foreign channels are being checked. It is well worth while, from purely business motives for the merchants to look into the possibilities of replacing foreign with domestic and Empire goods. Patriotism and interest must march hand in hand here. And that is a combination which you cannot beat.—Montreal Star.

WOMEN AND WEALTH

A writer in the Atlantic Monthly points out that seventy-five per cent of the wealth of the United States is now owned and controlled by women. He quotes figures to show that his estimate is a conservative one, while the editors of the magazine give some figures based upon an independent enquiry which they made. Taking one company as an example, it was found that American Telephone and Telegraph Company has more women stockholders than male stockholders and that these women hold almost as many shares as the men. An investment banking firm states that women are beneficiaries of 80 per cent of the life insurance policies in force; that women comprise the actual majority of the stockholders in the largest corporations in America; that women constitute 35 to 40 per cent of investment bond house customers; that women millionaires are as numerous as men and that women receive 70 per cent of the estates left by men.

All of this is very interesting. It indicates why particular attention must be paid to the problems of women investors by financial houses.—Financial Post.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and pop was taking a walk before supper, and he was a-hoping he'd be carrying a bunch of rarin' up flowers and looking at 'em. He was a-hoping nobody we was looking at him, saying, G, pop, I bet he's taking them to his best girl, what do you bet, pop?

Then he's taking them to his wife, thats how old fashion I am, and if his wife happens to like his best girl, that would make us both rite and would be all the better for the gentleman, good with flowers, pop said. In fact the whole incident pupts me in a very mellow frame of mind and reminds me of something that I almost never forgotten, he said.

Whats that, pop? I said, and pop said, it reminds me that a wise man never ceases to bring unexpected little presents home to his wife from time to time as a mark of his esteem, affection, good will and general cuteness, and in fact I intend to make his one of those very occasions and bring your mother them nice violets, or flowers.

O, pop, wich do you think youll get, candy or flowers? I said. Hoop-la, he would say exactly, and he said, Thats an unessential detail youll work itself out. The big essential is the spirit of the offering and not the offering itself. A woman loves to feel that she has been remembered without having had to do the reminding herself, in fact a little occurance of that nature brightens the whole day and puts a gold border on lifes ordinary. The average wife thinks of her husbands comfort and pleasure a hundred times a day, and yet-one little token of thawtfulness by his part will amply repay her for a months devotion, wich is all the reward that she is after in this werld after all, so he should consider it his duty as well as his pleasure to let better how he has so fortunate halt a little brake once in a while. By gullies we're home already, he said.

Well, I said, and pop hadent been anything for me yet on account of having been too busy thinking about it, me saying, Shall we go back and get something now, pop?

No, we munsent be late, even a diamond necklace wouldent make a woman forgive her husband for being late for supper, pop said. I'll brug something home tomorrow, he said.

Wich he proberly wont.

Poet's Corner

SACRIFICE

Far in the western world there leans go by,
Pillowed for flest, cushioned for comfort, do
We ever think how in lone gravelyards lie
Along the road, brave, happy lads who knew

The heathery Pentlands, or the moors of York,
The Tuscan vineyards, or Germania's forest work,
Death found their leaky shacks and stopped their work,
And now they say-with mingled with their dreams.

Deep down they lie around the corners of Judgment
On which the walls of Industry arise;
There is a place where Progress, too, stones,
For he is not exempt from sacrifice—

Nor is there where Freedom hesitent may rear,
But has a grave within some corner, near.

FLYING BOMB WAR'S TERROR

Big Guns to Play Only Minor Part in Next War

NEW YORK, N.Y., Nov. 19.—"Big Guns" scoffed Elmer A. Sperry, Jr., "they'll play a minor role in military tactics of the future." The flying bomb is the thing, Sperry, who at 38 has the enthusiasm of a stripling, explained today how the Robot pilot, developed by his famous father and by admiring non helping will revolutionize warfare if the world is ever afflicted with another war.

Meanwhile it is being devoted to peaceful uses. The eastern air transport today officially sets it to work flying ballots between New York and the South.

"A flying bomb or aerial torpedo," Sperry declared, "is the cheapest way to deliver a ton of explosive to an objective. A gun is the most expensive.

"They you want to destroy an ammunition depot 500 miles away, a big gun couldn't do it, but an aerial torpedo could. You'd simply fly in a cheap plane with a Robot pilot and some other gadgets and head it toward the depot. Then, once dark night, it would take off by itself. With another plane following, ter. The gadgets would be shunted back and sit down to breakfast."

"When the flying bomb reached the depot, down it would plunge, blowing everything off the map, all ready for the next.

INSTALMENT I

Jonathan Corbie had been brought up as a son.

His father, astonishingly foolish for a self-made man, had always given him to understand that there was not, and never would be any need for him to work. Whereupon Jonathan, who was naturally indolent (a fault inherited from whom nobody knew, as his mother still bore the signs of rough work on her diamond-decked hands) had strolled through a public school and the Varsity, and at the age of one and twenty found himself back home with nothing in the world to do but spend money and kill time.

Jonathan was an only child, a queer sort of fellow, with a great deal of the dreamer in his composition, and a sense of the ideal of which life had already taught him to feel slightly ashamed.

He loved poetry and music, sunsets over the sea, and old churches, and tiny villages, and he had a deep reverence for women. This also, was strange. His father looked upon them as something less than the petrie cashier on whom he had generously made his money, and had long since grown to consider his own wife as a necessary inconvenience who looked out of place and awkward in drawing-room society.

Jonathan had nothing in common with either of his parents. Their inherent commonness made him shiver, and their ignorance he held self until, after six months of their company he found himself grown to be a rather shy, silent fellow, preferring his own company to that of any one else.

In appearance he was big and handsome, with large white hands and feet and a shock of thick brown hair, which seemed to be parted anywhere, but always looked as if some one had just brushed it up the wrong way with careless hands.

His eyes were his best feature when he smiled and then his whole face lit up with a sudden earnestness that was disconcerting.

But Jonathan seldom smiled. He thought life rather a gray disappointing affair, and even in the days of school days he had found himself wondering what on earth it was all about, and why in the world people were born only to die. The obvious fact that nobody particularly wanted them.

He was a disappointment to his mother. She would have liked Jonathan to be smart and dashing, fond of well-cut clothes and pretty girls, a man whom the daughters of neighboring people would have sought out and endeavored to marry. She thought there was something wrong somewhere with him because he preferred to wander about in old comfortable flannels, barebacked.

Sometimes she took him to task about it, demanding to know what was the good of his father's money and all the expensive education he had received. She would ask with long-suffering sarcasm, "Haven't you got no ambition?" and then look sadly and reproachfully at her son's blue shirt front of distaste.

Once she accused him of being ashamed of her.

"Of me! Your own mother that worked for you night and day."

She was a theatrical person in a cheap sort of way. She liked "scenes" in which she figured as the ill-used mother who received a strange sort of happiness in the knowledge that neither her husband nor her son really loved her, or cared for her.

She knew all the wrong people because the right people could not tolerate her. She got her money, and the girls she asked to the house with a view to getting Jonathan interested in them, were all of the same type, overdressed, empty-headed silly.

Jonathan hated them. He did not consider them women as he understood the word, and he invariably escaped from their company as soon as he could manage it.

Then one day he met the Princess.

She was not really a princess at all. She was just the daughter of a blue-blooded bankrupt family, who tried in vain to keep up appearances on nothing a year, and clung to the old home with the pride of their family for generations, because they considered it would be the final disgrace if they ever left its decaying walls and moved into something cheaper and more modern.

Her name was Priscilla Marsh.

Jonathan knew her name and a great deal about her long before his existence ever came to her notice, and often he would lurk about in the woods or the country roads for hours, just for the joy of seeing her pass.

Priscilla was very pretty and a smart and modern as her limited means would allow.

She drove a car which in all probability was not p and she rode to hounds on a hack that would have been laughed at had a lean charming girl ridden it.

Gossip declared that the Marshalls were in debt all over the place; gossip told stories of dunning undesposable and worthless, and asserted that the only hope of the family was for Priscilla to make a wealthy marriage.

When Jonathan heard that, he went out into the woods and lay on his back at the foot of an oak tree and stared up into its branches for a long time, wondering.

If money was all she wanted—well, he had plenty and if it was not particular as to whose money it was—

At dinner that night he said to his mother:

"Can't you get to know the Marshes?"

His mother stared from her seat at the head of the table.

She hated the long formal dinners upon which her husband insisted. She was in terror of the staff of servants who ran the house and grumbled at their pleasure, and she was continually overstraining because the thriftiness of her husband-working kept drive.

"Can you send come in."

Priscilla said. "Oh, but you must! Father will never forgive me if I do not go like this."

Jonathan was thinking about Lyle Dawson. He remembered that there had been a rather unpleasant affair about a girl. Dawson was the type of woman liked, good-looking, accomplished.

The overgrown shrubs and empty flower beds at the Moorland House told their own tale, and the tennis tape drive.

"Yes, I will come in."

FINANCIAL NEWS

PRESS SHARE PRICES DOWN IN WALL ST.

But Half of Gain From October Fifth is Retained

RAILS HEAVY

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—Financial markets again struggled to their feet today, as yesterday's wave of selling appeared to have subsided.

Fresh selling had to be absorbed by the securities markets during the early trading and some individual issues, in both stocks and bonds were depressed to new lows for the major movement. Subsequently the list averages indicate that roughly half of the extreme recovery from the October 5th low is still retained.

Rails were heavy at the start, with the exception of New York Central which showed isolated strength, eventually rising above its previous close along with Santa Fe and Union Pacific. The latter issue sold off two to two to a new low since 1902, before turning upward. Atlantic Coast Line, a highly traded issue, dropped 7 to a price of 50, on reduction of the dividend. By early afternoon, net gains of a point or two appeared in such issues as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Union Carbide and Carbon.

A better tone in commodities help to ease the security markets.

Railroad shares were absorbed with rumors of possible developments from the conference of railroad executives and Labor heads. Business in brokerage circles of a surprise voluntary reduction in wages may have prompted considerable short covering and contributed to the upturn in the closing hours. On the whole, however, Wall Street does not seem impressed with such gossip and expects little or nothing in the way of immediate developments.

QUALITY IN APPLE CROP

Reports of Inspector and Reporter Agree on This Point

The apple picking and packing forces of Ontario, and almost all districts, have just about finished their season's activities, and the majority of their labors are in storages, in the basements of the packing houses or in the markets of the Old Country. Mr. Stevenson, provincial fruit inspector, report this year's apples to be exceptionally fine in quality and the quantity far exceeding that of 1930, when violent storms and heavy winds were not greatly in evidence as they were this year during the summer months; the fruit consequently was not torn from the trees and limbs not being torn off by storms. The assessment and estimates predicted early in the summer as follows:

	Bbls.
Belleville and Western	1,000
Prince Edward	30,000
Brighton district	50,000
Picton district	1,000,000
Trenton district	62,000
Total	177,000

These figures will be increased by fully 200,000 barrels, in the estimation of the two authorities already quoted, and the quality of the bulk of the apples of this district will be or are being shipped to the foreign countries.

Mr. Stevenson wishes to call to the attention of purchasers, dealers and vendors, that culls are, no longer, permitted in the export markets, these only for sale for manufacturing purposes, and that as the result of an enactment by the Dominion Government, passed upon the request of the Ontario Marketing Board. Hence only stock for sale for fancy manufacture, is a violation of the law.

N. Z. PROTEST WESTMINSTER BILL

Hobart, Tasmania, Nov. 19.—(Reuters)—The government today introduced a resolution in the legislature protesting against the impending passage by the British government of the statute of Westminster bill which was ratified by the Commonwealth parliament in July.

Hon. H. S. Baker, Attorney General, said the chief objection to the statute was because it broke the long existing link between the separate states and the mother country.

GANDHI ASKS "I.G." TO VISIT INDIA

Toronto, Nov. 19 (CP).—Hon. Hartley David Lyon George, accompanied by his wife and his daughter Margan, left for the Island of Ceylon today to restore his health. He plans to return about the middle of January.

Before his departure, the former Premier talked at length with Mahatma Gandhi regarding the Indian problem and Gandhi urged him to extend his trip to India as he could study the situation in close quarters. He agreed to do so if time permits.

HOUSE WEATHER MAKING TRADE

Nearly 78 Stores Now Using Conditioning System

Newark, N.J., Nov. 19—Air conditioning, one of the outstanding new industries on which economists and engineers are relying for strength in the economic recovery of the United States, may already be doing a $250,000,000 business, it was reported today.

Air-conditioning, or indoor-weather-making is the regulation of temperature and humidity of rooms, and as already in use in restaurants, theatres, hotels and in some 4,000 factories.

The commercial growth of the industry, it has been predicted, will be stimulated by expansion in other industries, increasing the production of refrigeration machinery, and materially aiding power companies to level loads. At retail stores are already using air conditioning separately, and this is only a small percentage of the market possibilities.

LONDON POLICE WANT ROBINSON

Alleged to Have Stolen Motor Car in That City

The Belleville city police department on Wednesday received a request from the London, Ont., police for information as to the whereabouts of Jonathan Robinson. He was sentenced here on Nov 7 to serve a term of two years less one day on the charge of fraud in a motor car transaction in this city. The London police want Robinson on the alleged charge of the theft of a motor car. Robinson was taken from Belleville to Richmond Hill, Ont., to face a charge of theft of a car there, when Robinson's room in Toronto was searched and a quantity of stolen goods was found, which are said to have been stolen in Richmond Hill. Robinson is also said to have broken into a church at Richmond Hill.

DEPRESSION LESSON MUST BE REALIZED

Honorable R. Weir Advocates Steps to Benefit Trade

FINANCIAL AID

Cites Case of Drought Area in West Province

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 19 (CP)—Improvements in the quality of live stock; the purest possible strains in grain, grasses, fruits; rigid inspection to insure that the best quality of products are produced for export; irrigation supply, and the bringing of the world markets to agricultural products by the cheapest routes were advocated by Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, in an address to the Agricultural Industries Dinner at the opening event of the Royal Winter Fair, last night.

Mr. Weir made these recommendations with a plea to financiers, manufacturers and others to assist financially and in other ways the Agricultural Board of Canada in assistance.

"The most regrettable thing of all would be that if we should come out of this depression and not have learned the lesson that has been unmistakably forced upon us," he declared, in asking for the co-operation of all Canadians.

Explaining the position of flaxfarmhowan, where, he said, one-fifth of the population had been forced unprecedented droughts and resultant conditions, he said it was one of the most productive areas in the west, the greatest part of it with natural irrigation from melting snow that had been built and paid for. Three years in succession there had been unsufficient moisture, high winds and dust had created a situation that was unprecedented. People of the district were not asking the undying gratitude of those in the world by their prompt response to appeals for aid."

ENTOMOLOGY EXPERTS MEET

Belleville Laboratory Staff Members Deliver Addresses

Four members of the staff of the local Dominion Parasite Laboratory here left Belleville on Monday for the sixty-sixth annual meeting of the Entomological Society of Ontario, being held in Guelph this week, commencing today, Thursday, Nov. 19th, and continuing until Saturday last.

Several addresses have been prepared and will be read to association by Dr. Steenburgh, Dr. Smith, Mr. A. B. Baird and Mr. G. Winhart all members of the Belleville branch.

That of Dr. Steenburgh's will be entitled: "Further Studies upon the Parasites of the European Corn Borer Moth," a subject which has engaged his close study for a very long period of time, and one that he is considered to be an expert upon—this of Mr. Smith's will be: "Determination of Colloyria calcicrator in Western Ontario." This is a fly which little is known as yet but one which Mr. Smith has been interested in developing to a point where some definite data has been secured.

Both Mr. Baird and Mr. Winhart have been engaged in developing apparatus being developed by them for laboratory work, and their subject will be: "Some Apparatus being Developed in Connection with Insect Rearing."

The meetin , as has been explained in these columns previously, is the Entomological Society of Ontario and the affiliated societies and associations. It will be attended by representatives from all parts of Canada and some cities in the United States. The scope of these activities can readily be understood when it is known that delegates will be represented from all parts of Manitoba and Michigan, U.S.A. Out of a programme covering 3 days, number speakers on actual subjects concerned. Belleville is signally favored by having no less than four of her workers make addresses to the gathering.

Perhaps the most interesting address will be given by Dr. Frank Lutz of the American Museum of Natural History, New York City. His subject will be: "Our Ignorance Concerning Insects," the subject not only be of benefit to laymen but to entomologists as well, the expression of numerous pests, but also of the many beneficial values to the members of various entomological societies.

The opening address and welcome will be given by Dr. R. Harcourt, Ontario Agricultural College, who is chairman of that institution, and another notable address will be given by Dr. W. Walker, University of Toronto, who will speak on the Effect Upon the Insect Head Capsule of Changes in the Position of the Mouth Parts. Possibly the most interesting address of all to rural farm owner in this vicinity will be that of the European Corn Borer situation in Ontario. That menace is reported to be slowly gaining ground in this part of Ontario, but it is expected that several new methods of its suppression will be found at this meeting, and new ideas which will be put into effect.

URGES TRIPLING

opened with the question as to whether or not action had been taken in this regard. It was stated by the chairman that matters had been arranged by the City Council in this respect and that new plans were to be launched. This was followed by a question from one of the members as to the possibility of minor hide hockey players were being imported and found jobs which was true. Action in this matter could not be definitely answered with but from any member, nevertheless an investigation is being made by the executive committee, and it was temporarily laid over.

Canvass for Jobs

Following in rapid succession came the question as to what members be privileged to canvass from house to house for odd jobs. Many of the members take a greater interest in unemployment than in the routine of bi-weekly council meetings and the hope that all members will help them investigate any worthy and needy cases that had escaped their attention.

Then the opinion was advanced by a new member that the present working force on the water main extensions could and should be tripled, or at least doubled. He declared that the work would cost no more, and that it was useless to try to find employment for the men who needed work the way it was being done now. Also the labor connection question was should be aired to see if there is anything in it that would help the work being done now or construction that is being contemplated. After some discussion among the members this was referred back to the executive and will be brought to the attention of the council.

Machinists' Charge

Mr. Hanna who then came in, stated that he was present this morning at the fine turnout to the meeting, and that he considered that all once again to stick together he drew out a cheque, made out to the association by the Machinists' Union for the sum of $23.75. This money will be deposited to the account and will be used in small expenditures where the need necessary just now. The matter of several other cheques were also sent to the association was also brought up and discussed by the men with a great deal of satisfaction in that they had needed some money immediately for necessaries, such as wood, painting, gasoline for various members cars to enable them to go out in the country and solicit vegetables and the rest, and also for relief purposes.

Ward Boundaries

The question then turned to the organization of the new wards members into a ward system. All men in the last election will be placed in separate lots according to the ward they lived in, and from these were selected:

Murney—S. Large and S. Lake.

Centre—W. Hanna and D. Corn-ell Samson — W. McKenna and W. Hamer.

Victoria—Dr. Gibson, Aikins and D. O. Royal. Bleecker—J. Elliott and W. Parrish. Dufferin—A. Longhurst and R. Ashbury. Baldwin Ward was not represented. These representatives it is thought will be able to investigate more thoroughly than has been done under the existing system.

SECRETARIES

Secretaries have been prepared and will be read to association by Dr. Steenburgh, Dr. Smith, Mr. A. B. Baird and Mr. G. Winhart all members of the Belleville branch.

That of Dr. Steenburgh's will be entitled: "Further Studies upon the Parasites of the European Corn Borer Moth," a subject which has engaged his close study for a very long period of time, and one that he is considered to be an expert upon—this of Mr. Smith's will be: "Determination of Colloyria calcicrator in Western Ontario." This is a fly which little is known as yet but one which Mr. Smith has been interested in developing to a point where some definite data has been secured.

Both Mr. Baird and Mr. Winhart have been engaged in developing apparatus being developed by them for laboratory work, and their subject will be: "Some Apparatus being Developed in Connection with Insect Rearing."

The meetin , as has been explained in these columns previously, is the Entomological Society of Ontario and the affiliated societies and associations. It will be attended by representatives from all parts of Canada and some cities in the United States. The scope of these activities can readily be understood when it is known that delegates will be represented from all parts of Manitoba and Michigan, U.S.A. Out of a programme covering 3 days, number speakers on actual subjects concerned. Belleville is signally favored by having no less than four of her workers make addresses to the gathering.

Perhaps the most interesting address will be given by Dr. Frank Lutz of the American Museum of Natural History, New York City. His subject will be: "Our Ignorance Concerning Insects," the subject not only be of benefit to laymen but to entomologists as well, the expression of numerous pests, but also of the many beneficial values to the members of various entomological societies.

The opening address and welcome will be given by Dr. R. Harcourt, Ontario Agricultural College, who is chairman of that institution, and another notable address will be given by Dr. W. Walker, University of Toronto, who will speak on the Effect Upon the Insect Head Capsule of Changes in the Position of the Mouth Parts. Possibly the most in-

Correct Manners

Acknowledging Condolences

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. How does a widow thank friends for flowers and so forth, and how soon after, in the loss of her husband?

2. How does a widow sign her name, and also does she have her Christmas cards engraved?

3. Is it wrong to discard both the note need not be long, of course, but it need not be sent immediately, for her friends will understand a delay.

The note may be written something after this form:

Dear Mary:

You were most kind to send me such a fine message of sympathy. Thank you for it, deeply and sincerely, and for the beautiful roses that came with your understanding message. Threatening illness kept me from being there a great comfort to me in these dark hours.

Sincerely yours,

2. A widow signs her name exactly as she always has, whether she was living, and her formal name, as on her visiting cards, is exactly as it was when her husband was living.

Mrs. Frederick Nathan Gray.

Mrs. Gray uses on her Christmas cards depends on the form of the wording on the cards. Usually, if they are formal, she uses her formal name!

Mrs. Frederick Nathan Gray sends sincere Christmas greetings and best wishes for the New Year.

If her Christmas cards are informal, say if she signs her name only to one that already has a greeting on it, she uses the informal name:

Mary Browne Gray.

3. I suppose it would be considered "wrong" or incorrect for a widow to discard her engagement and wedding rings if they have this saddening effect on her, but I can't help feeling that they should, instead, be a source to her a comfort of her spiritual marriage. Also I fancy that her friends might "wonder" why she did this.

Correspondence

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

One of my teachers at school left for another town about a year ago, and always very fond of her so I wrote her a letter. Much to my disappointment I did not receive an answer. Because I would like to correspond with her, would it be correct for me to send her a postal card while on my vacation and ask her to reply?

School Girl.

It would be gracious and thought ful for you to send her a card while you are on your vacation, but it would not be in order for you to ask her for a reply. You must leave this to her own wishes. Perhaps some fond fate kept the first letter from arriving at her home, so you might send her a write her another note, saying that you had written before. Then if she does not answer, you will know that probably her life is too busy, or that she isn't a very good correspondent. Then you have to drop your wish to correspond with her.

Fashion Flashes

By Alice Alden

Brilliance at night does not only mean formal evening clothes, for this season sees the importance of clothes that are not quite evening frocks ideal for small intimate affairs. Such a frock is of black velvet with a bolero of silver sequins and a black velvet coat bordered with fox.

Youth is charming when it is appropriately dressed. A dainty little girl was at a party wearing an ankle length dress of pale green taffeta with a little basque bodice. Bands of puffing outline neckline and skirt. There are tiny puffed sleeves and a large self bow is appliqued on the full skirt. She was the success of the afternoon's party.

Leather lasts for hat trimming, despite fur, feathers and flowers. A smart hat of black felt with a wired brim has for trimming, encrusted bands of matching brown patent leather.

A sheer picture are the new dresses fashioned of heavy sheer crepe. One model, dyed in the purple, has a flowing handkerchief scarf that is set on one shoulder. Just above the waist is a cluster of white, purple and red velvet pansies.

Taffeta rustles into the mode again the form of a black taffeta evening frock with a full skirt fastened in self-ribbing. There is a large basic knot at back and the decollete straps at back are embroidered in rhinestones. A large bow of orange velvet is placed on one shoulder.

Once more braid comes into the picture and allied with velvet too. A black velvet afternoon frock uses bright green braid to embroider the overSleeve, the trimming is finished with three tassels. There is a braid motif in front of the bodice and there are tiny tassels at the wrist.

Teaching Tolerance to the Child

By Constance Cameron

There was quite evidently a difference of opinion on the back porch, and Betty's mother went out to see what it was all about. Betty and her playmate were in a heated argument and the playmate stood on the point of stalking home, neither allowing nor accepting.

"Tell you my mother is the best in the world," cried Betty, her face red with anger.

"She is not," retorted the playmate, "mine is."

The mother intervened, and--put her arm around the little guest. "Let's settle this thing quietly" she advised, sinking into a chair. "Come here Betty." An arm around each child she went on with: "There is no argument in a case of this kind, Betty, it is very lovely that you think I am the best mother in the world, but how would Jane's mother feel if Jane agreed with you that I am? She would feel very sad and she would have a right to. Jane's mother is the best mother in the world for her, while I am the best mother in the world for you. So you see each of you is right."

That was a new angle to the little girls and they stared at each other solemnly, in the fashion of children.

"No matter what you disagree on," the mother continued, "always remember one thing--that we all think differently about many things. You, Betty may feel that one thing is true, while Jane may feel just the opposite is true. But you can always talk it over quietly without getting angry, and in the end you both feel the way you did at the beginning, only quite all right too. Neither will be wrong, neither right perhaps; you will just be thinking differently. And it is anyone's privilege to have a different thought from his playmate, but it is never his right to say that his playmate is wrong just because the playmate disagrees with him. Now come on--there are some fresh graham crackers in the kitchen and I'll fix some hot chocolate for a tea party."

Hand in hand, smiling, friendly, the two little girls followed her into the kitchen. It was a little triumph for the broadness of vision of the mother's method, a valuable lesson she'd given them in tolerance. It's a lesson worth teaching any child--and very necessary the other fellow's point of view even though it differs radically from his own. But to do it, you must be broad and tolerant yourself.

And yes, here we are again, back at the beginning of things -- the child's mind, his intelligence, his sagacity, his just examination and execution of all of life. Big job, this being a parent! Big job being a human being worthy to be called a parent, but it's worth working at.

Forty five is the age of discretion. By the time a man reaches 45 he appreciates the futility of crime.—Lewis E. Lawes.

CHILDREN IMMUNE FROM DIPHTHERIA

Montreal, Que., Nov. 19--(CP)--Almost one third of the children in the province of Quebec under 10 years of age have been immune from diphtheria, according to Dr. Barclay Nicholls, inspector-general of the Provincial Department of Health, in commencing recently on the present campaign being carried on for the elimination of epidemic diseases. Of the 176,400 children under 10 registered in the province, more than 58,227 have been inoculated three times, which makes them immune from diphtheria, while many more have been inoculated once or twice. Shortly there will be a much larger proportion of immune children.

"No campaign of the kind," said Dr. Decarie, "has ever been carried on before in the province, and while immense work has been done in the larger centres of population, such as Montreal, where some 30,000 children had been immunized, much remained to be done in outlying parts.

"In 1929" he continued, "the death rate from diphtheria was 14.9 per 1,000. That is to say, that 149 children died whose lives could have been saved with proper care. In June last when the survey was completed, however, preventive measures were being taken in 29 countries in the province where facilities were given in 19 clinics."

Mrs. Hammecker was the recipient of lovely handkerchiefs, silver and linen. An interesting programme was enjoyed in music and games, after which a dainty lunch was served.

What May a Child Do?

By Constance Cameron

A mother was severely criticized the other day. Call one critic: "The very idea! She let Johnny take that clock apart and put it together and play with it by the hour. That's just teaching a child to destroy things!"

The critic neglected to mention a fact which has a great deal of bearing on the effect upon the child--of his daily searching and prying into the interior of the clock. She mentioned, Johnny, when she'd made the discovery that her son had an overpowering urge to see the "innards" of a clock, had taken the old one which had long ceased to function and given it to him with the understanding that he might dissect it all he will.

The critic of John's mother seemed to fear that the little boy might go through life hoping clocks apart every time he saw one to. But he won't. For, along with the gift of the derelict clock, the mother had made it emphatically known that if was the only clock the child was to experiment with. And after taking this one apart the child said: "There, I guess I've takes a lot of work to get one of these things together so it will run right, doesn't it, mother?"

Wisely, the mother sat down with John and helped him. Not to his knowledge it takes, the skill and precision required to make clocks, and the boy emerged with a very healthy respect for the timepiece. The tragedy with most parents, in deciding what requests to grant their children, is that they don't want to fair the time to indulge the child judgment in connection with it.

One might as well decide never to give a hammer for fear he'll hit the baby on the head with it; or one might say a child can't have a knife given a piece of cake because a whole cake would be ruined as well as the knife--and say "No", when a possibly unusual request (such as that of taking a clock apart) springs up in the home.

Children can be allowed to do a million things if we're willing to pause a few seconds and inculcate the principle of selection and discrimination which, I believe, is all but good judgments as to what should or may be done, and what is need and which must be left alone.

11 UKRAINIANS ARE RELEASED

TORONTO, Ont., Nov 19--Eleven men who appeared yesterday before Magistrate Browne on charges of illegal assembly and unlawful assembly were released after evidence of alleged disturbances at a Ukrainian Catholic Church here on October 28 last had been heard. The meeting at which a lecture on Ukrainia under Russian and Polish oration was given, was broken up by a fight. Father John Kolasn related details of the meeting but the charges were dismissed by Magistrate Browne for lack of evidence.

The Beauty Box

By Helen Follett

Make-shift is makeshift beauty, but better to have a home grown complexion of delicate texture and normal color. A pale skin is evidence of lack of vitality under standard health. Circulation is sluggish, on the blink, or the digestion is out of kilter. Boiling down on the job of furnishing the blood streams with the good groceries they need to build up the various elements of the human composition. Every wise old doc knows that the skin is a barometer that registers health-weather, good or bad.

Hats of postage stamp size, carrying on one side of the feminine head are responsible for more disaster coiffures. On the side where the hat isn't, it is necessary to put forth a considerable display of hirsute glory curls, waviels, beau catchers, puffs and other curlure trimmings. The girl with shoulder length hair is a dimdvantage. The hat offers no place for a masterline bon, so there's another deliberate defeating agent.

When applying mascara to eyelashes, let the lashes rest upon the lower lid. Then lift and part and touch the fringes lightly with the mascara brush, using a downward motion to urge the lamberquins of the eyelids to lengthen and grow luxuriantly. Then the eyes look moist and dewy, is altogether, a desirable and effective beauty agent.

Tired eyes freshen under proper tonic treatment. Soak cotton pads then with cold. Dissolve a teaspoon full of boiling water, cool, and put on with an eyedropper. Relaxation and sea at bedtime are invigorating. If blemishes continue, it is advisable to consult an eye specialist; vision may be impaired.

When shampooing excessively oily hair, use a cupful of thick cream and a cupful of water and stand in a cupful of hot water overnight and add a tiny pinch of borax. Soak cold water off and make the shampoo more thorough.

By the observing eye it is noticed that the girl with pretty slender ankles is nearly always a practical stinger. Maybe it's that pretty stepping makes for pretty feet. Who knows? Certain enough it is that the habit of plodding pushing the body along with slow steps tends to lay to keep strong and resilient the muscles of the instep. One of the prizes was "toes" is a good slogan, that makes for a happy combination of pretty feet and pretty ankles.

"Summer - Weight" Proposals

By Bestrice Fairfax
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Some of those quick-blossoming summer engagements of two days ago find themselves all over-nipped in the first frost of autumnal separation. So letters from various correspondents tell me.

And wisdom lies, my dear girls and boys, in realizing that they were just light-summer proposals anyhow, never intended for the storm and stress of a lifetime affair. While they lasted, they were heavenly experiences, so why be thankful for that mercy, and dry your tears?

My hope is that you won't go on breaking your hearts over the girl or boy who kissed you under the romantic moon, swore forever and ever, then went on his or her way and apparently forgot. That moon, vacation-dimming, and just plain human nature were responsible for the light-weight summer proposal in the first place. You got all the sweetness out of it, you may be sure--and now is the time for practical wisdom.

"One loved, and the other is loved," says the proverb, and if you belong to the former class, please don't break your heart over it. You could never care for anyone else. You really are fancy free if you but know it. You have had all the thrill and joy of being in love without the bitter, experience of awakening from your dream and finding yourself permanently tied to an irresponsible person. "Irresponsible" is the proper term to describe the party of the first or second part, who, light-heartedly, can propose and vanishes.

Later on, when there is no moon or no scenery, and it's everyday this and that instead of glamorous flirtation--very likely the next adored. Irresponsible is likely to have no supper prepared or no pay envelope forthcoming.

A certain girl writes me after days filled with these vacation experiences that she is contemplating suicide. Of course, she doesn't really mean it, the rest of the letter which entirely sensible absolves her from that folly. And while I have written to her personally and begged her not to indulge in all fifty-seven varieties of foolish conduct such as selling her complexion by crying, letting her mouth sag with disappointment, collecting wavy wrinkles, etc. etc. this note is just a postscript to all the boys and girls who've written me similar letters.

Those quick-blossoming vacation affairs seldom have very deep roots. They always make me think of the enticing little packages of tiered with a magnificent bloom in color on the envelope. You buy them for five cents and on the flyring, plant, water, tend, and get a few charming blossoms, perhaps. Then you look out of the window some autumn morning, and find that the frost has destroyed them over night.

Of course, you'd like to have those keep on blooming right through the winter--but the little five cent package or flower seed had no such guarantee. On the contrary, the seed man--right under the picture of the magnificent flower--warns you that the plant is an annual, and to expect nothing of it after this season.

But oh, it was a lovely, lovely thing while it bloomed.

There is no doubt about it, bank directors should direct.— Herman A. Metz.

HONOURED AT GIFT SHOWER

Brantford Young Lady Receives Many Gifts

Brantford—A shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bleecker on Friday evening when about 100 guests assembled there in honor of their daughter Belle. The evening was very much enjoyed in social amusements and the following address was read by Miss Mrs. Morrow to the happy recipient:—

Dear Belle and Ward:—

"We have dropped in tonight to wish you bon voyage across the well traversed ocean, the sea, of matrimony, on which you are about to embark. We trust that the skipper that you are about to sail on with, is staunch and true; and we all can vouch for the sterling qualities of his worthy mate, whom we have known since childhood.

"As it is now, the ocean may not always be calm, for storms will sometimes appear and rocks loom ahead, but if both put your trust in that great Pilot he will guide you in the safe anchorage and your barque will rest at last on the beautiful shore where no storms ever come.

"We all join in wishing you and your intended companion a long, happy and prosperous married life.

"To remind you of this happy event, to speak of your life and also of your friends in this community, we ask you to accept these gifts as a slight expression of our regard for you.

"Signed, Mrs. Harry Bush and Miss Eva Morrow."

Miss Beatrice Bates contributed greatly to the success of the evening by some very appropriate piano selections.

Frankford, R.N. No. 4 Notes

Mrs. F. Crowe's sister of Belleville is visiting her.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood spent Sunday last with Mr. Wood's brother in Clunker Corners.

Mr. Clifford Wannamaker and Mrs. Leslie Cline of this district took a trip back to hunters last Sabbath where they visited friends.

One of Rev. Schamehorn's sons fell from the mow in their barn and broke his arm. He is now able to be out.

Mr. Clare Sargent is staying at Mr. Wm. McNeil's this week where he is assisting with the chores.

Young People's Meeting

The regular meeting of the Frankford and Stockdale Young People was held in the Stockdale United Church on Monday evening, November 9th. The meeting was opened with Song Service, under the leadership of Mr. Delbert Hudgins, which was followed by Prayer by Rev. Mr. Doggett. After business was attended to Vera Tuckabury took charge of the programme.

The Scripture Lesson was read by Mr. Harder Bonnisteel. An instrumental number by Miss Vera Tuckabury gave a very interesting solo on cornet.

A song was then sung by four boys of the League, which was followed by a reading by Mr. Harold Mayhew entitled "Lasting Love Wins." Miss Helen Clay then rendered a recitation after which a quartette sung by Miss Clara Keith, Miss Dorothy Foster, Rev. Doggett and son Donald. Miss Adella Hannah gave a reading. The closing hymn was sung and the Mizpah Benediction was repeated in unison.

Ladies' Aid

The regular meeting of the Frankford United Church Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Arnold Bowen on her group. Mrs. Percy Bell, Mrs. Chas. Patrick, Mrs. Blake Patrick and Mrs. Morley Airhart, on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 12th.

The meeting opened with hymn 217, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. Scripture Lesson was read by Mrs. Harry Bush and hymn 184, "Am I a Soldier Of The Cross" was sung.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the Secretary Mrs. G. Nicolson and were declared approved.

The treasurers report was given by Mrs. Alex Smith after which a letter was read by Mrs. Chas. D. Patrick thanking the Aid for flowers sent to her and their kindnesses shown toward her during her recent illness.

The Roll was called showing an attendance of 37 members and 15 visitors.

The programme was then given as follows:

Reading—Mrs. Marshall Smith, "A Little Prayer."

Duet—Miss Clute Nugent and Miss Freda Rogers.

Reading—Miss Grace Rogers, "Mumbled His Toe."

Reading—Mrs. Clayton Powell, "Scandal and Gossiping."

Closing Hymn—Saviour Like a Shepherd Lead Us."

The Mizpah Benediction was pronounced. Grace was sung.

A very tasty lunch was served by the hostesses and a social half hour spent.

The collection was taken amounting to $7.30.

NEW TREATMENT TO RELIEVE SEA, AIR AND AUTO SICKNESS

MONTREAL, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—Ten years of experimental work in therapeutic medicine by a blind Montreal physician may lead to important advances in the treatment of gastric ulceration and other ailments of the digestive system, and more prosaically, may relieve many a victim of sea sickness, air sickness and auto sickness.

This was revealed recently in an interview with Dr. Ross Prendergast of this city, a graduate of Queen's and McGill Universities, who despite the tragic handicap of 10 years loss of sight, has during that time carried on clinical work in acute inflammation of the stomach and acute gastritis and acute indigestion.

Dr. Prendergast's researches, it is claimed, have proved the fact that these diseases of the stomach, which are both distressingly uncomfortable, due to vomiting, and painful, can be treated more effectively than under the present method.

Dr. Prendergast announced: "By a vest of a short time the inflamed lining may be laid so as to enjoy a healing process. But the moment the inflamed surface lining is rubbed together and the inflammation is renewed. The prime necessity is to impart immediate rest to the stomach, and yet food nourishment has been unable to give that. My discovery enables me to prefer rectal and that much needed rest. By hypodermic injection given each day, preferably late in the evening, instantaneous relief to acute inflammation will be the result.

"In this way we can secure complete rest and a good night's sleep. The patient can enjoy a soft diet and get further care on the part of the physician is necessary. No special nurse is required and the patient sleeps well. The next afternoon the patient can enjoy a short nap and in the evening he is ready for another injection. This injection repeated four successive evenings constitutes the treatment."

The treatment is described as "an isotonic asceptic fluid complex in make-up" that is given in quantities of 15 to 15 drops administered hypodermically.

"The doctor is a son of the late Major Edward Ross Prendergast, who commanded the G.T.R. Brigade of artillery during the World War. Before blindness struck him suddenly overnight, he was port physician for a number of local steamship companies.

UNEMPLOYED PLAY DURING IDLE HOURS

MONTREAL, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—Where shouts of schoolboys were heard 150 years ago, homeless unemployed men now find a haven in the old St. Laurent school on Viger street. The school building and grounds have recently been converted into a recreational centre for these unfortunate young men who have no place to go and nothing to do. Activity is the keynote of the centre. Under wise leadership, the men have encouraged to form committees and assume responsibility for their own entertainment. In addition the men have organized into teams. So far representatives of 13 nationalities have used the Centre, but there is no racial feeling. There are a large number of Englishmen, who are soccer experts and the French-Canadians took to the game under their tutelage as a duck takes to water.

"Ask for any book or magazine you like," said the fancy in the legend on the wall of the "library." A cheap sheaf of paper hung over the librarian's desk, with words "Correct Time" in both French and English. This little service helps the men who have been long since parted with their watches. The librarian, a well educated scholarly Englishman, is one of the unemployed. He has all the volumes under his care in excellent order. We have numerous requests for books on technical subjects, especially engineering" he said to a newspaperman.

"Popular Mechanics is the most appreciated magazine we have, and the detective and 15 cent fiction come next."

It is in the auditorium on the top floor, which seats 800 men, that the real good times are had. The entertainment committee, chosen from the men themselves, provides a show every afternoon from 2.30 to 6 p.m. In the show time they have been on the job much talent has been discovered. "We have dancing, but it is not explained by the superintendent in charge. "Aesthetic dancing and square dances. Some of the numbers are quite original. We have a gramaphone and another favorite is an orchestra comprised of six recordists accompanied by two mouth organs. Every day we award a prize of a package of tobacco to the best singer, the best story teller, and the best dancer. The audience determines the winners by the amount of applause they bestow upon the performers."

The average attendance at the Recreational Centre is 4,000 per day.

Restaurants and hotels use about a quarter of 26 per cent. of the food consumed in the United States.

Chemists have produced a new compound for use in covering wooden shoe heels, which is said to be scuffproof.

AMALGAMATION IS NO NEARER

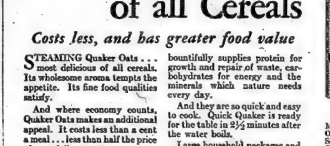
United Farmers of Manitoba, Are Told in Convention

By Gillis Purcell, Canadian Press Staff Writer—Brandon, Man., Nov. 19—Futile moves toward amalgamation of the Manitoba wheat pool and United Grain Growers, Ltd., were related today to United Farmers of Manitoba in annual convention. Report of Mrs. Agnes Gray U.F.M. secretary, told of the failure of steps toward union during last summer.

"Executive of the United Farmers are still of the opinion that the time is now most opportune for the amalgamation of our two farmer-owned, grain-marketing bodies, stated a letter which Mrs. Gray's report indicated had been prepared by the executive almost five months ago, after pool officials had refused to attend discussion on the proposal.

On May 20, according to Mrs. Gray's report, the U.F.M. Board felt that the existent crisis demanded utmost economy. They were of the opinion, that the trend of events tended to formation of two almost identical farmer-controlled grain-marketing bodies since the pool was about to turn to the "open market" system of handling grain.

After fully considering the matter, Mrs. Gray related, the Board unanimously passed a resolution that the Manitoba Government Wheat Pool and U.G.G. be asked to meet in conference under U.F.M. chairmanship to discuss the grain marketing situation. Invitations were extended, but the conference collapsed when the Pool failed to send a representative.



Proposals submitted by the U. F. M., says Mrs. Gray's report, embodied formation of one organization to induce the Wheat Pool and the U.G.G., Ltd., allowing any farmers wishing to pool their grain to do so and allowing as well the sale of grain through open market channels. The letter prepared June 20 said: "Farmers realize that the continuance of duplication means an expense which they at the present time can ill afford and farmers should realize that the remedy lies in their own hands."

INTEREST OF CHURCH IN BUSINESS AND POLITICS DEFENDED

Montreal, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—The church is in politics and business up to the neck" declared Rev. Dr. Farthing, Anglican bishop of Montreal, recently in the Church of St. John the Evangelist, combatting the statement that the church has that the church must not enter business and politics. "What nonsense this is," he declared, "it is truly said, no decision of man in his life lies outside the scope of moral principle." Speaking on "The Church" sermon of the bishop, "Not the clergy nor the General Synod, but the laity of all the baptised who are members of the church, the Body of Christ. Most of these are living in the midst of the wrongs embedded in a system. They are caught in the system, influenced by the moral "wrongs." Our pupils and these and their characters are effected by these wrongs. We are taught to live and are caught by the system. These men are the church in business, in politics. The preachers, the church seeing the effect of these evils must cry aloud against them because they are affecting the moral life of the spiritual life of the members of the church," he said in a warm defence of the interests of the church.

"Greed and selfish competition lie at the bottom of our system. It is a question of get rich quick." The bishop maintained. "Nothing comes amiss so money comes whatsoever, Dr. Shakespeare says. Look what suffering is caused! Is it right that one man or group of men should so manipulate things that they make thousands for themselves, sometimes millions, when they know that it means lost, or ruin to thousands. Homes are broken, women and children are suffering want as a result of such causes. We accept Christianity who turn the roulette wheel. We apparently protect those who the gamble in our securities to the loss of countless. We encourage people to put their money into 'safe' investments to develop our natural resources as a patriotic duty, yet their investment becomes worthless because of the action of a group. Confidence is shattered by the evils in commerce and politics."

Street vendors in London say competition is killing the picture postcard business.

Quick Relief for Women

Women need not endure periodic pains and headaches. They can spare themselves the suffering by taking ZUTOO TABLETS. Mrs. Allen Wright, of Fulford, who was relieved in 30 minutes of severe pain and headache, wrote saying: "Every woman in the land should know about ZUTOO TABLETS and what they will do." Just try the tablets and know for yourself how quickly they stop the pain.

B. C. I. JUNIORS VICTORS UPON SOAKED FIELD

Tweed Loses in Best Grid-iron Battle By 6 to 5

FOLLWELL STARS

Cotton Best Player on Mid-Hastings School Team

On a field that was literally covered with water the Belleville Collegiate Juniors defeated the Tweed seniors in a rather listless football game yesterday afternoon by the score of 6 to 5. Coach Les Shiell had the game played for the purpose of keeping the juniors in trim in case they go ahead in the provincial title hunt. Word was received in Belleville lately that Harrie was willing to play the local juniors a sudden death game in Oshawa on Saturday. The winner would ultimately go into the finals for the junior interscholastic championship. The matter of financing the trip to this proposed sudden-death game is the item that now confronts the management of the local collegiate kids. The matter is being considered by the collegiate heads today.

As the field was covered with little pools of water yesterday the ball soon became wet and slippery and was quite hard to handle at times. Jimmie Follwell was again the outstanding player as his kicking and throwing of forward passes were some of the features of the game. The Belleville line, although they did show some real good playing at times, did not play up to their past standard. Cole, White, McKinney and Hilton gained yards when they were called upon to carry the ball through the line of scrimmage. McElrath and Shenton did all the receiving of forward passes, while Coontryman, Angell, Laughlin and Gatiron did the good field running.

For the visitors Cotton stood out head and shoulders over his team mates and his kicking was what saved the visitors from, perhaps, a much worse beating. Courneyea and Arbour also played heady football, but to Cotton goes all the credit for that 20-yard run that he made for a touchdown resulted in the only points that the visitors got.

Belleville kicked off and Tweed tried to carry the ball but it was found that the going was pretty tough in the water-soaked ground so that both teams relied upon aerial attacks in the first quarter and the result was that no scoring was done by either team.

In the second quarter the locals tried some forward passes that resulted in good gains. About the middle of the period Belleville had the visitors on their own two yard line and on Cotton kicked on the third down the ball hit the goal post and bounded back. Hilton, who had crashed through the Tweed line, fell on the ball for the first touchdown of the game. The penalty gave Tweed to serve Belleville 3; Tweed 0.

The third period saw the return to form of the Tweed boys and they staged a comeback that resulted in many yard gains for the Northerners. After considerable play Cotton broke through the Belleville line and made the nicest run of the day when he raced fully 80 yards for a touchdown. The try was not converted and the period ended with the score five all.

The final period was a real battle but Follwell rose to real heights to outkick Cotton and the calling of forward passes by Gerald Ostrom also baffled the opposition. Just previous to the final whistle the Belleville line of scrimmage started a series of line plunges that took the ball into the territory of the enemy and placed Follwell in the position to kick the one point. Follwell booted the ball over the line and before the crowd run it on out he was downed for a rouge. The final whistle then blew and the score stood Belleville 6; Tweed 5.

The lineup:

Belleville—Countryman, Follwell, Angell, Laughlin, Gatiron, Ostrom, Cole, White, McKinney, Hilton, McElrath, Schrieder, Watson, Hay, Bradford and Shenton.

Tweed — Courneyea, Cotton, Murray, Arbour, McGee, Terry, Hinds, Storey, Lalonstaine, H. Thompson, B. Thompson, Graham, McGuire, Tummon and McCutcheon.

Referee—Les Shiels.

RUGBY PLAYERS DOWN RUNAWAY

Lakewood, N.J., Nov. 19—A runaway horse crashed a Newman school football practice yesterday and was thrown for a loss.

The horse, with state police and farmers in hot pursuit, came charging on the practice field where the Newman team were drilling. The gridders charged after the horse as it started down the field. Two players tackled the front and rear legs and threw the horse inches short of a first down. Be that then the owner and police arrived.

The B.A.A.A. announced yesterday that Bill Rankin would manage the International this year and "Scotsman" Rideway would be the manager. Stewart Harder will manage the juniors and Tommy Thompson of Harrie has been engaged as their coach. Harold Logsdie, of the Canada Cement Company is the chairman of the hockey committee and Joe Shiels is the secretary treasurer for both clubs. Mr. Rankin will represent both teams at the annual O.H.A. meeting to be held in Toronto on Saturday.

X—Z

It is the intention of the B. A.A.A. to apply for an international rating as they cannot get a suitable senior grooping this year. Whether they will be grouped in the Lake Shore group or in with Kingston is not yet known. In the east there are Queen's, R.M.C., Kingston and Gananoque while in the west there is every town between Oshawa and Toronto. Either would make a very nice loop.

X—Z

Tonight at the Y.M.C.A. the local city league will hold their annual meeting. It is expected that some sort of a league will be the outcome of tonight's conclave. Just what teams are ready to start the season is not known as yet, but, at least two teams have come to the front with the statement that they are ready to operate in one of the city league or whatever they form, at once.

X—Z

Nothing has definitely been done about the organizing of a juvenile hockey league for the purpose of fostering young players in Belleville. This is a serious matter and should be given the attention of the local sportsmen without delay. If not they will have to keep improving players from year to year.

X—Y—Z

Don't be surprised if Bill Rankin comes from from the O. H. A. meeting on Saturday with the statement that he is bringing the top-notch wrestlers to Belleville in the near future. He expects to make arrangements with Matchmaker Corcoran about a wrestling bout in Belleville while up there.

The executive of the B. A.A.A. that he would stage another bout here any time they can get a line on the right men.

X—Z

The B.C.I. junior football team were pretty lucky to win from the Tweed seniors yesterday afternoon. Cotton kicked from behind his own goal-line and the ball hit the goal post and rebounded back. Hilton fell on the loose ball for five of Belleville's six points. The final score of 6 to 5 was a fluke result of the play. As the game was an exhibition affair the boys took it altogether too indifferently.

X—Z

Both hockey team stain held a real small practice last night. The juniors were strengthened by the appearance of many goal tenders. McGee of Tweed, was at one end and George Scapa of last year's O.H.A. team was in the other end. Both boys showed in a very creditable style of goal tending and will no doubt help round out the local juniors

X—Y—Z

Parker, a junior from Stratford, will be one of the new juniors this evening. The lad went home over the week-end and is expected back this evening. Parker is a real smart defence player and was one of the members of the C.C.M. team who made the hockey store at Exeter last winter. With the addition of Parker and the return of Leach Thompson a real fine lineup for players to pick his team from.

X—Y—Z

Both teams turned on the speed last night and were treshing at a fast clip with members using it was their third night out. Coach "Sammy" Sidney chased his intermediates through a little more strenuous workout than the previous evening. Both teams are preparing for an exhibition game here some night next week.

LEAFS GAIN ONE ONE DRAW

Sparkling Solo Rush By Cotton Marks Match With Chicago

TORONTO, Ont., Nov. 19. A sparkling solo rush by Harold Cotton, winger, and a beautiful shot which eluded Gardiner's pads gave Toronto Maple Leafs a 1-1 draw with Chicago Black Hawks in the only scheduled National Hockey League fixture in the Windy City last night. Bagging a counter late in the second period when Vic Ripley let a bullet drive from the blue line which got past Chabot, the Hawks tied what was then in the 20 second after the final frame got underway. Cotton skated the length of the ice, circled the black Hawk defence, and went in to beat Gardiner. Both squads tried hard to score a scoring tally during the remainder of the period but in the overtime session play dropped off a bit and each seemed to be content with a draw. With three of their pre-game schedule already completed the Toronto entry have yet to win a league game this season. However they have gathered two points, drawing with Chicago and Canadiens.

The two hitters of the Lee American section of the N.H.L., for the past number of years, Boston Bruins and New York Rangers, meet for the first time in the 1931-32 Campaign tonight when the Bruins invade the Rangers' stronghold. The two leaders attracted a dozen decision in Detroit when Montreal Maroons battle Pelicans.

During 1930, 479,584,892 gallons of gasoline were consumed by motor vehicles in Canada.

DEMPSEY PUSHES OVER CANADIAN

KANSAS CITY, Mo. Nov. 19.—(By the Canadian Press)—Charlie Belanger, of Winnipeg, breezed through two rounds of boxing here last night with Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world.

From a spectators standpoint the bout was disappointing.

The former champion appeared in good condition. He used his famous weaving style from the start and appeared to be trying hard for an opening to land his haymaking right but Belanger easily blocked every move the ex-champion made until half way through the second round when Dempsey finally connected with a short right that finished the exhibition.

The crowns of the former imperial family of Russia are valued at $350,000,000.

NEW ADVENTURES OF GET RICH QUICK WALLINGFORD

Haines and Lois Hyames Teamed

George Crosby paiospay critic of the Cleveland Plain-Dealer speaks in the following glowing terms of "The New Adventures of Get Rich Quick Wallingford," opening at the Belle Tuesday for two days, matinee daily.

"It is exactly the kind of picture the fans have been hoping William Haines would do for seasons, it is bright, humorous and last moving. It casts Haines in the light of a go-getter without compelling him for a moment to become an unsympathetic smart-aleck, the disastrous pitfall of characterizations which so many stars fall into the screen.

"It is a bright characterization, and even when his character is called lacking, other elements with worthwhile merit, have come to the old reputable wise-cracker from him.

"When the real interest is brought in by Lois Hyames and the hero's heart problem him to the narrow paths, studios makes a sound appeal for your sympathy. His Wallingford may not be popular qualities measured by the standard conception of Wallingford but Haines plays him with a nice understanding and feeling.

He is given excellent support by Ernest Torrence as Blasco Daw and by this new character, the schoolmate of Jimmy Durante. Torrence is always good. Durante popped to the fore as a comedian by his quick turn of lines and with his repetition on certain phrases which grow funnier as the play advances.

Here is comedy melodrama filled with a vastly amusing complications and delivered with a speed and brightness which cinches Haines' new lip in pictures.

It is recommended.

An exceptional junior feature is announced for exhibition on the same program. Mack Sennett brings to the screen Radio's latest and greatest crooning sensation, Bing Crosby, in sparkling melodious comedy, "I Surrender Dear" a picture full of music as well as mirth.

BETHANY W. M. S.

The November meeting of the Bethany W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Fred Swain on Nov. 11th.

The President, Mrs. W. Casey, opened the meeting with 23rd Psalm. Mrs. W. Badgley led in Prayer. Scripture reading, Galatians, 6th 10 was given by Mrs. Bradshaw.

The Roll Call was answered by a verse of scripture, each member responding by a verse beginning with the first letter of a given name. The Roll Call for December is to be answered by a verse beginning with the letter B.

Hymn 246, "Green Hands Icy Mountains" was sung and the Secretary's and Treasurer's reports were read and approved. Then followed the election of officers for the coming year.

Moved by Mrs. C. Cole, seconded by Mrs. W. Badgley that the members of the executive continue for 1932. Mrs. W. Casey the President resigned and Mrs. W. Yateman was elected President for 1932.

Mrs. H. Yateman, Leader of Group 4 gave the following program:

Reading—Mrs. C. Casey.

Music—Miss Eva Casey.

Report of Sectional Rally—by Mrs. W. Badgley and Mrs. E. Treverton.

Mrs. C. Grills moved a vote of thanks be tendered to Mrs. W. Badgley and Mrs. E Treverton for the the excellent report they gave of the Sectional Rally held at Foxboro.

Mrs. B. Martin thanked the society for the letter of sympathy sent on the death of her mother.

A good attendance of 23 members and 3 visitors was recorded, the offering was $6.35. Lunch was then sung and Mrs. S. Cooley closed the meeting with Prayer, after which the hostess, Mrs. Swain, served apples, and a pleasant half hour was spent.

Mrs. F. Walker kindly offered her home for the December meeting.

Canada's apple crop for 1931 is officially estimated at 3,254,000 barrels, an increase of 223,000 barrels over 1930.

ELISSA LANDI IN "WICKED" AT THE CAPITOL

Table Knives Free Tonight

"The most intelligent actress in Hollywood!" That's what the magazine and newspaper writers call Elissa Landi, Fox film player whose cinema star is rapidly on the rise.

This statement was recently confirmed by Allan Dwan, noted director, whose latest Fox picture "Wicked" starring Miss Landi, opens tonight at the Capitol theatre.

Before the filming of "Wicked" was started, Dwan asked Miss Landi to sit in on the story conference and was instantly amazed at the star's profound knowledge of psychology, technique and story value.

Miss Landi acquired her knowledge of plot construction from her own experience as a novelist having published two books in England, with a third one just completed and ready for the press. But what astonished Dwan mostly was the vast amount of screen technique she had assimilated during her short time in Hollywood.

In "Wicked," Miss Landi plays the role of a young wife, who discovers, in a shocking manner that her husband has deceived her and is not a broker, but a bank robber. When detectives track him to his home she tries to conceal him and thus foils foul of the law herself.

Miss Landi is supported by a brilliant cast of exceptional brilliance. The leading male player is Victor McLaglen, a star in his own right, and who has become a great favorite through his masterful performances in "The Cock Eyed World" "The Black Watch" "Women Of All Nations" and "The Exactly Gentlemen."

The programme is completed by addition of comedy, cartoon, travelogue and interest.

LOSES HEAD BUT HAS IT RETURNED

Marie Antoinette, Anne Boleyn, Marianne Parr, Lady Jane Grey and Manya Roberti all had their heads cut off but Manya was the only one to have recovered her lop piece and her health. The reason was that she had hers cut of by a magician.

It happens in "The Spider", the mystery thriller, coming to the Capitol Theatre Saturday. Edmund Love, featured with Lois Moran, is cast as a stage magician, whose specialty is solve a perplexing murder. In the course of his exhibition, using Roberti as his assistant, he performs the famous Hindu decapitation illusion.

The Eastern "Sadhu's" method is different, however. Love's. He chooses a street crowd by quarreling violently with his confederate and throwing him to the ground. He flings a towel over the victim's head and brings down a sword with a sickening thud right where his neck should be. Blood flows from underneath the towel; a head rolls away. The fakir picks it up, spits in the face and kicks it along the ground. Then he offers to the confederates to stop feeling sick and put on his head. The assistant obliges and stands up with his head back in place. Lovers laugh at this gruesomeness but the illusion as he works it is just as startling.

William Haines and Leila Hyams co-starred in the surprise comedy-romance of 1931, "The New Adventures of Get Rich Quick Wallingford," opening at the Belle Tomorrow.

"The Spider" tightens his insidious web about Edmund Love and Howard Phillips, despite Lois Moran's protecting arms in the Fox melodrama, "The Spider", coming to the Capitol on Saturday.

C. A. Butler, standing beside his "Comper Swift", the smallest plane in the world, has just left England in an attempt to break the London to Australia flight record. He is flying his baby machine in the daring attempt.

Col. W. N. Ponton Produces Letters Patent to Show Gathering

EXTRACTS GIVEN

The Armistice Supper of the Frankford Horticultural Agricultural Society was followed by a community meeting in the United Church at Frankford, when a large gathering listened to addresses from Colonel Vanneter, the new minister of the church, the reeve, Colonel W. N. Ponton, K.C., and W. A. Fraser, M.P. These addresses were interspersed with music by the Frankford Band and excellently rendered recitations and solos.

Colonel Ponton in his address of Frankford in 1838, the first year of Her Majesty's reign. This is signed by Sir George Arthur, Lieutenant Governor, and by the then Attorney General also, but is probably the oldest authority of its kind by parchment proclamation that is to be found in Ontario and below are some extracts from the quaint old document—which are of universal interest. The next date Colonel Ponton has been able to find is the authority for holding the Agricultural Fairs or Marts at Tweed and Shannonville in 1856.

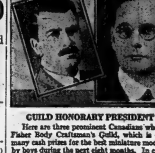
United States Would Mark 150th Anniversary of Treaty

PAY TRIBUTE

Canada Would Also Honor United Empire Loyalists



Halifax, N.S. (By George C. Murray, Canadian Press Staff writer)—On September 3, 1933, one hundred and fifty years will have passed since the articles of peace were signed at Versailles to end the American revolution and when a thirteen revolting colonies on their coves as the United States of America.

Already there is talk of a grand celebration to mark the anniversary. And while the citizens of the United States rejoice in the success of the Declaration of Independence, Canadians will be turning back the pages of history to pay tribute to a people who contributed so much their allegiance of the provinces—the United Empire Loyalists.

Remaining "friends of the government" in all around them neighbors rose in rebellion against British laws, the Loyalists suffered injustices and heavy losses during the war, to say nothing of being tarred and feathered and made to "ride the rail" on occasion. After the war their allegiance to Britain, while they lived within the bounds of a republic, was paramount to treason; and when their property was confiscated, rights and their civil laws were denied them and newspapers painted them in the blakest colors, life under the new flag was unbearable and they decided to shake the dust of the country from their feet and find new lands.

Mustering their forces of loyalists, they migrated in tens of thousands. Some returned to England; about two hundred families went to the West Indies, a few to Newfoundland, many to what were afterwards called Upper and Lower Canada, and a vast army to Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island. In Canada was started another story of hardship, as city dwellers, many of whom had never used to luxuries, began to fashion crude homes in the almost unbroken forests.

A few small bands of Loyalists had found their way into Canada during the war, some joining the Imperial forces, others seeking protection under the British flag; but it was not until after the signing of the treaty in 1783 that the full tide of immigration swept up on the shores of the colonies that had remained loyal to the King. Then they arrived in such numbers that near trends were noticeable almost at once in the political, religious and educational life of this colony.

After their first years of hardship they settled down as good citizens and endeavored to further the interests of their adopted country. They created two new English-speaking provinces and strengthened the English element in two other provinces, Lower Canada and Nova Scotia; and ultimately the French population was outnumbered by the English population surrounding it.

W. Stewart Wallace, who felt that the United Empire Loyalists had suffered a strange fate at the hands of historians and endeavored to tell their story in the new light of impartial history, covered the far-reaching influence of their migration to Canada like this:

"On the Canadian body politic the impress of the Loyalist migration is as deep that it would be difficult to overestimate it. It is no exaggeration to say that the United Empire Loyalists changed the course of the current Canadian history. Before 1783 the clearest observers saw no future for Canada, but that of a French colony under the British crown, comprising a catastrophe shocking to them. After the War of the American Revolution, this country must, to the end of time, be occupied by the Canadian race, who have already taken such firm root, and got to so great a height that any new stock transplanted will be lucky to bid, except in the towns of Quebec and Montreal. . . . Just how discerning this prophecy was will be judged from the fact that even today it holds true with regard to the districts that were settled at the time it was made. . . . It rendered invalid was the unexpected influx of the refugees of the 'precipitate' year. "Before 1783 the continuances . . . Canada in the British Empire was by no means assured, and even in the imperial tie was well-knit."

The most significant of the total number of Loyalists who came to Canada by the end of the war, and with the signing of the peace treaty there was a great rush north. In 1783 Sir Frederick Haldimand had his work cut out for years to come in placing the immigrants and looking after their welfare. The regulars of the government were stretched in providing the necessities of life and his associates at Halifax. A year or so later, after they had established themselves and were taking a new lease on life, this ill-feeling gave way to agitation for separating their part of the country from the peninsula. There followed the birth of New Brunswick, in the summer of 1784.

The new province was to have been called New Ireland but finally the name New Brunswick found more favour. It included all that part of Nova Scotia north of the line running across the Chignecto from the mouth of the Missiquash river to its source, and thence across to the nearest part of Baie Verte. General Carleton who had been in command at Halifax in 1783, was first offered the governorship. He declined, as did General Musgrave, the next to receive the offer. So Colonel Thomas Carleton, brother of Sir Guy Carleton, became the first governor of New Brunswick and held the office for more than thirty years. The province was divided into eight counties, and the seat of the government was placed at St. Anne's, to which he gave the name Fredericton (Fredericton) in honor of the Duke of York.

The story of the Loyalists in Prince Edward Island, then called the Island of Saint John, is not a very pleasant one. Not many settled there, but those who did were victims of treachery and duplicity. They found great difficulty in securing grants of lands that had been promised them, and the six hundred Loyalists who were counted on the Island at the end of 1784 had never got entirely out of the hands of the land-owners. Indeed as late as 1860 the trouble that had arisen out of conspiracy to make the Loyalists tenants instead of freeholders was still cropping up in land and politics. The Loyalists numbered about one-fifth of the population of the Island, and their agitation for justice and the campaign carried on down through by years by their descendants occupies a prominent place in the history of the "garden of the gulf."

the newcomers. In the spring of 1784 the greater majority of the refugees left Quebec and removed to what was later known as Upper Canada, but some remained and swelled the English population in the province. Many new settlements sprang up, as the pioneers broke the new country, and in 1791 Upper Canada was made into a separate province with Colonel John Graves Simcoe, who had been commanding officer of the Queen's Rangers during the war, as the first lieutenant-governor.

Thus it will be seen that the United Empire Loyalists helped to keep the provinces within the Empire and laid the foundations of the Canada that is today.

London Lord Mayor's Old Ancestral Home

LONDON—Writing of the "ancestral home" of the Lord Mayor of London, the Mansion House, which was reconstructed recently and made ready for the occupancy of the new Lord Mayor, Sir Maurice Jenks, Guil

St. Bernard, art critic of the News-Chronicle, says:

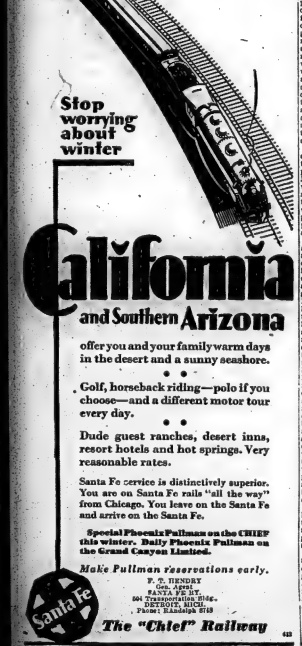
"We call it the 'traditional' home of London's Lord Mayor, although it only dates from 1753 — partly because it is the only official house he has and partly because we talk of the 18th century classicisms in architecture and furniture as the finest British efforts, and so worthy of the word. Before George Dance built the Mansion House the Lord Mayor had to be content with his own house and entertained at the hall of the chief city company to which he belonged. And, of course, the Mansion House was not discussed and then built any more than Charing Cross Bridge was. Even from about 1675 until 1728 it was justification. Then, of course, they formed a committee. In 1738 they really started, and actually finished the job in fifteen years.

"The committee, by the way, still exists for General Purposes, so it will be handy when one is required to discuss selling the Mansion House down. It stands in the centre of Roman London, and a Roman wall still runs around it. The Stock Market also stood there, and the equestrian statue, supposedly of Charles the Second ,that has found its way to private grounds in Ripon.

"The Lord Mayor's home has never been surrounded by wide, open spaces, but it once had them inside to such an extent that portly gentlemen banqueting in Wither Parlor or the Egyptian Hall nearly had their wigs blown off. This was before the first floor, had a central court known as the Cortile, open to the heavens. So, that, too, was made into a hall by the original architect's aid.

"Externally, the architecture is of a type fairly common to the period, the central portico on a podium supported being very expressive of a dignified age. The stonework over the entrance, although prepared for carving ,is still undecorated and awaits the collaboration of a future Lord Mayor, with, say an Epstein.

In 1835 the front steps were altered, while in 1775 a portioned side entrance was added and moved in 1946.



The Lord Mayor of 1805 must have 'gone all hot' when told that the timber 'wharfing' foundations were decayed and that the whole structure needed underpinning. Besides being gutted and pushed, it is roofed and altered, inside and out, often in deplorable taste, the Mansion House has felt also the impact of stones thrown by mobs. Damage to the extent of $1,000 was done in 1768 when John Wilkes, popular champion of liberty, and later Lord Mayor, was elected M. P. That was to show Harley, who was in office, how little he was believed.

"The Gordon Riots caused an official outcry — windows broke had 49, middling 67.

"In the course of nearly two hundred years the Mansion House has seen life, and to Sir Maurice Jenks is passed on an interesting heritage. The latest efforts of Sydney Perks, F.S.A., and Mr. Tattersall have revived several architectural merits, and the Lord Mayor's house again stands the centre of London's justice and corporation activities and an object of aesthetic beauty as well."

"Affection and bristles don't go together"

"I CAN'T imagine 'falling' for a man with a day's growth of stubble on his face. You may think this is a testimonial for razor blades, but it's not. I never use a razor. I'm just giving you the average girl's opinion of men who don't shave carefully."

"I honestly believe that neglected beards have spoiled as many romances as soiled linen. Of course I may be wrong about this, but to me a man who doesn't shave closely is actually repulsive."

"I'm not thinking about the men in my crowd alone. A clean shave almost always makes a 'hit' with a woman. Many of the men I see in busses or on the street, carpenters and plumbers and all, would look like a 'million', if they'd only be more particular about shaving."

Let's be frank about it. This typical Canadian girl voices the opinion of womankind. A man is repulsive with a growth of stubble. Of course we know that until now shaving was not especially pleasant, sometimes even painful and injurious. There may have been some excuse for neglect. Today, the new Gillette blade makes shaving a not uncomfortable task.

This new blade is remarkably keen and uniform in quality. It cuts the beard cleanly and easily—never roughens or irritates the tenderest skin. You can prove this on our guarantee. Buy a package of new Gillette blades tonight, and give them a trial. If every shave isn't quick and clean—remarkable for unusual ease, return the package and your dealer will refund the purchase price.

TRADE HOLDS KEY TO WORK

Mackenzie King Says Canada's Policies Must Be Refashioned

HALIFAX, Nov. 19. — "The real solution to the problem of unemployment is trade," said the Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King here Wednesday. "trade to associate this land with other lands. Until this country's policies are so fashioned as to make this possible again, Canada can never attain her rightful portion of prosperity."

Levelling a sharp attack at the Bennett government's financial practice, cabinet structure, trade and tariff policies, and methods of dealing with unemployment relief, federal opposition leader issued a call for more effective Liberal organization.

Addressing the Nova Scotia Liberal Association, in conference here, he asked that a campaign of education on political policies be carried on, apart from the periods devoted to election's elections, to bring home the truth to every man, woman and child in Canada, so that when the time comes the battle for better government and lasting liberty will be already won.

"I am not advising an attempt to force the government to the country now," the Liberal leader said. "I do not believe the people want a general election, with its unsettling effects.

"But every effort must be made to get this government to change its policies. You in the Maritimes know that an abnormally high tariff is not good for you. They know it in the west. The administration has many supporters of the administration in parliament. If the Prime Minister will not listen, they are justified in saying to him, We are going to cast our votes in the service of our country."

Mr. King advocated the appointment of a commission to deal with unemployment, the appointment of a Minister of Finance apart from the Prime Minister, and of a Minister of Labor from the floor of the House of Commons, and declared that the Bennett trade policies and tariff changes—"more drastic at one sweep than all the changes in Canada's previous fiscal history"—had made the country "restless in matters of trade."

WAR BOOKS AS PEACE AID

Loftus Reid Would Have Youth Impressed By Horror of War

TORONTO, Nov. 19.—In the promoting of international good-will and understanding it was necessary to "tell the whole truth of the beastly business of war." These were the words of Trustee Loftus H. Reid of the Board of Education when he yesterday addressed members of the Home and School Council at Sherbourne House.

"How can the young people be impressed with the importance of striving after world peace if they know nothing of the horrors of war?" he asked. He referred to a criticism of war books which held that they were mostly the work of men who ate plum jam at the rear and never faced war from the front-line trenches.

There have been, said Mr. Reid, many war books written by men whose chief occupation was not the eating of plum jam at the rear.

Mr. Reid also dealt with the recent criticism of the League of Nations as a "debating society," and as an organization in need of more power. "I would like to ask," said Mr. Reid, "what the Christian church has done in 2,000 years for the promotion of peace? Why blame the League of Nations? What the League probably needs is not more power, but more prayer."

In reference to the meeting held this year in Denver of the World Federation of Educational Associations, at which he was a delegate, Mr. Reid referred to it as an agency working towards international understanding.

"World peace is not engendered by the passing of resolutions and the adoption of reports," he said, "but such an opportunity as the federation permits of contact with educationists from other lands is certainly a contributing factor to international understanding."

"One delegate told me that in this business of world peace we were only scratching at the surface. But by all means let us keep on scratching."

MANSLAUGHTER IS CHARGED TO YOUTH

LINDSAY, Ont., Nov. 19.—Abbot Crimmons, 17, of Lindsay who faces a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death last Saturday of William Thornton, 41, of Walkerville, testified at the inquest last night he held up the gun that wounded Thornton, but declared he did not know it was loaded.

The coroners' jury brought in a verdict declaring that death was "the result of a gunshot wound in the right breast from a gunshot wound in the right breast from a gun admitted to be in the hands of Abbot Crimmons".

DOLLY-DAVIS ROMANCE ENDS

Stage Favorite Granted Divorce Against Young Davis

MINEOLA, N.Y., Nov. 19.—The widely publicized romance of Rockaway, L.I., Dolly Sisters, and Mortimer Davis, Jr., son of the late Canadian tobacco king ended in the filing of an interlocutory decree of divorce in behalf of the continental stage favorite.

The decree signed by Supreme Court Justice Leander B. Faber, was the first public work of proceedings, which began last August when Charles I. Wood of Sea Cliff, N.Y., as referee, was assigned to hear Miss Dolly's suit.

The chief witness for Miss Dolly who secured her husband's of unfaithfulness was Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight boxer. Wood and opposing counsel questioned. Renault at a private hearing August 31 which lasted for nearly 24 hours. Wood returned a report to Justice Faber August 21 recommending the decree.

Miss Dolly and Davis, who inherited approximately half of his father's $150,000,000 estate, are believed to be in Europe.

They were married secretly early in 1927 in Brewster N.Y., and first divulged reports of their marriage when they approached in Paris.

In the two years there have been frequent rumors that the romance was at an end, but each was denied by the principals. What property settlement was made was not known.

SENATOR ADVISED TO ENTER HOSPITAL

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Hon. G. D. Robertson, Minister of Labor, has been advised to go to the hospital for a short time before leaving Ottawa on a trip. Senator Robertson, who has been carrying a very heavy load the past year or more because of the unemployment situation, is in a run down condition. He had planned to go away for a trip at the end of the week, but his physician advised him to go to the hospital for a while first. During the absence of Senator Robertson, Hon. H. A. Stewart, Minister of Public Works, will be Acting Minister of Labor.

TRIBUTE IS PAID UPON REFUSAL

Montreal, Que., Nov. 19—Tribute was paid to Very Rev. Arthur Carleton Hamilton of Montreal, for his refusal of the Bishopric of Huron by Canon Vernon Smith, who, in his work here, by Canon Allan P. Shatford, addressing the women's club yesterday. It was to the second greatest diocese in Canada that Dean Hamilton had been elected, Canon Shatford said, and the fact that he had been content to continue in the humbler office of an ordinary clergyman reflected great credit upon him".

Moscow is Notified Railway Responsible for Fighting in East

Japan Declares Chinese Railway Partly to Blame

MOVING TROOPS

Responsibility For Nonni Outbreak Laid to China By Japan

Tokyo Nov. 19.—Japan has notified the Soviet Government of its intention to hold the Chinese Eastern Railway "partly responsible" for hostilities in Manchuria because it transported Chinese troops.

The Japanese note was in reply to a reminder recently from Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet Commissar for Foreign Affairs, that Japan had assured Russia Soviet interests in Manchuria would be protected. The Soviet Government informed Tokyo of reports that the Japanese high command planned to cut the Chinese Eastern Railway near Tsitsihar.

Japan's reply sent to Moscow yesterday before the Japanese advance who for thirty years has been connected with the Canadian General Electric Company and has just been elected President of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada.

R. F. SELBY,

against Chinese began in the Nonni River area, and that if hostilities broke out the Japanese Government "would hold the Chinese Eastern Railway partly responsible, as having transported Chinese troops."

Its transportation of Chinese troops in the vicinity of Hsinkingking forces of General Mah Chan-Shan might be taken as offering assistance to General Mah, the Japanese said.

Japan Blames Chinese.

Responsibility for the Nonni outbreak rested with the Chinese, the reply to Litvinoff emphasized, as it had been established that after the clash of November 5, General Mah's troops were reinforced from Hailar and other points by means of transportation over the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Kijuro Shidehara, Japanese Foreign Minister, informed Leo Soviet Commissar that in event Japanese should be compelled to advance on the railway they would take every precaution not to interfere with its operation, "providing the Chinese do not utilize the Chinese Eastern Railway for military purposes."

The Soviet Government had taken the attitude that cutting of the railroad, which Russia owns jointly with China, would cause material loss to Soviet interests.

WILL FORM TOWN

Bridgeburg, Ont., Nov. 19 — Bridgeburg and Fort Erie will amalgamate to form a town of about 6,000 people on December 31, in order to this effect has been issued by the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, following a favorable vote on the question at the last municipal elections. The new town will be called Fort Erie.

Electric machines for postmarking letters can deal with them at the rate of 800 a minute.

RADIO CHIEF DISCOMFORT

Polar Expedition Makes Target For Publicity Seekers

MONTREAL, Que. (By The Canadian Press)—Times have changed! The chief discomfort of polar explorations use to be the extreme cold; now, according to Sir A. Thorne, chief engineer on the Byrd Antarctic expedition, who recently visited Montreal, it is to do.

Far from finding the radio a pleasant companion, the company hated it, said Thorne. The expedition was made a sort of target, he said, for an endless number of publicity seekers, who were capitivated by the idea of sending their voices to the ends of the earth.

MUSIC ROOM IN NEW HOMES

Radio Bulletin Will Merely Supplement Newspaper

New York, Nov. 18.—The music room of the gay Nineties may have its counterpart in the electrical home of the future, says W. E. Baker, vice-president of the R.C.A.-Victor Company of Camden, N.J., foresees such a possibility thus:

"The day is in sight when every new home costing $10,000 or more will have a room fitted up exclusively for radio-electrical entertainment. The 'home theatre' will become another home institution. Television and home talkies will share a room with a radio, news bulletin and talking books that read themselves aloud to those who wish to save their eyes.

"Just as the 'home theatre' will not interfere with the public theatre, the radio bulletin will merely supplement the newspaper. Flashing sport news dispatches and photographs to the home. Engineering and manufacturing facilities that have made possible the present day radio sets and phonographs will bring forth new marvels that may change the whole trend of life."

AGRICULTURAL MINISTERS MEET

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 19—An interprovincial conference of Ministers of Agriculture to formulate plans for mutual co-operation will open here next Monday with Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion Minister of Agriculture presiding. Hon. T. L. Kennedy Ontario Minister of Agriculture announced yesterday.

Every Provincial Minister with the possible exception of one from the Maritimes will be present, said Col. Kennedy. Each will outline the problems and difficulties of his own province while Mr. Weir will speak on behalf of the Dominion authorities.

CANCELLATION IS CALLED NECESSARY

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 19—Cancellation or revision of the so-called French treaty of 1923 is necessary if Canada is to make satisfactory adjustments to encourage intra-Empire trade, said C. B. Sykes, past president of the Canadian Woolen Manufacturers' Association, addressing the 11th annual gathering of wool textile manufacturers of the Dominion here yesterday.

He described the treaty, which fixed duty rates on limited goods from all exporting countries except Germany and the United States, as an "extraordinary document which in no particular has been of advantage to Canada or the Empire."

100 VILLAGERS ARE ILL WITH TYPHOID

Ste. Scholastique, Que., Nov. 19 — The Provincial Hygiene Department is at grips here with an epidemic of typhoid fever which has stricken one hundred residents of this village, it was announced last night.

Doctors Conlin and Masson, inspectors of the Provincial Hygiene Department, were sent here when local doctors reported the epidemic was spreading rapidly. Several nurses are also on the scene and the patients are being inoculated with serum as quickly as possible.

The local convent and college have been closed. No deaths have been reported but many cases are understood to be serious.

BISHOP WILL ACCEPT SEE

Prelate to Move From Ontario Diocese Early in New Year

London, Ont., Nov. 19—Right Rev. Charles Allen Seager, D.D., LL.D., M.A., Bishop of Ontario, is to be the fifth Bishop of Huron. Very Rev. Dean Tucker, Administrator of the Diocese since the death of the Archbishop, made this announcement to the press shortly after ten o'clock last night, after a select committee from the Diocesan Synod had been in conference with Bishop Seager at the Deanery more than an hour.

The translation of the Bishop-elect of Huron from his present diocese will likely be accomplished early in the new year, and the induction service is tentatively set for January 6, Feast of the Epiphany, on which date St. Paul's Cathedral will be the scene of a solemn gathering of church dignitaries.

Met on Arrival

Bishop Seager arrived from Kingstone, his cathedral city, last night and went immediately to the deanery. At the train he was met by Canon Perkins, Honorary Clerical Secretary of Synod; R. E. Davis, Honorary Lay Secretary; Rev. Bernard Johnson, Cathedral Curate, and Rev. Roy Mesh.

At the deanery, the Bishop met the select committee named by the Synod to interview him and to present the claims of the Diocese of Huron. On the committee were the Dean, Canon Perkins, Archdeacon Sage, E. S. Wigle, K.C., Diocesan Chancellor, and Mr. Davis. To the dean, Bishop Seager intimated his disinclination to be interviewed last night.

The Bishop left for Toronto at 9 o'clock this morning, and after his return to Kingston will announce his intention formally.

Born in Coderich

Bishop Seager was elected to head the Diocese of Huron, Tuesday on the fifth ballot by the largest Diocesan Synod ever held in Canada. He was born in Coderich 59 years ago, and is thus a native son of Huron. He was educated at Trinity University, Toronto, and after his ordination was in charge of parishes in Toronto and Vernon, B.C.

He returned to Toronto to St. Matthew's parish and subsequently became provost of Trinity University, from which position he went to Kingston, being consecrated Bishop of Ontario on August 2, 1926.

Bishop Seager is distinguished as a scholar and a churchman. In succeeding the late Archbishop Williams he takes over the diocese of the Bishop who consecrated him to the Episcopate.

BANK OF ENGLAND IS OUT OF DEBT

New York, Nov. 19—The Herald-Tribune says the Bank of England was entirely out of debt to the federal reserve system of the United States on October 31, "having apparently paid off every dollar of the $125,000 credit which fell due on that day.

The Herald-Tribune says this fact is disclosed in the Federal Reserve Board's current monthly review, released for publication on Thursday.

DORA" RELIC OF GREAT WAR IS CONDEMNED

Shopkeeper Brought to Court For Sale of Biscuits

P. M. CYNICAL

Says World Full of Fools as He Discusses Case

By Thomas T. Champion
Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Nov. 18 (C. P. Cable).—"Dora," or the Defence of the Realm Act as it is officially called, today was condemned by a Wood with police magistrate who dismissed on payment of costs an action against a shopkeeper charged with selling biscuits after hours.

"What fools there are in the world," the magistrate exclaimed. "The persons responsible for Dora ought publicly to be hanged."

In the court action a solicitor of the London County Council, who acted for the prosecution, testified the shopkeeper's establishment was properly open for the sale of cooked meats, but not for the sale of biscuits.

"Dora" is a wartime relic. Many of its then useful restrictions have been abrogated, but quite a number are still enforceable. On Sunday night Mrs. Philip Snowden, wife of the Lord Privy Seal, who was recently raised to the rank of Viscount, was a victim of Dora, when she was toasted by members of the Sildgrove Guild who had been deprived of their glasses and could merely bow to her.

It was "closing time" for the sale of drinks while the proceedings of the Guild's annual dinner were finished. Dora, even intentionally noted baritone, was about to sing when the waiters swarmed onto the stage and gathered up every glass from the tables. Mrs. Snowden protested to no avail.

"No wonder Mrs. Snowden went off the deep end," the Wood magistrate said today.

The London County Council yesterday decided the remedy for Dora lay in licensing of establishments by magistrates, not by themselves.

WEDS BEAUTY HE "FREEZED"

John Held, Jr., noted artist and jazz age caricaturist, had the novel experience of picking out his bride first as a prize beauty in the 1928 Galveston, Texas, exposition. Miss Hall, one of the judges for the beauty contest, Held joined other critics in proclaiming Gladys Moore, of New Orleans, as the prize charmer. Three years later he clinched his complimentary opinion by quietly marrying her at Stamford. The newlyweds are shown in New York.

Weekly Crop Report

Farmers have practically completed their fall work. Very little farm products such as grain and hay having swept in cases where the farmer is forced to sell.

BRUCE—Live stock and sheep are in good condition due to open pasturing weather. Plowing is almost completed. Some odd potatoes have been marketed for local feeding. Apples are being marketed locally at from $2.00 to $3.00 per bbl. There is plenty to supply the demand.

FRONTENAC—Weather has been ideal for plowing and indications are that farmers are doing considerably more plowing this year than last. There is a good supply of poultry on local market but demand for some is light. Prices remain about the same. Eggs are bringing from 45c to 55c per dozen. Demand for hay and grain is light. Hay is bringing from 8.00 to $10.00 per ton.

GLENGARRY—Livestock in better than average condition, about the usual number being marketed at prevailing prices. The milk flow is rather low and while cheese factories are still running they are likely to close any time. Eggs are sold locally this week at 41c.

HALIBURTON—Eggs are reported to be selling on local markets at 36c per finest, 41c for extras, with pullet extras bringing 26c. Continued mild and open weather is perfect for ripening of many outdoor jobs that would otherwise be left over till next spring. Rainfall on Thursday night will be of material assistance in coping with shortage of water on many farms.

LENNOX—Very wonderful fall weather is making it possible for pasturing cattle to be left on pasture which is still fairly abundant. There is a good demand for well fleshed poultry at fair prices; 35c to 38c retail is the usual price being asked on the local market with old fowl at 22 to 25c dressed. Eggs are scarce and bring the following prices: Special 50c, extras 45c, fresh firsts 40c, pullet extras 30c and fresh pullets 25c. A very large local market at St. Catharines this morning with a great variety of green produce as well as vegetables for storing. Apples are in great demand and retail at the following prices: Macintosh, $1.50 per bushel; Snows, $1.10 to $1.25 per bushel, some at more than one dollar per bus.; parsnips 50c; carrots 50c; beets 70c; squash 10c each; cabbage 50c doz.; potatoes 60c bag and oranges.

OXFORD—Livestock generally good. This has been a remarkable season for late fall and early winter. What has made phenomenal growth and pasture feeds are still are beginning to turn brown. The organization of the Oxford Fruit Co-operative under the management of Mr. Geo. Laird, operating a central packing plant, has been the salvation of the fruit industry in this section. There has been no waste in the orchards that have been taken care of and there is every possibility that the fruit will be handled more economically.

TWO MEN SEEN IN ATTEMPT TO FIRE BARN

First Definite Clue to Barn Fires in Western Ontario is Found Today

Young Men Pursue Intruders as Far as Galt Highway

SOAKED PAPER

Search Shows Bottle of Gasoline With Matches

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 20.— What is believed to be the first definite clue to the series of barn fires in Beverly township was revealed early this morning when two men were seen in the act of attempting to fire a building on the property of David Slater, Bullocks Corner.

Harold Slater, son of David Slater was returning to his home around 2.35 this morning from a dance in Hamilton. As he drove into the lane leading to the house his headlights showed two men standing by the doors of the woodshed. The pair fled when the light shone upon them.

Calling his brother, Harold Slater gave chase and pursued the two. They finally made their escape. Returning to the house Slater decided to search his premises. Underneath the floor of the house he found a quantity of newspapers soaked with gasoline. There was a small bottle of gasoline tilted over with a circle of unlighted matches around it.

Had the material been ignited nothing could have saved the house, Slater declared. In the event the fire spread sleeping members of the children.

Describing the two marauders, he declared that they were short dark men, apparently foreigners and were wearing sheep skin coats.

FARMER MUST BE REWARDED

Must Have Larger Return For His Hard Labor

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20— There could be no greater contribution to world prosperity than that which gave the farmer a return more commensurate with the labor said Hon. Robert Weir, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, addressing 500 junior farmers of Ontario at a banquet tendered them here last night by the provincial department of agriculture.

The present problem in agriculture was that of marketing, he said. Improvement in the quality of grains and fruit was important but leaders of agriculture could do no better work than strive to see that the extra cost of labor was given a better living for their efforts.

WESTMINSTER BILL GIVEN 2ND READING TODAY

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Nov. 20.—(CP Cable)— The abolition of Westminster and to give Legislative effect to equality of status between the United Kingdom and the Dominions of the British Empire was passed on its second reading in the House of Commons without a division.

Hopkins Morris, Liberal member for Cardiganshire, Wales, moved the rejection of the bill. His motion was subsequently withdrawn, but it was not until after there had been discussion that the house finally sent the bill to committee.

WALL STREET BLGS. THREATENED

New York, Nov. 20—A heavy guard of uniformed policemen and detectives patrolled today to guard Wall Street and other parts of the financial district. Assistant Chief Inspector John J. Sullivan refused to discuss the guard this morning, but it was learned that some financiers had received letters to which threats were made to blow up some buildings in the district.

HEAVIER GOLF BALL CHOSEN IN U. S.

New York, N.Y., Nov. 20 — The "floor" golf ball made its exit today with the announcement by H. Ramsay, president of the United States Golf Association, that the executive committee had adopted a new and heavier ball, effective January 1, 1932.

Red Robin Still Bobbin'

Residents of that district across the Bay comprising Prince Edward county report the red robin is still "bobbin' bobbin'" around all over the place over there.

Many Belleville residents have been treated not only to robins being still here, but also fish-worms, frogs, snails and all other creeping and crawling things. All we need now is the return of the swallows and then the idyllic new spring-like weather into the actuality of the season.

KRISHNAMURTI BREAKS AWAY

Gives Away Castle and Estate, and Other Gifts of Friends

LOS ANGELES, Cal. Nov. 20.— Jeddu Krishnamurti, Hindu Theosophist once regarded by thous ands of followers as the reincarnation of Christ, has cast aside the Messianic mantle put upon him by the noted theosophist, Mrs. Annie Besant.

For years hailed as the Messiah, the Philosopher, in a copyrighted statement today, broke with the cult, said, "but Christ is potential in all. Ternational Theosophic organization.

"They called me the Christ," he said, "but Christ is potential in all Furthermore, I am no actor. I renounced to world the role of a Messiah, so I am again free of all personal ties. I have severed myself from creed."

Krishnamurti stated he had returned to their original owners the Castle Eerde at Ommen, Holland; an estate at Ojai, Calif., and "Honte, Lands and Chalets that were forced upon me by well meaning friends."

FATHER GIVES LIFE FOR BOY

Self-Sacrifice of Ill Parent is in Vain

CHATHAM, Ont. Nov. 20.—John Fensame, aged 51 and his four-year old son Frederick, were drowned in the River Thames at the Prairie siding bridge this morning about 10:30 o'clock. The boy was playing on the river bank and slipped into the water at a point where a dredge had been operating recently leaving not a place for the landing of a gravel boat. The father with true spirit-ing a chimney on his house, situated on the river bank saw the lad fall into the water. In spite of the fact that he has been in poor health, he plunged into the water. It is believed he was seized with cramps, as he failed to appear on the surface. His wife saw the whole incident and raised the alarm. The bodies were recovered by Provincial Police who were called to the scene with dragging apparatus Resuscitation methods failed to restore life to either body.

ROUND-ROBIN TO MACDONALD IS REPORTED

New York Times Says 100 Conservatives Give Warning

BODY UNRECONCILED

Round-Robin Concourse Declaration of Policy

New York, N.Y., Nov. 20 (CP) — A wireless despatch to the New York Times from London says Conservative members of the House of Commons have sent a round robin to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald warning him he must consult Parliament before making any new declaration of the Government's policy in India.

Proceeding the despatch says: "Behind the scenes over the settlement in 1921, the Conservatives forced Lloyd George, Mr. MacDonald's offer to arbitrate the Indian question between Mr. Gandhi and the Viceroy at Simla. Unanimous demand came from the minority leaders.

"Earlier in the week Mr. MacDonald and the Viceroy at Simla. his offer had been approved by his cabinet but not by the Conservatives as they still unreconciled.

"Rt. Hon. Winston, Churchill was especially indignant, protesting in a long, fiery speech that Parliament should not be faced with a scheme drawn up by the Prime Minister alone.

There was unconscious irony in Mr. MacDonald's declaration that he was among the ministers who signed the Irish settlement in 1921 in advance of Parliament's decision to endorse it.

The Round Table Conference on India moved about unanimously yesterday with discussions of the Imperial "reserves" subject. There was a general agreement that the interests of foreign and British business in India should be protected by a convention forming a part of the new federal constitution. The discussion had not been completed when the Round Table Conference adjourned until Monday.

It is now virtually impossible that the conference will end before December. The delicate subject of financial safeguards has still to be considered, and later the Structures Committee must work through four draft reports on the army, navy, air relations, finances and commercial discrimination, which Lord Sankey promised.

NEPHEW WAS NOT MISSING

Hiram Pitt Says He Has Letter From Him

CORNWALL, Ont., Nov. 20.— (By the Canadian Press)—Arriving here from Montreal yesterday Arthur Pitt, Uncle of Hiram Pitt, of Cornwall, who was reported missing of reports published yesterday that Hiram Pitt had disappeared.

"It is an absolute lie," Mr. Pitt declared. "Hiram Pitt is out of the city but we have had letters from him since he left. I have a letter in my pocket now that I received from him today. The newspaper reports that he had disappeared were absolutely unfounded and have done him a grave injury."

UT MAJEUR IS DERBY WINNER

Nitakrit at 100 to 8 is Second in Today's Event

Derby, Eng., Nov. 20 (C. P. Cable) —Ut Majeur, carrying odds of 13 to 2 today won the Derby Cup at a mile and three quarters. Nitakrit, at 100 to 8 was second and Derby Contact Bachelor paid 20 to 10 showing. Twenty-two horses ran.

Ut Majeur, handsome four-year-old owned by Aga Khan, was hampered throughout and finished only a neck ahead of Nitakrit.

No Notice on Highway Work is Received Here

In a Canadian Press dispatch this morning comes the news that instructions have been issued from Toronto ordering the cancellation of all men now on the relief works of government offices throughout Canada for relief work in the Northern development scheme, also the news note states that over one thousand men have been laid off and that others have been laid off and all crews have been reduced. The remaining men working on, on part time. Among the projected roads affected by these instructions is that line between Sudbury and Killarney, in the districts of Sudbury and Manitoulin.

Whether this new announcement will affect the thirty or so men sent from this city remains to be seen. However, in conversation with Mr. Lorne Orser this morning the Ontario Intelligencer learned that no notice or word of any kind affecting the men now at work and the projects on which they signed up has been received by him. No further word than this has as yet been received in this city.

4,520 Given Shelter Here

The register containing the names of transients, who have been given shelter at the Bellev ville Police Station was brought up to date today. It showing that since the first of the present year up to and including Thursday of the week, 4,520 homeless men have been given lodging for the night. During the winter the wanderers were fed with hot nourishing soup and bread and the same policies will be continued this winter. In fact for some time the transients have been receiving food upon arriving and departing. Through the kindness of numerous church and other collections the transients often enjoy many varieties of food left over from social gatherings.

STRATHEARN MAKES DENIAL

At No Time He Swears Did He Offer $8,000

Toronto, Nov. 20—Denial of D. K. C Strathearn, former York township engineer, that he ever offered Reeve J. J. Gilbert Jno. $8,000 to "forget" anything marked evidence yesterday at the trial of Gilbert and Peter Mohan, contractor, on charges of conspiracy and bribery. The charges follow a probe of municipal affairs in York township conducted this spring by Judge Herbert Denton and are being heard in Fall Assizes before Mr. Justice Raney.

Yesterday Dean testified Strathearn offered him $8,000 if he would forget Strathearn had brought Mohan to him in the council chamber. Today the former township engineer said Dean had told him he was to be "the goat" in the disclosures which led to the Denton probe.

He asked me for $10,000 and he would forget the whole thing," he said. In cross-examination Strathearn denied he every made up London Dean's story. He is seeking jobs.

The defence concluded its case and it is expected the jury will render their verdict tomorrow.

CHINA, JAPAN AGREE UPON ARMISTICE

League Accepts Japanese Proposal For Commission

JAPAN WITHDRAWS

Chinese Must Give Full Protection of Life, Property

Paris, Nov 20 (AP)—Both Japan and China have agreed in principle tonight to a proposal for an armistice in Manchurian military activities.

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP)—The League of Nations Council agreed in principle tonight to accept the Japanese proposal that an international commission be created to investigate the whole Manchurian situation.

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP) — Japan is ready to withdraw her troops at Tsitsihar as far south as Tsonan, an authoritative Japanese source said today, but later withdrawal to a point farther south will be conditioned upon evidence that the Chinese can provide adequate protection of the lives and property of Japanese nationals in Manchuria.

(Copyright 1931 by the Associated Press)

TOKYO, Nov. 20.—British, United States, French and Polish military attaches will visit the front in Manchuria tomorrow to investigate actual conditions, it was announced today.

A Mukden dispatch to the Rengo News Agency reported that Japanese forces have driven 4 detachments of General Mah Chan-Shan's Chinese troops today, establishing the enemy forced, "at Hailun about 100 miles south of Harbin.

CROSSING TO CHURCH, KILLED

Midland Girl Struck Down By Car Near Church

Midland, Ont. Nov. 20.—Evelyn Johnston, of Midland, met instant death when struck by an automobile in Main street, Port Mc Nicoll, shortly after leaving the church on Sunday morning. The girl had attended across the highway on her way to church. The driver of the car, William Moran, 15 year old son of Thomas Moran, was not held by the police. An inquest is to be conducted Monday.

The fatality occurred at Simvale, 18 miles from Midland. The deceased had motored to that town with a party of friend. The car was stopped on the north side of the highway from the church and Miss Johnston started to run to cross the highway when she was run down by the car driven by Moran.

The young driver was accompanied at the time by his mother and sister. Provincial Officer Ferguson and Chief Constable MacDonald investigated the accident.

INQUEST OPENS AT CAMPBELLFORD

At Campbellford on Friday afternoon an inquest will be opened into the death of Mrs. Ethel Green Greenshields, the five-year-old boy who died on Thursday morning at Campbellford, from the effects, it is alleged, of an attack made upon him by his father, Hugh Greenshields, on the afternoon previous. A county jail at Cobourg charged with murder. The inquest will be conducted by Coroner Dr. Loucks of Campbellford, and the Crown will be represented by Crown Attorney Col. Boggs, of Cobourg.

Mrs. Greenshields, the eight-year-old son, who was also attacked by the same time, is reported as progress towards recovery, it is understood, at the Peterboro hospital.

Weeping Women Greet Train Bearing 19 Japanese Dead

Day of Mourning at Mukden Over Slain Troops

(Copyright 1931, by the Associated Press)

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 20 (A. P.)—The bodies of nineteen Japanese dead, the first casualties of Wednesday's Chinese hostility, together with eighty wounded soldiers, arrived here by train today. A. throng of 10,000 persons met the train.

It was a day of mourning in the Japanese community. No previous announcement was made of the arrival of the train, but the news leaked out and the crowd of mourners, with a military guard was at the station when it pulled in.

At the headquarters of General Honjo, Japanese chief of staff, it was said the total casualties in the battle were not known yet, approximately, 300, it was estimated. The trainload represented less than half that total.

Owing to the breakdown of the field radio station which is accompanying the advancing Japanese troops there was no news of developments in the region of Tsitsihar and beyond.

Japanese official reports said that since the Nonni River detachment advanced to Tsitsihar Chinese troops have been concentrating at Tungliao-Paiyintala, west of Changchun.

EYESIGHT IS NOT DAMAGED

M. G. K. Graham is Victim of Peculiar Accident

Wednesday afternoon last, Mr. George K. Graham, proprietor of the Montrose Dairy, met with a painful accident at his Trent road Plant. He was assisting Harold Jan. Sac, his farm foreman, was spraying the gutters of his exterior with carbolic acid. The force of the spray became clogged, and Mr. Graham, in endeavoring to remove the obstruction, when this loosened, the stream of liquid was accidentally released spraying Mr. Graham's face and eyes. At first fine also received a portion of the liquid but was not materially injured. This morning the eyesight is learned Mr. Graham will not be permanently injured in any way, and that his eyesight is clearing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

Files Divorce Action on Golden Wedding Day

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 20—Yesterday was Mrs. Michael Zillmer's golden wedding anniversary, but there was no family reunion with eager grandchildren awaiting a new cake of huge cake. Mrs. Zillmer chose the occasion to file suit for separation.

Children and friends tried valiantly to bring about a reconciliation. They agreed to a golden wedding anniversary, but there was no family reunion with eager grandchildren awaiting a new cake of huge cake. Mrs. Zillmer chose the occasion to file suit for separation.

"I have had half a cenjury to make up my mind, and I won't change it now," she said. "No amount of the twilight trail for me" she charged cruelly.

RESTRICTION ON BUSES AND TRUCKS ASKED

15 Municipalities With Ship-By-Rail Clubs Petition

FIVE REQUESTS

Belleville Represented on Delegation to Queen's Park

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20—Restrictions in the operation of buses and trucks were asked yesterday by a delegation representing the municipal association in fifteen municipalities which waited upon Hon. G. S. Henry, premier, and Hon. Leopold MacAulay, Minister of Highways.

"The service provided by trucks and their operation should contribute to the service that is being given on the highways," said the premier to the deputation, which consisted of twenty-seven delegates from the affiliated railwaymen's organizations in Ontario.

The association laid five requests before the ministers, as follows:

1.—That no bus or truck be permitted to operate where adequate transportation facilities already exist or where the steam railways can and are willing to provide these facilities.

2.—That all buses and trucks operating within the boundary of the municipality be placed under the control, administration and supervision of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board or a similar commission and be operated under conditions similar to those imposed upon the railways, especially with regard to the fixing of rates and the elimination of mutually destructive competition.

3.—That all commercial vehicles using the highway for revenue purposes be taxed on a basis commensurate with the use they make of the highways, with due regard to future guarantee of sufficient financial responsibility to assure the payments of any claim for damages which may be legally assessed against them.

4.—That drivers of all motor vehicles be required to pass a qualifying test, including a test after being submitted and passed by the proper area into effect it will ensure the much-talked-about scheme of daylight saving going into operation for the next two years over the railway lines running from June 15th each year and up to and including last Sunday in October.

A vote of the people on this question therefore is necessary to show in which direction their desire lies.

"Belleville is unanimous but agree," said W. S. Dowd, Ottawa, vice-president, and spokesman for the deputation. "The railroads themselves did not see far enough ahead."

BARRISTER STRUCK OFF LAW ROLL

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20—Because he was convicted of misappropriation John N. Circle Selects Its Officers

The monthly gathering for November of the Here-Am-I Mission Circle of the Tabernacle Church was held at the home of Miss Hazel Bailey, West Moira Street, on Wednesday evening, the President presiding.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn and the repeating of the Lord's prayer. Scripture lesson was read by Mary Biggs followed by prayer by Mrs. Ford and all joined in singing the hymn, "Tis the Shepherd's Voice," after which Miss Gertrude Bailey contributed a piano solo.

The usual business routine of the payments of fees and the reports of the secretary were followed by the resignation of the president. Mrs. Rd. Sharp assumed the chair for the election of officers which resulted as follows: President, Miss Bailey; Secretary, Correspondent, Jessie Smith; Treasurer, Mary Biggs. The following secretaries were also elected, Recording, Marjorie Gregory; Correspondent, Mrs. Lyla Bailey; Christian Stewardship, Devotional, Hymnist, Sister Jessie Barlow; Supply—Mrs. Flossie Wood; Mite box, Mrs. Orace Waller; Birthday, Edith Bird; Watch Tower, Marjorie Hanchett; Press reporter, Rachel Pur; Thankoffering, Ethel Horton; Auditors for 1931, Mrs. Vera Horton and Miss Ethel Horton.

A solo "The Little old Church of My Dreams," sung by Mrs. Vera Horton was very much appreciated. The meeting closed with the singing of the hymn "One More Day's Work for Jesus," and the Benediction.

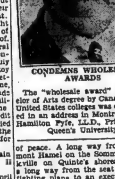
Conqueror of Richthofen Visits Belleville This Week

Piping Times of Peace Bring Capt. Brown to Belleville

STORY OF FEAT

On April 21st, 1926, Captain Baron Manfred von Richthofen, the "Red Knight of Germany", the ace of German aces and the pride of the German air force was brought crashing down to his death behind the British lines, near Hamel Hamel in the Somme valley, by a Canadian flying officer. That was at the time, some eight put forth by the Allies, that their men had accomplished this feat. It is true, Richthofen was brought down near their lines and two of their machines were the cause of it and were involves in the aerial melee, but the feat when the controversy was cleared up, was duly accredited to Captain A. Roy Brown, the Canadian. The bullet-riddled seat of the Fokker machine, in which the pulled German met his last flight, is now in the Military Institute in Toronto. Other Germans have since been given credit with having brought down 80 allied aircraft, but his death struck at the morale of the German fliers for months.

Briefly the story of Captain Brown's encounter and victory is summarized as follows:



On the morning of the 21st April 1918, the Canadian planes were doing patrol duty when attacked by four German planes of Richthofen's squadron, at a height of some 2000 feet. The Baron, with the remainder of his planes, was flying some 2 miles higher, and decided to finish the fight; some twenty machines being then in the vicinity to carry out his purpose. At this time, however, Captain Brown leading a patrol of 4 planes of the 209th Squadron, and flying at the same height as Richthofen, had spotted the fight between 2 Australians and 2 Germans, and recalling his machines, dove to the rescue of the Australians, arriving in a moment or so later than the Baron, Flimping and firing among the German squadron the Canadians forced them to seek safety behind the lines, but not all. Brown had to dive from the fight, being attacked by 2 German machines. These he out-manoeuvred and turning saw a machine of his own squadron being pursued by one of the dreaded Fokker triplanes. He attacked and brought the red machine crashing behind the British lines. After returning to his aerodrome, it was sometime later discovered he had brought down the greatest of all German airmen, Captain Baron Von Richthofen.

It's a long way from the stirring days of war, to these piping times of peace. A long way from Beaumont Hamel on the Somme to Belleville, Ontario's shores. But a long way from the seat in active fighting planes to an executive seat in an active corporation.

Nevertheless the leading character he should rightly be called the hero, but were such term to be applied, trouble would eventuate) of the war episode chronicled above, was in this city of ours Tuesday evening last, attending the little function his firm gave to their customers and friends throughout this district, at the Hotel Quinte, in his capacity as general sales manager.

Captain A. Roy Brown, is just a lot like a host of other chaps who stepped from the war, back into business and making good at it, as he did at his job over in France. A pleasing, likable, wholesome fellow, and this little story is not from his lips. How little one can learn by chatting or meeting a man the stories of his life he might unfold and hear spoken is the result of ignominity raised and such revealed? Some of the old 2nd Battalion of the red patch fame may remember Captain Brown's brother Lieut. Horace Brown, who joined up with that unit as a private, received his commission in the field and later regretfully was killed.

It is trusted that Captain Brown may soon again return to Belleville and if his affairs here is only known, a right royal welcome will be extended him, in deed as well as word.

COMMUNISTS RAIDED AT 'PEG

All Available Literature Seized, One Arrest is Made

WINNIPEG, Man., Nov. 20.—Just before a widely advertised Communist meeting to protest against imprisonment of party leaders at Toronto, two squads of police swooped down on the Winnipeg headquarters this yesterday and seized all available literature, composed mainly of party newspapers, but one arrest was made.

The officers, led by Royal Canadian Mounted Police Inspectors, surrounded the building and also all sections of the city; one the local headquarters of the Communist party and the other in the Ukrainian head office of the Ukrainian workers, Farmers' Temple Association. Letters, records and papers pertaining to Communist business were seized, along with bundles of newspapers and literature especially for distribution of municipal election propaganda. It was an article in one of these that resulted in the arrest of Charles Marriott, one of the party leaders, on a charge of defamatory libel. He was taken into custody when police laid who lodged the Liberal charge against Marriott some of an accusation made against him in the paper, "The Worker." Mr. Marriott—"We sent forward from Toronto the Attorney-General of Manitoba, as to all other Attorneys-general, the form of indictment in the case against the Communist here, and also the full record of the trial and trials of the material," declared Hon. W. R. Price, Attorney-General of Ontario, in reply to the raid on Communist headquarters at Winnipeg yesterday. Col. Price would make no other comment.

CAIRNS FINED IN PORT HOPE COURT

Port Hope, Nov. 20— Richard Cairns, Frankford, was fined $100.00 and costs for illegal possession of liquor by Magistrate W. A. Campbell in Police Court at the Town Hall here, Thursday and as well was fined $50.00 and costs following a conviction for negligent driving. The charges were laid after an accident on Ridout street on October 29th, when a car driven by the accused figured in a collision with a vehicle operated by George R. Hindes of Port Hope.

The evidence was heard in local court last week and judgment was reserved until yesterday.

In handing down the judgment, the Bench briefly reviewed the case mentioning the things did what he could to avoid an accident and that the accident took place entirely on the south side of Ridout street.

The fines and costs for the two actions' totalled $146.40.

TORY IS WINNER

Red Deer, Alta., Nov. 20—W. E. Payne, K.C., Conservative, was declared elected to the Provincial legislature to represent the constituency of Red Deer. When the count was concluded he had a majority of 141 over R. L. Gaetz, U.F.A. nominee and Government supporter.

James Bannerman, Liberal, and W. G. Reay, Communist, lost chances of election when the count was concluded.

The by-election was held on Monday.

Belleville Girls "Camera Shy" Says Movie Operator

Pleadings Required to Get Fourteen to Face Lights

BLONDES PICKED.

Gentlemen Prefer Blondes!

Belleville's beauty contest has been chosen in the person of Miss Bernice Sherman, 168 Church street, and the final judging in the beauty contest were Miss Barlow, brunette and Miss Lawrence, blonde, who stood with Miss Sherman under the dazzling glare of the Klelg lights and in front of a clicking camera, while six worthy judges puzzled over just whom finally to eliminate. However, after some discussion the trio was finally awarded to the above named new champion of pulchritude among the pretty girls for which Belleville is noted. And there were no dissenting voices.

Mr. James Hegan

"Belleville girls are camera shy," says Mr. Hegan and he was assistant operator and master of ceremonies at the Belleville contest. "Many were told that all the girls, or most of them, after wearing make-up and the cards proclaiming them first choice had to be hunted up and almost dragged into the line-up for the final elimination contest, then it can be believed. There were no 'camera hogs' visible at any part of the contest. Out of some one hundred and fifty couples who were dancing around twenty were finally marked by a little card hung over their necks and asked to line up in front of the judges' stand. After a whole lot of coaxing and pleadings only fourteen could be induced to stand in front of the lights. Out of this fourteen were picked three, and from that three who have been named was chosen a smiling little blonde, slightly over five feet, in dancing, bright, and dressed in black, who will probably look at you out of a screen in one of the local theatres quite soon.

The judges of this contest were: Flight Lieutenant Murray Peck, Royal Air Training Base and Flight Lieutenant Riddell from the same camp. The Belleville men were Mr. Ryan, Mr. Whitten and Mr. Hanna.

Miss Sherman Wins

At the presentation of the silver cup to Miss Sherman, Mr. Chas. Hanna, who was the announcer for the duration of the judges' work, regretted that there were not prizes for every one but he was very much lifted with the judge's choice and in an appropriate little speech to Miss Sherman he congratulated her upon being the recipient of such a distinction. Miss Sherman who was a little nervous when she came was started to click thanked the judges and the donor of the gift, and stated that she was very very happy over the outcome. "However, she added "I'm not quite sure but that you have picked the real winner". From then on the rest of her time was occupied by the numerous persons who wished to congratulate her.

All the conclusion of this presentation the dance was again resumed and the various couples took the floor to dance in the light of the still burning Klelgs, and incidentally have pictures taken of themselves dancing, as the cameraman again got on the job, and snapped various shots of the throng.

It is expected by the member of the Metropolitan Pictures Producing company who arranged this novel stunt that the scenes taken last night will be shown in the local theatres in the course of a week or so. Those who were not fortunate enough to be listed in the final eliminations will be able to see themselves anyhow. That is if they were dancing.

D.D.G.M. PAYS LODGE VISIT

Prince Edward Lodge of Picton, Entertains Visitors

District Deputy Grand Master John Maidens paid an official visit to Prince Edward Lodge, A.F.&A.M., Picton, on Thursday evening. Over two hundred members of the order were in attendance—the meeting being the largest gathering ever held in Picton and the largest attendance of any lodge officially visited by the present District Grand Master. Many members of the craft were present from all parts of this district.

After the meeting of the lodge, which was presided over by Wor. Master Sharron of Picton, the gathering adjourned to the Parish House of St. Mary Magdalene church where a banquet had been prepared by the Women's Guild of the Parish. Wor. Master Storms acted as toast master and the toast to the Grand Lodge was proposed by Wor. Bro. Case. This toast was ably responded to by District Deputy Grand Master John Maidens, who spoke on "The Law of the Square." Following the Grand Master's address, Rt. Wor. Bro. H. J. Clarke gave an excellent address on "The Ancient Egyptian Mysteries." Short addresses were also made by many of the visiting brethren.

At the close of the banquet hearty words of appreciation were expressed to the Women's Guild of St. Mary Magdalene Parish for the most excellent banquet they had served.

CLUB OFFERS PLAYGROUND

Picton Kiwanians Have Much Playground Equipment

Picton, Nov. 20 (Special) — It is proposed by the Kiwanis Club to provide a playground for children in the town by utilizing the vacant lots at the rear of the public library and the armouries. An engineer from the Department of National Defence will come to Picton to look over the grounds before any definite agreement is made. These lots are on Mary Street which runs parallel with Main street and are near the public school. It would be a splendid place for a playground, being off the main street and if used for this purpose would relieve the congestion of traffic into heavy sports.

The Kiwanis Club has a great deal of playground equipment, part of it being used in the parks. This could be removed to the new playground.

Deer Hunters Successful

FLEAS ARE GROWING STEADILY WEAKER

Paris, Nov. 20—To a world filled with gloom comes one item of bright news. The flea is passing from the news given by a competent authority—Dr. Louis Roubaud of the Pasteur Institute in Paris. The authority has made a study of fleadom of Berlin. With German thoroughness the latter says that the flea is on the point of complete extinction. According to these scientists 1931 is a no-flea year. An epidemic is exterminating the pests. Those that do not die are lulled to weak. Their progeny is not likely to jax sizerly.

OLD POSTAGE

(By O. H. Williamson, Written especially for Canadian Press)

Kingston, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP)—There still stands on Princess street, Kingston, the old stone building that was used about the year 1830 as a post office. It is below King street, and on the King's Highway No. 2 and now the quarters of a second hand store. Incidentally opposite is the old Commercial Bank building, which was the first home of Queen's Medical College, then the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Upper Canada. It was in this portion of Kingston, close to the old French Fort Frontenac that initial and French fought their last battle for possession of that fortress establish ed in the year 1673 by Count Frontenac and Cheralier de la Salle.

Strange to say, Kingston has no tablet on its early day landmarks which might draw the attention of the tourist travelling from Toronto or Montreal to the Capital of Upper Canada (1792) and of the United Province of Canada (1841-1844).

It was in the year 1783 that a postoffice was opened in Kingston and in the same year small offices were also opened in York (now Toronto), Niagara and Elizabethtown (now Brockville). Except for a single annual trip from Montreal to Niagara there was no postal service west of Kingston. At that time a courier set out from Montreal each January, travelling either on foot or on snowshoes. If he made 25 miles a day he was considered lucky. In subsequent years the service began to grow in volume and it was as early as 1792 when the postal system was extended to include the United States. In those days the difference between the two countries put the service within the reach of only a few people of both Canada and the States.

Twenty-five years after the opening of the Kingston office, or in 1808, a fortnightly service was inaugurated between Montreal and Kingston, this being acclaimed as an outstanding improvement. Five years later this fortnightly service was made weekly with the opening of a coach line between the two centres. At this stage of the development of the postal service, distance was a virtue. A letter says for a letter to come from Montreal to Kingston, a distance of 400 miles, and another to York would pass before the mail courier arrived.

The postage on a single sheet of paper was 7½ cents if the letter was posted in London, England, and sent to any place in Canada, Gibraltar to its destination in Canada, was: To Quebec 22 cents; to Montreal 96 cents; to Kingston $1.10. From York (Toronto) $1.32. An additional charge of a paper in the letter raised the price of the mail proportionately.

There were two places on the road from Montreal to York where highwaymen commonly operated. One was at Grass' Creek a few miles east of Kingston, where the United Empire Loyalists landed. It was here that Bill Johnston robbed the mail courier of a large amount of money in 1826 and a year later across the St. Lawrence in a small boat to New York State. Another favorite place for mail and other robberies was on a piece of road for the miles west of Kingston.

HONOR YOUNG SCIENTISTS

Obscure Chemist in Scotland Leaves Award

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 20 —Two young men who combined science and modern invention to save human life, have been rewarded for their efforts by an obscure Scottish chemist who died in 1816.

They are professors Philip Drinker and Louis Agassis Shaw, co-inventors of the Drinker respirator hailed as the nearest approach to the natural method of inhuman breathing ever devised.

The two young scientists both of whom are connected with the school of public health at Harvard University, were represented with the John Scott award at Franklin institute.

Scott, an almost unknown chemist of Edinburgh, Scotland, left a fund with the city of Philadelphia to provide a prize each year for the invention or discovery most conductive to the comfort, welfare and happiness of mankind.

FARMERS JOIN TO ASK RELIEF

League Formed in Barrie to Study Imposts on Agriculture

Barrie, Nov. 20—With the object of bringing about relief from the present heavy burden of taxation, forty one hundred farmers, including Township Councillors and officials, gathered at Painswick, near here, and organized a Tax Reduction League. The aims of the league are: To promote a public opinion will informed as to the processes by which agriculture has been required for public service and private gain, under legislative authority; to aid the election to local bodies of representatives who are best equipped to administer affairs, regardless of the party politics; and to maintain public interest in the work and decisions of taxpayers, so that all forms of levy upon agriculture may be justified by prevailing prices of farm products.

The first board in the township will be notified by letter of a meeting to be held in Stroud in the near future, the purpose of organizing the entire township. Beverly Guests presided at the meeting.

LOST

Lost in the woods is one of the most unpleasant experiences that a man or woman can have. To be lost is not an experience of civilization to which everyone is accustomed and hence when one loses his way there is an immediate sense of terror that comes upon the wanderer. This is doubtless a reversion to prehistoric instinct, a jump back over thousands of years prompted by the summoning up of the residue of the motives which lingered in him from his far-off ancestors. It is like the heat of the tomtom to a civilized colored man; there is an immediate throwback to conditions of the darkest jungles, the ancestral memories linger.

The other day a man was lost for the thirty hours in the bush within the limits of Mcculture in Hastings Co. His experience was terrifying enough as he underwent the fears to face with the conditions brought face to face with the mysteries of the forest which demand a method of life to which he was not accustomed.

Fortunately becoming lost these days is not so likely to occur as it used to be. There is the odd cake where one wanders off and falls a victim to the exposed conditions, which threaten one away from the tender shelter of the civilized home. Civilization has made it very well accustomed though there yet remains the possibility of one getting lost when he is unacquainted with the country. The development of roads and the opening up of new areas remove largely the risks of being lost.

Of course the civilized man of the cities has practically lost every vestige of his ancestor's knowledge of woodcraft, so that he is helpless in the woods for a time though it is likely that he will be compelled soon to learn the mysteries of woodland life to fit himself to battle against them and to live among them.

LIGHTED HIGHWAYS

Lights along the highways have been talked about a little and have been installed near the larger centres of population but general agitation for the lighting of highways stretching across the country-side. Owen Sound Sun-Times deals with this question as follows:

"The construction of walks along the highway has been frequently suggested but even where provision is made for the pedestrian, and there is considerable merit in the suggestion; there has also been a movement in some places to fill in the ditches on both sides of the highways, many of these being deeper than there is any necessity and another move is now made to have the highways lighted. The latter is worthy of consideration and might in time be adopted. Along many of the highways are high tension electric power wires. A system which might be evolved whereby some of this power might be stepped down and used for the purpose of lighting the highways. The time is not far distant when this will be done, and why postpone it? There are hundreds of men out of work who could be given employment on this kind of work during the winter months. The cost of the equipment and the power might be assumed by the province, or it might be charged against the municipalities through which the highway passes, or some other which the highway passes, or some other arrangements might be made. The lighting of the highways would undoubtedly be the means of preventing accidents and would make them safer for the pedestrians and the horse-drawn vehicle."

OVERWORKED PUBLIC MEN

No time ever pressed more heavily upon public men than the present. The past two years has been a heavy term upon those who have been in positions of authority, for they have had to bear more than the ordinarily heavy load which weighs upon the man in official position. Premier Bennett who came into office at a time of stress and calm is himself taking a much needed holiday though while abroad he will have to do with many things of importance to the Dominion and the Empire. Not many months ago the people heard of Senator Gideon Robertson who after the telling experiences which he saw in the drought-stricken area of Saskatchewan could not keep back the tears as he told what his fellows-Canadians were suffering. Other men have likewise borne the white man's burden at home, the mayors and council, the members of Parliament, and the men in minor capacities. All have felt their duty and this must be appreciated by the entire population.

SEEING IMPROVEMENT

J. B. Morgan on his arrival from England made a statement that Britain was showing signs of recovery. Mr. Morgan is one of those who are not prone to make speeches for the public consumption but he undoubtedly felt in this instance that it was time to tell the truth as he, who had an unusual opportunity to study conditions, saw them.

That recovery would first come in Britain has been freely expressed and that the United States would be more slow to recover has also been expressed.

No man in public place wants to see a boom. It would be a colossal disaster to which the two-year slump would not be comparable. Indeed a boom is impossible for the feelings of optimism have not been sufficiently aroused in that direction.

writing what they do not believe, then he might be doing a real service. Candidly we do not like those statements which seek to make people suspicious of the editorial pages of all newspapers. A man who has a real cause to make and some facts to back it up should produce the name of the paper and the material it is printing to back his own conception.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

MAYOR ERNIE MARKS, of Oshawa, wagered a friend that the unemployment relief fund of that city would go over the $100,000 mark in a campaign of a certain day. Mayor Ernie lost and proceeded to pay his wager by wheeling his friend down the main thoroughfare in a wheelbarrow, in the presence of the entire movable population and their friends. Before the proceedings were finished a good far word came that the fund had gone over the top, so the positions were reversed, Mayor Marks taking his friend's place in the barrow for a free ride around the public square. A good time was had by all, and the relief fund keeps on climbing.

DREYFUS, TRAGEDY OF FRANCE, has reached the screen, in a moving picture story of great interest, telling how Alfred Dreyfus, officer in the French Army was framed and sent to Devil's Island, an alleged traitor to his country after being charged with selling military secrets to Germany. The amazing story of Dreyfus, the Jew, is a classic of all times, a case where truth is indeed stranger than fiction. Dreyfus was convicted on manufactured evidence by a gang of traitors who were themselves selling secrets to the ancient enemy of France. Dreyfus was convicted and sentenced to Devil's Island for the term of his natural life. His wife, however, never ceased to work for his liberty knowing that he was innocent. She enlisted the support of Emile Zola ,the great French author, who worked early and late for the release of Dreyfus and was sentenced to one year imprisonment for his efforts. His article in the French press "J' Accuse" will always be a masterpiece, a plea for simple justice to a Jew who was crucified on a cross of political and personal prejudice just as Christ has been crucified long years before. Dreyfus won a new trial and was again found guilty, and it was felt that France's dignity was at stake in, refusing vindication however his friends never gave up and, he was finally declared innocent but this did not undo the years he had been degraded twelve years before he was restored to rank and made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. Dreyfus still survives, a distinguished, if melancholy Paris figure. With the vindication of him came the conviction and degradation of the real spies who had used Dreyfus for a smoke screen and successfully drew attention away from their own nefarious activities.

CHURCHES AND FIRES

Church fires in Ontario last year caused loss amounting to $548,444, according to statistics of the provincial fire marshall. There were 68 of them, so the average loss was about $8,333. The various denominations, however, have widely different records for the particular years under review. The United Church with largest membership last year had the greatest number of properties, but the highest total of fires, 18, the damage suffered was only $22,280, or an average of about $1,600. Fourteen Roman Catholic churches suffered, and some of them, it will be recalled, very large. The loss of $401,651 or 84 per cent. Of the total for the province, practically, therefore, was mostly insured at a special rate with one mutual company, which was not hit by the bad last year even if it carried the risks of all 13 properties affected, the fire marshall says. Of the doctrine of immersion was perhaps most severely tried in the case of the Baptist fires, for the loss was scattered when they were $48—$19,803 in three conflagrations. The Presbyterians, one must not conclude have a record of care-takers; nine fires started and were squelched with a total loss of $700. Any curiosity as to the remainder, including Jewish synagogues and Christian Science places of worship evidently remains undistilled, with the marshall groups "all others" as having eight fires, with $3,000 damage.—Toronto Sentinel Review

BUY BRITISH GOODS

The Empire Marketing Board has opened a "Buy British" campaign with the forecast that the resulting big opening gun when he broadcast his stirring patriotic urging encouraging to buy goods made within the British Empire.

Such is this is splendid propaganda for Empire preference none will deny. For no one can question that union or is more ready to give voice to it than Britain, the mother of this praising excellence that British, having received the full benefit of unanimous whole in matters of Government which is the envy of all who have recognized the importance of the Dominions and Colonies.

It is a call for united effort on the part of all who have the interests to show the world that the British people have the right conception far word came that the fund had gone over the top, so the positions were reversed, Mayor Marks taking his friend's place in the barrow for a free ride around the public square. A good time was had by all, and the relief fund keeps on climbing.—Toronto Telegram.

Letters to the Editor

Belleville, November 19, 1931
The Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ontario.
Dear Sir:

Now is the present time there is a great to do over unemployment. "Give a Man a Job" and "Give a Man a Start" is the cry of many propaganda. In a marvellous country like our Canada, it would indeed be a terrible thing for any man, woman or family to be in dire want, and I think that everyone who is able to do so should have his relief each situation. The main thing is to find out who are really needy, and who are those who are able to relieve.

Then there is the question of giving a man work, and those who are able to do this? in a great many cases there are married men who are getting a couple of dollars or more per week and these have a family to keep. Is it necessary or right to do this without consulting all the circumstances? I do not think that single men should have help. Surely there is some way to aid these kind out. Then there is the question of giving a man work, and those who are able to do this? in a great many cases there are married men who are getting a couple of dollars or more per week and these have a family to keep. I think Peter to pay Paul", I know several men who are doing labor-ing work, and who are able to make over two dollars a day, and they have a family to keep, for a week, and have to keep perhaps a car, and pay for it out of this amount. Do you think they can afford to? I know of a few single men are girls, who are working for nine, ten, and eleven dollars per week and are able to save and dollars per week and are able to save and dollars per week bearg to pay, and help at home. Should they be asked to spare a day's pay? If every person in Belleville would spare fifty cents or a dollar each week to the relief fund, that would help break anpone, and would be a great help. Not only this fund, amount like this would be freely given, and I think that is the main thing.

I think too, that the people as a whole should have some idea how the money is being spent. Many people refuse to give, for they think that "someone" is making a profeitful of "grait". Surely this should be so, for we should be glad that small as to steal from the needy.

If this campaign is conducted in the proper way, I am sure there will be no trouble in raising my needy in our Belleville this winter.

Yours truly,
A. A. Smith

Mr and Puds Simkins was taking a walk just taking a stroll, and we each had 2 cents, and we came to a delicatessen store with the 5 cent cup full of little pretzels, the size you get, they are 10 cents a pound.

O, what do you say we get a half a pound between us? I said.

Yes, that is what I say, said he.

We came out again and started to eat them out of the bag, Puds says, that. Good nite, I say, I know why they was such a bargain.

Morning and accounts of being stale, anw we kepp on calling them stale pretzels, and we had good for them, and after a while I said, Hey, what do you a yes pity to throw all of them to some poor people that look as if their hungry, there is plenty ice to be a lot of people hungry nowadays.

All rite. Puds said.

And prtty soon we saw a man looking in a baker store window. Being a thin man with a hungry expression and his hands in his pockets, Puds saying to him. Hey sir, you look as if you hungry?

No, are you? the man said.

No, Puds said. And we kepp on going till we came to a man sitting against a wall with one woodden leg and his hat out for people to drop money in if they like to, and

CHEESE MEN TO MEET HERE

Plans Under Way For Eastern Dairymen's Convention

The committee, under the chairmanship of Mr. J. L. Irwin of this city is a busy organization these days, making final arrangements for the welfare and entertainment of the 300 to 400 delegates, who will attend the fourth annual convention of the Central Ontario Cheesemaker's Association, to be held in this city, the 1st and 2nd of December. The members of this association is made up of the cheesemakers in counties of Victoria, Ontario, Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough, Prince Edward, Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac.

Among the guests of note who will be present and address the convention are Wm. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture in the Ontario government, Dr. Ruddick, Dairy Commissioner of Canada, M. W. B. Hamet, chairman Ontario Marketing Board and Mr. Geo. H. Barr, Ontario Superintendent of Dairying.

A comprehensive program, embracing all phases of the cheesemaking industry, has been arranged, and will be made of both an instructive and entertaining nature.

The many details to be adjusted and fitted together, to make the gathering a success, are nearing completion and the outstanding points to this fourth convention being the best and most outstanding of any yet held.

NEW PROCESS IN FISH TRADE

"Quick Chilling" in Machine-Like Refrigeration

London, Nov. 20—(By The Canadian Press)—A new process in the fishing industry is now being demonstrated in Kensington. The process is known as "quick chilling." Immediately fish is landed on the docks, it is cleaned, filleted and chilled in a machine similar in appearance to the ordinary household refrigerator. It is then wrapped in greaseproof paper, packed in a small carton, and dispatched. In the shops the cartons, each carrying weights, are kept in places of low temperature until purchased.

There is a great difference between quick chilling and the ordinary method of freezing. Slow freezing causes the salts and juices to form into large ice crystals which are so big that they burst the individual fish cells in which they are contained. Hence when the meat thaws out, they are lost. In quick chilling, the flesh or meat is subjected to an intensely cold mist that chills it within five minutes. Large ice crystals have no chance to form. The salts and juices form into minute ice crystals, that are far too small to damage the delicate flesh cells. The result is that when it is cooked they once again become salts and liquids, and the flesh cells remain intact. Consequently, there is no loss of flavor.

On the hygienic side the process has definite advantages, for the fish is not touched by hand after it has been unloaded from the docks until it reaches the kitchen.

Mrs. Wm. D. Robertson Tells What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills (tonic) Did for Her. Now Weighs 135.

"Cannot Praise Them Enough".

"When I was a young girl", writes Mrs. Wm. D. Robertson, R.R. No. 1, Melfa, Ontario, "I was pale and had very little blood. I was always tired. When I would go upstairs I thought I would never get to the top. I only weighed 100 lbs. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and got well. I weigh 135 lbs. now. I cannot praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills enough."

Results like these seem wonderful, but actually there is a scientific reason behind it. The iron and other elements in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills increase the amount of haemoglobin, or oxygen-carrying agent, in the blood. The tissues thus get more oxygen. The appetite quickens, and a feeling of well-being develops.

ROYAL FAIR BUSIES JUDGES

Ontario Wins Many Awards in Stock and Other Exhibits

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20—Judges commenced working in earnest at the Royal Winter Fair when the first half of the dairy cattle came into the main ring, and sheep, swine seeds, cheese and other products occupied their attention in the smaller arenas and the corridors. Again while the bulk of the winnings were made by Ontario exhibitors, there was a very fair representation from other provinces, with the West doing well in horses and seeds, and the east coming into the classes of dairy cattle, particularly Ayrshires and Jerseys. The latter no championships will be reached until late in the day.

In the seeds and fancy fish department, Ansel H. Pratt, Ottawa was given the sweepstake award for the best tropical fish of the show in addition to many other first prizes. The sweepstake for the best Gold fish went to the Gold Fish Supply Company, Southville, Ont.

Ontario had the honors in the cheese classes, where Garnet Bain of Lakeside carried off four of the seven first prizes and the sweepstakes. His only serious opposition for leading position was C. W. Hamilton of Bolton who headed the September white and the white tails class.

WAS ASKED TO FORGET, SAYS

Witness Testifies in Regard to Strathcarn

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20—With evidence by W. J. Gilbert Dunn, Reeve of York Township, that he had been asked to forget by Dr. Neil Strathearn, former township engineer, to "forget" one thing, the Crown yesterday closed its case of bribery and conspiracy.

Beginning an interview with the Crown Engineer, Dunn testified as follows: "Strathearn then said if I would pay him $7,000 he would give me such information as would cause the very foundation of York township to crumble. There was an alte native to this, and that was if I would forget. Strathearn's was the man who brought Mohan and Joe in the council chamber. He would pay me $8,000."

The defence opened its case later and will continue today.

PREMIUM CHEESE

(Brockville Times-Recorder)

Writing on the cheese marketing situation in the west of England, Thos. E. Stewart, the assistant Canadian trade commissioner stationed in Bristol, reports that "there is a preference for Canadian cheese among the better-class grocers in this district, and many of them consider well-seasoned best Brockville and Belleville cheddar to be equal to the finest obtainable anywhere." What is probably why, in spite of what Mr. Stewart describes as "a considerable variation in the quality of the Canadian product, varying with the time of year and the locality in which it is made", "the best quality Brockville and Belleville cheese commands at least one shilling per cwt. (112 pounds) premium over the other Canadian makes".

This statement should once more direct attention to the stare which British buyers place upon the cheese brought within this district. Because of its quality, it commands a premium over other cheese of Canadian production, while Canadian cheese as a whole is sold at a premium over New Zealand cheese, its greatest rival in the British market.

If this reputation would be preserved, those engaged in the cheese manufacturing industry in this district, from the primary producer of milk right on to the man who sells out the finished cheese, must make up their minds to have only the finest product placed upon the market. Not all of the cheese produced in this district is of first quality. Indeed, the introduction of grading has revealed the fact that other districts in Ontario are turning out a larger percentage of highest grade cheese. A continuation of such a tendency can only result in Leeds county losing the reputation enjoyed by its cheese in the British market and in loss to all concerned. for no product can go on commanding a ready sale, and at a premium, simply because of the reputation of other days and if its former high qualities are no longer present.

If Leeds county is going to re-gain its lost prestige in the cheese trade it is going to require a great deal more than mere

OLD FAMILIES INTERMARRY

Historic Homes Joins in Double Wedding

London, Nov. 20—(By Thos. T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)—Two historic families will be united with the marriage which has been arranged between the Earl of Dunrobin, eldest son of the fourth Marquis of Bute, and Lady Aileen Forbes, younger daughter of the Earl and Countess of Granard. The family of Granard is founded nearly six centuries ago by John Stuart, a son of Robert II. A baronetcy was conferred upon one of his descendants in 1627 and Queen Anne created a later descendant Earl of Bute. The Marquisate of Bute in the Peerage of Great Britain was conferred in 1796.

Lady Aileen Forbes, who is in her 20th year, is the younger of the Earl of Granard's daughters. There are two sons younger than their sisters. The Earl of Granard is one of the best-known Irish peers and is a member of the Senate of the Irish Free State. He has had a long connection with the British Royal Household, having been Lord-in-waiting to King Edward and Master of the Horse 1924-29. Lady Granard, who is a well-known society hostess, is a daughter of the late Ogden Mills. The branch of the family represented Lord Granard is of Scottish origin, and Lord Dunrobin' fiancee can trace her lineage from the Hon. Patrick Forbes who was armor-bearer to James III. of Scotland.

Township of Thurlow
Gas Franchise Bylaw

Voting Day, Monday, Nov. 23rd

What Other Municipalities Have Done

Voting on similar bylaws, granting a gas franchise to Ontario Shore Gas Company Limited, the cities of Oshawa and Belleville, the towns of Trenton, Bowmanville and Whitby and the Township of East Whitby carried the bylaws in every case by overwhelming majorities. The vote is East Whitby, a township similar to Thurlow, was 306 for and only 14 against. Those municipalities are all well satisfied with the bargain they have made.

A GOOD LEAD TO FOLLOW

This is a good lead for the township of Thurlow to follow. The carrying of the bylaw means that Thurlow will be linked up with Belleville and Trenton in part of a large scale gas distribution system, which will make gas available at cheap rates to the homes of the township. The township of Thurlow has just as much to gain from carrying the bylaw as had all these other municipalities.

THURLOW'S OPPORTUNITY

Situated on the outskirts of Belleville, the township of Thurlow, if it carries the bylaw, will be in a position to offer this much-demanded modern heating fuel to industries seeking a township location. This is an opportunity which the township of Thurlow should seize by passing the bylaw by a substantial majority.

EX-FIANCEE

by Ruby M. Ayres

Priscilla stood staring at him. She had been through scenes like this before, but today somehow—well, she had never heard quite that note in her brother's voice before.

She moved a step nearer to him.

"Hugh, how much is it—this time?"

He flung the paper down on the floor.

"How much? How much! What's the use of asking damned silly questions? I haven't kept count; what's the use? But if I could get hold of three hundred it would save me for the moment. If I could!" He laughed mirthlessly. "It's about as easy as getting hold of three million."

"Hugh, if father knew—"

"Father! My dear girl, he's in as much of a mess as I am."

He stood up and began pacing the room. Only last night he was talking about it. Priscilla's our only hope, he said. If she'd taken Fanshawe when he asked her—

She gave a little cry.

"Hugh, for the old man!"

"What does that matter? Most wives take their husbands' when they've been married a few months, and anyway, he's got the money. He'd buy you off in a generous settlement."

Priscilla shivered. She knew that what he was saying was the truth. Her father was almost penniless; how they kept going at all was more than she could imagine. Only one everything saleable had been sold; the old house was about to sell its treasures.

She made a little, helpless gesture and turned to the door, but Hugh followed and caught her arm.

"Priscilla, it's desperate this time—really desperate. You've got to keep me! Got to, do you understand?"

She stood very still. She felt as if a sudden cold wind had swept through the room.

"It is something disgraceful!" she said at last.

He flung away from her.

"It means doing time if I can't find the money. Oh, for God's sake don't look so shocked. Any one would have done the same in my place. I've never had a shilling!" He might have added: "Nor tried to earn one," but Hugh Marsh had never seen any reason why he should work. He had a perpetual grievance against life because he had not been born a wealthy man.

"It's easy enough," he went on ruthlessly. "You can do it if you will. You're the kind of girl who can get round a man, and you don't like Fanshaw I can't altogether blame you, but Gordie—"

"Just now you called him a toad!"

"Oh, well, that doesn't mean anything. You could get him by holding out your little finger if you choose."

She turned around.

"And if I don't—choose?"

For an instant his face fell into haggard lines.

"If you don't," he said, "it will be prison for me—prison—sure."

INSTALMENT II

Priscilla stood looking at her brother with the feeling that somehow she had always expected this thing like this to happen.

She loved Hugh, but she had never trusted him.

It had always seemed as if she should have been the man and he the girl. So many times she had been forced to stand up for him, to protect him against their father's wrath, or against his own weakness. And now, here he was, coolly demanding of her that she would save him from something even greater.

Although she was several years younger than he, she felt all at once old enough to be his mother.

"Will you please tell me exactly what you mean?" she said quietly.

It was never of any use to lose one's temper with Hugh; it only made him defiant and reckless, do she spoke as gently as she could, though her heart was beating fast with terrible apprehension.

He sat down on the arm of the chair, hands struck into his pockets, his eyes defying her.

"I uttered a check—one of Dawson's. He owed me ten pounds and gave me a check for it. Well, I made it into a hundred, if you like to say, as you know, in America, but he came home last week, and then the fat will be in the fire unless I can pay that money back. He will find all sorts of pleasure in sending me to prison. Not that I care but it won't be very pleasant for the family."

That was Hugh's way all over, trying to shield himself behind the family pride, to avoid bringing his sister's eyes.

"I've been back 'round the house when I knew he was coming home, to see if there was anything left that I could sell. I might as well have started digging for treasure in the back garden." He stood up, stretching his arms and yawning with an indifference he was far from feeling. "Well, that's that. I don't blame you for not wanting to help me out. It's not your funeral."

He saw the distress in Priscilla's eyes, and it moved him to a kind of somewhat unwilling pity. It was easy to get round Priscilla. He patted her shoulder.

"Well, cheer up. I don't blame you for not wanting to marry old Fanshaw. He's an outsider anyway."

He would have lounged out of the room, but Priscilla stopped him.

"What does Mr. Dawson get back?"

"I don't know; next week some time. Don't worry."

She gave a little cry.

"Oh, Hugh, don't you realise how serious it is?"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"What's the use of worrying?"

"But, Hugh, its forgery."

His face flushed a little.

"Well, what of it?" he demanded. "If I'd pay any money I shouldn't have had to take other people's. It's always been the same. I've never had anything. We've always had so much about without a shilling in the world. I'm sick of it I tell you. I've a great mind to clear off to Australia or somewhere."

It was his usual threat, and one which he had no idea whatever of carrying out, but it never failed to touch Priscilla.

All their lives Priscilla had been more of a mother to Hugh than their own mother; her love for him had perhaps done more to make him the worthless idler he was than anything else.

From their nursery days she had always given in to him in everything; he had domineered over her and bullied her. She had always made excuses for him until now when it was no longer possible.

She said again desperately:

"If we tell Mr. Dawson the truth, perhaps he'll be kind and understand—"

"Kind!" Hugh burst into loud laughter. "Dawson kind! well that is the best joke I've heard for a long time. He hates us, you know that well enough. He hates the Guv'nor because he won't sell him this place to cut up for his tissue-paper houses. It would be just the chance he wants to come along and hold a pistol to the old man's head. Sell or it is prison for your son. My dear Priscilla, don't be funny. Dawson doesn't know there's such a word as 'kind' in the English language."

He didn't know it himself, but that was of no account.

"You talk about prison," Priscilla said passionately, "as if it was nothing at all."

"We'd, is it? I suppose half the blue bloods in England have been there some time or other, or their ancestors have. What's it matter? I'm not worrying."

Priscilla gave a little sob.

"But I am," she said brokenly.

He knew that well enough. They had had so many scenes like this, and he had always come off the victor. He laughed again, carelessly.

"My dear girl, there's no need to worry on my account. I'm sorry I told you, only I thought as you'd got hold of Corbie—"

He left his sentence cleverly unfinished, and went out of the room whistling.

Priscilla went over to the window and stood looking out into the garden with blind eyes.

"A hundred pounds!" She could not imagine how he could have put through so much money. A faint resentment stirred in her heart as she remembered what a struggle it had always been to get even the cheapest frocks for herself; how bitterly it had hurt their father to have to part with his treasures one by one.

And to take the money from Dawson of all people!

Dawson was a building speculator with a shady reputation, who had spent the last few years making his money by buying up antiquated people like themselves and making the countryside hideous with his jerry-built houses.

"Dawson City" her father bitterly called the area of unsightly, cram-med-together villas, which were quickly before the plaster on their walls was dry, or the one coat of paint daubed over the woodwork.

And Hugh had altered a check of that man's from ten pounds to one hundred! It was not the money Dawson would mind. Probably a hundred! It was not the money to him, but, as Hugh had said, it would make an excellent ax to hold over their father's head.

Priscilla passed a hand across her eyes, and looked at the garden. Wide lawns, with a background of wonderful oaks, so many years old that sometimes it seemed to Priscilla that they were like kindly friends mourning with her for the departed days of prosperity when the name of Marsh had been a great name in the county. Once the failing old house had been renovated for its lavish hospitality and cheer, till, little by little, its acres had been frittered or thrown away by a gambling son, whose recklessness and fashion Hugh had inherited.

How often Priscilla had longed to be rich so that she could put her father beyond the need of fighting against increasing trouble yet when Hugh came to marrying Lyster Fanshaw, it had been a physical impossibility.

Besides, there was a man she loved; poor like herself, with very little prospect or ever being anything else, a man who had never dared put into words the thing, she saw written in his eyes whenever they met her own.

She was not afraid for herself, perhaps, because she was still young enough to believe in the eternal romance of love in a cottage, but she was afraid for her family; she knew they looked to her to save them.

Sometimes she wondered why they did not give up the unequal struggle and let the old house go along with the tradition which declared that a Marsh must live somewhere else. Surely even one of Dawson's villas would have been better than the decaying old estate, and the eternal struggle to keep up appearances.

As she stood there looking out at the neglected garden, she felt she was hemmed round on all sides by that impenetrable thing called family pride. How she hated the word, even while in a way she understood what it was that made her father cling to it so obstinately.

She loved the Moorland House as much as he did, but she was clear-sighted enough to see the utter futility of trying to save it from its fate.

She thought of Jonathan Corbie. She had liked his face, had thought his eyes kind, and a man to marry him, loving another man with all her heart, seemed a crude impossibility. Hugh had made the suggestion as calmly as if he had been advising her to buy a hat from a village shop, had said in his sneering way that most wives hate their husbands after they've been married a few months, but there is rarely any real or honest left in all the world.

She felt heartsick and defeated.

Up the shabby drive she saw the postman lumbering his bicycle. He was whistling cheerily, and there was a flower stuck jauntily in his cap. Apparently he was happy enough with a little house and a small salary.

She shuddered and went out into the hall to get the letters. There was only one, addressed to herself in a handwriting that set her blood pounding her veins.

INSTALMENT III

Priscilla took the letter out into the garden to read. The oak trees were more in sympathy with her than the gloomy house, and it was under the shade of their widespread branches that she read the nervous approach to a love letter that Clive Weston had ever written her.

"My dear Priscilla,

I dare say you will be surprised to hear from me, but I felt you must be the first to hear my good fortune. You so often told me that you were sure the luck would change, and you were right. I have been offered a post with some rubber people in East Africa. It won't be a very great salary at first, but there are great opportunities for a man who isn't afraid of work and you know that I am not afraid. I figure next week—it seems short notice, but naturally I am anxious to make a start as soon as possible. I don't know what sort of life it is out there for women, though I'm told that many of the men in the company have their wives with them. I wonder how you like that sort of the world? May I come some day before I sail? It seem to have so many things to say to you now it is to be good-by for a little while.

I should like to hear from you as soon as possible, as I am naturally very busy getting things ready, and the time is short.

Ever Yours,

East Africa!

If Clive had written that he had been offered a position in another world it could not have, seemed farther away to Priscilla—and yet above all the shock of his sudden departure, a feeling of joy rose triumphant.

She had always been so sure that some day he would succeed. It was she who had encouraged him when, after his father's death, he had been forced to give up an army career for a stool in a rubber broker's office, and now, out of a grey city, this piece of good fortune had tumbled into his hands.

Aged Man Rides Reindeer and Chronicles Story of Lapland

Carries Manuscript on His Travels Over Tundra.

IS 76 YEARS OLD

STOCKHOLM, (By The Canadian Press)—Swedish Lapland has its own native chronicler, John Turi, himself a Lapp, who at the high age of 76 years is still busy compiling the history of his beloved named countrymen.

A short time ago a journalist visited Turi in his "gasta", as the Lapp huts are called, near the big lake Torne Traesk, and the old reindeer-herd then showed him an imposing bundle of manuscripts, which he carried with him on the back of a reindeer wherever he moves with his herd in the wilderness of the Swedish Northland. Several eminent scientists have expressed their admiration of Turi's energy, intelligence and knowledge and now urge that a sufficient sum should be raised to enable to the old Lap to publish his work and to acquire his manuscripts likely to die out in a few decades.

Turi has already earlier appeared as an author in the Lapp language when before the war he published his "Muittalus Samid Birra", a translation of which was recently published in English and highly praised by the critics. Turi's deepest interest is to preserve and record the ethnographic, rites, manners and traditions of his people, which he describes as healthy. There are signs of real morality, in his descriptions of the every-day lips and wanderings of the mysterious nomads of the North when crossing the snow capped mountains and the rapid arctic rivers in the land of the midnight sun far beyond the Polar Circle.

THE RETURN OF TARZAN, No. 26. (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.) By Edgar Rice Burroughs

Tantor, the elephant, was yet six or eight paces behind his prey. As from the heavens, a sinewy white warrior dropped almost directly in his path. With a vicious snarl he swung to dispatch the new foeman. But he had not reckoned with the lightning quickness of Tarzan's steel muscles.

And so it happened that before the elephant realized that his new enemy had leaped from his path, Tarzan had driven his polished spear from behind his massive shoulders, straight into that fierce heart. And with such marvelous swiftness that the colossal pachyderm settled to his death at the very feet of the ape-man.

Then Tarzan leaped upon the carcass of his mighty kill and gave voice to his weird cry of victory. The old chief and the warriors swarmed about him, their admiration mixed with a certain awe. For they attributed supernatural powers to this man who fearlessly fought with Numa, the lion, and Tantor, the elephant.

Nor could they understand this strange creature who ran through the trees as quickly as Manu, the monkey. The hush after the retreating herd once more began when, behind them, faintly sounded a strange popping. "Guns!..... come," cried the chief; "the Arab raiders have returned for our ivory and our women!"

FINANCIAL NEWS

MARKET SLIDS BUT SELLING PRESSURE OFF

Favorable Credit Situation Ignored By Stocks

New York, N.Y., Nov. 20— Most of the financial markets skidded today although in the case of securities the downward movement was accompanied by little increase in activity.

Selling in shares relaxed somewhat after a heavy opening and partial recoveries of moderate size were made, but the decline later resumed coincident with the opening of the Chicago grain pits. The latter met particularly insistent pressure dropping more than 3 points to a level that closely approximated the bear market low. National Steel, South American Telephone, International Harvester, Air Reduction, Columbia Carbon, McKeesport and Lambert yielded 2 to 3, while in the rails New York Central, Union Pacific, Nickel plate, Delaware and Hudson, Chicago North Western preferred and Illinois Central reached new minimums by 1 to 4 or more.

The falsehood breaking and crevelling revealed by the weekly Federal Reserve statements was ignored but only for a moment as by felt the decline had gained sufficient momentum to warrant lower prices, especially since week end trade reviews made rather gloomy comment on the state of trade.

PROVE VALUE BANK SYSTEM

U. S. System However Shows Unusual Total of Failures

Washington, D.C., Nov. 20 (By Ken Clark, Canadian Press Staff writer)—The value of the Canadian banking system wherein during the depression not one bank has been no failures, is thrown into sharp relief against the United States system by a report, just issued by the Federal Reserve Board.

The report shows a new high record for the United States for the month of October, deposits involved were $609,000,000.

For the first ten months of this year there were in the United States 1,735 failures tying up deposits of $1,461,615,000. In the same period 1,245 banks closed their doors.

It was to meet this situation President Hoover summoned leaders of Congress and announced the establishment of a credit corporation for the purpose of relending frozen assets. Since establishment of the corporation an improvement in affairs noticed, in the latter part of October there were fewer suspensions than from the first of November there has been a decided increase.

The State of Illinois led the list of failures for the first ten months of 1931 with suspensions of 178 banks. During the year the District of Columbia, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island and Delaware were the only states of the country untouched by bank failures.

LOWER TREND AMONG MINES

Standard Exchange is Unsettled By Copper Cut

TORONTO, Ont, Nov. 20—A lower trend in Copper prices and easier tones on Industrials, mine and industrial markets unsettled the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange list today, higher-priced golds and Base metals overcoming the lowering losses at midday. Interest was limited to a few issues, with big major activity in general.

Noranda and International Nickel were slightly soft from last night's former dipping 40 to $10.75 and the latter 25 to $15.25. Sherritt Gordon and Hudson Bay were relatively quiet but off from last night's quotation. Eldorado firmed 10 to $1.15 in the first hour but fell back later, still playing an advance of 4 at $1.10 at noon. Dominion Explorers was up a cent at 9.

TORONTO EXCHANGE CONTINUES WEAK

TORONTO, Nov. 20.— Toronto Stock Exchange today continued the decline in securities of all sorts this week. The market was sickly looking, without apparent recuperative strength and prices drooped generally on scattered offerings.

Losses of 2-3 point were incurred during the morning by Nickel, which went down as 10, C.P.R., Dominion Stores, Ford of Canada. The oils were also off from time during morning sessions with imperial under 12. Trading was light, amounting to a fraction and B. A. Oil at 19 3-4.

The average motion picture consists of six reels of film, each reel having about 1,000 feet of film.

RAIL LINES FACE CRISIS

Thornton Lays Down Four Rules For Competition

New York, Nov. 20—A broad program for the railways to meet their present critical situation, including the pooling of railway rolling stock of 1931 and the scrapping of 100,000 motive power units, and other units continued consolidation by the largest possible expansion of the present way reception clause by Congress and the railroads improved relations with organized labor, and certain rules to govern highway transportation, was outlined by a speech by Sir Henry Thornton, K.B.E., president and Chairman of the board of the Canadian National Railways.

Sir Henry spoke at the 103rd annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of New York State before a gathering of three hundred financial, business and industrial leaders, army and navy representatives and officials of the city, State and nation.

Sir Henry warned his audience that the future of the American railway transportation a major problem was rapidly developing if it had not already arrived. He declared that the railways are free to act instead of merely asking what was to be done about it.

He declared that at least two of the cardinal principles essential to the existence of any railway as a private enterprise, were endangered. These are the ability to maintain solvency and to furnish adequate transportation at such rates as will permit the development of communities served. Sir Henry expressed the belief, that unless action was taken by the transportation companies themselves and by the Government, either State or Federal, disaster looms as a prospect of the transportation industry.

NO. 2 GREEN IS NEAR COMPLETION

Under the watchful eye of Jock Mitchell, the man in charge, the new No. 2 green of the Belleville Golf Club is rapidly nearing completion, and will be in fine shape for early playing next Spring. The fill-in turvey has been receiving his attention, and the improvements there are just about finished. The course has always been popular and has constantly been receiving improvements during the years Mr. Mitchell has been employed here, in his professional duties.

Canada is nearly thirty times as large as Great Britain and Ireland.

The river Nile is 4,000 miles and six inches in the last 1,000 miles of his course.

NOTED INDIAN VISITS TOWN

Wears Turban on Streets of Belleville and Clerical Clothes

Over in London Mahatmi Gandi sits around a circular table in company with other serious minded and solemn makers of laws and treating concerning the welfare of millions. Natives of mystic India by the thousands have left their country to go forth among their white brethren and tell them that, even their God which has been taught them and in which they have implicitly until the last breath. That is the belief held by Hindu song and story has in its time seen many weird and wonderful things but grass and wonderful men have been born and lived there. The home of the "Jogi, the fakir and the super-magician. But things are changing in the mystic land and an old and ancient custom of burning one's own body on the death on the occasion of the husband's funeral pyre is being done away. The mourning clothes and less heroic signs of bereavement are also passing, thus demonstrating their trade and customs; secrets of what have been eternal and closely guarded tricks in the art of hypnotism are being brought out of their Western world—and the Gangs is fast falling into disgrace as to fame and public bathing place. Many have even left their native land and worn by the higher caste Indian cries when wandering around occupy themselves miles away from their native hearth.

Such an example of a son of India was apparent on the streets of Belleville last night when he was seen to be a paradox to most of the citizens "The Son of God" in current picture play, was being shown at a local theatre. The Indian must have been thought of as a publicity agent for the show seen about town by the many who saw him attired in turban and long frock coat looking as the picture representing his native country. However, it was more colorful.

Sadhu John Nelson—Christanan-ity of Chandragarh District of India, such as he was registered on the register of the Y.M.C.A. was one of the signatures of the guests, stopped over here but night on his way from Toronto to the west coast. He will lecture several attendances. No chance was had of getting the personal interview with this distinguished visitor as he left the city early this morning as quietly as he had come in. The only sign that he was a good look at him were up-town theatre goers who were a bit bewildered at his unheralded appearance outside that theatre.

However, it is learned that the gentleman, who by the way is a deep student of the Christian religion and a lecturer of note, will be back in this city for a few days the end of next month when he will address some local club on an unannounced subject.

CONTRACT FOR UNLOADING

Committee Make Recommendations to Council

Prior recommendations were passed on Thursday night by the City Council, when the committee meeting was held preparatory to the regular council meeting on Monday night. Chairman Alderman Harrington Co. was awarded the contract as unload that coal which is to be used in the new auxiliary main. The price accepted was $1.25 a ton, the construction company to deliver the pipe from the cars to any place designated by the Public Works Department.

Public liability and property damage will be placed on the new auxiliary main by the terms of the employees and protection of the city and E. P. Fisher and Son was given the policy.

A committee composed of Alderman MacMillan, Alderman Guy Ginger Moll was appointed to confer with the Consumers Gas Company respecting a sewer running from the gas plant to the Bay via Church street.

It was also recommended that the tender of the Walker Hardware for the supply of "Adanac" lead at a price of $4.50 per 100 pounds Belleville, (tax extra), be accepted.

The name Eskimo is said to come from "Ashkimee" meaning "eaters of flesh."

FOUL LANGUAGE COMPLAINTS MADE

Very many complaints have been received from Belleville citizens about the number of young boys who hang around the doors of the Armouries, now that the hockey season is on again, and who indulge not only in boisterous play, but in people who enter this place but also in unearthly foul and vile language.

This has been commented upon time and again by citizens of the city who have attended this place and have been greatly annoyed not only by requests running all the way from asking for cigarettes to requests for money, but also very caustic remarks when such are refused.

SOVIET WOMEN DRESS BETTER

Silk Hose Available Now at Big Price Reduction

(By Stanley P. Richardson, A.P. Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright 1931 by the Associated Press).

Moscow, Nov. 20 (AP by Mail)—Women of Soviet Russia no longer may be said to be without silk stocks.

Although they still are difficult to obtain and continue to be the most sought after article of clothing, silk stockings nevertheless are available at a price, that this is true, is evidence of the fact that Russian women slowly but surely are dressing better.

A year ago the well dressed woman encountered in the street or at the theatre either was a foreigner or one of the few fortunate natives who had friends to bring them clothing from abroad; now one frequently meets well tailored Russian women, although they are far in the minority.

Officially, fashions as they are known to their sisters abroad have no place in the lives of present day Russians, since the revolution materials and money have been too scarce. Besides, the "good communist" scorns such "bourgeois" manifestations, holding that the women of New Russia have no time for such frills. They are no fashion magazines. No advertisements depicting the latest modes.

But the feminine thirst for better clothing is indicated in them which storm the stores devoted to such articles and await their turn to buy.

Stockings, called "silk" but most of which in reality are the artificial variety, can be bought when they are available for the 18 rubles, about $90 upward. The coarser kinds sell for 1 ruble, 29 lopecks up to 43 rubles.

Hats bring from 10 rubles for the poorest to 50 for the best; shoes 13.40 to 86 rubles; fur coats dresses 7.75 to 200 and coats from 20 to 350.

ATTEND S. S. CONVENTION

Delegates From Centenary and Aiken's Appointed

3RD SIDNEY, Nov. 20.—Sunday School and Church Services were not as well attended as usual on Sunday morning, at Centenary and Aiken's Churches, on account of the rain. Inspiring addresses were given in both churches. Delegates were appointed to attend the Sunday School Convention at Marshville Hall on Wednesday. They were Miss Aletha Parry and Mrs. Ronald Jones from Aiken's S.S. and Miss Rhoadella Adams and Miss Myrtle Reid from Centenary.

The heavy fall of rain over the week end was appreciated by the farmers of this district, as the ground is about finished and the fruit and vegetables harvested for another year. There is much cause for gratitude for the bountiful harvest, and for especially fine weather that has been enjoyed during the fall months.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jeffrey attended the Brickmanville Wedding, Second Line of Sidney on Wednesday, Nov. 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Duffin, Master David, and Mr. Zufelt, Stirling had dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harley Hubble and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Adams visited Mr. and Mrs. Adam Reid, Sidney of Prince Edward County on Sunday last.

Several from this line attended the S. S. Convention at Marsh Hill on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bunnett and family had dinner on Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hinchliffe.

Poet's Corner

"THE MAPLE TREE"
In the whispering forest
At deep of night,
When the stars were merry,
The moon was bright;
When the winding rivers
Were wide and free
As they merrily journeyed
Along to the sea;
When the night winds played
And the woods were asleep
God planted a maple
For Canada's keep.
When the maple had grown
To a beautiful tree,
And the rivers still rambled
Away to the sea,
In the depth of the forest
A bird built its nest;
In the heart of the maple
Dear Canada's heart.
—Doreen Gilday.

TOO MANY STUDY FOR HIGHER POSTS

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20—Young Canadians sometimes carry their education further than is necessary to follow a certain calling, Premier George S. Henry, who is also Minister of Education for Ontario, suggested last night, addressing Wellesley School Old Boys' Association. He believed that boys and girls were frequently misled into acquiring training to fit them for leading positions when it was doubtful if there was room for them.

I have never met an uninteresting person, nor have I ever been bored by any one.—Emil Ludwig.

Fashion Flashes

By Alice Aiden

Fashion takes a bow and puts it on a dress. Here is a frock in evening wear, of double mousseline with knee length shade. It has a tiny coat of velvet in a deep brown shade. It has a tiny coat of velvet in a deep brown shade which is lined with the same mousseline. The bows of the brown velvet are at each knee on the frock.

A cheerful autumn is predicted so far as cloth are concerned, for color predominates. Nice for early Autumn is a frock of light weight woollen in a soft shade of blue, studded with white and black. There is a collar in heavy white faille that can be worn high to the neck, or open to form revers. There is a red and black leather belt.

A sheer delight are the new suppers sheer linens now being used for dinner frocks. A new model uses brown linen with a dotted design in turquoise, eggshell and gold thread forming marks the simple silhouette.

It would seem that seams are of increasing importance particularly for evening frocks. A new ensemble in pale blue angelskin satin makes much use of diamond shaped material with wide sleeves bordered in kolinsky.

It's not too early to discuss Autumn travel coats. A new model has brown and chartreuse tweed in rough design and has a brown carseul tie scarf and a brown suede beret belt. It is made on wrap-over lines.

It's a joy to see the nice furtrimmed Autumn suit in the mode again. For everyday wear there is a smart suit of dark green woollen with fox grey trimmer making a high double collar and bordering the short fitted jacket that has an outward slant, in front, and is nipped in at the waist.

SOCIALIST COUNTESS PUBLISHES MEMOIRS OF LIFE AT COURT

(By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 20 (CP)—Lady Warwick, the 70-year-old Socialist countess, today published a book of reminiscences in which she says she learned only recently from her mother that when she (Lady Warwick) was one of the most beautiful of the Victorian court she was regarded highly eligible as a bride for Prince Leopold, the Queen's youngest son.

She however, decunco the offer which was presented by Queen Victoria herself, feeling that her daughter would be "dreadfully miserable in the formality of the court." The Countess herself says she gave long years "to artificial pains" for she was one of the leading figures of what was known as "the Marlborough House set" which centred around the Prince of Wales who afterwards became King Edward.

The departure of the Countess for a more serious line of life was regarded very amicably by the Prince, who, none the less, was frankly puzzled by a social change which at that time were creeping over the higher reaches of social life. Following fraud and numerous representations by Lord Esher, the countess dropped out of the Marlborough House set.

One of her anecdotes concerning more recent events tells how King George attended a dinner party at the house of a Labor minority after the first labor government came into office. The King, bowing about him, said to his host "I don't see my Prime Minister." And he replied: "I am afraid sir that until the government changes you will not see your Prime Minister at my house."

Weddings

BELCOUR—COOKE

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, November 14th at Stirling United Parsonage, when Ethel Lorraine, eldest daughter of Mr. F. Cooke and the late Mrs. Cooke of Rednersville, was united in marriage to Charles Kenneth Belcour, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Belcour of Halloway. The Rev. E. W. Richardson officiated.

The bride was gowned in a lovely floor length organza dress with a bodice of egg-shell georgette. She wore a matching hat and fell bat with ostrich feathers along the side and back. She also wore a blue ardsley fox scarf and was assisted in marriage to Charles Kenneth Belcour. Sandy of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Belcour of Halloway. The Rev. E. W. Richardson officiated.

The bride was gowned in a lovely floor length organza dress with a bodice of egg-shell georgette. She wore a matching hat fell hat with ostrich feathers along the side and back. She also wore a blue ardsley fox scarf and was assisted by Mrs Marjorie Belcour, sister of the bridegroom, who wore a green lace crepe dress with a cream cowl neck and a cut-away jacket.

Mr. Kenneth Cooke, brother of the bride was best man.

The happy couple left later for Oshawa and Toronto motoring points. The bride travelled in a green crepe dress and hat to match. Her coat was black lamb trimmed with dark grey opossum collar and cuffs. Accessories of black completed the outfit. Mr. and Mrs. Belcour will reside at Halloway on their return.

STORKS LESS PLENTIFUL

Fewer of These Birds Migrate Each Year From Africa

STRASBURG, Alsace-Lorraine — Storks are finding Western Europe altogether too noisy for a grave, slow-moving and reflective bird. Its numbers are rapidly returning. It has not yet been discovered where the absentees have moved to. Hitherto the Alsatian populace has regarded the local storks' nests as part and parcel of their race, like the big ribbon bow in "Alles Alsacy" hair. They are quite upset to discover that now the big birds are deserting them. In 1877 there were 220 nests in Alsace remaining from previous years. In that spring only 150 were reoccupied, and in them were reared 330 youngsters. When autumn came all the storks, young and old, flew to Africa. The following spring not all the youngsters—which are easily recognizable by their plumage—came back. There was fewer, too, of the grown-ups. In the spring of 1930 and 1929 the same thing happened. Not a single new nest was built. Very few youngsters returned to Alsace last spring, and only a few dozen nests were occupied.

There should not be any off-year in the voters' list in the province of Quebec.—Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Golden Hours of Restful Sleep

FOR ensuring golden hours of restful sleep in a perfectly natural way "Ovaltine" is the recognized best "night-cap" all over the world. The easily-digested nourishment it contains soothes and restores the nerves, allays digestive unrest and builds up the system with new stores of energy and vitality.

No other food, supplies in a concentrated and correctly balanced form the rich nourishment extracted from fresh milk and eggs—Nature's best foods. Every particle is digested with ease and completely assimilated. It contains all the vitamins in correct ratio.

Although "Ovaltine" is of such supreme value, it is moderately priced and more economical in use. No special mixing is necessary in its preparation for use—you simply stir the golden granules into a cup of hot milk or milk and water.

No malt or cocoa drink is in any sense a substitute for "Ovaltine". The process by which "Ovaltine" is made is the result of years of scientific research. Refuse so called "just as good" preparations.

"Ovaltine" is sold at all stores in air-tight tins, at 50c, 75c, $1.25 and $4.50 (special family size).

BRIDGE ST'S INITIAL WIN

Defeats St. Michael's Quintette at Y.M.C.A.

A final of 8 points obtained by the Bridge St. Girls in the opening period of play in last night's Church League game proved too much of an obstacle for the St. Michael's quintette to overcome during the latter stages of play although they threatened seriously to do so near the conclusion of the fixture.

Played in three periods, the game gave indications of being rather a lopsided victory for the United Church representatives when the first of these ended 15 to 7. The second canto saw the play much closer, with both teams adding four points to their respective totals while in the third period the three points registered by the losers were the only additional counters. The game concluded in a 19 to 14 score with the teams dividing the play.

Checking was rather vigorous throughout and Jimmy Allen, referee had a busy time following the play and keeping the players within the law.

Bridge St.—Sally Sullivan, Peter Moncrief 6, Dorothy Gilbert 3, Peg Redfern 4, Marion MacLean 6.—Total 19.

St. Michael's—J. Crull 6, P. Mulcahoir 2, A. Ross 1, L. Melchior 2, S. Melchoir 1, M. Crull.—Total 14.

Both of these teams play a smart game of the cage game and the return fixture between them, on both team's additional practice, will be well worth seeing.

HOLIDAY ROAD WILL BE BUILT

Two or Three Thousand Men Will Be Put to Work

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20.—The building of a holiday road between Bracebridge and Minden, which will provide work for two or three thousand Ontario jobless, will be undertaken almost immediately, announced Hon. William Finlayson, Minister of the Provincial Department of Northern Development, it was learned last night.

The road will provide a link between the Muskoka Lakes district and Haliburton, the summer resort area, north of the Kawartha Lakes.

Last night's city league meeting was not a commendable affair for the league executive. Only one team, the Canada Cycle & Motor Co. was represented. President Dan Kee has the assurance of two other teams who are willing to enter the loop but could not be represented last night. Another meeting to finally decide what will be done in the line of hockey players not fast enough for O.H.A. will be called next Wednesday night at the Y.M. C.A.

X—X—X

Last night's two practices showed the rink what that the new management of hockey in Belleville means business. Both teams had a real honest-to-goodness hard practice and there were ready to call it a day when time was up. There is no doubt but that the material is at present pending the R.A.A. but they have giving all players a real opportunity before they pass any opinion on them.

X—X—X

The junior management received word at six o'clock last night that Parker would not be back from Stratford. He has landed a job there and wants to stay at home with his parents. This was a blow as the management were counting upon him to team with Sherry. Now that Parker is gone the management will not stand for any longer stay. They have sent Hurd home after last night's game and Manager Fryder and Coach Thompson did not think that he had any trying very hard so they gave him his walking ticket. (Watch developments)

X—X—X

Bill Rankin stated last night that he intends seeing Matchmaker Campbell today and try to make arrangements for a wrestling bout in the arena one week from tonight. Bill says that he will try and get Campbell to get Hume down a real heavyweight contender. If he can do this he should be packed to the roof. (It might be Chris Zaharis)

We are sorry to report the first casualty of the season to a local hockey player. The unfortunate in question is Freddie Bennett the flashy little winger for Bayside Hot Hope. It seems he ran a nail into his foot last Monday and then went to practice with the intermediates that evening. The irritation was so great that Freddie was forced to call a doctor who at once put the little spaced merchant to bed. It is expected that he will be able to get out at least a week or ten days.

X—X—X

Word was received at the Belleville Intermediate yesterday that they are to meet the Barrie Juniors in a two-game total game to be played at Oshawa tomorrow afternoon. The locals are also recognized as ultimate aspirants to the championship honors of Eastern Ontario and will battle the winners of Barrie-Oshawa for supremacy of Toronto when they meet Barrie.

X—X—X

Coach Shiels is taking his strongest team to Oshawa and expects the kids to start a battle such as they were not quite up to the mark in their two games with the Tweed "spridders." Although they won both games they are not satisfied with the showing that the kids made and told them to be in no uncertain form. But then, perhaps in a league game they will show things a little more seriously and return to their mid-season form. The kids have not as yet scored yet on in a regular league game, although Lenfesty got the only score on them in both of the exhibition games.

X—X—X

We see that the newly-formed volleyball league got away to a nice start over at the Y.M. C.A. on Tuesday evening. In the opening game the Y's Men were a little off-colour for the Business Men and won both games quite handily. The Business Men are of the opinion that when they get in shape a little later in the season, there will be another story to tell.

X—X—X

The second game between the Hiwatis and the Y.M.C.A. seniors was quite a battle. Both teams won a game and then the Y Seniors went to work and won the third and deciding contest by the score of 15 to 16. These games are played in the Y each Tuesday evening.

X—X—X

Harry Robinson is taking his boxers to Toronto a week from Monday. It is expected that he will take a third fighter from this town for the fight card that night.

N.Y. RANGERS AND FALCONS ARE WINNERS

Deadly Shooting By Cook Hangs up Two Tallies

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 20 (CP) The old "Bunk" of years standing has been broken, the National Hockey League last night when the New York Rangers and Montreal Falcons both playing on home ice, hauled Hooker Beattie and Montreal Maroons, 2-1 and 3-1 setbacks respectively. The Falcons' victory marked the first time in two seasons and Jack Adams' men had taken the measure of the Montrealers while the Rangers' victory in New York was the first since December 1928.

The deadly shooting eye of Bill Cook, plugging right winger of the New York forward line, was working to perfection last night and as a result he hung up both New York tallies. Despite the fact Cook was the official marksman for both goals the honor role for Chinz Johnson, lofty defence star, who turned in one of the best games of his career. His defensive play in the closing minutes of the game when the Rangers put on a spirited five man attack was worthy of note and he was responsible for turning back numerous Rush thrusts on the Rangers' net. Cook scored first after two minutes of play when he banged Boucher's rebound past Lorne Chabbley. Bill Taugher, secured from the disbanded Ottawa Senators, scored the count for Boston five minutes later when he batted a well-placed shot in the corner of the Rangers' net. Play was fairly even during the remainder of the first and throughout the second stanza, but Cook again notched things look up for the New Yorkers early in the third when he pulled off a brilliant solo effort to beat the Boston net guardian.

Noble's Rush

It looked like another Maroon victory over the Rangers for the part of the first period until the veteran Reg Noble came through with a beautiful solo rush thirteen minutes after the start and beat Smith in the Montreal cage. Maroons took an early lead when Dave Trihey accepted a pass from Jimmy Ward to beat Connell with less than a minute to go in the opening session. However, Noble's goal seemed to knock heart into the Rangers and they battled their rivals even for the remainder of the game and but they were unable to make good use of their opportunities. With only two minutes to play the Falcon brass began shooting the puck up the ice in the hope that it would bounce back four abreast. However, on one of their rushes Ward hauled the rubber and Herbie Lewis snatched the opportunity to register a counter who went right in to score as the game ended.

The Bowling Alleys at Port Hope which were recently opened invited Belleville Port Co. to play the opening game with Port Hope. The results were the B. Fruit won all four points but Port Hope put up a stiff battle and with a little more experience it will take some good team to beat them. For the Belleville team set up an alley record for three string of 771. For the high bowler of the B. Fruit T. Morrell was high with 217-341-313—771 and for Port Hope C. Cancilla put a high single record of 346. For the Port Hope team C. Cancilla was high with 346-181-192—719. A return game will be played in the near future.

Membership of Railway Probe Board About Completed

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—Organization of the Royal Commission which is to investigate Canada's transportation problems is nearing completion. It has been delayed by the illness of a French-Canadian member, but an official announcement may be made today. The personnel, it is expected, will be the following: Right Hon. Lyman Duff of the Supreme Court of Canada, who will be Chairman.

Lord Ashfield, of London, England, Chairman of the Underground Railway.

Sir Joseph Flavelle, Bart., of Toronto.

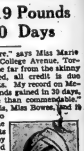
Leon Fresnel Loree, President of the Delaware & Hudson Railway, New York.

Dr. John Clarence Webster, of Shediac, N.B.

Dr. Walter Charles Murray, President of Saskatchewan University.

President of the Canadian Bankers' Association.

Highway Competition



It is expected the Commission will investigate the substantive inquiry into Canadian railway and transport problems, including motor truck and bus competition, which is seriously affecting revenues of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways.

Presumably its recommendations will enable the Government to define its policy with regard to the publicly-owned railway. Both railways are alarmed over the falling off in freight and passenger traffic, and several remedies are suggested, such as an increase in freight rates, reductions in wages, amalgamation, joint operation and the elimination of wasteful duplication. The Commission will sit chiefly in Montreal and Ottawa, but there may be hearings also in Toronto and Winnipeg.

Justice Duff is a distinguished Canadian jurist, a master of languages and mathematics, who used to correspond in Greek with the late Lord Haldane and Augustine Birrell, and is a member of the Judicial Committee of the Imperial Privy Council. He was appointed to the office of law in Barrie, and later moved to Toronto where he went on the Superior Court Bench of British Columbia.

He came to Ottawa in 1917 as Central Appeal Judge in connection with the Military Service Act, and served on the Royal Commission which investigated the shell charges. Following the departure of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and before the arrival of the Earl of Bessborough, he was appointed Administrator, and read the Speech from the Throne at the opening of last session. Previously, he had made an annual pilgrimage to England; has an acute, receptive mind, and is also a genial, colorful, scholarly and likeable personage who have ever adorned the Supreme Court Bench.

Toronto Girl Gains 19 Pounds In 30 Days

Miss Renee of Toronto

"If my picture," says Miss Marie Bowes, of 653 College Avenue, Toronto, "shows a far from skinny girl as I was expected, all credit is due McCoy's Tablets. My record of gain, 19 pounds gained in 30 days, which is more than commendable."

We'll say it is. Miss Bowes is not only goes to show that the amazing benefits made possible by McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets are often beyond words to describe.

"Where's never been a skinny, puny, scrawny, delicate, ailing, rundown man or woman or child, who hasn't needed the great vitalizing, health, strength and weight building substances found in codfish livers. And McCoy's Tablets are the best form of taking them because they're sugar-coated, easy to swallow, digest and assimilate. They act with in those unique elements supplied by the lowly codfish livers. And they which are so indispensable to the full development of a normal, attractive figure and manly or womanly health, vigor and energy.

"ONE RICH QUICK WALLING-FORD" AT THE BELLE

Laughs are assured in advance for seeing "New Adventures of Get-Rich Quick Wallingford", now at the Belle. Under a glimpse of the cast of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, which boasts a galaxy of funsters recruited from both screen and stage.

William Haines plays the debonair J. Rufus Wallingford, beloved grafter of fiction. Sharing his adventures in high finance, trickery and comical tribulations are Jimmy "Schnozzle" Durante, the famous New York stage comedian, who plays a rioters chauffeur with Mr. Krooner Thurmond, who enacts the saxophone playing Blackie Dey. Leila Hyams, who played opposite Haines in "Wicked", and Polly Moran as "The Girl, Said No" is the heroine.

Directed by Sam Wood the comedy was adapted by the series of "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" stories by George Randolph Chester, which appeared in the Cosmopolitan Magazine. Charles McArthur adapted the stories to the screen and the picture was directed by Sam Wood.

The story opens with the meeting of Wallingford and Blackie Dey aboard a transatlantic liner, when Blackie tries to trim J. Rufus in a card game. They become partners in trickery and bilk a "sucker" from Syracuse, but unfortunately he pays them with a certified check. They know that the minute the check is endorsed they will be jailed.

About that time, Wallingford sees Blackie get a "tip" on a clay proposition and start a clay corporation, but matters become complicated when Wallingford falls in love with Dorothy, daughter of the owner of the property. To save her father from a financial failure, Wallingford endorses the check as security for understanding being that it's to be held, not banked. It gets in the bank, however and the detectives are on the trail of the rogues. Wallingford's clever climax frees the general Wallingford, and Dorothy and get's married. Thus all ends happily.

"THE SPIDER" ACLAIMED AS MAGICAL MYSTERY

Hailed far and wide as a kaleidoscopic pageant of picture magic, a three ring circus of nerve-snapping suspense and rib straining hilarity, "The Spider," screen version of the Broadway mystery thriller opens its long awaited engagement at the Capitol Theatre on Saturday.

Edmund Lowe and Nora Moran, the pair who set the shortspinning public on the edge of their chair in the spectacular "Transatlantic", are "The Spiders" featured leads. Lowe has one of the most engaging opportunities of his career in the colorful part of Garland, the magician whose act is interrupted by a murder, committed in the side of the crowded theatre. Lola Moran is presented as a sweet young innocent romantic in the role of a very intricate and sinister intrigue.

H Brandel is involved in the proceedings with results which may easily be imagined, and George E Stone, that excellent character actor is cast in one of the key positions to the mystery. Warren Rymer's rugged profile is thrust into the turmoil where it does the most good.

William Cameron Menzies and Kenneth MacKenna co-directed "The Spider" their second combined effort for Fox. Their initial venture was the Elissa Landi success, "Always Goodbye". Those who have seen the picture report that they did use which these two have made of the sound camera gives a new extension to the medium, bringing to the spectator of screen drama the same thrilling sensation of being actually involved in the crime and the subsequent investigation, that was experienced by those who saw the play on the stage.

Harry Conners adapted "The Spider" for pictures from the play by Fulton Oursler and Lowell Brentano.

"Unconquered Africa" the final episode of "Adventures in Africa" will be included in the program together with a comedy and the News Thus programme will be shown on Saturday and Monday.

LANDI SUPERB ACTRESS; "WICKED", SPLENDID FILM

Including as it does excellence of story, par excellence of cast, new human touches and artistic and realistic settings, "Wicked", the new Fox drama, starring Elissa Landi, met with the most favorable reception it rightfully deserved when it opened its run yesterday at the Capitol Theatre.

It has been a long time indeed since local picture audiences have witnessed a more remarkable artistic performance than that given by Elissa Landi, brilliant, youthful and beautiful English actress in her role of Margot Rande.

As a young and happy wife, Miss Landi is disillusioned shortly after her honeymoon when the husband she thought an honest bank clerk comes home wounded and dying, a confessed bank robber. In trying to save him from the law she involves herself as an accomplice, is arrested convicted and sent to prison. In prison she is allowed a brief respite from her cell to go to the hospital and bring her child into the world. Later the child is given to the state for adoption and the mother goes back to prison. What happens when she is released and seeks her baby, the screen play reveals in a real dramatic way.

Gifted with perfect screen diction a haunting voice always in accord with her emotions, a pair of mist expressive eyes and a knowledge of every trick in the ritual of drama, Miss Landi gives a performance which is nothing short of superb.

Another player who acts more convincingly than ever is Victor McLaglen, who has the leading male role.

Wi Zeve seem Vic often and have always liked him but never as much as we liked him yesterday in "Wicked".

Other fine portrayals are given by Dan Merkel, delightful little star from Dixie, Theodore Von Eltz and Allan Dinehart. The remainder of the cast which includes Oscar Apfel, Mary Rich, Miss Carmencita Sanchez Torres, Kathleen Kerrigan, Ilean Fenty, Alice Lake and Ruth Donnelly are also deserving of much praise as is Alan Dwan his intelligent direction of the production.

"Wicked" ends tonight.

MUSIC

Musical Leader of Chicago Days Tribute to Jack

Belleville people know that Mr. John Deacon possesses a lovely voice and one of rare quality, sweetness of tone and of exceptional range and power. Upon many occasions Mr. Deacon has generously and graciously delighted music lovers in his home town with his singing and his progress is watched with interest by many friends. At the present time Mr. Deacon is in Chicago and recently he was guest of a gathering of prominent vocalists, among whom were Mr. Edward Johnson and twelve members of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Following is a report of the Musical Leader of Chicago in a recent issue:

Just as Hoer

"What a delightful hour of music it was! At Edgar Schofield's new studio in the Doerlein, the greatest delight was the object or rather the subject of the evening. A very promising young pupil, John Deacon, a Canadian tenor who, like Percy Grainger, hails from across the border of oils here Americans. Mr. Johnson was present to applaud young Deacon and to cheer him along with "Hurray" and "Bis." It took no little courage for this stalwart young man of twenty-four to lay a rigorous program of the famous tenor's songs and arias with the Metropolitan Opera baritone hanging sitting less than twenty-five feet from him. It didn't disturb the poise of the younger man for he stepped with authority into the best tenor voice which is capable of the finest shades and he has a fine command of his song pictures and an equally good frame for his vowels and consonants. He has an excellent pianistino and a ringing high B-flat which he loses not at any time with absolute surety."

STAGE STAR WAS STRANDED

Beatrice Lillie Once Had Fare Paid By Fellow Trouper

That Beatrice Lillie, now well known on both stage and screen, was once stranded in the Brockville district while barnstorming at an earlier stage of her career is revealed in an article appearing in a recta tique of the New Yorker.

"When she was thirteen years old and classified by a Canadian Lyceum bureau as a "semi-comic singer" with refined repertoire, Beatrice Lillie underwent baptism as a professional actress. This was by the traditional ordeal of being left stranded in a small town because the villainous manager of the troupe with which she travelled had absconded with the funds," recounts the New Yorker. It goes on to say:

"The incident was less than tragic however. The elocutionist, the humorist and the pianist, who, with the semi-comic Miss Lillie, made up the troupe, were not forced to walk the ties back to Toronto. Nor were their trunks held by the hotel. A telephone call to Barry Rich, Miss Lillie's first teacher, was greeted with a delighted 'Well, you're acting now,' and a telegraphic remittance of one hundred dollars. Instead of coming home at once, the four full fledged actors spent the week-end entertaining.

"To-day, as Lady Peel, wife of Sir Robert Peel, and an actress whose talents are fairly certain to bring success to any revue, she has been a dozen such incidents members a dozen such incidents of her barnstorming childhood. One of which, now recorded for the first time, has to do with another occasion when the Lillie Trio (Beatrice, her sister and their mother), along with the other entertainers on tour, were high and dry in the neighbored of Brockville.

Fares back to Toronto were low a generous theatre-trouper, who was well known in New York as a boxer, wrestler and physical culture expositor, offered home to still here. A couple of years or so ago Mrs Lillie recalled the story of the incident—and shortly afterwards he received a letter and a substantial sum, for the fares and for "interest" for the many years that had elapsed.

"Spoofed" as to Birthplace

Sundrey, if not all, Torontonians also may be interested to know what to quote a senior citizen or a senior ago Lady Peel was taken on a tour of her native city by the local committee of welcome. Would she pose for a photograph in front of her birthplace, they asked. The implication was that some historical society would one day place a tablet on this shrine. Lady Peel murmured that she would be pleased to do so, and as the motor passed a particularly impressive mansion she pointed to it. She draped herself against a stone pillar at the driveway, with only the faintest Bea Lillie expression on her face to give warning, and the result was solemnly published in the Toronto newspapers. The pillars was of course, not her birthplace; she had never seen the fore. She was born in a less affluent part of the city in 1894."

Pageant Marks the Second Anniversary

Kabul, Afghanistan — King Nadir Khan, ruler over 6,300,000 subjects and a primitive country, recently was assembled there on the second anniversary of his overthrow of King Habibullah, "water-boy of the north."

Tanks, armored cars, aeroplanes, infantry and cavalry participated in elaborate military manoeuvres held under the direction of a German commander in the service of the king. One of the most impressive events was the triumphal ride of Nadir Shah into Kabul, commemorating his original capture of the city. Behind him rode 10,000 of his loyal warriors who had taken the oath of allegiance.

In the presence of diplomatic corps and high civil, military and ecclesiastical officials, all of whom were in resplendent official dress, Nadir Shah delivered a long interactive speech in which he recounted the problems he had met in the organization of the Afghan army. These cars are largely a gratis of money and munitions from the British. In foreign glamor, the event was compared to the coronation a year ago of Emperor Haile Selassie of Abyssinia, the strides, or hereditary nobles of Afghanistan, the Shah, or representative of the people, and the mullahs, or high priests, presented a magnificent spectacle in their glittering robes and the prize and feudal chiefs, adorned in all their ancient and bejewelled regalia, gave a barbaric touch to the scene.

Nadir Khan was "elected" king in January 1929, after Habibullah had been driven out of Kabul by Nadir's brother Shah Wali Khan. Habibullah, whose tribal name was Bacha Sakao, later was executed, either by a firing squad or by being shot from the mouth of a cannon.

Habibullah, coming out of obscurity, usurped the throne after conquering King Amanullah, and his succession was followed by those of Amanullah, left the country with the knowledge that his campaign to modernize the people had failed and is now living in Italy.

Gas Figures Are Quoted at Meeting Held in Westmount

G. D. Conant Shows $85,000 Paid in Wages by Ontario Shore Gas Company Up to End of September.

The following report from the Oshawa Times of a meeting at Westmount will tell a story of the progress of the Ontario Shore Gas Company since its appearance in Eastern Ontario. The facts contained in the article are of interest in view of the vote to be taken in Thurlow Township:

Oshawa—Speaking at a meeting of the Westmount Ratepayers Association held in the Westmount School, Gordon D. Conant, director and Canadian counsel of the Ontario Shore Gas Company, announced that in less than six months the company had expended, in the extension of its gas system covered on Oshawa, a sum of $268,500. This money has been spent, he stated, from April 15, when the Oshawa gas system was acquired, to September 30. The projects covered by it were the extension of the Oshawa distribution system, the gas transmission lines from Oshawa to Bowmanville and Whitby and the Bowmanville and Whitby distribution systems. Further, he said, the results of the campaign and a conservative estimate where actual records are not possible showed that of this amount $85,000 had been paid in wages. And he ventured the opinion that before the snow flies the amount spent during the company would exceed $300,000, and the amount spent in wages would be over $100,000.

Maintenance and Operation

Going further into details, Mr. Conant said that from April 15 to September 30 the company had spent $19,000 in maintenance and operation of the plant, of which $3,000 had been in wages. Up to October 15, 1931, it had laid 25.63 feet of gas transmission lines from Oshawa to Whitby and Bowmanville, and 15.85 feet of distribution mains in Oshawa. Bowmanville and Whitby, or a total of 35 miles of gas lines.

These figures were quoted in the midst of a discussion of the East Whitby gas by-law, a vote on which the electors of the township are to vote on Thursday. There was an extended discussion at the meeting, over which the president of the association, H. Bourne, presided, and keen interest was shown in the speeches of those who presented the case for the by-law. In addition to Mr. Conant's address, there were also speeches by Reeve John Ross, Deputy Reeve Allan Davis, and M. McIntyre Hood, editor of the Oshawa Daily Times.

Reeve Ross

Reeve Ross very emphatically declared his intention, if voting for the by-law and urged the electors to do likewise. The township of East Whitby, he said, had entered into an agreement with the company, and this agreement was exactly the same as that for the other municipalities which had granted franchises to the company. He stressed the point that the fact that East Whitby labor would be employed by the company whenever available, and advanced as an argument in favor of the by-law the fact that gas was to be supplied to East Whitby at the same price as in the city of Oshawa.

Deputy Reeve Davis

Deputy Reeve Davis pointed out that there was no expense to the township in connection with the by-law, as the company was bearing all the expense. If the by-law was not carried, it would be impossible for the people of East Whitby to secure gas. He also stressed the fact that all construction work was to be done by day labor, thus providing the maximum of employment.

M. McIntyre Hood, speaking as a disinterested party, reviewed the company's operations for expansion of the gas distribution system since it had become established in Oshawa, and showed how, as the result of the voting in other municipalities, a growing area of public opinion in favor of a large distribution system for the whole of Central Ontario. There was no doubt as to the ability of the company to finance this development, and meet all the obligations it was undertaking under the by-law. The proposal, he said, would cost the township nothing, and the company was willing to take all the risk.

SCIATICA AND LUMBAGO IN B.C.

But they relieve them with Minard's Liniment, according to Mrs. C. Hadden.

Naturally, this fine old white liniment which has eased Rheumatic Pain, Muscle Soreness, and Lumbago, has relieved Sciatica and Lumbago.—Mrs. Hadden, New Westminster, B.C., thinks Minard's perfect. She says:

"The comfort and relief my husband found for Lumbago and Sciatica by the application of Minard's Liniment was such that we have bought a bottle already. He uses it every day and gives it great praise. I shall always keep it in the house and recommend its use."

For more than 50 years, since Dr. Minard first prepared his famous "King of Pain" Liniment, Canadians everywhere have used it for rubbing out pain, for Colds, Coughs, Stomach Pains, Asthma, Chilblains, Insect Bites, Corns, Warts and innumerable other things. Minard's is like an excellent hair tonic. For ailing animals there's nothing better —anywhere!

RT. HON. PHILIP SNOWDEN,

Lord Privy Seal, Great Britain, has been raised to the peerage and created a Viscount.

Looking to the future Mr. Hood said the night rested when East Whitby would enjoy industrial development along with the whole of Central Ontario, and it would be well to have a gas supply available for industries which might seek locations in the township, adjacent to the city of Oshawa.

Gordon D. Conant, in addressing the meeting said he wished the electors to deal with the proposal strictly on their merits, and for that reason it was desirable that they should have all the facts available. East Whitby was fortunate, he said, to be able to secure as low a gas rate as any municipality in the district, that rate being the same as Oshawa, lower than in Bellevile, Bowmanville, Whitby and Trenton, and lower than the proposed rate for Whitby, Darlington and Thurlow.

East Whitby's Rights

Mr. Conant reviewed the development of gas distribution in this district since 1905, when it was started in Toronto. Natural gas was originally now it was unprofitable for single municipalities to own gas plants. Natural gas plants. The Oshawa Public Utilities Commission had said, had refused, while, legally, to supply gas to East Whitby township, and the gas company would be in the same position if the township should now go to Pickering. That was why the vote was being taken —so that the company would know completely right to extend the gas distribution system in East Whitby.

Means Much to Territory

"Gas distribution," said Mr. Conant, "means much to this district as an industrial necessity. No municipality can hope to compete for industries unless it was able to offer gas supply."

It was important too, from a domestic viewpoint, since it provided a cooking fuel that could be installed at about one-third of the cost of an electrical installation and which was more economical than electricity. Mr. Conant pointed out that already in Whitby, over one Hundred contracts for a supply of gas had been signed.

Mr. Conant then quoted the figures as to the expenditures made by the company in the district since March, and said he left it to the audience, to judge if a company spending this money in this way was able to take care of all the requirements of East Whitby. He asked for a large vote, whether the by-law was carried out or not, in that there could be a definite expression of the Utilities Commissioners.

Company Fair

A number of interesting questions were asked in connection with one of them being in relation to the terms on which labor was employed. To this Reeve Ross replied that the company had always dealt fairly and squarely with the men of East Whitby, and would doubtless continue to do so.

WILLINGDON'S FIRST FLIGHT

Will Soon Have Plane For Own Use on Journeys

NEW DELHI, India, Nov. 20 — (Canadian Press Cable via Reuters) —Earl Willingdon, Viceroy of India and former Governor-General of Canada today made his first aerial flight to attend a state official engagement when he flew from here to Lucknow to be present at the army cup meet.

Earl Willingdon will return by plane tomorrow in time to preside at an important meeting of the executive council. The Viceroy, who is an air enthusiast, will soon have his own plane for use on official journeys to save time and expense entailed in railway and overland travel.

DENIAL BY DUNLOP'S

Toronto, Nov. 20—J. Western, vice-president and general manager of Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Company, yesterday denied published reports that E. I Dupont de Nemours had assumed control of the Dunlop Company. There had been no change in control, he asserted and none discussed.

Being glad to get them and not even seeming to notice they was stale.

Scram out of here with those things, youre keeping all my trade away, the man said.

SAYS BUSINESS WAS RUINED

Flood Lights on Big Building Said to Play Part

London, Ont., Nov. 19—In a civil action set down for trial in the December sittings, Gerald H Noyes of this city is suing the Huron and Erie Mortgage Corporation for $20,000 claiming they ruined his sign business.

Noyes operated a moving picture advertising sign on the top of a building at the corner of Clarence and Dundas Street.

The Huron and Erie erected a new nine-storey head office building across the corner and put flood lights on it. At night when the building was illuminated Noyes' signs could hardly be seen so he closed down.

Stirling

STIRLING, Nov. 17.—St. Paul's League met on Monday evening with 125 in attendance. After the singing of several hymns, Jack Potter read Isaiah 5th chapter. Mrs. Wood then offered prayer. Fred Johlin, vice president of the Blue Club took the chair, and Rev. Rowland rendered a vocal solo entitled "Let me be there with you." The missionary magazine "The Blue Outlook" was then read by the Editor, Mary Hulin. The items were very interesting.

Mrs. Arthur Pryer of Carmel, gave a pleasing piano solo. A musical contest was put on and the benediction closed the meeting.

St. Andrew's Guild met on Monday evening with a large attendance. The program was in charge of Mrs. Roger Mehlkjohn. Mr. R. Mehlkjohn was chairman.

The Guild is holding an impressive lesson from the Psalms, Mrs. Binsom Hubley led in prayer. Maurice Hall favored the audience with a banjo solo, which was heartily encored. Mrs. Mehlkjohn gave a resume on Chopin's life and music followed by selections of Chopin's music by Mrs. Gladys Hubley, a chorus of girls "Frenicia Eggleton, Mary Johnston, Helen Ward, Margaret Rosebush and Mrs. Mehlkjohn, Mrs. Mundorff. A debate following those taking part Mrs. Hall, Mundorff and Arthur Duncan affirmative and Mrs. H. Rollins and Charlie Allan negative and the subject was: "Resolved that Sunday schools not go to Picnics." The affirmative won the judges, the audience could draw their own conclusions. A chorus of darky songs were sung by a chorus composed of Will Hornby, George Tulloch, Art Duncan, D. Lamb and E. Cain. Maurice Bell accompanied with his banjo, the pianist, Charisse Allan, Mrs. Mehlkjohn, Mrs. Mundorff, Mrs. S. Donnan and Miss Smith sang a pleasing chorus. The meeting ended with the Mizpah Benediction.

Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211 met on Nov. 19th at 8 p.m. After the regular routine, a program was put on. Lunch was served at the close, the birthday cake prepared by Sis. Mrs. Geary. J. P. H. Hall was adorned by eleven candles was cut by D. Lamb, Mrs. Geary, Mrs. Smith of Frankford, several speeches were given.

Mrs. James Hawkins who has been in ill health for some time was taken to Belleville on Saturday for a blood transfusion given by her grandson, Lloyd Hawkins, Navigator, of the Royal Bank, Sunnyside.

Mr. Robert Hammond was in Montreal on business last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Fox spent Remembrance day with the former's daughter, Mrs. W. A. Hume of Thirlmere.

Mrs. John Tanner is confined to bed through illness.

Mr. "Bill" Green entertained the cast of "Leave it to Kate" on Thursday evening of last week.

ONE WOMAN'S SECRET

Hens was the most engaging personality in the crowd. She dressed well—always looked well.

What was her secret of charm and beauty? She took as much care of the inside of her body as of her face and hands. She ate Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines. And Vitamin B to tone them up. Both aid regular habits. In addition, ALL-BRAN is a good source of iron for the blood.

This delicious cereal is already cooked and krumbled. Two tablespoonfuls daily for most types of constipation. If you suffer from constipation and have not relieved this way, consult your doctor.

Avoid constipation. It often causes headaches, loss of pep, pimples, premature aging. Eat ALL-BRAN regularly—either as a cereal, or in cooked dishes. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

Minister Visits Old Church Pictures Scenes of Long Ago

Rev. Dr. W. S. MacTavish Revisits Nassagaweya Church

STUDENT THERE

Recalling early days in Nassagaweya, Rev. W. S. MacTavish, of Belleville, has written a short article for the Methodist Recorder, comparing the present-day church in Nassagaweya to that which he attended as a boy.

Dr. MacTavish preached his first sermon in the same church. He was a young divinity student at the time, and it was the urging of his pastor, Rev. H. M. Tate(afterwards of Guelph), which made him attempt it. That, he explains was over 53 years ago.

His sketch follows

On Sunday, recently it was my privilege to preach in the Presbyterian Church in Nassagaweya, the church in which I preached my first sermon more than fifty years ago. One could not help comparing or contrasting conditions as they prevailed then with those of today. The outward appearance the old church is totally changed. Even the handsome structure does not readily change. The windows, however, are altered. The old ones were of plain glass, with white paint stippled on the present ones are of stained glass. At the, rear of the church there then hung two kerosene lamps and a modern Sunday school hall; but these were lacking half a century ago. In the church fifty years ago the pews were straight and square, very uncomfortable for those who wanted a sermon. They were not moved to conform more closely to the shape of the human body, as they are today, by semi-circular form. The building was then heated by two large box stoves and pipes which ran above the aisles supported at the whole length of the church. The pulpit was high up against the wall, and was reached by a stairway of several steps. When the minister entered he first opened the door and shut himself in. It was a regular place for private prayer. That is probably why it was called "sarvad cupboard." It was looked down upon the congregation from what giddy heights the preacher addressed it. The congregation certainly looked up to their minister in those days. Even now the Nassagaweya church is little more than a rostrum deck above the floor, it probably ranged only 18 or 20 inches above the floor. This as it should be for as Brecher said: "The preacher should preach with his whole body down to the toes." But little more than his head and shoulders could be seen when he was "ensconced and confined" in the bird-nest pulpit of fifty years ago.

Fifty years ago the late William Hamilton read the service of praise from the precentor's box directly in front of the pulpit, but, too, was in the way for a door. We sang only Psalms and Paraphrases in those days. Hymns were regarded as lacking in inspiration, and not worthy to be the quality of "the Psalms of David in Metre". There was also another reason why I cannot distinctly remember what tunes were sung. Fifty years ago there they were Martyrdom Irish and Hebron. Usually the tune changed about one half the precentor had sung about one half the first line of the psalm, and the whole congregation joined the tune and joined in. Nevertheless the singing was very melodious. Last Sunday there was a fine choir of young people, a good organ, a capable organist, and an anthem was rendered. It was a treat to hear the congregational singing was more hearty or harmonious than it was fifty years ago.

In the afternoon, fifty years ago, we drove for another service to Campbellville, five miles away. It was a cold day in winter, and we were in an open cutter exposed to every wind that blew. But our knees were protected by something the like of which I had never seen for many a day—a genuine buffalo hide with a scalloped felt around the margin. The church in Campbellville was a frame structure painted white, and it stood on a little eminence south of the then Main Street. The church was heated with stoves and from the long pipes there were suspended, at intervals small tin pails to catch the coal. What the pails failed to catch fell on the floor and made fantastic designs there. Today the church is a beautiful building of red pressed brick, with a comfortable vestry, and all the other rooms required for church activities. It is named St. David's in honor of the late David Wheelhan, a Roman Catholic who donated the land on which the church is built. It is a generous act on the part of Mr. Wheelhan and his name will perpetuate the memory of a broad-minded citizen.

Fifty years ago the singing was led by the late Robert Elliott, a man whose voice retained its sweetness and outstanding advancing age. As in the Nassagaweya church there was neither organ nor choir. Hymns and anthems had not yet found their way into the congregational singing was excellent. For my memory is still fresh. Ephraim Chapman was present, and his rich, sonorous voice was heard above every other voice in the congregation.

Last Sunday's fine choir wore black gowns with white collars. The anthem was appropriate and was beautifully sung. The minister wore a Geneva gown which is said to hide a multitude of something.

How different the method of transportation! I have already spoken of the slow, cold ride we had fifty years ago. Last Sunday

But certain things abide. This Gospel is still "the power of God unto salvation unto all them that believe." No new plan of salvation has been devised. Man is still incurably religious. Souls are still hungry for a Saviour's love. The Bible has lost none of its ethical energy. Jesus is the same yesterday, today and forever. The business of the preacher, as it always was, is to defend the Bible, but to expound it and live it. And that the Word will not return void.

W. S. MacTAVISH.

ANCIENT LAKE SKIPPER DIES

Survived Days of "Coal to Chicago and Wheat to Buffalo

OAKVILLE, Ont., —(By The Canadian Press)— A pioneer of early Canadian shipping days disappeared here with the death of Captain Maurice Fitzgerald, who in recent demise at the age of 88, has brought Oakville of a sturdy and inspiring figure.

Captain Fitzgerald was still in his teens when the rows of ships lying in Oakville harbor awakened in him the love of the sea that was to bring him to follow the Oakville tradition which was almost as old as its boys to sea, at least for a while. Starting as a boy in the little packet which made journeys out to Hamilton and other nearby points, he rose, as he got to be known, roamed for over 50 years in the heavy wooden ships of sail, as it was then the custom, coal to Chicago and wheat to Buffalo.

When steamers came in and the ships became darkened with smoke, the veteran folded his sails and returned to his native town, taking up in booming times his scorn of a soulless modern world. With his interest turned away from navigation, Captain Fitzgerald successfully managed up to his death, a small coal business. But the spirit of yore never quite left him and he and, during hours of leisure, he loved to gather friends and children around him and recall tales of bravery, of fights and hardships, of storms and calms when the wind whistled about the ice-sheeted sails and the ship's timbers groaned and moaned.

He died where he was born, and as he laid within the century-old walls, tall candles burned at his head and feet, lighting his way it seemed, to the last port.

Plato in his 80th year was still touching up his Dialogues.

STRESS VALUE OF GAS FRANCHISE TO THURLOW

Thurlow Tp. Hall Filled Speakers See Advantage in Passing Gas Bylaw

Reeve Mitchell and Other Speakers Endorse Franchise

FUTURE VIEW

Bylaw to be Voted Uopn on Monday, Nov. 23rd is Explained

CANNIFTON, Nov. 21.—Speaking to an audience which completely filled the town hall at Cannifton last night, Gordon D. Conant, Canadian Counsel and director of the Ontario Shore Gas Company, and a number other speakers presented a convincing reasons in support of the gas franchise by-law on which the electors of Thurlow township will vote on Monday next. The electors assembled displayed keen interest in the speeches in favor of the by-law, and seemed greatly impressed by the facts and information placed before them. Practically all of the speakers stressed the importance of granting a gas franchise to the Ontario Shore Gas Company, so that the township could be linked up with the Belleville gas distribution system and have available an economical supply of gas.

Reeve Mitchell acted as chairman, and in his opening remarks expressed appreciation of the large attendance. The township council, said the Reeve, had considered the franchise carefully, and felt convinced that the township was safeguarded in every way. He had no doubt that the proposed by-law now using gas, hoping that the by-law would be carried, and that it was thoroughly in favor of the by-law.

Councillor Denyes

Councillor Karl Denyes said he believed the gas franchise would be a great benefit to the township, particularly in the south end of the township. He particularly appealed to those in the north part of the township to get out and vote for the by-law over.

C. A. Payne

C. A. Payne, township solicitor, then spoke, and said the agreement was necessary, because the gas company could not continue to supply gas in the township to those now using it, without a franchise. The agreement, he said, gives the company the right to sell gas in the CUT RUNNING TIME ON C.N.R.

Changes Effective Sunday Nov. 22nd on C. N. R. Lines

TORONTO, Oct. Nov. 21.— Still further reductions in the running time of the Canadian National Railways' crack International Limited" between Montreal-Toronto and Chicago and the inauguration of new schedule which becomes effective on Sunday, Nov. 22nd, according to an announcement made today by Mr. H. G. Crouch, passenger agent, Toronto.

Already one of the fastest long distance trains in the world, the "International" will cover the 846 miles between Montreal and Chicago in 17 hours and 30 minutes under the new schedule, a reduction of 30 minutes record by 25 minutes. For the further convenience of business men the departure of the "International Limited" from Toronto, it has been moved forward one hour to 10.10 p.m. instead of 9.10 p.m. as heretofore. The six hours running time of this train between Montreal and Toronto will remain unchanged under the new schedule.

The consolidation of the C.N.R. "Continental Limited" and "National" trains as a "co-ordination" and elimination of certain services considered unnecessary in view of further operating economies also become effective this week end.

Affording travellers a fast through service to the coast, "National" the Canadian National Railways running between Toronto and Winnipeg, will be consolidated with the Continental Limited at Capreol. This train will now leave Toronto at 11.30 p.m. daylight saving time at 5 p.m. on the second day. Vancouver will be reached 14 hours quicker for Toronto passengers than has previously been the case.

Effective next week local day trains numbers 30 and 10, and night trains 34 and 31 will be withdrawn. Traffic formerly handled by the 11 o'clock and 11.59 trains in each direction will be taken care of by the late night train leaving both Toronto and Montreal at 11.30 pm.

Pupil Crow Steals Pen

SUDBURY, Nov. 21.—E. Paper, a section man with the C. N. R. at Capreol, has a tame crow which insists on getting an education. For some time it has been following the children to public school, but little attention was paid to the bird until yesterday when it flew into a class room and lifted a fountain pen off one of the pupil's desks and then flew right out again. The crow has not as yet returned the pen.

MOTHER AND SON BURNED IN TENEMENT

Thirteen People Trapped in Toronto House Early Saturday

TWO INJURED

Most of Those Caught in Building Asleep at Time

Toronto Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—Despite frantic efforts by the husband and father, Mrs. Thomas Booth, 35, and her five-year-old son, Thomas Booth Jr., were burned to death today in a fire which trapped thirteen people in a tenement at the corner of Clinton and Bloor St., today. Two people were injured in the blaze.

Thomas Booth and his 16 months' old son George, were injured, the latter so seriously he is not expected to live. Another member of the Booth family Ronald 5 was rescued by his father uninjured. There were 13 persons in the two storey building and with the exception of those dead and injured all escaped in their night clothes but lost all their possessions and are left destitute. Only one family had anyone working.

Left Asleep

Most of those trapped within the building were asleep when the fire broke out. James Williams, his wife and baby escaped from their ground floor room by running through the flames which burned their scanty clothing from their backs. Their four-year-old child snatched from the arm as he slept, had all his clothes burned, but made from a few blisters, the family was unharmed.

Thomas Booth, husband and father of the two who are dead, rescued two of his children and had a third in his arms when the smoke drove him back. The mother, according to Mrs. Williams, was alive when brought out of the house but died a few minutes later.

DOLLAR WHEAT IS NECESSARY

Revival in Western Canada Can Only Come Through Wheat

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 21.—Dollar wheat is necessary if there is to be any great revival in Western Canada, says A. M. Shaw, Dean of the Agricultural College at the University of Saskatchewan, who is visiting and speaking here last night. Increase of wheat prices to 65, 75 or even 85 cents did not justify the assumption that good times have returned to Canada, he said.

The disparity between wheat prices and commodity prices is still entirely too great," he said at the annual Joint dinner of the Ontario agricultural college alumni and the western Ontario branch of the Canadian Society of technical agriculturists.

ROSLIN WOMAN IS KNOCKED DOWN

Saturday morning at about eleven o'clock, Mrs. Margaret Cross, of Roslin, Ont., in attempting to cross the street at the corner of Bridge and Front streets in the village was assisted by a slightly sprained ankle and was taken to the home of her brother Mr. Mary Wallis, 16 St. Charles Street by Mr. Bentley in his car. Mrs. Cross, it is said admitted that she was entirely at fault in walking across the intersection against the signal light.

FIND OF REAL GAINSBOROUGH

Listed as Work of Unknown Artist, Sold For $400

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—A painting, listed as having been done by an "unknown artist", purchased by a wealthy Chicago visitor for $400, was described today by Dr. Maurice Goldblatt, an art dealer from whom Caroline Gainsborough valued at $50,000.

The painting, a portrait of Mrs. Goldberg. She was passing an auction sale of paintings when attracted she was attracted by an oil depicting a pastoral scene with a turreted castle in the background. She overbid several other persons.

After his examination Dr. Goldblatt said:

"I placed it about 1780, in the Ipich period. Then examining the canvas closely I found the master's signature, faint but true in the lower right-hand corner."

Wise Old Owl Sits Silent on Court House Verandah

As befitting his proverbial wisdom and intelligence synonymous with all other members of his feathered tribe a large grey owl spread his wings and head silently over the court house building early this morning where he has taken up his abode on cutnices one of the cornices of the verandah.

Here he sits and meditates on developments and problems of the day. Thus the owl family again upholds its traditional reputation for sagacity and proper observance of owlish

Safe in Wellington Office is Blown Open and Robbed

Same times during late Friday night and early Saturday morning the safe in the office of Hogg and Lytle, grain and produce merchants at Wellington, was blown open and a sum of money stolen; the exact amount not being stated.

The burglary was immediately reported to the police and early Saturday morning provincial constable Norton of Picton and county constable James Loveiace of Bloomfield arrested William Smith while in his bed at his home in Wellington, on the charge of having committed the crime. In his possession Smith was taken to Picton where he was arraigned in police court this morning and remanded in custody for one week.

Smith is about twenty-five years old and has a wife and three children.

Blessed with prosperity and enjoying luxuries such as the world has never known before,automobiles, radios, telephone service which reaches round the world, latest news service, electric house heating, electric labor saving machines for home and business and so many other advantages of this age fortune's favored ones should be more generous to the last degree in their dealings with their less fortunate neighbors.

This winter will see considerable unemployment both for seasonal workers, mechanics, clerks and all branches of industry. Belleville, while better off than most other industrial cities on account of our diversified industries, has problems of relief which call for careful attention.

Certain citizens are devoting much time and their own money to raising a fund of $10,000 for relief purposes, also supplies of food, fuel and clothing. Everybody can help in this good work. All cannot give their time, but all can give money.

Four hundred cards with direct appeal were sent out with stamped addressed return envelopes, —only forty-one have been returned. If you cannot give please return the blank card in the stamped addressed envelope so that the committee can complete the list.

Busy men are giving their time to the work of raising this fund. You can make it easier by responding quickly. Two committees are working for the objective as soon as possible so that they can be relieved of their duties in this regard, although the finance committee, supplies and employment will function all winter.

Remember, all contributions are voluntary, there is no compulsion in any way. Give what you can, be it little or much, and it will be received in the same spirit.

If you have received a card fill it out and return with your contribution, be it fifty cents, fifty dollars, it takes a mickle to make a muckle, and the feeling of having a share in this good work is one which will augment the spirit of Christmas and create happiness in the heart of the giver as well in the heart of the benefitted.

I WILL SHARE

If you belong to a business group or factory where no action has yet been taken get that action to be taken at once in order that the committee may know as soon as possible just what to expect.

RAID ISLAND FOR G. A. STILES

Futile Swoop By Police After Indian Story

Ottawa, Nov. 21—Ontario Provincial police officers operating from the south shore of the St. Lawrence made a raid on Stanley Island, yesterday, seeking Gerald K.C. missing Cornwall lawyer.

Stiles, for whom a reward of $2,000 has been offered, is sought on charges of forgery, theft and misappropriation, and has been missing nearly three months.

The raid however, proved futile, Indians had reported to police that a man was living on the island.

THREE BARNS ARE BURNED

Causes of Fires in Two Cases Are Known

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 21—Three Ontario barns were destroyed by fire last night. Combustion was given as the cause of one blaze unknown in the case of a second, while the origin of the third was unknown.

One fire occurred in Erin township near Cataract, one near Guelph, and the third in Wallace township near Palmerston.

The barn of Miss May Hallett of Erin township was destroyed along with many horses and a number of calves by fires of unknown origin. The loss is estimated at several thousand dollars.

SHIPPING TIED UP

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—Shipping was practically tied up early this morning by a 40-mile an hour southeast gale that swept Lake Superior and Lake Huron. Telegraph, telephone and power services were disrupted. Only one phone cable connecting Sault Ste. Marie, Michigan, was operating.

Fewer U. S. Razors to Shave British Chins

Washington, D.C., Nov. 21 (By Ken Clark, Canadian Press Staff writer).—The capitol, of the United States was surprised today for the second time within a week to read in its morning papers that the Hoover board of trade would impose duties of fifty per cent. on several billion dollars worth of American exports beginning next Wednesday. It had been expected here the new authority conferred on the board would be exerted to prevent influx of goods in anticipation of the building of a tariff wall around the Empire and the United Kingdom but it was not expected that the board would immediately place almost prohibitive duties upon such a list as that contained in London despatches.

Experts immediately began to figure what amount of trade would be affected by the duties and turned up some astonishing matters. For example in 1930 the United Kingdom sent to the United States from the famous complexion of the British female who also used American lipstick and cosmetics to the amount of $190,342.

More serious than the duties to be placed on these articles were those upon paper and paper manufactures a trade of $3,000,000 a year upon which publishers of the commonwealth the same sum and upon vacuum cleaners and electrical refrigerators, ward toward the million dollar mark in each case.

The delegation in London despatches that cutlet might be made applicable to the new duties and American manufacturers who had been congratulating themselves on having plants within the Empire. An latest report from the latter said issued more than 150 representing in investmenta perhaps $50,000,000.

GOWNS MAKE GANDHI BLUSH

"Western Women Mad Their Own Vanity"

London, Nov. 21 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi went to a reception last night at the home of Lady Astor but today he disclosed that the gowns of Britain's leading hostess were no lower his eyes to shame.

"Even in tropical India where the temperature often reaches 120 degrees, women never would dress as if appearing on the streets half dressed as they do in London," he said. "Western women are mad with their own vanity. They wore the dress that was fashion's decree for them to allow beauty due rein to mar their good lies. Fashion has given them to pluck their eyebrows and distort their features."

Police Suspect Shooting, Find Robbery Done

BEER FOUND

Police Discover Payette in House With Cut Hand

Cornwall, Ont., Nov. 21 (CP)—Betrayed by a trail of blood, which led police from the scene of a robbery to his home, Leo Payette, of Lemieux Lane, is under arrest here. Police first feared a shooting plot, but it was only robbery and Payette faces a charge of theft.

The entire stock of a local butcher store had been stolen and the thief had cut his hand when he broke a window to gain entrance.

Police found Payette with a cut hand, and in the cellar of his home by burglars. Blown open and a 90-pound quarter of beef, two 50-pound chunks of pork, many pounds of lard and two cartons of biscuits—the entire store stock.

STEERS FIERY CAR DOWN HILL

Heroic Truckman is Himself Badly Burned

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 21. — (By the Canadia Press)—Flaming debris from the cab of a heavy transport truck last night held the driver remained at the wheel until he safely brought it down Mile Hill, on the Hull-Maniwaki Highway, where he crashed into a stump.

Robert Dean, the plucky driver who stayed at the wheel, rather than abandon the transport and allow it to speed down the hill with fatal death or injury to other motorists, suffered painful burns and an arm injury. With the flames swirling about his head, Dean leaped from the truck just before it crashed into the ditch.

A short-circuit caused the fire, and the truck was badly damaged.

SAFE CARRIED FROM OFFICE

Robbers Also Open Cleaning Plant Office at Peterboro

Peterborough, Nov. 21—A safe weighing more than two hundred pounds was carried out of the Peterborough Oil office here Thursday night by burglars. Blown open and more than $10 in loose cash removed, the safe was found on a side road more than two miles from the city on Friday morning by a farmer, who telephoned police.

As though this were not enough in one night, burglars also robbed the Modern Systems' Laundry plant at the corner of Hunter and Haggart street. Here they secured only one dollar in coppers for their trouble. Apparently they stopped to select suits, shirts, pajamas and other haberdashery that pleased their fancy.

Both burglaries were daringly and expertly executed and lead to the opinion that they are the work of the same gang which Tuesday night made an unsuccessful attempt to rob the Capitol theatre safe.

GOLD BASIS UNDER FIRE

South African Favors Suspension of Standard

Capetown, S.A., Nov. 21. (CP— via Reuters)—Patrick Duncan leader of the Opposition in the Union assembly, today moved an amendment to the Government's bill to regulate currency, banking and exchange rates, asking for the suspension of the gold standard.

Mr. Duncan moved the amendment during debate on the second reading of the bill which was formulated by Hon. N. C. Havenga, Minister of Finance.

He asked also that South African currency be brought into relation with the Union's market overseas.

He characterized the bill as one which could be considered only in a state of siege or a state of war and said the government had decided to sink the ship before hauling down their old standard, a noble gesture which would bring South Africa's sympathy.

The Eskimos have been described as the happiest most contented folk in the world.

Has Strange Malady Hit Deer? Many Dead Deer Are Found

Indian Tells of Seeing Dead Deers' Bodies Blocking River

DEER WEAKENED

Sturgeon Falls, Ont., Nov. 21. There has been a great deal said by hunters this Fall with reference to a scarcity of deer in places where the big game formerly abounded. Some attributed the scarcity to the open season that prevailed throughout the hunting season, while others were pessimistic, claiming that the deer are not nearly as numerous anywhere in the district as formerly.

Now comes another contribution. An Indian resident of the west arm of Lake Nipissing told Magistrate Bell of Sturgeon Falls, a day or so ago that he had found a great number of dead deer in the water during the past winter and that he was actually driven from his camp by the accumulation of dead bodies. There were dead deer in the water, he said, and he had never before seen so many. He believed that the deer, exhausted by sickness, had perished in attempting to cross the river.

SCHOLARS WILL BE IMMUNIZED

In order to guard against an outbreak of the disease, the School Board of Trade Consolidated, High and Separate Schools, have decided to have pupils immunized against diphtheria. Announcement was made this week and Dr. J. M. Maher, Medical Health Officer for that district, is authority for the plan, said that treatment would be given by the different doctors at a small charge.

L. S. MEDAL FOUND IN DISCARDED TUNIC

In preparing and packing some old tunics and clothing for return to headquarters, at the quartermaster stores of the Argyll Light Infantry last night, R. S. M. F. Pattrick found the Long Service Medal of Bandsman Dave Brown, in the pocket of one of the jackets. In turning in his clothing after the disbandment of the band but of the battalion, Dave had overlooked his decoration. The lad has been a distributing element in the life of Bandsman Brown for the past eighteen months, and not only his, but that of his family. Diligence and continuous search had been made during that time for the loss, particular, and questioning and inquiry had failed to locate it. Bandsman Brown is a happy man today, for the medal was one of his most prized possessions outranking even his beloved fife.

HOLD MEETING TO DISCUSS ISSUE

For the purpose of discussing the coming civic election, a meeting of the D.N.R. employees was held in the Engineer's Hall. Representatives of the many different departments of the Belleville terminal and railway organizations were present and a lengthy session was held. Mr. A. Cowdy was elected chairman and Mr. A. G. Meagher was appointed to act as secretary.

Members of the city council were not present and a lengthy discussion was held on matters. Nothing definite was handed out but another meeting prior to the election will be held next week for the purpose of organizing for the coming civic election.

CONCRETE WALL IS RUSHED TO FINISH

Work is being rushed to completion by the twenty or some men engaged in erecting the concrete wall around the new Imperial Oil tanks recently erected on South Front street.

When visited this morning the work was being carried on without a hitch and all but a few remaining feet of the enclosure had been finished. The wall is of feet high and will have another wire and iron fence erected on the top to ensure absolute protection.

LORNE MacCONNELL MOVES TO TORONTO

E. Lorne MacConnell, who has been connected with the J. B. Boyes garage and sales department as the head salesman for the past five years has relinquished his position to open a radio store in Toronto. While connected with the car business in Belleville he has made many personal and intimate friends, who will regret his leaving the city but all will wish him well in his new venture. Before leaving the employ of Mr. Boyce he was presented by the staff with a beautiful cigarette case and lighter combined suitably engraved. Lorne took an active part in all lines of amateur sport being one of the most consistent golfers in the city. On two occasions he won the men's championship of the Belleville Golf Club against stiff competition. He was equally interested in hockey and could be nightly seen along the rail giving the boys the once over. Mr. MacConnell has also opened a Sonora Radio store at 1196 Bloor St. West and will be pleased to see any of his old friends when they are in the city.

LOCAL GIRLS BASKET-BALL TEAMS WIN

By defeating Picton last night by a seven senior and junior game, the girls' basketball teams of the Belleville Collegiate Institute are now leading in the Bay of Quinte group. The senior scores last evening were 21-20 and the junior 42-8. Picton senior team holds second place in the league standing, while Trenton and Picton juniors are tied for second place.

The games last evening were in Belleville, the visitors were well played and very interesting but the second team too one-sided to be interesting. After the games a dance was held in the gym, the music being furnished by the pupils at the piano.

TWO TRUCKS ARE REQUISITIONED

George Forban, manager of the Belle Theatre and his efficient staff were busy today removing all seating, boots, shirts and other wearing apparel which were brought to the theatre the past week by the teen aged children of the city. This week is the week to convey the articles to the Relief Committee's office and many an interesting sight was showing the children's ingenuity. All the children attending the Belle Theatre today for the morning matinees and they showed themselves. The serial is their strong forte and the heroes and the actors were loudly applauded. Mr. Forban tried to make an announcement of the serial today but the children would have no talking, they wanted action on the screen.

LOCAL DOCTORS DONATE SERVICES

Members of the Belleville Medical Association comprising all physicians practising in the city, were addressed Friday by Dr. Ross C. Weir, chairman of the Finance Board of the Belleville Unemployment Relief Committee, upon the needs at the present time. As a result the association agreed that aside from any other contributions which may be made by the members, their professional services would be given during the winter to a list of unemployed furnished by the Civic Unemployment Relief Board and attested as worthy of such relief.

The relief committee appreciate very much the generous action of the local physicians and are sure that great good will result.

LOCAL PARTY GET QUOTA OF DEER

Hunters are gradually filtering home from the north and the general report is that hunting was good with deer plentiful but the weather was just a shade too warm. Irs Simmons of Foxboro has completed forty-five consecutive years in the bush with this year's hunt and as usual got his deer. Among the party were Sam Lloyd, Sidney, Richard and Eggleton, Sidney, Albert Woods, Sidney, Charles Bonter, Frankford, Zufall, Cahawa and Willis Sills and John Mackie, Madill. Fox hunters were at Wesleimkon Lake.

SUPPLIES COME IN FOR RELIEF

Chairman R. V. Isley of the supply committee reported on Friday morning that the supplies were coming in very nicely for the local relief campaign, Mr. Isley stated that the demand for supplies was much greater than they had expected and the supplies on hand such as potatoes and other foodstuffs were loaded out as fast as they were being received. He also was overwhelming surprised at the generous contributions of clothing that were being received. Not a few were mitted. This clothing will be in great demand as soon as the cold weather sets in.

SOUND SYSTEM IS INAUGURATED

The new sound system was inaugurated at the Arena rink on Friday night and is far superior to the one used last season. The skaters can now hear the music all over the ice surface. The main trouble now is to get records that are for skating purposes. Once this is accomplished the skating at the Arena will be as near perfection as one could ask for.

B. C. I. RUGBY TEAM PLAY AT OSHAWA

Coach Leg Shields took fifteen stalwart team to Oshawa today to battle the Barrie "gridders". All players expected to be in the best of spirits when they left the Collegiate Institute this morning. The line-line of scrimmage keep up their good work and the backfield, led by Captain Shilvell, do not get stage-struck there is no reason why they cannot make a real showing. There has been no definite dismissal Barrie's line up but the relative strength of the Northern kids, that we feel assured that the locals should be able to take care of themselves against any junior team in the province. (But today will tell the tale.)

TELETYPE TELLS OF GIRL'S DEATH

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 21 —The newly installed teletype system in the state police was utilized the other day to inform a father his daughter had been killed by an automobile.

The parent, William A. Dolan of Sussex, N. J., was driving near Poughkeepsie when notified.

COIN-MAKER GIVEN LIFE

WINDSOR, Ont., Nov. 21—A life term in Portsmouth penitentiary was the sentence meted out yesterday to Jack Paquette, 24. Last week Paquette pleaded guilty to a charge of possessing equipment for the making of spurious coin and using the equipment for that purpose.

He was taken into custody in East Windsor following a six weeks' search. Appearance of spurious fifty cent coins in both Canadian and the United States currency led to his arrest.

List of Subscribers to Unemployment Relief Fund

Direct Cash Subscriptions and Group Pledges to the Unemployment Relief Fund—All Banks Receiving Subscriptions—Groups Give Day's Pay a Month or Set Sum Weekly—Fund Steadily Mounting Toward Objective of $10,000, Which Will Be Augmented By Government Grant.

Warm hearted Belleville citizens are determined that no man, woman or child should be cold or hungry this winter and to make sure of this the Belleville Unemployment Relief Committee came into being. A number of citizens are giving largely of their time and ability in an effort to raise the sum of ten thousand dollars for a relief fund, to cope with any emergency which may arise through lack of employment among the wage earners of this city during the winter. All money spent in direct relief will be augmented by government grant. Direct cash contributions are being received at the banks and by the City Treasurer, while various business groups are contributing set sums weekly or monthly to the fund.

Four hundred cards were sent out in an appeal for individual subscriptions. Only forty-nine of these cards have been returned. The committee is hopeful that these cards be received as soon as possible, accompanied by subscription, but if the recipient feels that he or she can not afford to subscribe, the card should be sent back blank so that the name may be removed from the list, and the work carried on efficiently. Stamped envelopes were enclosed so send back the cards with a return address on the envelope. Every relief worker should see that the records can be kept up to date.

Individual cash subscriptions receive up to Friday evening totalled $1402.20, while group pledges totalled $3664.07, making a grand total of $5266.96.

Subscriptions from individuals and groups are acknowledged below. It is requested that some subscribers prefer to divide their subscriptions into monthly or weekly payments which is perfectly satisfactory:

Watch Cigarette Lighter

There have been tales told of exploding gasoline tanks on motor cars when an open flame has ignited matches over the filling caps, and there has been mentioned many instances of people starting the breakfast fire with the aid of the inevitable can of gasoline and their sorrow. The menace also of defective chimney flues, too often discovered on the morning after a fire, has been brought to the attention of the leading insurance companies. However a new element of risk has appeared in the home which just may possibly result in increased insurance rates all over the country.

Watch your cigarette lighter!

In little "boxed specials" on the front pages of leading newspapers from Winnipeg to Toronto comes the news that Mr. E. Hartnell of Columbus, Ontario, was killed by using his lighter with gasoline and also spending a few more months in the hereafter innocuous pastime of just tinkering with it, when it failed to light. Mr. Hartnell dropped all over the apartment, setting fire to everything in the house. It was apparently one lighter, that would work when called upon, but in this instance it did the job to the tune of $75.00 for repairs to the family furniture. Now Mr. Hartnell is reported as saying that he's going to return to the old-fashioned wooden kind like his father used to use, and play safe.

Ontario took almost half of the radio sets sold in the Dominion in 1930. The total number of sets sold in this province was 104,155.

In the first eight months of this year about $4,000,000 were paid in Nevada for divorces.

JURY BLAMES DEATH UPON CLUB BLOWS

Open Verdict Rendered By Jury in Greenshield's Case

FATHER IN COURT

Had to Attack Sons, Witness Says He Told Her

Campbellford, Nov. 21—That five-year-old Billie Greenshields' death was due to being struck on the head by a blunt instrument, while he was in bed in the Greenshields' home on Booth Street, on the morning of Friday, November 13, was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury Friday afternoon, to which verdict was attached:

Coroner W. P. Loucks presided; Col. F. D. Boggs, K.C., appeared for the crown.

H. Wilbert Wood told the jury that he saw Ida Sedgy when she went to the Greenshields' home with Mrs. W. Rutherford. "They called up," states he) got no answer. They went up.

She spoke to the older boy, Walter Greenshields, and he answered. She touched little Billie. She could not get him to the telephone for the police. On the way she met Doug. Lowe, through which he got the father's weeping and got him to a doctor.

Called for Doctor

She had asked George Beggs, a baker's delivery man, a neighbor and Mrs. Simmons, to stay in the house till she returned from telephoning. When she came back she went to the boys' room to wait for Dr. MacNeil.

Asked if Greenshields had spoken to her, she said he was crying bitterly and said he did not know why he had done it.

Mrs. George Rutherford, the land lady, said all was quiet that morning. Her first knowledge of the crime came when the distracted father knocked at the door of her part of the house and asked her to call the police. She had suggested that Mrs. Greenshields call for help on the 'phoning. When she came back she went to the boys' room to wait for Dr. MacNeil.

Asked if Greenshields had spoken to her, she said he was crying bitterly and said he did not know why he had done it.

Mrs. George Rutherford, the land lady, said all was quiet that morning. Her first knowledge of the crime came when the distracted father knocked at the door of her part of the house and asked her to call the police. She had suggested that Mrs. Greenshields call for help on the 'phoning. When she came back she went to the boys' room to wait for Dr. MacNeil.

George Beggs confirmed Mrs. Rutherford's story.

Mrs. Walter Rutherford's voice trembled as she gave her version of the story. The time was ten past seven she was sure, because she had glanced at the clock as she ran out of her house. She recalled vividly how she and Mrs. Wood had hesitated at the door of the room.

One of them said, "I'm good if you are." The other echoed the words. Thus, nerves steeled, they entered the room.

Walter Still Alive

Walter was in the front of the bed, a mass of blood. He moved an arm and spoke when they called him. Billie seemed to him cold, he said. They touched the little brother and he was quite cold. Mrs. Rutherford also saw a piece of sheet on the floor as though someone had tried to wipe up the blood.

The father told her something had come over him and he had to "had to do it."

Mrs. Bromley, wife of Chief Constable Bromley, told how, when Mrs. Greenshields called, she explained her husband was out of town on duty. She then 'phoned Constable Hardy and Provincial Constable Machlan at Warkworth.

She saw the murder scene, and said Billie was lying with his face to the wall, on his right side, on his chest. She saw the father in a chair, but did not speak to him. She helped the doctor bathe the injured boy.

Mrs. Jennie Simmons arrived about the same time as Mrs. Bromley. She did all she could, she said, but could not speak to the father. The father was sitting in a chair, crying and ill.

Dr. O. M. MacNeil placed the time of his arrival as soon after 11. He went upstairs, saw Billie was dead, and began to work on Walter. He did not examine the dead boy's wounds closely enough to describe them in detail. Walter, he said, was very seriously injured by a crush wound on the head. The others were minor by comparison.

Dr. F. B. Brintnell attended the father, who had taken iodine. He believed Billie had a fracture of the base of the skull, caused by a blow on the top of the head.

Something Snapped

To Dr. Brintnell, the father had explained that something seemed to snap in his mind, and he remembered nothing till after the deed was done. He seemed stunned, but otherwise normal, the doctor said.

Provincial Constables MacIlrian and Carey gave evidence of the arrest, and identified the club, which, it is alleged, was the weapon used. It was a piece of two-inch square scantling about two feet long, partly whittled and, broken at one end. Bloodstains were very much in evidence upon it.

County Constable Atkinson's evidence was of a similar nature, and concluded the hearing.

Coroner Loucks did not sum up the evidence or otherwise direct the jury. They retired for 32 minutes before bringing in their verdict.

Mrs. Greenshields was not present. Hugh Greenshields, the father, at the coroner's order, was in court. He sat very still, a pathetic figure, touch-headed and unshaven.

At times he did not seem ever to hear. At others there was fear in his eyes and he raised a trembling hand to brush them away. There seemed to be some subconscious response to his brain, under the furrowed brow that barely would not convey. Sometimes his lips moved silently as in prayer. He sat through the whole afternoon's ordeal in dead silence.

The date for the trial has been set for Saturday, November 28th at 2 p.m. Mr. Boggs has been appointed then to answer to the murder charge will not be taken in camera.

The local legion and other organizations elsewhere have taken up the case in behalf of the unfortunate yeteran.

Three lawyers, Mr. McColl of Campbellford; C. Richardson, Cobourg, and Claude Thompson, Brighton, have all agreed to assist, though the retaining fees be nil.

The world's largest bomb weighs two tons.
